In a spirited speech before a meeting of Arab labor unions and organizations at Cairo's city hall, Nasser defended his dream of Arab unity as "a sacred goal." Under his thesis, Arab nations would unite under his leadership.

Khrushchev spoke later and departed from a prepared text to answer Nasser. He rejected what he said at Aswan Saturday—that unity should be based on class struggle, not nationalism.

Replying to Khrushchev's criticism that capitalists and landowners are still tolerated in the U.A.R., Nasser said that such elements are regarded as enemies of the people.

The Egyptian leader argued that the unity movement must run side by side with the Communist camp. He declared Arab unity recognized the role of the revolutionary movements elsewhere in Africa and in Asia and Latin America.

Khrushchev departed from his text to reply to Nasser this way:

"I listened carefully to your speech and I wish to say that I fully support your endeavor to solve all problems facing you in the sphere of achieving progress and prosperity for the United Arab Republic.

"You dwelt enough in your speech a question which I heard many times before . . . you are calling for unity of Arabs.

"I want to say that we Russians understand the question of unity in a broader fashion—not based on a concept of nationalism but on the basis of the power of the working forces."

Then the Soviet leader soothingly told his host:

"We wish with all our hearts, for you to unite so that you can become a great power and so that you may become strong."

O.E.S. Has Japanese Motif For Tea at Masonic Hall

The Masonic hall was transformed into a Japanese garden on Wednesday afternoon for a delightful Spring tea given by Belleville Chapter, No. 58, Order of the Eastern Star. Wisteria dropping from a fountain, a life-sized rickshaw, paper parasols, and opened fans, a boy in Japanese clothing, reading a newspaper printed in that language all added to the Oriental flavor as the guests arrived. Glass wind chimes tinkled in the entrance, and in the tea room colorful lanterns were suspended from the ceiling. Panels of flowering trees and posters of Japanese scenes added color and charm to the decor.

The convener for this event was Mrs. Wynne Tomlinson, with Mrs. Jessie Warren and Mrs. Pearl Johnson, P.M., assisting as co-conveners.

Those who presided at the tea table were: Mrs. Edna Dobbs, chairman of the Grand Chapter Benevolent committee; Mrs. Luella Brickman, District Deputy Grand Matron, District 12; Mrs. Helen Bell, Worthy Matron, Marmora chapter; Mrs. Bernice Brown, Worthy Matron, Colborne chapter; Mrs. Gertrude Ellsworth, Worthy Matron, Trenton chapter; Mrs. Audrey Elliott, Past Grand Matron; Mrs. Betty Palmer, Worthy Matron of Quinte Chapter, and Mrs. Myrtle Cross, past matron.

The tea table carried out the Japanese theme with a centre piece made of a rickshaw holding pink and yellow blossoms; figurines that looked like jade, and pink lighted candles in silver candelabra. The plates of sandwiches and little cakes had tiny paper umbrellas, and each small table was centred with a rickshaw pulled by a coolie, popcorn cherry blossoms and huckleberry leaves to represent foliage.

Mrs. Dorothy Jones conducted the tea room, assisted by co-convener Mrs. Ann Combe.

A home cooking table, convened by Mrs. Jean Bell and co-convened by Mrs. Rebecca Carman was kept busy and the baking was quickly disposed of.

Tickets were sold on grocery baskets by Mrs. Beverly Shaw and Mrs. Betty Vonne, and the candy booth was convened by Mrs. Margaret Finnegan, assisted by Mrs. Clara Rushton.

Visitors were warmly greeted at the door by Mrs. Dorothy Ellis, and Mrs. Bobbie Locke, associate Matron. The hostesses were: Mrs. Dorothy McGlashon, past District Deputy Grand Matron; Mrs. Jean Adams, Past Matron; Mrs. Margaret Shaw, Past Matron, and Mrs. Thelma Liddle, Past Matron.

Mrs. Ila Chapp and Mrs. Emmat Doucett looked after the sale of tickets. The kitchen conveners were: Miss Jean Stephenson and Mrs. Emily Stevens.

Blossoms and butterflies added a gay note to the draperies at the exhibit, and the various booths, including the greeting card table, convened by Mrs. Phyllis Berry, P.M., had many colored fans pinned along the edges of their covers.

This unusual decorating scheme set the background for a fine effort on the part of many willing workers to make the tea a great success.

YOUTH DIES

YONKERS, N.Y. (AP)—David Lampert, 18, whose severed arm was sewn back after a train accident Saturday, died Tuesday of kidney failure. Doctors said the arm appeared to have been in good condition. The youth's arm was found on the platform of railway station here after he had been struck by a passenger train.

Telecommunications Parley In Planned

On June 1, 2 and 3, the Northern Electric Company Limited, will hold a symposium on "Telecommunications Engineering", at its Research and Development Laboratories in Crystal Bay, Ottawa. Forty professors, representing twenty Canadian Universities from our country, have been invited to attend.

The purpose of this symposium is to create a closer relationship between Northern Electric and the senior members of the electrical engineering department in the universities. A closer relationship is deemed necessary because of the demands on the new graduates who enter industry, and the need to keep the engineer's and scientist's knowledge up to date throughout his career. Such requirements make it necessary for University staff to become familiar with the industry's problems in these days of advancing technology and stiff competition, and for industry to better understand the capabilities of universities.

Breakthrough In Dystrophy Work Possible

A breakthrough may be coming in muscular dystrophy research, Dr. Basmajian of Queens University told a dozen Belleville people last night. Head of the department of Anatomy at Queens, and in charge of a research program working under a grant from Dystrophy Association grant, Dr. Basmajian was the speaker at a meeting of Quinte Secondary School of people interested in forming a local chapter of the Muscular Dystrophy Association. Dr. Basmajain's work now is concentrated on the study of muscle fibres and their deterioration under the disease. Equipped with an electronic microscope, he is working on changes within individual muscels cells.

Dr. L. G. Bazett of Queen's University, who accompanied Dr. Basmajain to the meeting, described his man-to-molecule work with organelles -- parts of cells which perform specific functions within the cells. He has found that these organelles are altered physically by muscular dystrophy.

If a cure is found, much of the credit will be due to those long-suffering research workers, mice. A breed of mice has been found to be susceptible to muscular dystrophy and researchers have been able to cure the disease in them. With this laboratory animals to experiment with, the chances of finding a cure are greatly increased.

Three people, Col. Angus Duffy, city fireman E. M. Weslake and Albert College schoolteacher Percy W. Hitchcock, have so far agreed to join a Hastings and Prince Edward chapter of the Muscular Dystrophy Association. Five persons are required before a chapter can be formed. There are nearly a dozen cases of the disease known in the two counties.

Civic Night Held by A. O. T. S. Club

On Wednesday evening Bridge St. United Church A.O.T.S. Men's Club held a civic night.

President Bryce Philp welcomed His Worship Mayor Jack Ellis and members of city council, guests from Holloway St. A.O.T.S. Club and members.

Three new members were inducted into the club, Ross Schryver, George Frederick and Colin Radway.

Speaker for the evening was William "Bill" Palmer, assistant Deputy Minister of Administration of the Department of Municipal Affairs who gave a very interesting talk on how his work helped communities operate.

Municipality is big business. Legislation is to help communities so run the many services which are demanded today.

Many countries send observers to Ontario and even to Belleville to see how our system of Government works and show appreciation of the same.

There is no such thing as perfect government but we must strive for it. We must be aware of growth in everything and adjust to the same.

Local assemblies and citizens decide on their own conditions and problems and this is their freedom.

The speaker was introduced by Dave Thompson and thanked by Taylor Franklin.

CNIB Is Unique Institution Speaker Tells Annual Meet

Canadian National Institute for the blind is unique in the world, Mr. J. E. Caruk, public relations officer of the Ontario Division of that organization told the members of the Hastings County Advisory Board for the blind at their annual dinner meeting in Madoc on Wednesday evening, in the course of his from people all over the world, from well - developed countries as well as underdeveloped who come to study our methods. We appear to be doing such a successful job that the community may not be aware of our problems.

"Forty years ago when blind men sat at the street corners and begged, people could recognize the existence of a problem, but so successful has the Institute been in rehabilitating the blind, that now many are unaware of it.

"It is because the C.N.I.B. selves must ultimately depend on the workers in the field. Fund raising is a necessary evil, but it is these thousands of volunteers that make up C.N.I.B. You may not realize the tremendous obstacles Belleville people present, the shock and eventual results. Blindness among children is often the result of accidents, carelessness with scissors or strong cleaning solutions left around. These accidents are followed by despair, feelings of guilt, and frustration.

TREAT CROSSED EYES EARLY

"Crossed eyes in a child must be treated before the age of five years old. Firecrackers in the hands of a child are insane. Twelve out of every blind is the result of glaucoma, a most insidious kind of thief of sight, which can have been prevented in the early stages.

"A survey of accidents by the Workmen's Compensation Board for one year showed 300,000 eye injuries in Canadian industries, or one every a day. The causes and prevention of accidents must be better known and it is up to you.

Chairman of the board, N. M. Hagerman, presided at the business meeting. Miss Ash brought greetings from the village of Madoc.

Annual reports were given by county representatives from Bancroft, Deseronto, Foxboro, Frankford, Madoc, Marmora, Shannonville, Stirling, Trenton, Tweed and Belleville, some of that visits had been made, Christmas present given, and needs of the blind taken care of.

Miss Myra Vipond, the home teacher, reported giving instruction to 42 people in the Kingston and Hastings area. Some were getting lessons in Braille, some in basketry and chair caning, some were learning cooking and crafts, and all together wonderful progress had been made in the past year. One Belleville resident was taking the adjustment training course. The people she had visited seemed a little more independent and happier than a year ago.

VISITS ARE IMPORTANT

Assistant field secretary D. J. McCallum spoke on the importance of case visits. Counselling, interpreting the CNIB services, to let the blind person know that someone is interested in them, and to break the daily monotony with a visit is the purpose of visiting. The first visit is the initial rehabilitation, and an attempt is made to help the newly blind achieve the maximum of their capabilities. Involved in this is the acceptance of the fact that they are in a blind group and may never regain their sight, and to assist them to find the best area in which they can operate.

"Visiting is an important and valuable part of the work the Board members do. With 450 blind people to visit over an area that covers hundreds of square miles the field secretaries must rely on local Board members to help with visits to the blind," said Mr. McCallum.

Field Secretary P. I. Timmins in his report noted that methods have changed considerably with new services and modern ideas on adjustment and rehabilitation being explored and activated.

Counselling, instruction from the home teacher, library service and many other services assist the blind to accept a new way of life imposed by blindness and to be more self-reliant and self-respecting. Today there are ten residences in the Ontario Division of which Quinte, with Lawrence is one, this program has proved beneficial for those blind people who could no longer manage to live in their own homes.

MANY SERVICES GIVEN

There are 123 registered blind in the county at present. The services included visits to discuss problems and arrange services, talking book loaned, radios loaned, bladeraft shop, adjustment and employment training, residential care, emergency assistance, concessions, travel concessions, eye service, eye examinations, glasses, treatment, and Christmas gifts.

A report of the nominating committee was brought in by Secretary Mrs. Elizabeth Hall, the following members elected for the year:

Honorary past chairman, Mr. N. M. Sprague; chairman, Dr. H. E. Welch; 1st vice-chairman, Mrs. Hollinger; 2nd vice-chairman, Mr. H. G Frid; 3rd vice-chairman, Mr. Murray Hunter; 4th vice-chairman, Mrs. R. G. Jackson, Madoc; secretary, Dr. Joan F. Bronskill; treasurer, Mrs. Winifred Roblin; campaign treasurers, Mr. J. E. Deseronto Man Highly Praised By Magistrate

A Deseronto man who tried to make a citizen's arrest, was highly commended by Magistrate T. V. Hall this morning.

He was Mitchell Roebuck who surprised a man stamping to steal obsolete telephone wire on the Tyendinaga Mohawk Territory, on May 26.

The man escaped after a struggle, but last week 22-year-old Gerald Kenneth was hailed into court and charged with attempt. He was identified with Mr. Roebuck as the man involved. However, Mr. Roebuck could not guilty and denied the allegation. His wife corroborated his claim that he was home at the time of the incident.

This morning Magistrate T. V. Hall dismissed the charge because of the element of doubt concerning the accused's identification.

However, he commended Mr. Roebuck for his action.

"I trust," added the magistrate, "that the outcome of this case . . . will not be a deterrent to others in the apprehension of crimes and the preservation of crime."

Board of Health Requests Action in Getting Rid of Homes With Outside Toilets

TRENTON — The Trenton Board of Health has adopted the policy of condemning houses with "outside conveniences," when the house is located on a street serviced with a sanitary sewer and the owner still refuses to have sanitary services installed (even when he may do so at the expenses of the town and pay back, through his taxes, over a five-year period).

The feeling of the board members is this: If the owner claims the house "isn't worth installing a toilet," it should be ordered demolished.

At yesterday's meeting of the board, E. T. Topping called for action in getting rid of the town's numerous privies. Although the exact number of such conveniences within the corporation's borders isn't immediately known, H. S. Pane, chairman of the board, said yesterday that the figure "could run into 300."

Some homes with privies are located on unimproved streets, but when Mr. Topping suggested the town speed up its sewer installation program, G. W. Larry, clerk-comptroller said he wasn't sure if that much extra sewer installation the town could afford in the next five yrs. Mr. Larry said that while last year's estimates from the Trenton Public Utilities Commission and the Trenton Board of Education had indicated a let up in expenditures in both those directions, this year's estimates, lately received at the town office, had jacked up costs in both departments. The prospect of spending close to a million dollars for PUC water and hydro installations and on new school buildings, or additions to existing schools, in the next five years, had "thrown everything out" as to council's five year spending estimates, he said.

HAD HER SAY

Board member Miss Marjorie Goldard had some thoughts on school expansion.

Miss Goldard wanted to know why present day teachers were adverse to teaching "up to 40 students" in one classroom. She said that when she was a teacher (at Trenton High School) she had taught 40 students and "thought nothing of it." ("And they passed, too," she said.)

Schoolrooms were often empty when the Board of Health members made an inspection, Miss Goldard said, and she felt this space could be made use of rather than build additional rooms onto schools all the time.

"When the town is in an emergency as regards money, why aren't these things considered?" Miss Gothard wanted to know.

Miss Gothard laid the case for much of the town's financial woes to the fact that many industrial workers (and others) work in town and live outside of town — and so paying no taxes in town.

Mr. Topping said that it was true 20 per cent of factory workers lived out of town. He said also that he resented "unfair" that firemen were required to live in town while such other employees as policemen and school teachers were not required to do so.

"It's pretty hard to control this when it comes to teachers," interjected Mr. Topping.

"And why do they want to live out of town?" queried Mayor Dr. E. W. Dow. "Is it lower taxes or the fact that we have privies?"

Mr. Pane wondered if the answer to the problem lay in the town subsidizing some sort of low-rental housing.

Mr. Larry said that council was after all "defeating its own purpose" by subsidizing housing, but that he thought some sort of subsidized housing was necessary in every community.

THREE DEMOLISHED

Many people in a community could never afford to live in anything but low-rental houses, he said, and if the community wanted to raise the standard of housing, it was up to the community to assist such people.

Mr. Pane said that the current board program to have eight houses in town demolished had progressed thus far; three have been demolished.

Dr. Dow observed that one house on Bay St. deemed "unfit for human habitation," had been condemned so many times, that now "condemned" signs have been condemned. And still the occupant and his family live in the house, for lack of alternative accomodation within their income bracket.

Mr. Topping said he had received complaints that raw sewage from Elmwood Acres was being pumped into a ditch running behind the ditch, but it was not an ordinary happening.

Mr. Larry ended the meeting by informing Dr. Dow that he had received a letter at the town office this week, addressed to "Dr. G. W. Larry, Medical Officer of Health.

ESTABLISH SITE

TORONTO (CP)—The Royal Ontario Museum has established its third archeological site in British Honduras, Dr. A. D. Tushingham, chief archeologist at the museum, said Tuesday. Covering about three square miles of the Central American country, the site encloses a ceremonial centre built by Maya indians more than 1,000 years ago.

At St. George's Anglican Church Parish Tea in the new church hall in Trenton yesterday were Mrs. K. F. Blachford, wife of St. George's rector, Canon Blachford; Mrs. Charles Hilton, president of the Evening Branch of the Women's Auxiliary and Mrs. T. E. Bedford, president of the Orion Club.

Parish Tea At St. George's Is Success

TRENTON — Women's church groups combined forces on Wednesday to convene a Springtime Parish Tea in the new church hall at the rear of St. George's Anglican Church on John St. in Trenton.

Receiving guests at the door were Mrs. K. F. Blachford, the wife of St. George's rector, Canon Blachford; Mrs. Charles Hilton, president of the Evening Branch of the Women's Auxiliary; Mrs. T. E. Bedford, president of the Orion Club and Mrs. G. W. Larry, president of the Women's Church Year.

Under the direction of Mrs. Bedford, the ladies had decorated the hall in a springtime motif, using garden flowers of mauve and yellow hues.

Mrs. Larry doubled up on the cake table; Mrs. Hilton, along with Mrs. L. Price headed up the list of servers, while Mrs. Leighton Long was in charge of the kitchen.

Mrs. Adolf O'Krafka was in charge of the sewing booth, which featured the delicate embroidery of the women of Pakistan.

Pouring tea throughout the afternoon were Miss Lillian McPhail, Mrs. H. B. Smith, Mrs. G. L. Bonter, Mrs. Hilton, Mrs. Ross Burke, Mrs. F. B. Sprung, all of Trenton and Mrs. A. E. McConnell and Mrs. D. G. Madill of Belleville.

In charge of the nursery where the little tykes were entertained while Mama had a cup of tea were Mrs. Brian Wilson and Mrs. E. Turland.

STUDY STRESS

SASKATOON (CP)—Research is under way to discover the effects of physical and emotional stress on blood vessels. Conducted by Dr. L. B. Jacques, head of the University of Saskatchewan's physiology and pharmacology department, the program has found that stress resulting from emotional upsets, drugs and physiological factors such as frostbite has produced fatal hemorrhaging when combined with the use of anticoagulants.

Bicycle Rodeo To Be Held

TRENTON — Saturday is Bicycle Rodeo Day in Trenton. The Trenton Kiwanis Club and the Trenton Police Department have again joined forces to stage the annual safety rodeo in the community gardens. School children will receive direction from their teachers as to when to appear at the arena.

Bicycles are judged for safety features and each contestant is required to drive a prescribed course, and to pass written safety examination. Results will be announced later and prizes handed out at the school.

Kiwanis Safety chairman is Ted Snider and the Safety Officer from the police department is Sgt. Gordon Steenburg.

E. M. Parker Joins Trade Mission to U. K.

TRENTON — Mr. E. M. Parker Sr., representing the firm of Morton-Parker Ltd., in Trenton, will leave by air tomorrow for London, England, where he will join the Hon. Stanley Randall, Ontario Minister of Economics and Development. Fourteen representatives of firms across Ontario will embark on a four weeks' trade mission tour of the United Kingdom and western Europe the first of next week. The Hon. John P. Roberts, Tyrone Minister of Ontario, will join Mr. Randall and the industrialists from Ontario in London, Saturday.

Nursing Staff Of VON in New Offices

TRENTON — The nursing staff of the Trenton Victorian Order of Nurses' branch moved to their new quarters last week and the first regular meeting in the new office was held Tuesday night. The office is located in the Ireland Building, next to the bus terminal.

George Greer, president, told the executive members rent for the new office will be $65 a month. In the previous location, at the CNR downtown station, the branch paid $5 a month.

Mr. Greer said the branch would need more money for operation this year, due to the higher rental, and urged activity participation by all members in the June 5 and 6 VON tag days. A good response from the public is hoped for. Forty volunteer taggers are needed.

Mr. Greer sponsored a vote of thanks to Mrs. N. LaGrois, convener of the spring tea last month, which netted $250.

Miss Anne Stewart, nurse-in-charge introduced Miss Margaret Goulin, a public health nursing student at the University of Ottawa, who will be in Trenton for three weeks doing public health field work. Miss Goulin is a native of Windsor.

Recently, Mr. Greer and Miss Stewart attended the 66th. annual convention of the VON in Ottawa and reported to the executive Tuesday night proposals related to the Home Care Plan, brought out at the convention. The plan is designed to relieve hospital congestion by sending patients home to convalesce, with VON nurses providing home care under the direction of the family doctor. The service include a presentation to the Ontario Hospital Service Commission that such care be paid for out of the hospital insurance plan funds.

GAIN SUPPORT

A program similar to the Home Care Plan is being worked out in Ottawa and the city of Hull has gained the support of the Quebec government for the plan.

In a report from a recent provincial VON conference, Miss Stewart said there are 57 VON branches in Ontario, serving 72 per cent of the population. Miss Stewart compared the cost per visit in Trenton of $3.51 to the average provincial cost of $3.59.

Visits in April totalled 164, Miss Stewart said; nursing care was given in 88; adult nursing care was 70, requiring one hour each per visit. Two night calls were made in the adult group. In the nursing care bracket, veterans were the patients for the most part.

Miss Stewart said the spring session of the pre-natal classes had ended in May with a tour of the maternity ward at Trenton Memorial Hospital.

400 Telephones Cut Off by Big Shovel

About 400 telephones were out of commission in the Campbellcroft-Orrville area today after an underground Bell Telephone cable was accidentally spliced by a mechanical shovel.

Scene of the accident was Highway 14 immediately north of Highway 401 near the McFarland Construction yards.

All domestic telephones in the area were blacked out. Phones, teletype and radio services into the nearby OPP district headquarters were dislocated for about 15 minutes.

A Bell spokesman said all services would be restored by 8 p.m. today at the latest.

Let's Get It Over

After years of talk, we are at last going to get action on the selection of a flag for Canada.

The sooner this is done, the better.

A flag, if it is to have any value at all, should unite and not divide.

As long as the design of our flag is the subject of debate, it will do more to divide us than to unite us.

So let's get the debate over. It will be sharp. It will be bitter. Therefore, it is best that it be brief. Once the decision is made, we can forget about the flag and turn our attention to more important things.

A flag is never important in itself, but only for the things it stands for. It is these things with which we should concern ourselves.

For a hundred years we have tried to select a flag by the best possible method—hoping that one of the devices utilized to indicate our Canadianism might be generally accepted by all Canadians.

This method has not been entirely successful. There was a time when we flew the Union Jack—and thousands still would cling to that emblem, although it is ours so we are certainly borrowing without leave from those whose property it is—the people of the United Kingdom.

Then we flew the Red Ensign, with modifications. There are precedents for its retention, in the flags of other dominions. But its inclusion of the Union Jack annoys some Canadians, including, but not solely, those of French ancestry.

Perhaps some additional modifications might make the ensign acceptable to most Canadians.

Perhaps the wisest course would be to accept a flag which meant nothing to anybody, so that we Canadians, no matter what our racial strains, could learn to love it together.

There will be no agreement, no hope of an agreement, on this.

But on one thing we ought to be able to agree. That is, that the time to select a definite flag is now, that there is nothing to be gained from constant repetitions of exacerbation of the emotions.

For of all the things said about the flag question the wisest was that of an official of the Canadian Legion, meeting in Winnipeg:

Choice of a flag, he said, is not a matter of logic, but of the emotions.

Repeated emotional jags are as bad for a nation as for an individual. Let us pick a flag, stay with it, and forget about it, until time and events have made it mean something to all of us —or, what is more likely, to our children.

Mr. K Loses His Patience

Sometimes, we suspect, Khrushchev gets awfully tired of the round of his own voice.

The things he has to say!

The other day, at Aswan, he lost patience, and instead of saying what he should, said what he wanted to. He had been listening to an Arab preaching Arab unity.

Mr. K also believes in unity, but it is not the unity of races. Rather it is the unity of class. Earlier, he had already told the Arab multitude that he cherished an Arab worker far more than a Russian capitalist—a rather untrustworthy pledge of love, since Russian capitalists are all dead, or would be if he could get his hands on them.

Then along comes some dignitary and starts preaching brotherhood on the basis of blood, rather than of toil.

It was too much for Nikita. When it was his turn to speak, he asked the crowd whether he should tell them what they wanted to hear or what he wanted to say. Then he chose the latter course, the theme that all men were brothers under the skin, providing they happened to be workers. But his words show he realized what the crowd wanted to hear was that all men are brothers providing they are Arabs.

This illustrates the inescapable dilemma facing the communists in their efforts to win the affections of the have-not nations. Almost, without exception these nations are turning to nationalism for the spark to ignite their revolutionary ambitions. Khrushchev, Mao and the rest are only too glad to provide the gasoline for the spark to ignite—but they would like to convince their proteges that it is the proletarian gas and not the nationalistic spark which is really doing the work.

No world settlement that affords nations only a place on relief rolls will provide the basis for a just and durable peace.—William O. Douglas.

Ottawa Offbeat

Levesque and Laing Waging Lengthy Running Battle

By RICHARD JACKSON

From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The House of Commons — or at least those of its members who count themselves Canadians first and nationalists second — have a new pin-up politician.

The Conservatives and even the New Democrats think as highly of him as do some of the Liberals — only some, because he does have his enemies in the Quebec bloc of his own party.

It has been pretty much of an open secret for some time around Parliament Hill that Art Laing has fought to a stand-off the "Co-operative Federalists" in his own party and even in the Cabinet, who have been undermining him and Ottawa to knuckle under to Rene Levesque and Quebec on the recently-so-explosive Eskimo issue.

Now comes the official confirmation — and from no less than another source? — by Rene Levesque himself no less! Indeed the rock-solid Mr. Laing has been bothering him.

THOSE ESKIMOS

For in his recent outburst that Quebec must either be given a separate and special status as what he called "a state" or as "Co-operative Federalists" like to put it, "opt out" of Confederation, the terrible-tempered Roseworld Minister Levesque lashed out about "those Eskimos."

Quebec would get them as a ward, he thundered, and that, threatened Rene Levesque, "or else. . ."

That he hasn't so far got "those Eskimos," is entirely the fault — and to the undying credit — of Art Laing.

The Eskimos, as everybody by now must surely know, are the wards of the Government of the Supreme Court, of the Federal Government, are Anglicans and speak English.

Rene Levesque has demanded — and is still fiercely campaigning — that they be transferred, like so many head of livestock, to Quebec's care, change their religion and learn French.

The battle between Levesque and Laing has raged for months.

And Liberal Backbenchers from Ontario, Western Canada and the Maritimes, along with Conservatives, New Dems and Socreds from Western Canada, scarcely have been able to contain their elation over the way Art Laing has dug in and stayed Rene Levesque and any quick Federal surrender of those 2,500 Ungava Eskimos.

In the siege to capture these people, Art Laing has had to fight off not only his own party's — powerful people like Justice Minister Guy Favreau, Immigration Minister Jean Trembay, State Secretary Maurice Lamontagne and Forestry Minister Jean Lesage.

STEADY AS A ROCK

There have been more than "demands" say the Liberal Backbenchers, there have been "threats."

But regardless of what it might mean to Cabinet solidarity, Art Laing has stood, with obvious satisfaction, has remained steady as a rock.

And he has, too, shot when the political chips were down, Prime Minister Pearson, "Co-operative Federalist" though he is, sounds, rather leaned Art Laing's way.

Not that the calmly stubborn Northern Affairs Minister refused to talk or even negotiate with Rene Levesque. Far from that. Indeed, he was willing to talk and "negotiate" with anyone to the end of time, making "negotiation" in this particular instance, given the Liberal Backbenchers, an unrewarding — for Rene Levesque — process that could go on endlessly for 30 years or more.

For Art Laing, say his many admirers, just is not budging an inch.

One of his boosters, a Liberal Backbencher from Eastern Ontario, and generally regarded as among what are called "the young thinkers" on the Government side of the House, has this to say of the Northern Affairs Minister:

"I always did see him as a careful, methodical, dependable man — and now I know how straight I was seeing."

Rene Levesque, however — ester from Quebec's outer intellectual limits though he may be, should have known better perhaps than to take on Art Laing in a grudge fight — for the cool, good-looking Northern Affairs Minister learned the political ropes on the West Coast where, just about everybody agrees, they have a no-holds-barred style of in-fighting.

Strictly Personal

Idealism Is Far Removed From Stance of Mean

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Purely Personal Prejudices: A naive "idealism" is the stance of a man who is too far removed from a problem, while a crude "realism" is the stance of a man who is too close to a problem; combining both in proper balance is possible only for one standing at the right distance, who can achieve a perspective undistorted by closeness or remoteness.

It is useless to teach a child "good habits" unless he is also taught to take pleasure in doing them; a fine distinction. In early training produces personalities who are frozen with duty or burning with rebellion, but rarely those who can live in the temperate zone of life.

Being told what we don't know isn't nearly as important or valuable as being reminded of what we have forgotten; a testament to forget: the great follies of mankind are committed not out of ignorance but out of spiritual amnesia.

One of the singular distinctions of an author is that he is the only person who ever wrote a bore long after he is dead.

The vagaries of politics become intelligible only if we accept the truth of Munro's observation: "People vote their resentments, not their appreciation —the average man does not vote for anything, but against something."

Advice on how to succeed from an unsuccessful man is like a book on how to swim written by a man who failed; from a successful man is met with respect and confidence — yet the latter is as incapable of transmitting his secret, and often does not know what else it is of which particular ingredients are responsible for success.

Women are the great levellers of man: they are able to tell, almost at a glance, the 1's and 2's and weaknesses in a great man, and the merits in a fool.

By trying to be more than we can be, we often end up being less than we ought to be — the person who aims at perfection usually misses riding even to the level of ordinary humanhood.

A great city is one that encourages differences and rejoices in variety; a small city or a large one else, if a city values homogeneity more than diversity, it remains but a glorified small town.

If men had their way, it's would buy nothing but old clothes that fit comfortably and look shapeless — and only then understand a woman's need to buy a new wardrobe each season! Can the cabbage that comprehend the rose-bush?

Historical Note in a Television Age: A little boy I know, asked by his younger sister if it were true that Samson's strength resides in his hair, replied: "Only his hair dresser knows for sure!"

Munitions Minister Howe said last night that a new order affecting coal consumers and dealers in the central and eastern Provinces will be announced within a few days, aid added that sufficient coal will be available for every Canadian home next winter if "reasonable" repeat "reasonable" co-operation of this minister. He said Canada probably will receive about the same amount of United States anthracite as in the past coal year.

However, receipts of Welsh coal will be reduced substantially, and it may be necessary to divert some United States bituminous to Ontario and Quebec, to the Maritime Provinces to meet requirements whose equipment is not suitable for burning Maritime coal.

Mr. Howe said Welsh coal, he termed 'jazz,' it has stood the test of time, hence we may consider it a classic, said Mr. Alex Gordon as he pointed out that he would pay Gerrievier's "Rhapsody in Blue" on the organ recital which he will present at Bridge Street United Church after Sunday evening service in aid of the Chinese Wa Hsieh Hospital. Mr. Gordon will be assisted by the Ladies' Chorus directed by Miss Leona Sligo.

In a letter received by Mr. Gordon, written from Hoosan, China, by Dr. Canadian Red Cross Society by the International Relief Committee, the thanks of the committee were expressed. "Our gratitude knows no bounds. Your China Relief and Red Cross Committees acted upon the principle of international brotherhood. It is because of this spirit that actuates you that we again speak to you in the name of humanity as a slight token of the members' appreciation of her excellent work.

Mr. Silas Ketcheson of Wellington, Ont., celebrated yesterday the 90th anniversary of his birth yesterday and he was happy to receive the congratulations and good wishes of neighbors and friends throughout the day. Mr. Ketcheson is near Morra in Huntingdon township and was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Robin Ketcheson. Prior to her marriage Miss Ketcheson was Jane Jones, daughter of Thomas Jones, a prominent resident on the front of Sidney township, near Jones' Creek. Mr. Ketcheson's father was road superintendent for Hungerford township for over forty years. His grandmother was a daughter of Col. Myers, well and favorably known in the history of Myers Creek, now Belleville. He has lived on the farm where he now resides since he was 22 years of age and helped to clear the bush and clear up the land and fence the fields. There was plenty of wood on the land and in the early days he chopped trees by hand and drew the cord wood to proper lengths, he hauled it to Belleville where he found ready sale. The Bank of Montreal was one of his best customers and on contract took 30 cords a year at $2 per cord. Dr. Stewart and Mr. George Stewart were two other regular customers. Some of the many prominent Belleville residents was secretary of the Sidney Town Hall Cheese factory for more years than he can remember. He was one of the first patrons after it was built in 1872; a year later the first cheese was made at the factory. Shortly after settling on the present farm, Mr. Ketcheson married Mary Hudson, daughter of Charles Hudson, well known farmer in the Roslin district. They had seven children, Charles William Ketcheson of Deviscod, Sask.; Mrs. E. W. J. Titus of Lone River, Sask., and Clem who resides on the homestead.

Biologists Aid Design Roofs

BBC London Letter

Architects are now calling on plastics engineers and, perhaps rather surprisingly, biologists, to assist in producing those spidery three - dimensional networks of girders, known as space structures, which they are increasingly using to span large spaces rather than the traditional flat sheet roofs. In a recent broadcast of the BBC weekly "Science and Industry" program, John Newall Interviewed a leading research man in the field, Mr. Makowski, head of the Civil Engineering Department at the Battersea College of Technology.

Those space structures could be used for practically any type of building. Dr. Makowski also sports stadia, railway stations and similar large spans were an ideal field of application. Although plastics were not absolutely necessary, the use of the ratio of strength to weight was taken, they were stronger, and the deadweight of the roof could be much smaller that for corrugated iron. Computer was the only means of solving such cyclones, and this was being done with great success.

Dr. Makowski pointed out that the skeletons of tiny single-celled animals, are in fact, three - dimensional space grids and the arrangement of precisely the same lengths as he used to form a very regular pattern. He wondered whether man would ever be able to imitate the same structure that nature has been producing for millions of years.

To Your Good Health

Laminectomy Removal of Portion of the Vertebra

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: What is a laminectomy? I was told I had a "ruptured disc" and was operated on by a neurosurgeon.

I had been troubled with a back condition for more than a year. Now the severe backpains and pains in my legs have disappeared although my back gets aching. Will this condition continue or will it eventually disappear?

No longer have the mild case of asthma I had prior to surgery. Do you feel that the operation cured it? — Mrs. B. A. S.

Separating each vertebra, or bone in the spine, is a padding of fibrous tissue called an "intervertebral disc."

When one of these discs becomes distorted or thinner (a "ruptured" or "herniated" disc) the nerve roots can be pinched at the point at which they emerge from the spine.

Laminectomy is the removal of a portion of the back of the vertebra to relieve this pressure on the nerve. It will relieve your pain.

Some milder discomfort (as in your case) is not unusual after the operation but you should have less trouble as time goes on.

I am sure the surgery had no direct effect on your asthma.

However, the operation has given you relief from both physical and emotional tensions, and it is well established that the latter have a great deal to do with asthma. Anxiety, quivering anger, strong feelings of resentment, and various emotions can trigger asthma attacks. Thus while your operation may not have "cured" such tendency as you may have had, it has removed the "stress" which touched off your attacks.

Dear Dr. Molner: Does everybody have the tuberculosis germ? Why is the skin test given? When it is positive, why do they need an X-ray and what does that prove? — E. E.

No, everybody does not have the germ. It is, however, very prevalent and the test is given to determine whether you have come in contact with the germ physiologically. That is, if your body has come in contact to the extent that it had to set up its defences against the germ.

If not (the test is negative) we don't worry about TB in your case. If it is positive (you have come in contact with the germ to that extent), we take chest X-rays to look for spots on the lung, indicating that the germ is active there — that, in short, you have TB.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am 54 and have not had a period for six months, although I did suspect a spot about six weeks ago.

My husband insists that I am no longer in danger of becoming pregnant, but I am afraid to take chances. When would you say we would be in a safe period? — Mrs. J. F.

Probably now — but there is no way to predict with absolute certainty. It is not unusual at the age at which pregnancy is a great rarity. As a general rule pregnancy is not likely after the age at the last menstrual period.

To Miss M. B.: This dark hair growth on your face is not going to go away. In fact, since you are just finishing high school, you probably must expect it to become more pronounced. If bleaching makes it sufficiently invisible, that's your easiest answer. You can cut it off if you choose. Or you can have it removed by the method which will cost more, but a hair once removed by this method will not grow back.

Car Becomes Expensive Toy

Brantford Expositor

The shape of things to come out of Detroit into the summer has been somewhat in enough detail to indicate that next year now being sold will outwardly be a very different car with the 1965 models due in the showrooms less than four months hence.

The biggest styling change is the adoption of a compound curve way by all of the Big Three and one other firm. The curve of compound lowers the compactness will continue. Something called aluminized steel will be used in the roof. This will be more sharply slanting rear roofs, an idea the French have employed for years. We shall soon see the square taillight, surely a change purely for the sake of change. So, It would seem, is one firm's adoption of dual headlights arranged vertically instead of horizontally. And after 16 years one famous make of car will be rid of tailfins. Then there are the new engines, larger and, unless we are mistaken, heavier gasoline users, reports do not mention any new safety features.

The basic styling changes will cost millions of dollars in retooling, and the public which will eventually foot the bill has been consulted as to whether it wants these changes or any of them. We have not heard of it. From being basic transportation it has moved into the category of the toy, and as any parent knows, toys have lately become quite elaborate and expensive, though whether they give children any more pleasure than simpler toys did is questionable.

TORONTO (CP) — Industrials moved smartly ahead to a new index high in moderate trading on the stock market today.

Massey - Ferguson paced the advance as it climbed to a new high of 33¾ before settling back at 27¾ with a gain of 1¼. Simpsons was up ½ to 23 while Imperial Oil gained ¾ to 51¼.

Most other gains were in a ¼ to ¼-range and went to such key stocks as Abitibi, Algoma Steel, CPR and Bell Telephone.

Senior base metals were mixed. Falconbridge, a $1 loser Wednesday, declined another $1 to 72 and Opemiska gave up 15 cents to $9.10.

Among speculatives, Genex turned over more than 200,000 shares in the first hour in gaining two cents to 26 cents.

Golds were quiet. Leitch chalked up a 15-cent advance at $3.55.

On index, industrials were up .31 to 156.02 and the exchange index .24 to 145.52. Golds were down .21 to 137.05 and western golds .51 to 97.39. Base metals were unchanged at 63.65. Volume at 11 a.m. was 1,272,000 shares compared with 921,000 shares at the same time Wednesday.

Massey-Ferguson continued to highlight industrial trading as it turned over more than 62,000 shares, posting a gain of 1¼ to 26¾. Earlier in the session it traded at an all-time high of 26¾.

The recent activity in the stock—which sold at $17 in January—has been attributed to expectations of increased earnings this year and the possibility of a takeover offer at $30 a share by the Ford Foundation.

The latter has been denied, but the former proved true. Following the close of the market, A. A. Thornbrough, Massey-Ferguson president, announced that sales in the six months ended April 30 increased 21 per cent to $363,700,000 from $299,700,000 in the same period last year. Meanwhile earnings per share boomed ahead 208 per cent to $1.51 from 49 cents in the same six months of 1963.

SHELL GAINS

Bell Telephone broke out for a gain of ⅜ to 55. CPR climbed ⅜ to 44⅜ while Hayes Steel was up ¾ to a 1964 high of 21¾.

Base metals were quiet. Falconbridge dipped one point to 72, but this was offset by a gain of ⅜ to 11⅜ by Rio Algom.

Kerr-Addison gained 30 cents to $7.70 as golds made a modest advance.

Speculative mining issues saw Kirkland Minerals tack on five cents to 35 cents and Silver Miller two cents to 20. Both companies have properties in the Timmins copper-boom area.

On index, industrials were up .73 to 155.71, golds .32 to 137.26, western golds .06 to 97.71 and the exchange index .06 to 145.28. Base metals were unchanged at 63.65. Volume for the day was 4,250,000 shares compared with 4,500,000 Tuesday.

Killed in Crash

CAPREOL, Ont. (CP) — One man was killed and his wife and daughter seriously injured Wednesday in a head-on collision near this community, 35 miles north of Sudbury.

Dead is Wilfred Hildner, 34, of Whitefish. His wife, Ingrid, and one-year-old daughter, Sandra, were taken to hospital with fractures and internal injuries.

CATANIA (AP) — A massive lava flow from Sicily's volcanic Mount Etna's two-mile high crater ceased Wednesday after a week-long eruption that was one of the most violent in decades.

Cargo Ships Docking Here More Than Ever Feeling Pinch of Low Boat Drafts

With the level of Lake Ontario and the Bay of Quinte now 12 to 18 inches below normal for this time of year, cargo carriers coming into Belleville are more than ever feeling the pinch of reduced boat drafts.

Even in years of normal water levels carriers coming into local docks have cargoes limited by the depth of water in Telegraph Narrows between here and Deseronto.

The current depth in this one mile dredged channel is 19.3 feet, nearly 18 inches below normal for this time of the year. The bay level is now the lowest since 1935.

Out in Lake Ontario there is little that can be done to change the water levels but there is a solution to the Bay of Quinte problem.

SIMPLE SOLUTION

The solution is relatively simple and according to engineers could be achieved in three different ways — further dredging of The Narrows; construction of low locks at The Narrows and at Murray Canal, or a combination of the two.

Dredging of The Narrows would provide more draft for boats entering Belleville, but with the construction of locks the level of the Bay of Quinte could be maintained at any desired level.

As result most cargo boats could then enter Belleville at full draft. Pleasure boat operators would have the added benefit of being certain that private docks would not be high and dry during a low water period.

The above idea is not new. It has been in the talk stage for many years and about five years ago an engineering report on the feasibility of the scheme was prepared.

PROPOSITION DROPPED

Discussions on the proposal were carried on between the Harbour Commission, the city Industrial Commission, the local Chamber of Commerce, and the then federal member, of parliament.

Even possible financing of the scheme was considered.

But just as plans were beginning to jell, the St. Lawrence became a reality, with the assurance that the level of Lake Ontario would be maintained at a mean level of 246.

In view of this assurance the locks proposition was dropped, but members of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce still felt serious consideration should be given to dredging another two feet out of the Narrows.

If it was felt this extra two feet of draft would increase boat carrying capacities by at least 25 percent.

SITUATION ACUTE

But this year mainly because of low rainfall or for other reasons Lake Ontario level has not been maintained at the suggested 246 foot mean level and the low draft problem in the Bay of Quinte has become increasingly acute.

All this has revived talk of channel deepening or possible construction of locks to raise and maintain the bay water level.

The original thought was that such a lock could be constructed at The Narrows in conjunction with the once proposed causeway and bridge connecting the counties of Hastings and Prince Edward.

COST JUSTIFIED

But since then the Ontario Department of Highways has decided to build a separated high level bridge across the bay at Deseronto and the project is now close to the tender calling stage.

So, if the bay locks idea to maintain water levels was now to be re - considered there would be little likelihood of the cost being shared by the highways department.

But there is a feeling locally that the cost of bay locks might still be justified in view of the economic benefits to be derived from a constant higher bay level allowing full draft ships for boats into Belleville.

The Belleville Harbor Commission took a leading part in earlier investigations and it might be well worth while for this or some other body to reopen discussions on the matter.

Safety Check Gauge Damaged Struck by Car

The Department of Transport safety check program was out of operation in Belleville this morning. It was hit by a car!

The program, now on its second week in the city and putting through scores of vehicles hourly, is located on a traffic island in the west area. Each night the lane is sealed off by public world barriers and the checking equipment left on the spot.

Until last night — when some of it was dramatically shifted.

About 2 a.m. an automobile plowed through the frail barriers, drove down the lane and

HOUSE OF SEAGRAM APPOINTMENT

The election of J. J. Baker to the board of directors of The House of Seagram Limited, and his appointment as a vice-president in the company, are announced by Charles R. Bronfman, president.

Formerly vice-president and general sales manager for Joseph E. Seagram & Sons, Ltd., with headquarters in Montreal, Mr. Baker will now be located in Toronto, and will administer the marketing activities of The House of Seagram Limited and its Canadian subsidiaries in the provinces of Ontario and Manitoba.

Vice-president, Ontario, Mr. Baker first became associated with the distilling industry in Madoc, Ontario, in 1942, upon completion of active duty with the R.C.A.F. He has served with the Ontario and national marketing divisions of The House of Seagram Limited for more than ten years. In addition to his new responsibilities, Mr. Baker is a vice-president and director of Thomas Adams Distillers Ltd., Calvert Distillers Ltd., Joseph E. Seagram & Sons Ltd., Hiram Walker Gooderham & Worts Ltd., and other companies.

An enthusiastic participant in sports, community and service endeavours, he is president of the Montreal Sportsmen's Association; and a past governor of the Ontario, Quebec and Maritime division of Kiwanis International.

As a result, the program was halted this morning, but officials said the check would be back in business as usual today after the machine had been repaired at Kingston.

Four Declared Candidates For Leadership of Liberal Party Outline Platforms

TORONTO (CP) — The campaign for leadership of the Ontario Liberal party opened in earnest Wednesday night as four declared candidates and a possible contender spoke from the same platform and a sixth indicated his intention to run.

Eddie Sargent, mayor of Owen Sound and member of the legislature for Grey North, said in a telegram to the first annual meeting of the suburban Etobicoke Provincial Liberal Association that he would officially announce his candidacy this week-end.

Speaking at the meeting were Charles Templeton, a former evangelist and now an advertising executive, Joseph Godfrey, legislature member for Toronto Bracondale, Robert Nixon, legislature member for Brant, Andrew Thompson, member for Toronto Dovercourt, all declared candidates, and Joseph Greene, member of Parliament for Renfrew South who has not yet decided if he will run.

CALLS FOR 'CRUSADE'

Mr. Templeton, who resigned as executive news editor of the Toronto Star to take an active part in politics, called for a "great crusade" to bring to power in the province "a government whose first concern is the people."

Mr. Godfrey urged reform in education financing and establishment of an Ontario consumers' board to guard against excessively high food prices and "sugar-price gyrations."

He said the province should assume the entire cost of education, relieving real estate owners of the burden. He said real estate owners now pay 50 per cent of the cost of education in Ontario.

Mr. Nixon, who retired as president of the Ontario Liberal Association to seek the leadership, said the so-called "police state" bill showed that a government so long in power has "feet of clay." He was referring to legislation that would have given the Ontario Police Commission power to incarcerate persons who refused to testify before it on crime in the province. Offending sections of the bill were deleted later under public and opposition pressure.

Mr. Thompson said he had no illusions about the difficulty of unseating the government. He said he had watched the deterioration of one man — now Prime Minister Pearson — to build up the Liberal party in 1958 and had learned from it.

Judy Stalks Off Stage, Tells Reporters 'You Stink'

CP from AP-Reuters

MELBOURNE, Australia—By the time the orchestra played Over the Rainbow, the audience was booing and Judy Garland had stalked off the stage. Besieged by reporters at her hotel she told them "I think you stink!"

The sour notes didn't end with Miss Garland's concert Wednesday night.

The box office was besieged for refunds today and the head of the Musicians' Union said the Australian orchestra that accompanied the singer had never been so humiliated.

Miss Garland herself commented, "I didn't like it, did you?"

The American singer's travail began when she arrived an hour late. Her manager blamed it on a sore throat. "You're late" and "have another brandy," hecklers shouted.

Most of the crowd of 7,000 was with her during the first half of the concert, her only performance in Melbourne. But some didn't appreciate her forgetting with the microphone cable on her side banter.

PAY $36,000

The crowd had paid about 115,000 Australian ($36,200) to hear her the singer. She tripped while mounting the stage and sang in a voice which critics today described as "harsh and raspy."

Occasionally she fluffed a note as a steady stream of people walked out of the hall.

The only explanation she offered the crowd for their long wait was: "I could not get out of the hotel."

The explanation came in response to an irate member of the audience who shouted: "You're late."

The audience's mood wasn't improved when Miss Garland took a half-hour intermission. She sang three more songs on her return, but the lyrics were fragmentary and the customers began drifting to the doors.

Miss Garland curtly left without any farewell, letting the orchestra play Over the Rainbow —her theme—by itself. The musicians departed amid boos.

WON'T MAKE REFUNDS

Miss Garland's manager, Karl Brent, said there would be no refunds because "Miss Garland gave a satisfactory performance."

Early this morning, when reporters knocked at the door of her hotel room, Miss Garland said: "Why don't you go away."

"I'm very tired. I haven't slept one wink," she said.

Seconds later she added: "I think you stink!" then she slammed the door on them.

Two Women Killed

AJAX, Ont. (CP)—Two Pickering Township women were killed Wednesday night when they were struck by a car as they got off a bus on Highway 2 near here.

Ajax is eight miles west of Oshawa.

WON'T SEPARATE

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson told the Commons Wednesday that an inquiry into the effect of Quebec independence on the rest of Canada would be entirely academic because "no such separation is going to take place." His reply to Reid Scott (NDP—Toronto Dorforth) was greeted with long applause by Liberal backbenchers.

tives want something other than the Union Jack; Maritime and Ontario members want the Red Ensign or the old Union Jack in full.

New Democratic Party members for the most part will support the government. The same is true of the Social Credit caucus. Le Ralliement des Creditistes had already announced publicly it will support the government.

HAS 3,000 DESIGNS

State Secretary Lamontagne told the Commons his office has received 3,000 flag designs as of May 13. The reply to a written question by Robert C. Coates (PC—Cumberland)—a Red Ensign supporter — did not say when the count started, but it is believed to stem from the abortive 1945-46 Commons committee on flag designs.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker asked Mr. Pearson whether the government had considered and decided on a national referendum and the prime minister replied he did not think it "would be a practicable or most desirable course to follow in the circumstances."

"From that answer, may we conclude that the decision is that the matter will not be submitted to a referendum?" Mr. Diefenbaker asked.

"Yes, the matter will be submitted to Parliament," Mr. Pearson said.

"But not a referendum?" Mr. Diefenbaker pressed.

"Not a referendum," Mr. Pearson insisted.

WON'T AFFECT LAKES

OTTAWA (CP) — Resources Minister Laing told the Commons Wednesday in a written reply to Haber Smith (PC—Simcoe North) that the increase in the flow of water from Lake Ontario into the St. Lawrence River will have no effect on the level of water in Lake Huron and Georgian Bay.

by an explosion May 3. None of the injuries was serious.

The shooting of the Finnish soldier occurred 1½ miles west of the heavily-fortified Turkish village of Gionolli. The incident caused tension throughout the area.

Brig. A. James Tedlie of Montreal, UN commander in the Nicosia zone, visited the scene of the shooting.

But Turkish-Cypriot guards refused to allow reporters to inspect the area.

About 1,000 Finns are in the 6,500-man peace force. Canada has slightly more than 1,000. Other troops come from Britain, Ireland, Sweden, Denmark and Austria.

One of Secretary-General U Thant's difficulties in raising troops for the UN peace force was the fear of many nations that their soldiers would become involved in serious fighting with the island's warring Turkish and Greek communities.

Thant assured them the peace force would not attempt to impose a solution to the civil war. But recently the UN command has taken a tougher stance and even disarmed irregulars after several incidents between troops of the peace force and Cypriots.

France Urges Guarantee for Neutral Laos

PARIS (AP) — France declared today the only solution for the crisis in Laos is guaranteed neutrality, and urged this be extended to all Southeast Asia as its only assurance of peace and independence.

"There is no other solution to the problem of Laos than the respect of neutralization guaranteed by the (interested) powers. A true and sincere solution of neutralization must extend to all of Southeast Asia. It is the sole guarantee of the peace and independence of the states."

In extending the call for neutralization of all Southeast Asia, the foreign minister was restating the stand of President de Gaulle, who also contends the only solution for the Vietnamese war is neutralization.

dents. Both the U.S. and Viet Nam replied that the violations were accidental and that they wanted to settle the matter peacefully.

Meanwhile, however, the U.S. pledged into general exposition of the U.S. policy in all Southeast Asia.

Stevenson told the council: "The United States cannot stand by while Southeast Asia is over-run by armed aggression. As long as the peoples of that area are determined to preserve their own independence and ask for our help in preserving it, we will extend it. This, of course, is the meaning of President Johnson's request a few days ago for additional funds for more economic and military assistance for Viet Nam.

"And if anyone has the illusion that my government will abandon the people of Viet Nam — or that we shall weary of the burden of support that we are rendering these people—it can only be due to ignorance of the determination and stamina of the American people."

MUST WITHDRAW

He declared there is a very simple way to restore order in Southeast Asia and to bring about the end of the U.S. military role in South Viet Nam.

"Let all foreign troops withdraw from Laos," he said.

He said states in that area make the simple decision to leave their neighbors alone. Stop the secret subversion of other peoples independence. Stop the clandestine and illegal transit of national frontiers. Stop the violations of the political agreements reached at Geneva for the future of Southeast Asia.

"The people of Laos want to be left alone.

"The people of Cambodia want to be left alone.

"When these neighbors decide to leave each alone — as they must—there will be no fighting in Southeast Asia and no need for American advisers to leave their homes to help these people resist aggression.

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson said in the Commons Wednesday he hopes to appoint a new minister of national revenue "before long" to replace the late John Garland, who died March 14.

Picasso Denies Painting One Canvas Hung

TORONTO (CP) — Pablo Picasso has denied painting one of the canvases that hung in an exhibition of his work at Toronto in January and February, it was learned Wednesday.

Dr. Jean Boggs, curator of the Art Gallery of Toronto, brought news of Picasso's denial to the painting's owner, Hamilton Southam, a former Canadian ambassador to Poland and now co-ordinator of plans for the National Capital Centre for the Performing Arts in Ottawa.

The painting, Seated Woman, was bought by Mr. Southam for $15,000 in 1960 from the Vollard collection, which at the time was in the custody of the National Gallery of Canada. If it were authentic it now would be worth about $100,000. It was shown here during the Picasso and Man exhibition.

Dr. Boggs said Wednesday she first learned of the doubtful authenticity of the painting in a letter from Douglas Cooper, a French art critic and close friend of Picasso.

DENIED BY ARTIST

Mr. Cooper wrote that he had shown the exhibition catalogue to Picasso who denied painting the work.

The canvas is unsigned and undated. It has been handed over to the National Gallery for detailed examination.

Mr. Southam said he intended to write Picasso, now living in southern France, concerning the painting.

Dr. Boggs said the most astounding thing about the incident was that the painting was bought from the Vollard collection. A painting by Picasso in the Vollard collection would be accepted as authentic without question, she said.

for Leeds, and an acknowledged expert in the field, says it is important to follow the rules of heraldry. "You can't defy latent national rules, because a flag isn't something only for local use. It's used to identify a country around the world."

The three maple leaves on a single stem appeared on the Upper Canada (Ontario) shield in 1868. The leaves were gold and the background was green. The Lower Canada (Quebec) shield had the same design, with the colors reversed.

In both cases the leaves were at the bottom of the shield, or armory, which is traditionally the key area. The top part, called the "honorable augmentation," has traditional and historical significance, not necessarily denoting anything about the country itself.

Before 1921, the Canadian shield comprised four sections, two of them showing the lions of England, the other two displaying the lion rampant of Scotland and the harp of Ireland. A royal proclamation resulted in the three red maple leaves going into the bottom half, the honorable augmentation, then comprising the lions of England, the lion rampant of Scotland, the harp of Ireland and the fleur-de-lis of royal France.

The three leaves and white background now take up one-fourth-height of the Red Ensign. The ensign was approved by cabinet order in 1944.

AUTHORIZED FLAG

Five years previously, the cabinet, after consultation with the militia council, authorized a battle flag for the 1st Canadian Division that featured three huge red maple leaves on a white background as its central design. Long before that the red and white colors had been identified with the flag of the Royal Military College, the pennant of the Royal North West Mounted Police and the Northwest Frontier Medal. The RMC flag also had a single maple leaf.

The badge of the Canadian Women's Army Corps was centred with three maple leaves, and the first "general service" pin issued to servicemen after the Second World War had three red maple leaves on a white background. It was later changed to silver.

The Canadian Army Badge, authorized in 1907 by King George VI, has three maple leaves: so has the Canadian Guards' hat badge and the buttons on their uniforms.

The flag used by the Queen as Queen of Canada has its entire lower half devoted to three red maple leaves on a white background.

Many of Cases In Police Court Were Remanded

PICTON (Staff)—Magistrate T. Y. Wills had a comparatively easy time as he held court here Wednesday morning. Most of the cases were remanded for one to two weeks. This called his Worship fine as he had an appointment in Toronto at 2 p.m.

One case that was heard concerned Phillip D. Baldwin, 17, of Consecon, who was charged with driving at speeds to 83 mph on Highway 33 on May 10th.

Provincial Constable Arnold Esteeman told court that he had chased the accused after seeing him travelling in a zig-zag manner on a hill near Hillier.

When apprehended, according to the officer, Baldwin was shocked to find that the car he was racing had a white 'door with the letters O.P.P. on each side.

He was fined $35 and costs of $4. "There is just no provision in the code for anything but a fine in this case," commented the magistrate. After court, Mr. Baldwin, the lad's father said that his son was all through driving any kind of a car until he learns to drive correctly.

Charles Tessier, 22, West Main St., Picton, was remanded for one week at the request of the Crown. Accused asked for legal aid, which was refused.

Floyd Wood, of Belleville, charged with breaking and entering the premises of one, Margaret Large, on the 22th of April, was remanded for one week. Bail was set at $100.

Robert John Elliott, 24, Rit 1, Belleville, was remanded for one week when he appeared charged with assault, in that he threatened to shoot his father, John Elliott. He will be subjected to a mental examination before his next court appearance.

Ronald F. Woodcock, Belleville, charged with robbery with violence, was remanded once more this week. He will appear at a special court next Thursday, May 28.

The association plans to ask the federal and provincial governments to either accept the proposal (or a modification of it) or to restate their purpose in the hospital field.

"Our hospitals are very rapidly reaching an impossible situation. On the one hand we are being asked to provide a complete hospital service, while on the other hand we are being denied the funds to do so," Mr. McCracken told the 200 delegates.

Harold Livergant of Toronto advocated that hospitals agree with the provinces to adopt a "global" or "block" budget.

By this method, provincial hospital commissions would accept a total budget amount, rather than approving each individual item on a hospital's budget.

G. W. Phelps of Orillia, director of the Ontario Hospital Association, said the future of the voluntary hospital system would be preserved only if trustees recognized and carried out their functions in co-operation with government-sponsored hospital insurance.

He stressed that hospital trustees should not be subservient to government but should co-operate with it by fulfilling their own responsibilities.

Some of these responsibilities, he said, were negotiation with provincial hospital commissions, planning for future requirements, dealing with policies in respect to nursing training, labor negotiations, and public relations within the community.

Salt Off Roads Draining Into Great Lakes

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Prof. George Langford, head of the Great Lakes Institute at the University of Toronto, fears that all that salt that is used on city winter roads ends up in the Great Lakes and is one more source of pollution that is causing increasing concern to water hungry Canadians.

Prof. Langford was one of five university professors who delivered papers on the Great Lakes at a three-day Canadian Association of Geographers meeting which started Wednesday at the University of Western Ontario.

Municipalities have been asked to supply figures on the amount of salt used on their roads. Prof. Langford said the salt apparently drains into Lake Erie, mainly. Salt, nitrate and phosphate content of the lake is rising, he said.

Prof. Langford said that Lake Huron must be regulated. The time has come, he said, when someone should sit down and make a feasibility study.

Pearson Starts Series of Informal Dinners

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson is starting a series of informal dinners at his official residence for small, select groups of leaders from various walks of life in Canada.

The mealtime meetings at 24 Sussex Dr. are planned as cosy, off-the-record affairs, with conversation flowing informally in the glow of after-dinner conviviality.

The first dinner is set for Friday—when 11 publishers, editors and broadcasters will dine with Mr. Pearson. Another group from the newspaper and broadcasting field is to join the prime minister early in June.

Other groups are expected to follow — businessmen, labor leaders, farm spokesmen, academics, scientists, writers and other prominent Canadians.

The gatherings were described by an official in Mr. Pearson's office as an attempt to bring together the prime minister and some of Canada's key personalities in the economic and cultural life of the country.

"There will be no agenda, no points to be made," the official said.

a plebiscite to decide between the Red Ensign and the maple leaf design favored by the federal cabinet.

Another called on the legion to recognize only the Red Ensign. Both resolutions were placed in the hands of the resolutions committee.

Establishment of a $1,000,000 philanthropic centennial fund was approved Wednesday by the convention.

The money is to be raised from members, surplus branch funds and donations from estates and other avenues.

Interest from the invested money in the fund will be used to finance such projects as bursaries, the legion's sports training plan, student exchanges among Commonwealth countries, development of memorial projects and allied activities.

The fund, to be undertaken during the next two years prior to Canada's 1967 centennial year, will be administered by the Royal Canadian Legion Centennial Foundation, to be set up later.

Legion L.A. Hears Plans for 'Legion Week'

On Tuesday, May 19th, the meeting of the Royal Canadian Legion Auxiliary opened in the usual form. A two minute's silence was observed for Comrade Samain, who passed away since the last meeting.

Two more ladies were initiated in a brief ceremony, bringing the membership up to 85.

On Tuesday, May 26, 35 members will be attending the Zoon rally at Bancroft, and the bus will leave the Legion hall at 10 sharp. Comrade Hope Begley will be one of the nominees for Zone Commander.

A report was read detailing the year's activities, including the scholarships, bursaries and donations given by the auxiliary.

Six banquets for various industries and bowling teams were catered for this month, with two more to come. The rummage sale was successful, as was the demonstration in cooking held Friday and Saturday to mark the opening of a Natural Gas store on Front St., Saturday, the members sold the results of their baking.

A lovely coffee carafe was raffled and won by Comrade Burchill.

LEGION WEEK

Legion Week begins May 30 and further details will be announced in this paper. The auxiliary has two evenings planned in this week. A pot-luck supper, Tuesday, June 2, for members and their families, with entertainment afterwards. Thursday, June 4th, a special euchre, with refreshments, which is open to the public. A highlight of Legion Week will be a presentation of a cheque to the men's branch.

Communists Now Staging Fashion Show

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Soviet fashion designers today showed off Moscow's latest styles at a Communist bloc "fashion forum" organized by Comecon, the bloc's economic organization.

Designers from the Soviet Union and seven other Communist nations are meeting here to pick out styles, including clothes for working girls, suitable for mass production.

They were keeping their styles secret until the meeting ends May 29. Details may be released then, officials said.

Models from Poland, Hungary, East Germany and Bulgaria will show clothes Thursday, to be followed by models from Romania and Czechoslovakia.

Each country is displaying 72 complete outfits, designed for all seasons of the year, plus four models of working clothes.

WEDDING

BULMER—SWAN

With two baskets of white flowers as background setting at the altar of Northminster United Church, Peterborough, marriage vows were exchanged on Saturday, May 16th, by Audrey Elizabeth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Swan, of Corbyville, and Mr. James Gordon Bulmer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Bulmer, of Peterborough.

The Reverend F. B. Mitchell officiated at the ceremony.

Mr. Kenneth Leavene played the wedding music and Mr. Carman Cacovilis sang two appropriate selections.

The bride wore a floor-length sheath of pure silk organza enhanced with a rounded neckline and lily-point sleeves. The skirt was fashioned in bell-shaped style and flattered with a boarder of Cardinal lace applique. The bodice was enhanced with a similar applique and the gown was finished with a detachable Cathedral train with a large bow at the waist and designed with matching applique. Her headdress was a small lace over organza pillbox and was caught to a bouffant silk illusion veil. She carried a small white prayer book with delicate pink orchids centred on top with deeper pink Sweetheart roses, white flowed from them in a cascade style.

Mr. and Mrs. James Gordon Bulmer of Peterborough are pictured cutting the wedding cake following their marriage in Northminster United Church, Peterborough, on Saturday, May 16. Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attended by her sister, Miss Blanche Swan as maid of honor; the Misses Carolyn Curtis and Brenda Innes as bridesmaids, while a niece of the bride, Miss Nancy Huffman was junior bridesmaid.

Groomsman was Mr. Allan Bulmer, brother of the bridegroom, and ushers were Mr. Allan Bell, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, and Messrs. Ralph Swan and Bruce Swan, brothers of the bride.

The maid of honor and the bridesmaids were identically gowned in pale chiffon fashioned with full skirts, rounded necklines and tiny sleeves. The dresses were completed with a cummerbund of pink peau de sole at the waistline. Their headdresses were tiny petals, flowers and pearlized stamens in matching shades.

The bride's mother chose a light aqua crepe two-piece dress with multi-toned flowered hat to match with white accessories. She wore a corsage of pink carnations and deeper pink Sweetheart roses.

The bridegroom's mother wore a pink ribbon lace two-piece dress with matching flowered hat and white accessories and a corsage of white carnations and deeper pink Sweetheart roses.

The reception was held in Northminster Church parlor.

For travelling to the Atlantic States, the bride wore a three-piece ensemble in apple blossom pink basket weave wool. It was fashioned with a sheath skirt with matching jacket and belt, finished with a sheath cape coat, a large flowered white and pink toned hat with white French gloves and black patent bag and shoes. Her corsage was white gardenias.

Guests were from Timmins, Toronto, Ottawa, Kingston, Belleville, Lakefield and Peterborough.

Previous to the wedding the bride was entertained at three showers. Co-workers of General Motors, Oshawa, presented her with a complete picnic basket, set of Canada leaf glasses and a G.E. hand-mixer. Friends of the bridegroom presented him with a purse of money and co-workers of General Motors, Oshawa, with a pole-lamp.

Bay Shore Bowlers Enjoy Dinner, Dance

The Bay Shore Gals' five pin bowling league wound up another successful season with an enjoyable presentation banquet and dance at the Legion Hall last Wednesday night. The league executive, bowlers, guests and wives enjoyed a delicious roast beef dinner and later danced to the music of the Ray Difruscio orchestra.

Mr. Fred Phelan was master of ceremonies for the evening and introduced the winning team of the year which was Josephine Weatherall's team which was presented with the large team trophy plus individual trophies to each member of the team. Members were Marjorie Stapley, Pauline Wilson, Marion Dempsey, Mary Mulvihill and Kay Genereaux.

The second place team, captain Barbara Genereaux and her team were also presented with individual trophies.

Mr. Fred Phelan made the presentation of trophies of high average to Leola Dorlaior; high single, Agnes Yorke and high triple, Doreen Murray.

Beat your own average was won by Dida Ellis.

Trophy for the most enthusiastic bowler, donated by Hazel McQuarrie was presented to Eva Weese. Gifts were also given to each team in the order which they finished on final night.

Perfect attendance gifts were presented to Linda Peck and Ann Weese. Door prize was won by Jean Poste.

Some Groups View U.N. With Cynicism

TORONTO (CP)—The United Nations is viewed with cynicism by women in peace groups from some European nations, Mrs. C. B. Macpherson of Toronto, president of the Voice of Women, said Wednesday.

Mrs. Macpherson held a press conference on her return from The Hague where 1,500 representatives of peace groups from 14 NATO nations met May 12. They were there to demonstrate to a NATO conference their opposition to the spread of nuclear arms.

Canadian and United States groups consider the UN the logical agency to work for peace she said, and their members were alarmed to find it taken lightly by others.

The women's meeting produced a statement which representatives have taken to their own countries for endorsement, agreeing to support the UN and advocating the principle of universality of membership in it.

Mrs. Macpherson said that because not all nations belong to the UN some of the women have little faith in it.

Mrs. Macpherson was among the Canadian and U.S. women who were at first refused entry into Holland. They finally signed a pledge to refrain from political activity and peace-disturbing demonstrations.

Church Groups

The Evening Branch of the W.A. of St. Thomas Church held their annual coffee party in the Parish House on Thursday, April 30th. In spite of the inclement weather there was a substantial turnout to purchase the various marmalades and baked goods on sale and to enjoy a cup of coffee.

At a previous W.A. meeting it was agreed by all members to join the "Golden Book for charity" plan. The program convenor for the month showed slides on the Pakistan home industries.

In addition to the president and a delegate, several members attended a full two day session of the Diocesan W.A. annual held at St. Thomas Church on May 8th and 6th.

Grandma's Attitude Toward Grandson Out of Order

DEAR ANN LANDERS — When my husband and I married in 1961 he was in the army. I had a baby boy the first year and it was very rough on me physically. The doctor said I needed complete rest so my mother-in-law took the baby and I stayed with my folks for three months.

After that my mother-in-law encouraged me to go to Arkansas and be with my husband. She said she loved keeping the baby and that I shouldn't worry.

ANN LANDERS

My husband got out of the army six months ago and now we have a nice little house. I am expecting again and everything is fine — except we can't get our boy back from my mother-in-law.

She says the child is the most important thing in her life and if we take him she will die of a broken heart. Last night we had a big row. She called me selfish and cruel, said I'd have many more children and would not miss this one.

Our son calls me "Auntie Lou" and my husband "Uncle Jim." He thinks my mother-in-law is his mommy. Please tell me what to do before I lose my mind. — BIG MISTAKE.

DEAR MISTAKE — Does your mother-in-law think that children are like waffles — the first one doesn't count. Quit horsing around and get your son back with you, where he belongs.

Your mother-in-law should take a foster child into her home since she seems to need to lavish love on a youngster. The local Family Service Association can direct her.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am 24 years of age, but you'd never know it. I'm a size 9, with coal black hair and a pixie face. I could pass for 18 with no trouble although I have two little girls.

The problem is that whenever my husband and I go out someone mistakes him for my father. Rudy is only 30 but his pot belly and bald head make him look about 40.

I've tried high-styled clothes and severe hair-dos to make myself look older but they don't become me. I look as if I am playing house. Rudy didn't say anything but I know he felt terrible when the waiter who took our order last night asked, "And now what would your beautiful daughter like for dessert?"

Do you have any suggestions or advice? — PATTY.

DEAR PATTY — This situation is going to get worse before it gets better. Wait till people begin to mistake his children for his grandchildren.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My mother works part-time in a bakery to buy extra things for the home. She keeps the money in a pickle jar behind the canned goods.

My 15-year-old sister helped herself to $11.00 and bought a lace blouse to wear with her black velvet skirt. She told me the blouse was on sale and she just couldn't pass it up. I promised I wouldn't say anything because she plans to put the money back as soon as she gets paid for her baby-sitting jobs.

Mom hasn't missed the money yet but one of these days I'm afraid she might. My conscience is bothering me. Should I tell mom and get it off my mind. — LITTLE SISTER.

DEAR LITTLE SISTER — You did nothing wrong so what's bugging you? Shutting wouldn't make you feel better but it could make you feel worse.

One of these days I suggest you tell your mother that keeping money in a pickle jar makes as much sense as keeping pickles in a bank.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped-self-addressed envelope.

U.C.W. Meeting

MOUNT PLEASANT

RAWDON U.C.W.

RAWDON — Thirteen members and one guest attended the May meeting of Mount Pleasant - Rawdon United Church Women at the hall on Wednesday evening. A flowering a sales plant added beauty while poster displayed family life in other lands.

Mrs. Donald Knight was in charge of the business. The correspondence included thank-you notes and an invitation to Hoards to a "Come and Go" tea. A message was read on a three-day study period in July at Albert College, Belleville for the women of the Bay of Quinte conference. The theme is "God's Purpose and our Purpose".

The program was in charge of Mrs. Frank Bailey and Mrs. Robert H. Hoard. The devotional was based on "Happy the Home". Mrs. Harry McAdam read the Bible lesson and Mrs. Bailey read the meditation from Patterns for Devotion and Mrs. Hoard gave a story re "Family Life in Other Lands". Mrs. Alton Hadley of Stirling was introduced and she showed a movie reel of their recent trip through Mexico which depicted the homes of the natives. The scenes gave a graphic picture of "Ways of Living", also the zoo with its large variety of animals. The second reel showed Africa with pictures of Kruger National Park.

Mrs. Robert H. Hoard voiced thanks to Mrs. Hadley and presented her with a gift of remembrance.

Mrs. Garth Joslin and Mrs. Allen Reid provided refreshments and a social half hour was enjoyed.

The president voiced thanks for program and lunch.

Executive Secretary
Watchdog, Psychiatrist, Errand Boy and Partner

By JEAN SHARP

TORONTO (CP)—A job with $10,000-a-year potential and of most no competition would sound like a dream to a good many men, let alone women.

But there are women who hold such jobs. They're called executive secretaries. And there aren't enough of them to go around.

All you need to get such a job is first-rate secretarial skills, initiative and the combined talents of watchdog, psychiatrist, errand boy and business partner.

Some hints on how to acquire such talents are offered by Lorna Boyd, the new president of the National Secretaries Association, Canadian division.

Mrs. Boyd, who has been named secretary of the year in the NSA's Toronto branch, is secretary to a vice-president at Alloy Metal Sales and also serves as the Toronto firm's secretary of personnel administration.

She emphasizes that no single description fits the job of senior secretary. Duties tend to accumulate and the job itself is shaped according to the talents of the secretary, the size of the company and the boss's work.

NEED EXPERIENCE

She estimates it takes five to seven years to get the experience required for a senior secretary. And once you're on your way up, you can get ahead either by hitching your star to your boss's or on your own. Either way, knowledge of the firm you work for will be invaluable.

It may take time to find the right company and then the right boss, but somewhere it pays to settle down and begin to learn the workings of a firm.

A private secretary who can answer routine mail, subject to approval, has become almost indispensable but "the girl who jumps from job to job can never reach this height."

Mrs. Boyd says shorthand is still of prime importance in spite of dictation machines because executives like to have someone they can bend for, as a status symbol if nothing else.

For the beginner she has two other suggestions:

—"No matter what type of job you are given in an office, take it. You'll be the winner in the long run."

—"You should make a point of taking some type of course every year. It doesn't have to be a skill, it could be in philosophy."

FORGET THE CLOCK

When the chance comes, there are a few more things to keep in mind.

"Forget about the clock. If you have a special appointment, tell your boss early in the day that you hope to be able to leave. If it is something you can tell him about, do.

"You should be able to get along with everybody, be even-tempered, understanding and not a nosey parker.

"You have to be able to keep confidences even if you're bursting to tell something good you know will be happening.

"You must be aware of rumor-mongers and try to stop them. Someone once told me every office has its rumor mill; the best thing to do is put the good things in it and try to put it to wear itself out on them."

Mrs. Boyd says a senior secretary has to be modestly dressed but this doesn't mean your clothes need be inexpensive. You may spend as much or as little as you want, providing what you wear is in good taste. It should be neither ultra-conservative nor startlingly high-fashioned.

All of this may seem like a lot of trouble but, Mrs. Boyd says, the rewards may be considerable. The secretary whose boss is director of a handful of companies might achieve the ultimate in secretarial status symbols—a secretary of her own.

Mother's Helper

WHEN YOUR small convalescent is well enough (and not contagious, of course), she'll enjoy having a family supper in her room. Arrange convenient seats for everyone, with small tables or a card table to hold the trays. When it's time to eat, each brings his own tray (if he can manage it) and you're all ready for sociability.

Question: Ever since my daughter was born four months ago, I've been in a constant stew about visitors who thoughtlessly pick her up without my permission. The list includes relatives as well as friends. Most have had much more experience with babies than I, so I'm not afraid they might drop her or hold her incorrectly. But sometimes a visitor will pick her up just as the baby without asking first, and then make sure it's enforced! — Mrs. E. V., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Answer: It's rude enough for visitors to pick up and handle household items such as cigarette boxes, porcelains and other decorative items. So it's certainly more impolite to pick up the hostess' baby, which is infinitely more precious. Of course anyone can see that goes for relatives, too — should ask permission to hold the baby before grabbing. You might jokingly mention to visitors that this is the end of the house to head off a tendency to pick up the baby before they get a chance. Unfortunately, some people do forget their manners concerning young children and put the mother in the embarrassing position of having to think for them.

Question: A friend of mine has a lovely room, but she missed the boat on arranging the living room furniture. Over coffee one morning, I gave her my ideas on how she could make the room look cozier and good grade. When I repeated this to another friend, she was horrified and said it was most unkind of me to be so critical. I didn't mean my advice to sound that way, and I wonder if I was really inconsiderate in speaking my mind the way I did. — Mrs. E. G. B., Chicago, Ill.

Answer: Advice of this kind should very well sound critical and, just by offering, it does seem to imply that you doubt your friend's good taste and judgment. Her ideas on what is cozy may be quite different from yours and perhaps her room was planned to suit her own distinct style of life and entertaining. To be on the safe side, and not to appear inconsiderate it's always wiser to refrain from offering suggestions unless they're requested.

Question: My father is dead and I want my brother, who is 21, to give me away when I am married next month. Several members of my family object because they feel he's too young, and that I should ask an uncle, instead. What do you think? Even though he's two years younger than I, would it be permissible for him to take part in the ceremony? — G. H. A., Hartford, Conn.

Answer: When her father is deceased the bride has the option of choosing who will give her away at her wedding. It's usually the closest male relative. Even though your brother is younger than you, it's still permissible for him to be in the wedding party, if you so desire.

U.C.W. Meeting

WELLMAN'S-RAWDON UCW

RAWDON — The members of Wellman's-Rawdon United Church Circle were "At Home" on Tuesday afternoon, when they entertained eight other organizations. These were United Church Women from Belwdon, Mt. Pleasant, Rawdon, Salem, Springbrook, Rylestone, Petherick's and Hoard's and the ladies of the Burnbrae Presbyterian Church.

The hostess president, Mrs. Omar Dreeup, presided for the afternoon and extended a welcome to all. Mrs. Gerald Clancy was pianist and the pastor, the Rev. W. G. Fletcher, gave the prayer.

Mrs. Gerald Russell was in charge of an inspirational devotional on the theme "Christian Family Life." Mrs. Jim Pollock contributed a vocal solo. Mrs. Byron Seeley and Mrs. Howard Wallace gathered the offering. Mrs. Kenneth Tompkins and Mrs. Seeley each presented their reports.

The program consisted of appropriate readings by Mrs. Everett Parr of Hoard's, Mrs. Burton Sharpe of Mt. Pleasant, Mrs. Wilfred Spencer, of Rylstone, and Mrs. Charles Carter, Burnbrae. The musical entertainment included a piano solo by Mrs. William Heath of Bethel; a vocal solo by Mrs. George Sine of Salem, with Mrs. Vera Hagerman as accompanist; a vocal trio by Mrs. Fred McKeown, Mrs. Geo. Williams and Mrs. Harry Platt of Springbrook, with Mrs. Ralph Wellman as accompanist.

The guest speaker was Mrs. Edison Sine of Frankford, regional vice-president of West Hastings. She gave a picture of the life of Mary and Martha of Bible days and stressed the value of mission study and Bible study in each group. She also urged the ladies in the audience to contribute to their own departments of church work, such as the Fred Victor Mission, Homes for the Aged and Unwed Mothers, rather than to use their money to promote organizations outside the church. Last year the members of the Bay of Quinte Conference donated $11,000 to assist other organizations. Had this amount been used to promote the work of the United Church organizations much more could have been accomplished.

Mrs. Craig Watson presented the speaker with a small gift and thanked her for the message.

The service closed and the hostess group served refreshments.

Prize Winning Cream Cake From 1904 County Fair

By MARY MOORE

Her sister Rachel made a dare: "Make a cake for the County Fair!"

She skimmed some cream And folled the cat—
A five dollar bill's
Cost to be steamed at.
Alfretta was my mother's name
The cream cake won her prize and fame.

I have my mother's prize-winning cream cake recipe from 90 years ago, for when she was married and had four children she would make it again and again on high times and holidays. Then we knew it was a guest occasion.

If you have a herd of Guernseys or Jerseys wandering around in your pasture you will not mind using the heavy cream that is called for in this recipe. Nevertheless, since this wonderful party cake does not call for butter and does call for only 2 eggs, the cost of heavy cream to city folk is not prohibitive.

I want you all to try it so you will know the kind of cook my mother was. This morning I enjoyed immensely making

Dinner Menus

THURSDAY
(Guests)

Round Steak Sukiyaki with Crisp Vegetables and Rice (see Tuesday); Waldorf Salad; Strawberry Shortcake; Tea.

SUNDAY

ALFRETTA'S PRIZE CREAM CAKE:

2 cups sifted soft-winter wheat (cake) flour, 2½ teaspoons single-acting baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, 2 large eggs, 1 cup sugar, 1 teaspoon finely grated lemon rind, 1 cup 32% cream.

Beat the eggs and sugar together with rotary or electric beater on high speed for at least 5 minutes until they increase in volume and are thick and opaque. Do not fail to beat the yolks and sugar mixture until thick. Add the grated lemon rind. Sift together the sifted cake flour, baking powder and salt 3 times. Add the dry ingredients alternately with the cream, 1-3 of each at a time, folding them in. Then to make batter smooth, beat with rotary or electric beater for 5 seconds only. Turn into 2 buttered 8½" layer cake pans, lined on bottoms with buttered wax paper. Bake on centre sheif at 350 deg. Fahr. for 20 to 23 minutes. Turn out on racks, peel off paper. Cool. Put together with Rich Cream Filling: In heavy pan mix together 3 tablespoons sugar, 2 teaspoons corn starch, 1-3 teaspoon salt until blended. Add ¼ cup heavy cream and ½ cup milk. Stir constantly over direct heat until smooth and boiling. Reduce heat and boil 1 minute, stirring. Beat 3 egg yolks slightly, add some of hot mixture to them and return to hot mixture. Cook and add additional 2 tsp sugar. Cook 2 minutes, stirring constantly until thick. (This may lump a little but keep stirring and the lumps smooth out.) Remove from heat and add 1 teaspoon vanilla. Cool to room temperature before spreading between layers.

Frost top and sides attractively with ½ pint 32% cream, whipped until stiff. Do not sweeten the whipped cream. Decorate top with border of 16 crescents of well-drained canned peaches.

DISTRICT WOMEN'S INSTITUTES

UNIONDALE W.I. HASTINGS WEST

5TH CON. OF SIDNEY—The May meeting of Uniondale Womens Institute was held at the home of Mrs. M. Sine, 5th Concession of Sidney.

This being the first meeting following election of officers for 1964 - 1965, Mrs. G. Harrington presided for the installation of officers.

Correspondence read by Mrs. G Sine consisted of a date for Achievement Day on "Sleeping Garments" May 23 at 1.30 p.m. at Moira Secondary School from Mrs. McDonald a letter concerning "Cancer Campaign" which will be dealt with in January at a "Cancer Research" meeting; adopted and sent an interesting letter to the members of P.W.I. and a "Thank-you" note from Joyce and Francis Frost for a "Silver Dollar" given to Stephen Frost. A letter was read from Agriculture Society for the planning of a later meeting in lieu of Belleville Fair.

The topic of the May meeting, "The history and use of plastics was given by Mrs. M. Dafoe, the history of plastics dates back to the year 1800 and its uses are numerous. Other items on the program were "Federated News" by Mrs. M. Sine; "Food buying in the 60's" by Mrs. C. Sine, who had attended Marsh Hill short course.

The remainder of the program included a reading by Mrs. M. Grills, another by Mrs. Tracy, a Piano solo was rendered by Mrs. C. Sine.

Mrs. M. Sine was thanked for entertaining her home and lunch was served by the May lunch committee.

Having Secret Jokes In Front of Mother Is Rude

DEAR DORIS — Last week my aunt and uncle came over to visit us. My uncle brought out a book from his pocket and threw it across to my brother. A few seconds later my brother laughed so I knew it was a joke book. He finished with it then gave it to my grandmother.

I peeped over her shoulder to see what was so funny. She looked up at me and said, "You're too young!" and turned the book over on her lap. I kinda laughed and turned away. Doris, why are they doing this to me? I'm 17 years old. — WONDERING.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR WONDERING — It just isn't cricket. It's worse manners to pass around a smutty joke (while keeping you out of it) than it is to whisper in company.

This is one to put down in your diary — for your own guidance when you have teen-agers. Meanwhile, forget it. It was probably a poor joke anyway.

DEAR DORIS — Our family is falling to bits. My dad goes out drinking all week after work. When he comes home my mom and he start to fight. I feel like running away and never coming back.

The doctor told him that liquor is no good for him, but he just don't realize what is happening. — NERVOUS WRECK.

DEAR NERVOUS WRECK — Judging from recent mail, you aren't the only nervous wreck produced by battling parents. How can mothers and dads worth the name be so unconscious — or uncaring?

One little girl had the gumption to shout a little louder than either of them to say how much their constant rows were upsetting her; and reminded them that she loved them both. They retired in confusion. Could you try it?

Talk the situation over with the social worker at your own family agency, which is there to help you. The address is: The Children's Aid Society, 63 Moira Street, Belleville, which counsels on family problems as well as when children are involved.

DEAR DORIS — For about a year now my parents have been smoking and drinking a lot. Before all this we were a nice Christian family, but it has all changed. We don't go to church (except me) or pray at all. My father used to be a good, Christian, but I know smoking and drinking isn't doing him any good. Doris, please help me get my parents back to a Christian way of life. — DAUGHTER.

DEAR DAUGHTER — Your prayers and your example can do a great deal. Let your Christian principles show in what you do and say. Keep on loving these precious people of yours; and confide in your Sunday school teacher for understanding and moral support.

DEAR DORIS — Up until about two weeks ago Ronnie and I (both 16) were going steady but then, out of the blue, he told me in an uncertain manner that he did not want to go steady any more. I do like other boys, but not half as much as Ronnie. (Please do not tell me to forget him, because I know I couldn't). Can you give me some advice on how to get him back? — BROKEN HEARTED.

DEAR BROKEN HEARTED — Mend that heart. Ronnie has done you a favor. An attractive young girl like you would be foolish to limit yourself to one boy at this stage. Don't forget him; just give him some competition.

DEAR DORIS — My husband is an alcoholic. He won't go to A.A. He went a few times and said they are all a bunch of nuts. I've tried Alanon. Three years before I was married (11 years ago) I went on a wild (morally) spree. He knew of this. Now every time I go to leave him he starts on about what an unfit mother I am. I have not even looked at another man in the last 11 years.

He calls me nothing but a pig and a prostitute and is going to tell everyone, including my children (the oldest is seven) what I did. He is slugging me in the head always. Where am I to go with our children who think there is nothing like Daddy?

If I go out with the neighbor lady, he says I'm out tearing around. I go to bingo one block away (he can check) or to the sewing club two blocks away. He says I'm out with this guy and that. I've not been with any and he knows it.

The only time he is nice is when he wants something. He won't go to a counsellor on anyone. He says it is our business and just tells them where to go. — WHAT DO I DO NOW?

DEAR WHAT — He hasn't a leg to stand on. He married you knowing of your One Wild Weekend. Such unreasonable abuse is characteristic of some alcoholics.

If your children's welfare, and your own, indicate that you should live apart from him until he comes to himself, ignore his taunts. What he tells your children will have nothing to do with how they feel about you.

Go to a counsellor.

DEAR DORIS — I am 16 in grade 10. My history teacher is real handsome and I am in love with him. A month ago after school he asked me out, and ever since I have been going out with him. No one knows about it, because then we would get in trouble.

Last night he told me he had gotten a new teaching job in another city. He has asked me to go along with him and then get married there secretly. I am in love with him and do want to marry him. I do not have any parents but live with a girl friend, so it will be my own decision. What is your opinion?—IN LOVE.

P.S. — It is not puppy love.

DEAR IN LOVE — My opinion of your history teacher wouldn't bear print at all. If you could see some of the letters I get from disillusioned gals who started off a tragic life through marriage at age 16, you wouldn't touch the idea with a ten-foot pole.

P. S. — How do you know it is not puppy love? The puppy is the last one to recognize the symptoms.

'Lines on Life'

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

It has been well said that man is the only animal who apes himself in his dreams and is dependent upon them for his advancement.

The dream-life of man is sympgomatic of his urge to transcend himself. If he can dream often enough about a desirable quality, and it then becomes desirable enough, he will not only imagine that he possesses it, but may actually acquire it.

Apparently, most of our contemporary writers and playwrights do not agree. If their current crop of novels and plays are any indication, they are seeking to portray "realistically" the actual human condition and situation. In their hands, "realism" has come in mean what one sees, not what one dreams. As a result, human life is depicted as grimy, sordid and meaningless. Man is but Sisyphus carrying stones up the mountain, rolling them down, climbing down only to bring them up again. The ground under man's feet is a slippery tread-mill.

PORTRAYAL OF MAN

Long years ago, the Bible attempted a "realistic" portrayal of man. It did so, however, from a different angle of vision. Said the Psalmist, depicting man's enigma: "What is man? Man is like a breath, his days are as a shadow that passeth away. Yet Thou (O Lord) hast made him but little lower than the angels, and hast crowned him with glory and honor." Yes, he said, man's life is tragic; he is mortal and suffers pains born of his fleeting insignificance. But he is also heroic; while no angel, he sometimes comes close.

The Greeks, too, recognized man's tragic fate. But unlike our contemporary writers, their "realism" did not lead them to view life as a sordid round of endless miseries. Students of ancient Greece remind us that their sculptors idealized the human body, rather than distort it (the way some modern artists do), because they recognized that, in reality, the body was not always beautiful. In their plays, Greek actors were masked, in order to lend their features an appearance of perfection which their own human faces could not. And stage heroes were given artificial heights, to add impressiveness to man's limited nature, to make them look like "heroes." Speaking with disdain of his fellow dramatist, Sophocles once said of Euripides: "He paints men as they are; I paint them as they ought to be."

There will always be this quarrel among men, and particularly among sensitive, creative men. Some will "paint man as he is;" some "as he ought to be."

DARK HUES

But questions must still be asked. Is man only what he is? Or is he also something of what he might be? In other words: If we are to be "realistic" does this mean that we must claim as "real" only the actual, and never take the potential into account? Is there, perhaps, something sickly wrong with those who look at life with glasses of dark hues, as there is with the Pollyannas who can only see through "rose-colored"?

Unhappily, modern writers, like modern philosophers, see the cards of life as heavily stacked against man. He just cannot win the game because there is no human possibility. Thus, in their hands, all human relations become the object of profound disgust. At every turn, they diminish us neither to savor nor to drink from life's cup; they forever label it with their grim warning: "Danger, Poison!" Or worse, still: they sometimes seem not to care if we do drink the poison, since, they believe, there is nothing better to drink. Like Ernest Hemingway, they toast life with these scornful words: "Hail nothing, full of nothing, nothing is with thee."

LIVE DANGEROUSLY

To be sure, if we live at all, all of us must live dangerously. Perils lurk wherever we turn; traps in ambush await our unsuspecting mis-steps. And life's cup often overflows with its dregs.

But we have our moments. Good and beautiful and significant moments. And when we dream we seem to see again in fleeting glimpses what we might be.

ANGELIC NATURES

Then let the writers write and the philosophers philosophize. But let them be truly realistic! Yes, man is torn between the warring urges of his animal and his angelic natures. But if they persist in seeing him as animal, he will remain an animal — and dream no more.

But he can dream! And let them not forget.

Women's Institutes

MOUNTAIN VIEW W.I.

MOUNTAIN VIEW — The May meeting of Mt. View Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Stanley Barber with 26 ladies present. The meeting was opened with the new president, and secretary presiding.

It was decided to ask for the fall millinery course. It was necessary to appoint a new Historical Research convener and Mrs. Cecil Green was elected to this office.

Mrs. Stanley Barber gave interesting current events. Mrs. Frank Roblin presented the retiring president, Mrs. A. Walbridge and the retiring secretary, Mrs. W. Motley each with a gift from the Institute.

This was Grandmothers' Meeting and was under the convenorship of Mrs. Clarke Sprung. Mrs. Sprung called on each grandmother to contribute a number to the program. There were three contests, one by Mrs. Sprung, the winner Mrs. K. Werkhoven, and the grandmother with the most grandchildren, Mrs. Roblin, and the grandmother with the youngest grandchild, Mrs. S. Barber.

A contest by Mrs. Fairman was won by Mrs. D. Jones and Mrs. D. Farmer.

A contest by Mrs. F. Motley was won by Mrs. F. Roblin.

Mrs. W. Burkitt thanked the hostess for her hospitality and the meeting was closed.

The hostess, assisted by co-hostess Mrs. C. Barber, and the lunch committee, Mrs. K. Werkhoven and Mrs. Ronald Lough, served refreshments and a social time was enjoyed.

MANAGES BANK

WHALIFAX (CP)—Jean Begg who graduated from Dalhousie University here with a bachelor of commerce degree, is one of five women bank managers employed by the Bank of Nova Scotia. She was appointed in 1962 to head the branch in the Nova Scotian Hotel here.

U.C.W. Meeting

Mrs. E. Pascoe was hostess for the May meeting of Melrose U.C.W. There was a large attendance under the leadership of the president Mrs. Newton Demille.

A highlight of the meeting was the reading by Mrs. A. English of a letter she had received from Miss Fern Snider, a missionary in Brazil. Miss Snider, a former resident of Melrose is a representative of the United Church, which works in co-operation with the Methodist Church in Brazil. All present were thankful that their prayers for Miss Snider's safety had been answered.

Mrs. Charles Bates, Sr., conducted the Bible study and developed the theme that we should not judge others; we should not be disturbed at not being understood, we should be disturbed that we do not understand others. Some good rules to follow are: be sure to know the facts; do not listen to stories told at the expense of another. Guilt may seem to be established but there may be extenuating circumstances. Put the habit of judging in reverse, focus on the good traits of others. Leave all judgments of another's sins to God.

DEVOTIONAL THEME

Mrs. Jack McLaren, as program convener continued in the same vein, with her theme based on "Family and Community Life". She began with a summary of a panel discussion given at a meeting she had recently attended. She said in part: God is felt to be near in the sanctuary of the church but not so in the family, although He should be. We must strike a balance and decide what is important to us. In home the central figure is not the child, nor a parent, but God. Christian education should not be left to the church but be given in the home.

As well there must be an awareness of life in other lands. To illustrate what missionaries are doing and to see if this work is necessary excerpts from the book "Journeys into Understanding" were read by several members. The author came to the conclusion that much had been done toward helping people to help themselves but much still is to be done.

Mrs. McLaren concluded this part of her program by discussing racial problems in North America. We must learn what we say we believe when our family is confronted with this problem.

To show how community life may descend to the level of nothing but gossip a skit was presented by four members. The discussion following the skit brought out several ways that this sin of gossip could be overcome.

During the business session, plans for the strawberry social in June were finalized.

The June meeting will be held at the church with a guest speaker speaking on "Women in India". A social invitation is extended to all interested women.

Mrs. Pascoe and her assistants served a delicious lunch, and a short social time ended this worthwhile meeting.

GELATINE DISHES

If a cold glass jar is used in making gelatine dishes, place warm water in the jar and quickly but gently remove it when unmoulding.

WCTU Wants Governors Put on Cars

TORONTO (CP) — The Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Toronto and district suggested Wednesday that all cars and trucks on Ontario highways should be equipped with governors to limit their speed to 65 miles an hour.

Delegates to the union's annual meeting voted to recommend that Premier Robarts set up a special commission to consider the mechanical enforcement of speed limits.

A resolution was also passed calling for more rigid enforcement of the law for the distribution of drugs, especially to students.

Child besters and glamor advertising of liquor and tobacco were criticized.

GETS SCHOLARSHIP

QUEBEC (CP)—Betty Margaret O'Grady, a 20-year-old pharmacy school graduate, has been awarded a scholarship by the Federation of Women University Graduates, enabling her to attend the University of Minnesota to obtain her master's degree in pharmaceutical chemistry.

Our Architectural Heritage

By LENNY WILLIAMSON

In 1826 an elegant new inn graced the north-east corner of Dundas and Front Streets. It has been handed down to us as a weather-beaten shadow of its former self. Nothing about the Simpson-Wallbridge house betrays that this was once a splendid hostelry, the expansion of a family carried on by Belleville's first career woman.

Sgt John Simpson, late of the Rangers, and his wife Margaret were among the first settlers in Meyers Creek. Soon after they built their 13 by 30 foot log tavern on the south-east corner of Dundas and Front Streets, John died, and Margaret was left to operate their business alone.

Margaret Simpson was a remarkable person. In the rough-and-ready atmosphere of a frontier community she juggled successfully both her career as a business woman and her duties as a mother.

Her tavern was the first place of public assembly in the settlement. Under her roof the Masonic Lodge met, the Militia was mobilized in 1812, and the name of Meyers Creek was changed to Belleville in 1816.

A building boom followed the end of the War in 1814. The citizens of Belleville were putting up fine new houses to replace their first log cabins, and the Simpsons were ready to expand.

Simpson chose Asa Yeomans as the carpenter to build his hotel in the Neo-classical style popular for years in the U.S.A., but just beginning by 1820, to be accepted in Canada.

The simplified Neo-classical style called Loyalist in its Canadian version, depended for its effect on delicate trim and mouldings. The door near the south end of the Simpson building is a beautiful example of the Loyalist type, with reeded pilasters and fine-drawn linear mouldings.

Even a traveller from such sophisticated places as Kingston or York could not help but be impressed by the carpentry skill displayed on the front door. The door nearer the north end is plainer and no doubt was the entrance to the taproom. It was not as important to impress the local trade.

No verandah or shutters obscured the clean lines and good proportions of the Simpson-Wallbridge house in 1830. The stark white clapboard inn dominated the Moira River from its site on the corner of the Dundas Road. It was ideally situated to catch travellers arriving either by boat or by coach.

SIMPSON - WALLBRIDGE HOUSE
N. E. corner Dundas and Front Streets

Perhaps John Simpson was a over-ambitious, and Belleville was not big enough to support such a large hotel. He sold his inn in 1825 to William Wallbridge who turned it into a private residence that remained the Wallbridge home through out most of the nineteenth century.

Modern home-builders will be startled to learn of the price of real estate in 1825. John Simpson sold his inn for £113.

WILL CONSIDER PLAN

TORONTO (CP)—T. M. Eberlee, Ontario's assistant deputy minister of labor, said Wednesday that consideration will be given to compulsory apprenticeship for student barbers. Potential barbers can qualify for departmental examinations under current labor department regulations after a six-month course in a private school or three years' apprenticeship.

Five Retarded Children See Shrine Circus

CAMPBELLFORD — On Wednesday afternoon the teacher at Merrrywale School for Retarded Children, Mrs. William Hoey, accompanied by assistant teacher, Mrs. D. Grant took five of the children to Peterborough where they were guests of the Kawartha Shrine Club at the Shriner's Circus in the Memorial Centre.

This kindly gesture on the part of the Shrine Club enabled these handicapped children to participate in entertainment normal children take for granted, so stated Mrs. Hoey. Continuing she said the ability and understanding which can be developed in these children is a constant surprise and satisfaction. The children at Merryvale are not all local children, coming from the House of Happiness, operated and owned by Rev. E. A. Toombs and Mrs. Toombs they are from widely distant areas, one from Toronto, one from Halifax, but with a common problem unable to meet life in a normal way.

Two Children Bitten by Dogs Running Free

CAMPBELLFORD—In spite of the fact that citizens have been requested on two occasions by the Mayor and firmly reminded by clerk E. M. Dey that the dog by law will be strictly enforced some dogs are still running at large. A few days ago Gordon Grant, 13, was bitten by a dog necessitating medical attention.

On Tuesday of this week David Sharp, 11 was quite severely bitten just before nine o'clock at Bridge St. Public School. The boy was taken to Campbellford Memorial Hospital, later released after stitches were used by Dr. W. Baker to close the wound.

Constable A. Tomlinson investigated and ordered the dog tied. Mr. L. Newton, a town employee will be charged with permitting a dog to run at large.

Question to Be Decided Whether Duck Shot by Indian Was Wild One When Killed

OTTAWA (CP)—A long-dead duck threw the Supreme Court of Canada into a legal tizzy Wednesday.

The stuffed mallard duck is the star exhibit in an appeal by treaty Indian Michael Sikyea, a member of the Yellowknife band near the mining town of Yellowknife, N.W.T., against his conviction for shooting it out of season in May, 1962. He was fined $10 and court costs.

The main issue before the court is whether the Canada-United States-Mexico Migratory Birds Convention Act of 1916 abrogates Indian hunting rights granted by treaty to Indians have to observe certain closed periods on various kinds of game birds for their conservation?

Before the court could get around to this issue, the seven judges hearing the appeal threw an unexpected legal curve at William Morrow of Edmonton, counsel for Sikyea, and D. H. Christie, counsel for the attorney - general of Canada.

After his conviction, Sikyea appealed to Mr. Justice J. H. Sissons of the Territorial Court of the Northwest Territories. Mr. Justice Sissons quashed the conviction but Mr. Justice G. H. Johnson of the Territorial Appeal Court restored the conviction.

The judges pointed out to Mr. Morrow and Mr. Christie that Mr. Justice Sissons had said in his judgment there was no Crown evidence to prove the mallard shot by Sikyea was a wild bird.

They said this was a finding of fact and that there could be no appeal against Mr. Justice Sissons' judgment either to the Territorial Court or to the Supreme Court. An appeal could be launched only on errors in law.

Mr. Justice Douglas Abbott said Mr. Justice Sissons said there was no evidence that the duck was wild. Unless it was wild, there was no offence under the Migratory Birds Convention Act.

Mr. Morrow and Mr. Christie said that if there could be no appeal against Mr. Justice Sissons' decision quashing Sikyea's conviction it would not be possible for the Supreme Court to decide the main issue in the case — whether Indians are bound by the Migratory Birds Convention Act.

At this point the court recessed until today to consider whether it has jurisdiction to hear the appeal and whether Mr. Justice Johnson also had jurisdiction.

Outside the court, Mr. Morrow and Mr. Christie said that if the court rules that it and Mr. Justice Johnson lack jurisdiction this will restore the decision quashing Sikyea's conviction.

"We'll have to wait for another Indian to shoot a duck," Mr. Christie said, "and we'll have to make sure it's a wild one. A Supreme Court decision on the issue of whether Indians must observe closed periods under the convention will have to be delayed."

Mr. Christie told the court that even though there was no evidence to prove the duck was wild, this bird lived in a wild state in the area in which it was shot. However, he agreed, there also was evidence that mallard ducks have been domesticated in the Yellowknife area.

Mr. Justice J. R. Cartwright said as a fact there was no evidence to establish that the duck was wild. Mr. Justice Sissons might have been wrong but there was no appeal from a wrong finding of fact.

"How can anyone determine whether a mallard duck is wild or not unless it's dead?" Mr. Christie asked.

"It's like distinguishing wild rice from tame rice," Mr. Justice Abbott said.

Mr. Justice Roland Ritchie said Crown witnesses at Sikyea's trial said they could not state positively that the duck was wild.

"If expert witnesses can't say that the duck was wild, how can judges say it?" said Chief Justice Robert Taschereau.

Jet Fighters Softening up Radfan Rebels

CP from AP-Reuters

THUMAIR—British jet fighters roared into action today in a major operation to soften up the Radfan rebels of southern Arabia.

RAF Hunter jets pummelled rebel mountain positions with rockets and cannon in an air strike that may last several days.

Planes dropped leaflets before the attack warning tribesmen to leave the area. The leaflets said the strike was necessary because the tribes were harboring "bad men."

The British threw a column of 50-ton Centurion tanks, accompanied by armored cars, into Wadi Misram, a rebel lair only two miles from the sweltering, dusty campaign base.

The tanks, in action for the first time since Korea, pumped 105-millimetre shells into sniper nests in the mountains at the mouth of the Wadi.

"Our intention is to tighten the squeeze in order to reduce the rebels to a state in which they can no longer wage war against us," said Brig. Hugh Blacker, commander of the attack force.

Two companies of paratroops began probing the rebel-held mountains two nights ago. They ran into sporadic sniper fire but advanced without great difficulty.

British paratroops Wednesday occupied the village and fort of Hajib, a key post from which the rebels had been observing British army movements.

British officers believe they have cut off many rebel supply routes from neighboring Yemen, but the area is such a maze of hidden tracks it is difficult to isolate the tribesmen entirely.

Britain has shown increased concern for its military base in Aden on the oil route from the Middle East since Egyptian President Nasser recently stepped up threats to oust the English from all Arab lands.

Five White Swans Stop To Feed at Bay Bridge

A flock of five graceful white swans, possibly strayed from some park within flying distance from Belleville, attracted considerable attention along the Bay Bridge Road this morning.

The swans were first noticed by Herbert McCabe of the Bay of Quinte Fisheries along the Bay Bridge Road, as they were feeding in the shallow water close to the reeds near the garbage disposal area.

When first noticed the swans were within a few yards of the shore but a short time later moved further out into the bay when they were disturbed by city public works employees at work on the garbage disposal area.

Although the swans could have strayed from some municipal park Mr. McCabe said they also could be wild swans which stopped briefly to feed while on their spring migration journey to the north.

Former Cabinet Ministers Now Senators Advance New Suggestions for Discussions

OTTAWA (CP) — Senators who seem to have been getting a lot more government business to deal with lately, apparently don't lack for a few ideas of their own.

In Wednesday afternoon's sitting in the upper chamber, these suggestions came forward from former cabinet ministers.

—Senator David A. Walker, a former Progressive Conservative works minister, proposed establishment of a new royal commission — on corporation law.

—Senator Wallace McCutcheon, another Toronto Conservative and a former trade minister, said the federal government should stop levying estate taxes.

—Senator Thomas Crerar, a former Liberal mines and resources minister, said the federal government should stop running up big deficits that cause inflation.

Senator Walker, making his maiden speech in the Senate which he joined in February, 1963, spoke just before the upper chamber approved in principle the first overhaul of the Companies Act in 30 years. The measure now goes to the Senate banking and commerce committee.

He supported the revision, but said that if banking deserved a royal commission—the Porter royal commission on banking recently brought down its report—so did corporations.

"In order to keep abreast of economic development and in order to follow modern corporate practices and administration, I believe it is necessary to have a new Canadian corporations act and no better medium could be found for writing one than a royal commission."

Senator McCutcheon, speaking shortly before the Senate gave second reading to Estate Tax Act amendments following the budget, said the federal government is reaching a ridiculous situation in the estate tax field.

Ottawa should vacate this field and the revenue from estate taxes—otherwise known as death, succession or inheritance duties—should be left to the provinces. Ontario, Quebec and British Columbia have been advocating such a move.

Sales and Ad Club Ends Year With Banquet

Belleville Sales and Advertising Club hailed 16 seasons of activity with a traditional gala touch last night — its annual Ladies' Night supper dance.

Close to 300 members and guests turned up for the event at Club Cedars, to eat turkey, dance to a guest orchestra, laugh with a star entertainer and off-italy welcome a new president.

The event ended with dancing to the music of Peterpugh's Hal MacFarlane orchestra.

Hiring of Civil Servants Frozen By Thatcher

REGINA (CP)—Saskatchewan Liberal Leader Ross Thatcher, who takes over as premier Friday, announced Wednesday a freeze on the hiring of civil servants.

Mr. Thatcher said in an interview he will continue to fill positions in the public service and in boards, agencies, commissions and Crown corporations of the government, except those positions to which individuals are appointed by the cabinet.

The freeze will not apply to hiring of casual labor.

Mr. Thatcher said the freeze was to enable his government to reduce the ranks of the civil service if that is recommended by a Glassco-type commission to be set up to determine how "fat and waste" can be eliminated in government operations.

Under the freeze, civil service ranks can be cut by the process of not filling vacancies that occur through retirement or resignations. This would avoid dismissals, Mr. Thatcher said.

He said he hopes to set up the Glassco - type commission shortly.

There now are about 7,500 provincial civil servants. Annual turnover in the service is 15 to 20 per cent.

The Liberal leader said he has decided on about nine of the 12 persons he will ask to take cabinet portfolios. He is expected to announce the cabinet tonight and have it sworn in Friday afternoon.

Two Liberal and two CCF candidates defeated in the April 22 Saskatchewan election said Wednesday they have applied for recounts in their constituencies.

Three other candidates, including two CCFers, said they still are considering whether to take similar action.

Beserk Negro Kills 6 Persons Then Himself

NASSAU (AP)—A man with a shotgun rampaged through Nassau's southern suburbs Wednesday night killing seven persons including himself—and wounding six in a two-hour automobile foray.

"It was one of the worst nights in my experience," said Chief Criminal Investigator Stanley Meir.

Police found Ruben Rolle, 30, dead of shotgun wounds in his home with the 4 shotgun rifle nearby.

Police Commissioner Nigel Morris said authorities did not establish a motive immediately but "the first person he shot was his wife."

Nothing Much Has Changed In Ragged Fighting in Laos

By DOUG MARSHALL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

An observer caught between the two ragged armies clashing on the Laotian Plaine des Jarres this week would be forgiven for thinking it was still 1962—or even 1954.

Nothing much has changed. The same generals are still firing the same guns at each other across the same hills despite two conferences and two neva. innumerable coups d'etat and half a dozen attempts to form a stable coalition government.

The pro - Communist Pathet Lao forces, now reported victorious in the two northern provinces of Laos, in the last 10 years have seldom relaxed their pressure on the shaky neutralist and right-wing governments that have come and gone like summer rainstorms.

Both Britain and United States are worried that if Premier Souvanna Phouma's government crumbles the extremes of right and left will collide in an all-out civil war. This would make nonsense of the guarantees of independence and neutrality worked out at the 14-nation Geneva conference of 1962.

ASKING FOR HELP

Anxious to salvage the general agreement, Britain and the U.S. are asking Russia and Communist China to help arrange a cease-fire in Laos before the situation deteriorates further.

There has been no official reaction from the Communist Chinese yet, but British officials are certain Peking has the power and influence to restrain the Pathet Lao and North Vietnamese forces fighting in Laos.

To counter the Communist threat, the U.S. is considering repeating the manoeuvre it made two years ago of moving troops into neighboring Thailand.

Meanwhile, Souvanna Phouma is believed to be seeking a third Geneva conference. This may be just what the Pathet Lao and the Chinese behind them want.

Successive bouts at the conference tables have repeatedly strengthened the political position of the Communists in Laos and they have every reason to gamble for an even more favorable settlement third time round.

Another explanation of the recent fighting is that the Pathet Lao were merely improving their military position before the rainy season starts.

In either case it seems fairly clear that whatever is decided by negotiations in Geneva or by bullets on the Plaine des Jarres, China intends to keep the pressure on in Laos.

Says Air Cadets Provide Moral and Physical Training Neglected in Our Schools

The modern trend in education stresses academic work at the expense of physical and moral education, Air Commodore L. J. Birchall, commandant of R.M.C. in Kingston, said last night. Speaking to the cadets after inspecting 608 Belleville Squadron of the Royal Canadian Air Cadets, the Air Commodore told them that the Air Cadet movement can provide the moral and physical training left incomplete by schools. He added that the Air Cadets' training in obeying orders could lay the groundwork for self discipline and that self-discipline is the foundation of leadership.

Air Commodore Birchall urged the cadets to make the best possible use of the education offered by schools, and to supplement it with the training offered by the cadet movement. He described the Air Cadet movement as "one of the best youth organizations in the world", and said the ideas and ideals of the Air Cadet movement are similar to those of the Royal Military College.

The inspection party consisted of Air Commodore Birchall, Flying Officer J. R. Chandler of R.C.A.F. Station Trenton, the squadron's parent unit liason officer, and retired Air Commodore A. R. Ross of Kingston, the Air Cadet League representative.

Cadet of the year, Cpl. R. Barrick, was presented with a trophy after the inspection by William Stone, second vice president of 418 Wing, R.C.A.F. A. Air Commodore Birchall presented a special award for outstanding service to Flight Sergeant G. Wardell and Flight Lieutenant W. G. Brown and Flying Officer A. Woodley, Commanding officer and adjutant of the squadron, presented five perfect attendance awards.

Certificates of promotions were presented by chief instructor Flying Officer L. Haley to Sgt. Terry Law, promoted to Flight Sergeant, Cpls. R. Barrick, W. Marner, J. Wright and J. Batchelor, all promoted to Sergeant and to LAC's A. Lee, D. J. Brammer and Brian Cott, all promoted to Corporal. Graduation certificates were presented by Howard Welsh, Air Cadet chairman of 418 Wing, R.C.A.F.A.

Igor Gouzenko Is Happy as Invisible Man

LONDON (CP)—Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express has published an interview with Igor Gouzenko in which the one-time Soviet cipher clerk describes himself as "the happy invisible man."

The story from Toronto by Rebe MacColl says Gouzenko has lived in fear since he left the Soviet Embassy in Ottawa in 1945 and told Canadian authorities of an international spy ring.

MacColl says he had difficulty making contact with Gouzenko but finally met him Tuesday at the home of a Russian friend in a Toronto suburb.

"Don't get me wrong—I am not scared like a rabbit," Gouzenko is quoted. "I am just cautious like when one is crossing the road."

MacColl writes that Gouzenko is so anxious to preserve his anonymity that he "won't say exactly how many children he has got."

Gouzenko objects strongly to the term defector, saying he is like a "man who decides to break out of some awful concentration camp.

"I am free. I am alive, and I am non-existent. You see in me the happy invisible man. But every potential escapee has many problems to think about: Will he find a job? Will he not be forgotten in time and left in the cold at the mercy of Soviet propaganda and revenge?"

Melrose

MELROSE — Mrs. Curiette, of Picton, has been staying with her daughter, Mrs. Bell, since the sudden death of her son-in-law, a few weeks ago.

The Provincial Board of the F.W.I.O. met at Guelph Federated College from April 27 through May 1st. Mrs. Grant McLaren, local board member, attended all sessions and will give her report at the four district annuals in sub-division B at various dates during the month of May.

The annual meeting of Melrose W.I. was held in the Township Hall on Thursday evening, with Mrs. Earl Badgley and Mrs. S. Demille as hostesses.

The dance, sponsored by the Shannonville Agricultural Society, held at Tobe's on Friday evening, was well supported by couples from this community.

Mr. and Mrs. Henderson of Napanee, attended church at Melrose on Sunday morning and were guests, later, of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Osborn.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex Winters and Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Badgley, of Napanee, spent Sunday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Milligan.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARTER, Sports Editor

They call it "The Test of the Champion"—and it is really and truly that.

"Northern Dancer," Canada's greatest gift to horse racing, faces the most severe challenge of his young track life on June 6th, when he breaks the barrier at the Belmont Stakes.

Two jewels of the famous triple crown of racedom, the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness adorn "Dancer's" mantel. And thousands of Canadians, many of whom have no interest in horse racing will have eyes glued to the living room "private eye" rooting for the fine Canadian horse to complete the trio.

"Dancer" is the first Canadian-bred colt to win the Derby and Preakness. If he wins the Belmont he will be only the ninth triple winner since the "Crown" was formed back in 1919.

And it was "Sir Barton," a Canadian-owned horse that became the first winner of the "three-jewel" award. At the end of his two-year-old year John E. Madden sold Sir Barton to Commander J. K. L. Ross of Montreal for $9,000. He started 31 times, won thirteen, was second six times, third five times and earned $116,357, a amount somewhat less than "Dancer" picked up in the Preakness.

Ridden by Johnny Loftus, Sir Barton crossed the finish line ahead of two competitors, "Sweep On" and "Natural Bridge" to win the 1919 Belmont Stakes and the triple crown.

He won the Derby by five lengths on May 10 and was a four-length winner of the Preakness on May 14. Only one owner, William R. Coe, would enter horses against him in the Belmont.

Eleven years elapsed before another three-year-old proved capable of winning the Derby, Preakness and Belmont. It was "Gallant Fox" ridden by the famous "Sonny" Jim Rowe" Earle Sande. The "Fox" won nine of his ten races and pocketed $308,275, a then record sum for a horse in a single season.

Then came "triple" winners "Omaha" in 1935; "War Admiral" in 1937; "Whirlaway" in 1941; "Count Fleet" in 1943; "Assault" in 1946 and "Citation" in 1948.

William Woodward Sr., breeder and owner, and Jim Fitzsimmons, trainer, have the rare distinction of having bred, owned and trained father-and-son winners of the Triple Crown, "Gallant Fox" and "Omaha."

The two jockeys Bill ("Don't call me Willie") Hartack who has the "Dancer" mount, and Willie Shoemaker, who rode "Hill Rise" in the Derby and Preakness, are no strangers to triple crown duelling.

Both have won two events of the Crown as different horses. In 1960 Hartack rode "Venetian Way" to victory in the Kentucky Derby and the Belmont on "Celtic Ash." Hartack's ride on "Celtic Ash" was a good one. "Venetian Way" under Eddie Arcaro was second in the Belmont. Hartack had finished next to last on "Venetian Way" in the Preakness. Shoemaker rode "Tomy Lee" to win the 1959 Derby and repeated in the Belmont on "Sword Dancer."

The Belmont Stakes was first run in 1867 and was won by a filly "Ruthless." Her owner F. Morris picked up $2,500. Last year's winner "Chateugay" depositied $191,700 in owner John Galbreath's saddlebags.

And if you're arguing about the weaker sex horsewise, you might note that only two fillies have won the Belmont, "Ruthless" and Harry Payne Whitney's "Tanya" who won the gold and glory in 1905.

'Bunny' Leaves CAHA Field In Ruck

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

OTTAWA (CP) — John Francis (Bunny) Ahearne never learned to skate but he proved Wednesday he knows some things about the operations of hockey on an international basis than any man in the business.

The ubiquitous 63 - year - old Irishman stepped to the helm of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association and tied its delegates in knots with a hard-hitting 30-minute talk that left them speechless and wondering what all the fuss was about. If they want to criticize this bogey man in the future, they had better polish up on their studies.

Bunny came here from England as a man on trial. He was supposed to have aided Canada's hockey team out of a medal in the Winter Olympic Games at Innsbruck, Austria, last February, with some fine manipulation of the regulations.

As president of the International Ice Hockey Federation, he was a thorn in grades to Canadians who have heard about this controversial figure for years.

But in simple language he told Canadians, specifically delegates to the golden jubilee annual meeting of the CAHA, that they didn't know what they were talking about—that they had better read the IIHF statutes and bylaws.

He invited—almost pleaded—for questions from the floor after his talk. No one spoke up. Later, some delegates gave their views—off the record—in interviews and, to a man, applauded Ahearne.

Secretary - manager Gordon Juckes of Melville, Sask., and CAHA president Art Potter of Edmonton took other views—after the meeting.

"I'm glad that the delegates have him sat," said Potter.

"A lot of gas," said Juckes. "And what's the point of trying to argue with him?"

Ahearne reminded the association that its delegates had come up with only one proposed change in the statutes in the last 17 years, and that was one in 1967 to take over the federation. And he rebuked them for their criticisms of him, and of the IIHF, over the years.

Some delegates looked for a head-on clash between Potter, who was at Innsbruck, and Ahearne. Nothing came of it.

CANADA FOURTH

The issue hinged on the final placings in the event that two or more teams tied in points for second place. Should the placings be based on the goal spread involving all eight teams in the round-robin tournament, or only the top four?

Ahearne, going by the book, said eight. Potter maintained it was four. The rulebook system was used, the Swedes won the second place silver, the Czechs the third-place bronze and Canada a large-sized headache.

He cleared that up here with the declaration: "Read the rules. They've been in the book since 1908 with only minor changes in 1960 and 1963."

He touched on the subject of playing rules, noticed that the CAHA wanted its rules to apply in international hockey, and told the meeting bluntly that "you haven't any."

"You have only National Hockey League rules. And the NHL isn't a member of the IIHF."

ONLY TWO WERE GOOD

"By the widest stretch of imagination only two referees—the Canadian and Russian—were good," Potter said. "The others were poor. We should have at least four from North America. We had only one."

Ahearne replied that the worst refereeing he had seen in international play was in the 1962 world championships at Colorado Springs, Colo. "And then we had only two from Europe, the rest were from North America."

In other business, Juckes informed delegates that both Russia and Czechoslovakia are sending teams to tour Canada next season.

The Russian team would play one game in the East and seven or eight games in Western Canada. The Czech national team would play four or five games in Eastern Canada.

Juckes took applications from Ottawa Montagnards and Saskatoon Quakers for overseas tours. Months were eastern finalists and the Quakers western finalists in the 1964 Allan Cup play.

The meeting made Robert Le-Bel a life member of the CAHA. Earlier, LeBel announced his resignation from the North American council of the International Ice Hockey Federation.

Belvedere Defeats Cheesemen

Belvedere Hotel scored nine runs in the last three innings to defeat Black Diamond Cheese 11-5 in a Commercial Softball League game played at the Alemite Field last night.

The game has been protested by the losers.

Black Diamond carried a 4-3 lead into the fifth inning but Belvedere scored three, added four in the sixth and a pair in the seventh inning.

J. Hughes pitched the victory, allowing six hits while fanning five and walking the same number.

F. Howard toiled in defeat, giving up eight safeties. He struck out 10 and walked four. His mates committed five errors behind him.

Doug Archer hit a double and single, D. Berg two singles and Dick Archer belted a home run to drive in Belvedere attack. G. Woodhouse, Ron Dey and F. Robinson contributed a single apiece.

F. Howard slammed a home run with two on for Black Diamond. J. Kelly and N. Clapp each hit a double and B. Hanna added a single.

Belvedere Hotel	003 084 3 - 11 8 2
Black Diamond	003 001 1 - 5 6 5

Batteries: J. Hughes and D. Berg; F. Howard and B. Jones.

League president Dave Feeney announced later this morning that the protest had been upheld by the loop executive and the game had been awarded to Black Diamond Cheese.

Feeney's decision was upheld because of Belvedere Hotel's use of ineligible players in last night's win over Black Diamond," Feeney said.

Maracle Wins Mound Duel

Trenton Beats Juniors

By GARRY ALEXANDER
(Staff Sportswriter)

TRENTON — A pair of unearned runs in the seventh inning broke up a tight pitching duel between the B. and D. softball teams here and gave youngest pitchers here last night and gave Trenton Commercial Printers a 2-1 victory over Belleville Elks Juniors.

Veteran Pat Maracle, wearing a Trenton uniform for the first time in his lengthy career, bested the Juniors' young southpaw Bobby Ethier — but not without a battle.

Maracle tossed a four-hitter, was at his best in the tough spots, and struck out 16. He walked three.

The Juniors, impressive in defeat, are likely to face another tough assignment in a 6.45 game against Tweed Lombards at the CNRA Park tonight. Blain Heeley is the Tweed pitching ace.

Trenton fell behind 1-0 in the first frame last night. They battled back to tie it in the fourth. Mowatt's twister to the left of the mound went for a infield hit with one out. Ethier fanned Wannamaker but Beaugrand singled to centre sending Mowatt to third. He scored from there on a wild pitch.

Ethier struck out five in the next two frames before running into trouble in the seventh. Beaugrand opened the inning with a perfect bunt single and raced to third on a wild pitch and passed ball with still none out. Kennedy struck out, H. Cole walked and Ethier then went down swinging. Ron Taylor hit one back near the pitcher's box and Ethier had to be raced home for the 3-1 score.

Ellis' scoring chance with two out in the first. Maracle walked a pair and Malloy dropped a base hit into centre field for the 1-0 count.

The Juniors missed a couple of good chances, when they got a man on third with none out in the fourth, and in the sixth when twin errors by Taylor plus a hit put men on second and third with one out. All died on base.

The losers never quit trying and a lead-off triple by Boyle in the top of the ninth, out by Mowatt in the hole, kept the fans interested. He too died on Gerden as Maracle got the final frame in a row.

Al Beaugrand and Roger Drake each had a pair of singles for Trenton. Ron Taylor contributed a double and Leon Mowatt a single.

'Stout Steve' Laid To Rest

ONEIDA, N.Y. (CP)—Steven Owen, 66, named coach of the year two years ago for lifting the Cleveland Roughriders of the Western Football Conference out of the cellar, was carried to his last resting place here Wednesday by football comrades.

Stout Steve, as he was affectionately known, came to Canada in 1967 after nearly a quarter of a century with the New York Giants of the National Football League, during which time the team reached the playoffs eight times and won the championship twice.

Phillies Handcuff Giants' 'Double M'

Take Over Lead

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

"It can't go on," said Willie Mays.

"He's right. One of these days he's got to get a hit.

Mays made the prediction less than two weeks ago when he was smacking the ball at a .478 clip. But it's just as apt now with Willie struggling to break out of a slump that has shriveled his average to .302.

Mays went hitless for the fifth straight game and Juan Marichal had his 12-game victory string snapped Wednesday as San Francisco Giants lost 7-2 to Philadelphia and tumbled into second place behind the National League-leading Phillies.

Mays' performance dropped him under .600 for the first time since the opening days of the season and left him with a string of 10 hitless trips to the plate. In the last nine games, Mays has hit at a .111 clip that has whacked 85 points off his average.

ADDS TO AVERAGE

John Callison of the Phillies added to his average by stroking a homer and four singles, driving in three runs and scoring twice as the Phillies handed Marichal his first defeat since Aug. 30, 1963, and left the Giant ace with a 5-1 record.

Meanwhile, St. Louis Cardinals moved to within a game of first place by edging Chicago Cubs 1-0 behind Bob Gibson's five-hit pitching. Joe Torre hit a grand slam homer and drove in five runs in Milwaukee Braves' 7-3 victory over Cincinnati Reds, Los Angeles Dodgers and defeated New York Mets 4-1 and Pittsburgh Pirates nipped Houston Colts 4-3.

Gibson, now 4-0, retired the last 17 men in order and won his duel with the Cubs' Larry Jackson when consecutive singles by Dick Groat, Ken Boyer and Bill White brought in the Cardinal run in the eighth inning. Jackson, 5-3, has allowed only five hits before the decisive trio.

Eddie Mathews put the Braves ahead to stay, doubling Frank Bolling home for a 3-2 lead in the seventh. Torre, who singled home a run in the first, put the finishing touches on by hitting his grand slam in the ninth. Frank Robinson hit his seventh homer for the Reds, temporarily tying the game 3-3 in the fourth inning.

PITCH SIX-HITTER

Nick Willhite and Ron Perranoski combined on a six-hitter for the Dodgers. Willhite allowing the Mets their run in the third on two errors sandwiched around Dick Smith's single. That tied the score 1-1. The Dodgers regained the lead in the fourth when Frank Howard walked, stole second on a wild pick off attempt and scored on Doug Camilli's single. A two - run double by Howard in the sixth put it out of reach.

Bob Veale and Al McBean collaborated on a five-hitter for Pittsburgh's win. Veale scored for their three runs with only one hit, Walt Bond hitting a two-run homer in the seventh after an error and the Colts scoring again in the eighth on two walks and an error. Jerry Lynch homered for Pittsburgh.

Orioles Virtually Tied For Top

Killebrew (2) Oliva Homers Beat Yanks

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

The boomling bat of John (Boog) Powell has carried Baltimore Orioles into a virtual tie for first place in the American League.

Powell, 23, a left fielder, clouted a two-run homer Wednesday night in Baltimore's 8-3 triumph over Kansas City Athletics.

The victory put the Orioles even in games but 37 percentage points behind Chicago White Sox, idle Wednesday.

In his last eight games, Powell has slugged five homers, knocked in 12 runs and has batted at a .435 clip. His surge has raised his average 60 points to .233. His home run total is seven, his RBI mark 23.

Powell's homer in the latest victory climaxed a five - run rally in the fifth and helped Milt Pappas to his third straight victory after two defeats.

John Kennedy and Harmon Killebrew also were batting stars in the Al Wednesday. Kennedy smashed two home runs and a single as Washington Senators trounced Detroit Tigers 10-3. Killebrew hit his 10th and 11th homers in Minnesota Twins' 7 - 4 victory over New York Yankees. Boston Red Sox nipped the Los Angeles Angels 4-3 in the other game.

Pappas limited the Athletics to five hits while his mates pounded Diego Segui and Jack Aker. Brooks Robinson drove in three runs, two with a double in the fifth when Orioles chased Segui. The double and Powell's homer were off Aker.

Kennedy's hitting helped halt Detroit's four - game winning streak. He hit a homer in the first end another in the fifth. He singled across a run in the eighth when three Tiger errors helped the Senators to five runs.

Killebrew took the league lead in home runs with his pair. His first blast came with one aboard in the Twins' five-run first inning against Ralph Terry. He connected again in the eighth.

Tony Oliva also clouted a two-run homer in the first, helping Camilo Pascual to his fifth triumph against two defeats. Pascual held the Yankees to two runs until Johnny Blanchard smacked a two-run homer in the ninth.

Boston scored two runs in the seventh for the victory over Los Angeles. Ed Bressoud's single drove in Roman Mejias with the deciding run after Dalton Jones doubled home Bob Tillman with the tying run.

South Hastings Opener

Foxboro Defeats Latta

Scoring three runs in each of the third and fourth innings, Foxboro dumped Latta 8-3 in the South Hastings Baseball League opened in 1964 schedule last night.

Latta netted both their runs in the top of the fourth, cutting the winners' lead to 3-2 at that point.

Campbell started for the winners with Dickey taking over the mound chore in the fourth. They combined for a three-hitter, striking out nine while walking five.

Cronkwright opened on the Latta hilltop, giving way to Dafoe in the sixth. They allowed five in all.

Catcher Howard Skelly belted a pair of singles to lead the Foxboro hitters. Reynolds had a double, Charlton and Turcotte a single apiece.

Latta	000 200 0	-	2 3 4
Foxboro	003 300 x	-	6 5 1

Batteries: Cronkwright, Dafoe (6) and Rolling; Campbell, Dickey (4) and Skelly.

Minor Baseball Results

Boiler's Little Giants snapped an 8-8 deadlock with six runs in the bottom of the fifth inning last night to defeat the CNR Firemen 14-8 in a Tyke baseball fixture. The game was played before a good crowd at Parkdale.

The Little Giants used three pitchers, Terry Maracle, Bobby Moore and Kenny Hodgson. Mike Burley and Larry Hughes shared the catching.

Danny Lupennette and Peter Ackerman were the CNR pitchers while Grant Goegan did the receiving.

MATADOR GORED

Cementmen Win Over Daubers 7-6

A two-run double by Dennis Hull in the bottom of the fifth inning broke a 5-5 deadlock and provided Point Anne Cementmen with the winning margin in a 7-6 Commercial Softball League win over Ten-Haar Daubers at the Point last night.

Point Anne held an earlier 5-0 lead but Ter-Haar tied it with five runs in the top of the fifth. Then came Hull's decisive blow and the losers got one back in the sixth.

Vern Whalen and Denny Hull, in the fifth, hurled six-hit ball for the winners. They struck out three and walked three.

Ron Pointer and Benson, in the fourth, hurled for the Daubers. They allowed only four hits while fanning four and walking five.

Duggan collected two of the Ter-Haar safeties with one each for Jefferys, Rutlan, R. Pointer and D. Lucas.

The league game tonight has City Hotel meeting Barriage Lanes Rangers at Zwick's Island.

Batteries: R. Pointer, Benson (4) and R. Pointer; V. Whalen, D. Hull (8) and H. Powell.

THE Arnold Palmer METHOD

SAND SWING IS UPRIGHT

On normal sand shots the object is to contact the sand about an inch or two behind the ball (1) and to drive the clubhead under the ball so that the ball floats from the bunker on a cushion of sand.

Obviously, it would be disastrous if the club were to strike the ball before hitting the sand, or if the club were to scarcely graze the top of the sand. The ball would fly well past the target.

To eliminate these possibilities, your sand shot swing should be more upright than for a normal fairway shot. Cocking your wrists early in the backswing (see #2) will help your swing achieve an upright character (#3). This upright swing will give you the clubhead path needed to cut under the ball and through the sand.

P-reons Blank Brockville 3-0 In Soccer Tilt

Parsons Cleaners' 3-0 victory over Brockville Wanderers in Kingston last night gave the city squad a third-share of the Kingston District Soccer League top spot.

Also sharing the lead are Kingston Dunkirks and Trenton RCAF.

Parsons scored two unanswered goals by Bowser and MacLeod in the first half with Mueller adding the other in the second.

The game was featured by the sturdy defensive play of the winners who threw back attack after attack. Wanderers were held to less than 15 shots on goal.

Leafs Win Over Chiefs In Eleven

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Maple Leafs finally broke through some fine relief pitching Wednesday night with three 11th-inning runs that gave them a 5-3 victory over Syracuse Chiefs and a tighter grip atop the International League standings.

Buffalo Bisons held on to second place, 2½ games behind the Leafs by making four unearned runs stand up for a 4-2 victory over Rochester, Richmond Virginians bounced back from a two-run deficit to post a 6-3 win over Columbus Jets and Jacksonville Suns won by the same margin over Atlanta Crackers in other league games.

Fred Gladding turned in four scoreless relief innings for Chiefs but weakened in the 11th. A double by Ken Hamlin followed a walk, another walk was issued to load the bases, then Cosie Virgil broke a 2-2 deadlock with a sacrifice fly. Don Dillard locked up the game with a two-run double.

Leaf hurler Frederico Oliva got the win but needed help in the bottom of the 11th as Chiefs scored a run, then loaded the bases. Leafs were able to put out the fire.

CAHA Would Pay Players 'Lost Time'

Begins Push For National Club

By STUART LAKE

OTTAWA (CP) — Profession- alism raised its ugly head Wednesday in deliberations of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

Delegates to the governing body of Amateur Hockey in Canada agreed to begin a four-year push for a national team but only after a sharp debate on whether it was possible to make it "a truly amateur team."

Past - president Jack Roxburgh of Simcoe advised delegates to "forget about straight amateurism" when it came to recruiting players.

He said Russia, Sweden and Czechoslovakia had professional teams. It would be impossible for Canada to form a strong national team capable of beating these countries "without bypassing the Olympic oath."

Secretary - manager Gordon Juckes said the CAHA doesn't intend "for one moment" to pay players just for playing hockey. Some compensation would have to be paid—either in cash or in scholarships — but the association had no intention of creating "hockey bums."

The meeting decided to move slowly towards a full - fledged national club. A start would be made by having the 1963 world championship team composed of players from the Winnipeg Maroons, 1963-64 Allan Cup champions, and the 1964 Canadian Olympic team.

Up to six candidates for the permanent national team would be added to the roster each year new recruits would join the team until the objective of a truly national club was formed in 1968, year of the next Olympics.

CAHA officers had favored building the 1965 team around the University of British Columbia team that represented Canada at Austria this year.

But this idea was discarded when coach Rev. David Bauer said his players wouldn't be available until 1967.

Also left until next year were decisions on where the team should be based, and the selection of a national coach.

Father Bauer agreed to spend two months each season with the national team.

Ottawa was the leading candidate for the home base of the Canadian team but also mentioned as possible sites were Kitchener and Vancouver.

Juckes said he believed the national team would require an annual budget of $182,000. The CAHA would put up $120,000—recovering most of it in gate receipts—and the remainder would be requested as straight government grant.

The budget included items allowing $1,250 for each player as "lost time provision or other."

Minor Baseball Clinic Slated For May 24

Arrangements have been completed for the Belleville Minor Baseball Association's free coaching clinic scheduled for Sunday, May 24.

The clinic will be held at the Parkside Community Centre, at 1.30 p.m. and the B.M.B.A. hopes to have as many of the city's minor coaches as possible in attendance. It is being conducted in co-operation with the Belleville Recreation Committee.

Local men connected with baseball have donated their time to act as instructors. They will include Jack Carson, president of the Eastern Ontario Baseball Association and past president of the O.B.A.; Al Kelteher, of the Belleville and District Umpires' Association; Garry Alexander, of the Ontario Intelligencer sports staff and Russell J. Soule, of the Belleville Minor Baseball Association.

Films and other visual aids will be used to aid with instructions. The course content will include pitching, throwing, fielding batting, scoring, umpiring, etc.

Quinte Trap, Gun Club

There was a jam at the top of the pack as the Quinte Trap and Gun Club held another of its mid-week shoots yesterday with nine shooters recording scores of 22. They were John Walsh, Bob Peake, Jim Shortt, Harry Parnell, Doug Johnston, Jerry Robertson, Cy Gardner, Jackie Wardhaugh and Jack Hirtan.

Sugar Ray Got $400 For Fight

PORTLAND, Me. (AP)—Sugar Ray Robinson, five times middleweight boxing champion, worked for $400 a round in his latest fight, the Maine Boxing Commission reported Wednesday.

Robinson, who has earned more than $200,000 for a single night's work during his 24-year-career, fought Gaylord Barnes Tuesday for $400 and travel expenses from New York.

Robinson won a unanimous 10-round decision—and as a result Barnes got a bout with high-ranking middleweight contender Joey Archer.

Barnes, of Trenton, N.J., was promised the shot with Archer if he went the route with 44-year-old Sugar Ray.

Satisfying

Labatt's INDIA IPA PALE ALE

Traditionally-great IPA always comes through with the downright satisfying flavour you'd expect from a really fine ale. Not too strong... not too bland. Brewed the way you like it. Just like the feeling you get when you hook into a big one. Flavour as satisfying as a summer day. Try it.

Catholic Bowling Tournament

KINGSTON — Over 500 bowlers, comprising 84 teams, took part in the Tenth Kingston Archdiocesan Catholic Bowling Tournament at the Plaza Bowling Lanes, Kingston.

Forty-eight out-of-town teams were entered from Brockville, Belleville, Read, Tweed, Marysville, Marmora, Enterprise and Desmond, Spencerville, Elgin, Gananoque, Athens, Bedford and Smiths Falls.

Leading the large number of entries was the Rollers of St. Joseph's, Kingston, whose members were Marg. Wistard, Billie Beggs, Barbara Clavette, Lorne Beggs, Wilfred Clavette, and Claude DesRoches, who finished with a pinfall of 4,588.

Right Reverend A. J. Welsh, Pastor of St. Joseph's, whose bowling league sponsored the tournament, presented them with the highest cash award, H. L. "Tim" Wight presented the Wight-Rexall Trophy to the team and to each member an individual trophy.

Just 102 pins behind the winners were the Jets from Read, comprising Reverend W. Hamilton, Dianne O'Bay, Joe Jordan, Doreen Hinch, Margaret Farrell and John McGinnis, who compiled a total of 4,486. They received the Canadian Register Trophy and the second highest cash award.

A mere 16 pins separated the Tweed White-Bangs, who had 4,470, from the second-place winners. The members of this team were Mary Cassidy, Ken Rashotte, Theresa Cassidy, Pat McCrea, Jim Cassidy and K. Callahan. The Cliff Palmer Trophy and third cash prize was awarded them.

Other cash award winning teams were the Cleaners, (4,455); Robbers (4,422); Gaels (4,384), all from St. Joseph's and Belleville Rollways (4,380).

Both high triple winners were from Belleville, Marg. Ruttan with a 739 and Bob Smith with a 792. The high single winners were Lorraine Snider (326) from the City and Bill Carr (326) from St. Joseph's.

A number of five dollar awards were given to bowlers who bowled either a 700-triple or 300-single.

Canadian Has Derby Candidate

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON (CP) — The showdown scene Friday for Mrs. David Prenn, a Canadian woman who "grew up with horses" and has a Derby candidate on her hands.

Mrs. Prenn is a highly photogenic blonde from Brampton who would grace any winners' enclosure. Her horse, appropriately named Showdown, runs in Friday's Derby trial at Lingfield Race Course in Surrey.

If Showdown squeezes into the first three, he'll go to Epsom for the June 3 Derby.

"I'm hoping for the best," said the former Maxwell (Maxie) Taylor, who was born in Delhi, Ont., grew up in Brampton and settled in Britain after the Second World War. Her mother and sister live at Heart Lake near Brampton.

Showdown, Britain's top two-year-old, was winter-book favorite for the great classics but as a three-year-old has not produced the pulverizing late speed that characterized his freshman season. His Derby price has lengthened to 25 to 1.

The trending suggests Showdown may run out of gas over Epsom's undulating 1½ miles, a real test of thoroughbred stamina.

Speaking from her luxurious apartment in London's Belgravia district, Mrs. Prenn admitted the bloodlines looked doubtful, but said she is going to Lingfield hoping against hope that Showdown will earn a Derby slot.

The story of how Mrs. Prenn became the owner would be worth adding to Derby history. Her husband, from a White Russian family, bought four horses and asked his wife to pick for herself the one she liked best.

She chose Showdown, which promptly cleaned up. The others, running in her husband's silks, turned out to be only moderate.

Mrs. Prenn served in the women's division of the RCAF during the war, singing and doing skits in a touring show. She liked England so much she decided to stay. The Prenns have a 10-year-old son, John, attending an English boarding school.

Refuse Russ Permission To Play Pros

OTTAWA (CP) — Russia has been refused permission to play against National hockey League teams.

J. F. (Bunny) Ahearne, president of the International Ice Hockey Federation, disclosed Wednesday that a Russian team had asked to be allowed to play an NHL club in Russia. The request had been turned down by the IIHF, governing body of world amateur hockey.

Ahearne also said he had no objections to either Toronto Maple Leafs or New York Rangers setting up 1964-65 training camps in Europe. But the Leafs and Rangers wouldn't be allowed to play exhibition games against European teams.

"Our rules forbid such exhibition games," Ahearne said.

Using Grants As Crutch?

Govt. Probing Amateur Bodies

TORONTO (CP)—Roger Dion, director of the federal government's fitness and amateur sports program, says he fears some amateur groups may be using government grants as a crutch.

Dion, from Hull, Que., said in an interview here this week the money was never intended to replace funds the organizations raised themselves in the past, but as additional aid.

"In fact," he said, "the government is conducting a quiet but thorough investigation into groups running amateur sports.

"This may tip our hand. But we feel some organizations may be getting lackadaisical. We don't condemn them for it —it's a natural reaction."

Dion said of amateur sports groups who complain about distribution of federal government grants:

"What did you do before government grants became available three years ago?"

Two unhappy groups are boxing and track and field. Boxers complain that some may be unable to attend the Olympic trials May 29 and 30 in Vancouver. The 10 Ontario boxers who qualified last weekend will be paid half their air fare. Others would have to pay the shot, themselves—about $250.

Track and field followers feel sorry for walkers and decathlon-pentathlon competitors. Both groups were cut off from grant-in-cent this year. They point to walker Alex Oakley of Oshawa, a gold medallist in the 1963 Pan-American Games and Canada's only track and field point-getter in the 1960 Olympics. He will have to pay his own expenses to Montreal to qualify this year.

Dion admits mistakes may have been made, but says track and field grants may still be forthcoming, depending on a meeting of the advisory council late next month.

However, his major concern is that some groups may be sitting back now awaiting the cheque from the government instead of using this money to widen their scope of operation.

"I don't think grants have done anything to discourage initiative," he said. "But now we have all kinds of little groups who never have done anything in the past, jumping up and asking for money.

"What the provincial and federal governments should watch for. And I think they should start making their cheques payable to people who have been bonded.

"That's all we'd need to kick this thing wide open—someone getting $50,000 and skipping town."

MAY SKIP GAMES

Colts Get Don Larsen On Waiver

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—San Francisco Giants put right-handed relief pitcher Don Larsen on waivers Wednesday and he was immediately claimed for the $20,000 waiver price by Houston Colts.

At the same time, the Giants placed injured pitcher Jim Duffalo on the disabled list and recalled southpaw pitcher Ken MacKenzie of Gore Bay, Ont., from their Tacoma farm club in the Pacific Coast League.

Larsen, 35, who pitched the only perfect World Series game against Brooklyn Dodgers in 1956 while playing for New York Yankees, had an 0-1 record and a 4.35 earned-run average in 10 1-3 innings this season.

MacKenzie, acquired by the Giants last winter, was sent to Tacoma May 10. He appeared in three PCL games and had an 0.00 earned-run average and an 0-0 record in nine innings.

CURRY RESIGNS

MONTREAL (CP) — Floyd Curry, coach of Quebec Aces in the season just finished, announced Wednesday his resignation from the American Hockey League club for business reasons. Curry, president of a Montreal oil company, said he has decided he must spend more time with his expanding business, but added "I have been offered a position in hockey with the Montreal Canadiens." Under Curry, the Aces finished first in the AHL this season, only to lose out in the finals to Cleveland Barons.

TO CONSIDER MERGER

SEATTLE (AP)—The possibility of a merger of the American and Western hockey leagues will be discussed in Montreal, June 7, WHL headquarters announced Wednesday. Merger possibilities first were mentioned at the WHL spring meeting here May 7-8. At that time the league said it would send representatives to the AHL meeting in Montreal.

AT THE BELLE — Visiting Hours — Tommy Kirk masks into the school lab to visit his friend, Stanley the Chimp, in Walt Disney's Technicolor campus comedy, "The Misadventures of Merlin Jones". Annette and Stuart Erwin also star. Walt Disney's "Disneyland After Dark", 46 minute color Featurette, is on the same program, showing Today through Tuesday, at the Belle Theatre in Belleville.

Breaking in on Program Brings Mail From Teen-agers

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS recently broke into a rock 'n' roll set with a report on the Indians primary vote. Its reward was a spate of furious mail from teenagers.

A report on the cigarette controversy brought forth accusing mail—about evenly divided between letters accusing the program of being for and against the tobacco interests.

Walter Cronkite reports ruefully that he had been accused of revealing both Communist and Fascist bias on a single show Harry Reasoner read a crushing letter from an irritated viewer complaining about weather girls who called cold air masses "artic" and below freezing temperatur "twenny."

It was all part of an experimental program called "Dear CBS" consisting of a sampling of its viewer mail—pleased, angry, critical and crank, and one in a good-natured fashion.

Wednesday night's program obviously is an effort to establish something comparable to the fascinating "Letters to the editor" columns of newspapers and magazines. Certainly it was interesting enough, and revealing enough, to be repeated from time to time.

Although television programmers seem to have lost interest in this season's output in the controversial, next season's shows it still is possible to find a few programs of special interest among the reruns.

Tonight, there is ABC's short special, Big Brother Is Listening (10:30-11 EDT) which takes up the subject of invasion of privacy in this country—investigations without the knowledge of the investigated, electronic eavesdropping and mandatory lie detector tests.

White Tie And Tails For Referees

OTTAWA (CP) — One of the lighter moments of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association's annual meeting Wednesday was provided by Bunny Ahearne.

The president of the International Ice Hockey Federation suggested jokingly that referees be taken off the ice and placed on a platform or in a cage above the rink.

"Dress him in white tie and tails if you like and give him a microphone," said Ahearne.

"Then when he stops the play, he can tell the crowd why he did so and explain the offence."

Ahearne said hockey officials now are placing skating ability above "grey matter" in selecting referees. His method would give the preference to the smarter man.

Says Mets Should Let Casey Go

MOREHEAD, Minn. (AP)—Jackie Robinson says New York Mets would do well to get rid of manager Casey Stengel.

The former Brooklyn Dodgers star, here to speak to a college group, said Wednesday a manager must be alert on every play of the game "but at 74 or so you're not too alert."

"In my view, one of the problems of the Mets is Casey Stengel."

The manager of the Mets, again in the National League cellar, commented in Los Angeles:

"I'm not concerned with anything he says. Mr. Robinson is not working for me and I'm not working for Mr. Robinson. Whatever he says doesn't disturb me one bit."

PLATES LUMINOUS

QUEBEC (CP)—Gerard Courboyar, Quebec transport minister, announced following a cabinet meeting Wednesday that next year the province's automobile licence plates will be luminous.

AT THE PARK — LuLu Porter, specialty dancer, and henchmen chesters members playing instruments (and music) of 3,000 years ago, are one of the highlights of the Universal comedy, "The Brass Bottle." The color production co-stars Tony Randall, Burl Ives and Barbara Eden, opening tonight for its first Belleville showing. On the same program more fun with "Ma and Pa Kettle Down On the Farm". Complete shows are at 7.00 and 8.50 p.m.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "With actors like Charles Coburn and Edmund Gwenn gone now, people look to me as a patriarch," said Ernest Truex.

"But I don't feel like a patriarch," he said, patting his flat stomach and flexing the muscles of his leg. "Exercise is what does it. I'm a nut about golf. I love to fish, and I work among my avocado trees. I'm good for a few more years."

Truex, who is almost 78, is known to movie audiences as the fussy, often hen-pecked character of dozens of comedies. The typing is unfair. He is one of the theatre's most versatile actors.

He relishes telling how his career started. How his doctor-father treated a ham actor stranded in Kansas City. How the ham paid his fee by teaching young Ernest soliloquies from Hamlet.

"I made my debut in 1894 at the age of five — the youngest Hamlet in the American theatre," Truex said.

In 1905 he landed a role on Broadway as a hockey in Wildfire, with Lillian Russell. Fifty-three plays followed over the years.

His movie career started just 50 years ago. He had been playing on Broadway in Good Little Devil, with Toronto - born Mary Pickford. They were offered a chance to make it as a film for Adolf Zukor's new company.

"Movies were considered a disgrace: no good actors would appear in them," he recalled. "But I didn't mind. They were paying the same amount we were getting on the stage—$250 a week—so I took it. I had married at 19 and had two sons by 23, so I couldn't afford to be out of work."

He made a few other early films, but devoted himself mostly to the theatre. Later he returned to talkies and he counts that period the low point in his career.

"My first wife had died and I married a young girl, which was a mistake," he said. "I stayed here too long, taking whatever parts I could get. It was the first time I hadn't been a star."

Television helped him turn the corner, he said. He did series like Mr. Peepers and Jamie and remains in constant demand for comedy and dramatic shows. Now he picks and chooses, spending his non-working time at the avocado ranch he runs with third wife Sylvia Field at Fallbrook, Calif.

ARREST YOUTHS

LONDON (Reuters) — Police made nearly 50 arrests in breaking up gangs of "Mods" and "Rockers" in several English towns Wednesday night. Hordes of Mods (teen-age dandies) and Rockers (their leather-jacketed rivals) were out in force at fairs and movie theatres.

Minor Softball Results

A full slate of games was played in the Belleville Minor Softball Association's Squirt division last night.

In the West Hill group, the Lions downed the Cubs 15-5; Vikings eclipsed the Cardinals 18-10, and Cowboys whipped the Steelers 30-10.

In the East Hill section, the Dodgers nipped the Packers 15-13; Redskins shaded the Rams 11-9; Eagles hammered the Browns 24-7, and Yankees tripped the Bombers by a 9-5 score.

Three games were played in the B.M.S.A.'s Peewee east hill section Tuesday night.

Tigers downed the White Sox to the tune of 11-3, Braves defeated the Giants 16-10 and the Colts whipped the Pirates 20-3.

Results of the west hill Peewee games, Redlegs vs Athletics and Mets vs Phillies, were not available.

Sport Snapshots

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

If it travels fast, see Charles Rathgeb, Jr. He'll be interested.

It isn't on record, but it is likely this 43-year-old Toronto businessman - sportsman learned to run before he could walk. He still hasn't developed the art of a leisurely stroll. A walk to him in a brisk - paced trot.

He has the time and money to afford easy-going luxuries, but these aren't for him. His interests are in fast thoroughbreds, hobbies and racing cars. And when he goes tuna fishing as a member of Canada's team, he hops into his company's plane and heads for the Atlantic provinces.

He took up bobsledding a few years ago and this year was manager of Canada's gold medal - winning team at the Olympic Games in Austria. He gets a tremendous kick out of watching men on a bobsled going down the chute at 80 miles an hour.

He's a partner in the Union Jack racing stable and his steeds campaign on Ontario tracks.

BOUGHT TWO COOPERS

Then, three years ago, he first became involved in sports car racing. The speed, skill and art of this sport attracted him and he was amazed that Canadian-built cars and Canadian drivers were not making it internationally.

He made a deal with another Canadian to produce two racing machines but they were only spasmodically quick and they were also-rans. He put more money into faster cars and in 1962 his sports car stable had more than moderate success with 18 over-all firsts.

He was on hand at Riverside, Calif. last year when an Anglo-American hybrid — an English Cooper fitted with a Ford engine—made its debut in North America and streaked home a winner against the world's classiest sports-racing machinery.

That was more like it. He made a deal to buy the two Coopers and have the Ford engines put in for the 1964 season, and his car, a Formula 1 racing team with himself as manager, a crew chief, mechanic and a couple of experienced drivers.

HIT 198 M.P.H.

They are Ludwig Heimrath, a native of Germany now living in Toronto, who was Canadian racing champion in 1961, and Eppie Weitzes of Toronto, ranked as the most improved driver in 1963 by the Canadian Racing Drivers' Association.

Rathgeb unveiled the two cars the other night and announced that they would hit the North American circuit this year. Their top speed is 180 m.p.h.

"They have a good chance to clean up in Canada and show well in the United States," he said.

Their first test is at Davidson, Sask., Sunday. From there they go to Westwood, B.C., for a May 24 race, back to Toronto for the big 200-mile international race at Mosport, Ont., and then a full campaign in Canada and the U.S. over the next few months.

Rathgeb is executive vice - president of Canadian Comstock, a company his father formed nearly 40 years ago. Several years back the firm completed conversion of most of southern Ontario from 25-cycle to 60-cycle power, a 10-year, laurels.

For The Relatively Rich, That Is BC Plateau Sports Paradise

PRINCE GEORGE, B.C. (CP) — Deep in the rolling heartland of northern British Columbia lies a sportsman's paradise where only the relatively rich may roam in search of big game and big fish.

The Spatzizi Plateau, 250 miles northwest of here as the eagle flies, is a triangular wilderness of comparatively flat forestland surrounded by the Skikine, Skeena and the soaring Cassiar mountains.

Here the grizzly bear and mountain goats, stone sheep and Osborn caribou abound in rugged terrain that seldom hears the footfall of a human hunter. Trout fill streams only rarely rippled by the snap of a dry-fly line.

The 3,000-square-mile plateau has no roads, no logging operations, no mines and only the barest traces of civilization — tiny Cassiar village (population 200) and a cluster of cabins 50 miles away on Cold Fish Lake in the northeastern corner of the plateau.

Its remoteness means that this happy hunting ground is accessible only to those who can afford the high cost of an expedition on which everything must be flown in.

$300-PLUS A DAY

Canadian Safaris Limited of Prince George arranges trips for hunters in search of a grizzly pelt or a fine spread of antlers and for fishermen with a taste for easy luck with sophisticated trout.

The price is $1,250 per hunter plus air fare for a 10-day hunt. Fishing trips cost $100 a day per angler.

Summer safaris, composed almost entirely of well-heeled businessmen and trophy hunters, travel to the Spatzizi regularly during the warm months.

The rest of the year the plateau is deserted by humans except for the hardy inhabitants of Cassiar, which takes its name from that of the northern half of British Columbia, a mountain range and a creek that the Nahani Indians called Cassiah for the English corrupted to Cassiar.

The Spatzizi Plateau's status as an untamed wilderness and of a sportsman's dream come true seems certain to continue unchallenged in the foreseeable future.

The lack of roads keeps out colonizers, the remoteness makes mining or logging impractical and the cost of a trip there rules out any influx of weekend sportsmen.

Amateur Or Pro Says Pearson
Countries Should Send Best

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson said Wednesday that the time may be near when countries should send their best athletes — amateur or professional—to international competitions.

Mr. Pearson told the jubilee dinner of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association there is tremendous political pressure on athletes to do well for their countries in international sport.

He said there was little hope that the emphasis on national prestige in sports would abate and perhaps it was time to consider changing the rules so that if an athlete was asked to represent his country, it wouldn't matter "if he is a pro or an amateur."

Mr. Pearson said the distinction between amateurs and professionals is becoming dimmer.

"One of these days we may have to recognize this if we are to get the best men we can to represent their countries."

He said the CAHA faced that problem in setting up a national team to take part in world hockey championships and the four years ago.

Olympics.

He said that Rev. David Bauer and the University of British Columbia team that represented Canada in the 1964 Olympics has set "a wonderful example."

"They have set a standard for sport that has not been excelled by any other Canadian team abroad."

HAIRCUTS NOW $2.25

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Men will have to pay $2.25 for haircuts in Des Moines barbershops as a result of a vote Wednesday night by Local 45 of the Journeymen Barbers Union to boost the price from $2. The union had raised the price to $2 in 60-cycle power, a 10-year, laurels.

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For May 22

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Emphasis on work, patience, presenting "steady" image. Partner may need reassuring. Work out details. Display ability, knowledge. Don't rush . . . take time to double check.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Question concerning member of opposite sex needs attention. Avoid taking any person for granted. Neighbors, friends appear sensitive. Be frank. Discuss differences. Clear the air!

Gemini (May 21 to June 20): Don't be afraid of change. Doubts concerning ability, security due to vanish. Hold fast to faith in future. Day for examining various possibilities. Don't remain with losing proposition!

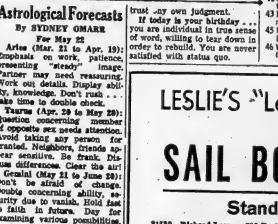
Cancer (June 21 to July 22): Most fun found close to home. Long journey not favored. There are sudden changes indicated. You may receive call, communication, or appeal. Be ready and available. Emphasize mature approach.

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 22): You have yet to put finger on "proper formula." Efforts today should not be regarded as final. Additional experimentation will be required. In personal life, be with one who is clear.

Virgo (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22): Surprises feature today. People may reverse their stands, attitudes. You could be called upon to invest time, money. Step in with air of authority. Give your all — includes personal activities.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Judgment correct. Your intuition now rings true. Fine evening for getting out — for shedding emotional shell. Fine for group activity. Excellent for vacation planning.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Some hopes, wishes due for revision. Obtain hint from today's Gemini message. Feeling of being "closed in" indicated. It will be slight and temporary. New contact will prove valuable.



Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Self-discipline required where emotions are concerned. Don't feel that you must feel all you know. Restrain tendency to overreact. Enjoy quiet entertainment tonight.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19): Day features feeling of accomplishment. This occurs as result of project being completed. Recognize quality when you encounter it. Praise one who helped. Fine evening for relaxing.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18): Writing is keynoted. Includes creative or correspondence. Consult with expert. Good time to combine business with pleasure. Be amiable. Display delightful sense of humor.

Pisces (Feb. 19 to Mar. 20): Go slow. Hold off on definite agreements. Insist on reviewing facts, figures. One who means well may be confused. Be patient, but firm. Ultimately trust .ny own judgment.

If today is your birthday . . . you are individual in true sense of word, willing to tear down in order to rebuild. You are never satisfied with status quo.

Necessity of Health Unit Outlined in Address to Hastings County TB Assoc.

"To a group such as this I need hardly mention the advantages of a public health unit" said Dr. E. R. (Bob) Langford from the School of Hygiene at the University of Toronto as he addressed the annual meeting of the Hastings County Tuberculosis Association held at the Hotel Quinte last night.

Dr. Langford congratulated the Hastings County TB Association for the excellent job it has done during the past year and drew to light the great interest shown by the members of the local association in regard to a health unit, which was discussed at last year's meeting.

The doctor added that there are already 37 such units in operation across Ontario and pointed out that such a unit requires a full time medical staff.

He also explained that a health unit would bring a great service to the residents of Belleville and the surrounding area, under a closely supervised program.

Dr. Langford said he was gratified to see the great insight that County Warden, T. Burnside had in the matter, and added that there were many circumstances, which led up to the temporary voting down of a health unit for the county, stating that perhaps after certain aspects have been straightened out the matter will be given further consideration by those concerned.

"I must emphasize your interest and efforts in relation to this matter of the health unit," the speaker stated. He added that "a great deal of the Association' help comes from the various women's institutes throughout the area as well as the Home and School Association." He said "such organizations as these could interest other groups in the society, creating a public interest and awareness, or if you will, he added, public meaning."

ASSOCIATION PRAISED

Dr. Langford continued: "I must congratulate you also on your concern of TB control." He said there were an estimated 15 million cases of active TB and more than three million die annually of the dread disease. He added that one out of every 100 people may be suffering from tuberculosis.

The speaker also stated that up to 85 per cent of children may be affected by the fatal disease before they reach the age of 14.

Dr. Langford stated that this was the first time in history that we have ever had the tools and weapons to fight against tuberculosis, one of them being the vaccination program carried out all over the Dominion of Canada. The serum containing BCG was first introduced at the end of the war.

In closing the speaker drew the audience's attention to the various health factors directly related to the the tuberculosis problem, in other parts of the world.

The speaker was introduced by Dr. S. D. Horne and thanked on behalf of the association by Dr. J. R. McSherry, medical advisor for the Hastings County Tuberculosis Association.

Following the introduction of head table guests by chairman A. Bridge, presiding in the absence of the president, Mrs. Lazier, who was unable to attend the meeting due to illness in the family, it was moved and seconded that the minutes of the last annual meeting be accepted as recorded and reported by the association's secretary, Mrs. Marg Hallam.

Mr. J. G. Trumpour was appointed auditor for the coming year.

ALL-TIME HIGH

In the report of the executive secretary, Mrs. Hallam concluded her report by saying, "to all my chairmen and their committees go my heartfelt thanks for their co-operation and assistance over the past year. Also to the members of the Ontario Tuberculosis staff who are always willing to give their assistance when it is requested".

Chairman of the seal sale committee, Roy Foran, stated in his report to the association that "the 1955 seal sale campaign, completed on February 29, 1956, shows total receipts of $16,075.30, which represents an all time high and an increase of two per cent over the previous year."

The following have been nominated and elected to the management committee of the association for the fiscal year from April 1, 1956 to March 31, 1957: president, C. W. Fraser; immediate past-president, Allen Z. Lazier; vice-president, Arthur Bridge; second vice-president, W. H. Nickle; treasurer, Arthur Bridge; chairman case-finding committee, E. Lloyd Goodman; chairman health education committee, W. H. Nickle; chairman rehabilitation and social service, Mrs. Maureen Bridge; chairman Christmas seal campaign, R. Foran; chairman of the medical advisory, Dr. J. R. McSherry; and chairman of the committee for establishment of a health unit, Mrs. Winnifred Donaldson.

CHEQUE PRESENTED

Following the speaker's address a presentation of a cheque in the amount of $6,000 was made to the president of the Ontario Tuberculosis Association, F. Bradshaw by chairman A. Bridge, to be used in assisting counties in public work who are unable to assist themselves financially.

The Ontario Tuberculosis Association suggests the five following steps to guard homes and selves against TB:

Have tuberculin skin tests to find whether or not there is TB infection.

If the test is positive, have a chest X-ray to learn if treatment is needed or not.

Accept treatment if it is necessary and follow your doctors' orders.

Build up knowledge of what TB does to the patient, to the family and to people throughout the world.

Support your local Tuberculosis Association.

'WILL HAVE LAW'

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson said Wednesday that legislation for extended family allowances and student loans will be ready in "ample time" for the school term in the fall. The government had earlier declared that it would make loans available to needy university students and extend family allowances to cover children 16 and 17 years old still attending school.

Young Local Citizens Graduate from Halls of Learning

JAMES IX. DOLAN

ROBERT P. DOLAN

Two Belleville brothers, James D. Dolan and Robert P. Dolan, sons of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Dolan, 26 Eggleshill Road, this spring got graduation diplomas in their chosen fields.

On May 30th James D. Dolan will graduate from Queen's Medical School and will intern at the Hotel Dieu in Kingston.

His brother, Robert P. Dolan last week graduated from the Ryerson Institute of Technology in merchandising and administration and will teach business practice and business administration at the Trenton High School.

Both boys received their early education in Belleville and attended Belleville Collegiate Institute. They are grandsons of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dolan, Spring Street, Trenton.

Miss Mary Anne Bateman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William (Bill) Bateman, Holloway Street, Belleville, graduated from Ryerson Polytechnical Institute after completing a three-year course in secretarial science. She is a graduate of Quinte Secondary School and has accepted a position on the teaching staff of the Galt Secondary School.

J. Bruce Reid, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Fred Reid, 371 Dundas Street West, Belleville, received his Bachelor of Science degree in Mechanical Engineering from Queen's University at Convocation on Saturday, May 18. He is a graduate of Quinte Secondary School, Belleville. He will reside in St. Catharines where he has accepted a position with McKinnon Industries.

John B. Morgan, son of Mrs. F. Morgan and the late Mr. F. Morgan, graduated recently in Chemical Technology from Ryerson Institute of Technology. John received his education at St. Michael's High School and Belleville Collegiate and Vocational School and has accepted a position with International Nickel Co. as chemical technologist at Copper Cliff, Ontario.

Miss Eileen L. Hancock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hancock, R. R. 2, Bellville, will graduate Friday, May 25, with a Bachelor of Household Science Degree from Macdonald Institute, Guelph. Miss Hancock will be teaching Home Economics at Quinte Secondary School in September. Mr. and Mrs. Hancock and Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Hancock will be attending the convocation.

Christian F. Mendriksy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Karl F. Mendriksy, received the degree of Bachelor of Science from Queen's University at Convocation May 18th, 1954. Mr. Mendriksy is a graduate of St. Michael's High School.

HAD MOST SUN

Shanklin, Isle of Wight, was the sunniest place in Britain in 1953, with 1,788 hours of sunshine.

Scouts Brian Lobb and Dave Sedlis. The Cubs winning prizes were Bob Miller, Bob Garipoy and Alex Semanyot followed by lunch of drinks and cookies.

5TH BELLEVILLE CUB AND SCOUT GROUP

The 5th Belleville Cub and Scout Group held their annual Father and Son Banquet at College Hill United Church on April 16th, 1954.

The dinner, held in the new hall of the church, was well attended by 130 fathers and sons, who enjoyed a delicious hot turkey meal served by the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Cub and Scout Group.

Head table guests included Rev. W. Vessey, Chaplain of the Group; Al Glover, representing District Council; Art Steenburg, Assistant District Cub Master, all of whom were introduced by chairman Bob Melbourne.

Scout Rodney Law proposed a toast to the Church which was replied to by Rev. Vessey, and a toast to the Fathers was ably presented by Cub Norman Jones which was replied to by Mr. C. Lapore on behalf of the fathers present.

After dinner Scout Dave Muir was invested as a patrol leader, and was also presented with a .22 calibre rifle by Scouter Basil Kirby, in recognition of his outstanding marksmanship at rifle practices held during the past year. Curtis Hill was invested a new Scout in the group. Wayne Muir was presented with his swimming badge and Joe Schamerhorn received his musician's badge.

The Scouts were commended for the record number of outdoor campings held during the past year and also were congratulated for their hockey ability in being an undefeated team during the past season. Chairman Melbourne thanked the Scouters — Ben Kirby, Ron Schamerhorn, Nelson Fitzgerald and Ray LaRue and Cub Master Jack Nash and his assistant Bill McIlquasham, for their time and energies spent with the boys, and solicited their continued support in the coming year.

The banquet closed with the showing of a film on wild life in Newfoundland by Mr. Al Transport Command, which was enjoyed by all.

Scouting activities

The April meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary and men's group committee of the 5th Belleville Cubs and Scouts was held at Queen Mary School with 20 members present. The president, Mrs. Bessie Smith opened the meeting with the "Mother's Promise" and welcomed all members.

Plans were discussed for the rummage sale to be held on May 22 at the I.O.O.F. Hall, with Mrs. Wagar, convener and Mrs. Guest, co-convener and everyone was asked to save rummage and to contact either Mr. Dowbyhur or Mr. Bradshaw to have it picked up.

It was also announced that Cub camp would be held on June 30 at Consecon Lake.

The meeting adjourned with the Scouts' Mizpah followed by Mother's Day party for which the Cubs made hats of crepe paper. These were judged by Mrs. Blake asked that donations of pickle dishes be brought to the next meeting, which will be held at the home of Mrs. Drennan, 89 Gilbert St., on Thursday, May 24th.

The meeting closed with the Scout benediction, and a lunch was served by the hostess, Mrs. White.

13th CUB AND SCOUT AUXILIARY

For the benefit of new Auxiliary members, Mrs. Blute pointed out that money taken at the booths was used to finance a weekend camping trip for the two Cub packs. Plans are under way for the Cubs to spend two days at Consecon Camp, the last weekend in June.

The meeting closed with the Scout benediction, and a lunch was served by the hostess, Mrs. White.

Laotian Troops Fight Way Out Of Trap By Reds

800 Soldiers Rejoin Neutralist Commander

VIENTIANE (AP) — Gen. Kong Le, hard - pressed commander of the Laotian neutralist army, has been reinforced by 800 troops who fought through Communist lines to rejoin him southwest of the Plaine des Jarres.

Military sources said the 800 had been cut off southeast of Kong Le's abandoned command post at Muong Phanh last weekend when the Pathet Lao launched an offensive that swept the neutralists from the strategic plateau 110 miles northeast of Vientiane.

Breaking out of the trap, they made their way to Ba Na, where Kong Le's retreat was reported to have halted about 10 miles south of Muong Phanh.

Informants who saw Kong Le Thursday said he was in good spirits and intended to remain with his battered forces. There had been speculation that he might come to the capital of Vientiane. He was said to have retreated with only remnants of four battalions, which originally totalled about 1,800 men.

A government spokesman said two armored battalions dug in on the northwest fringe of Vientiane at Muong Kheung had come under attack by the Pathet Lao.

MAY WITHDRAW

Military sources believed Kong Le might try to withdraw with Vang Vieng, a city about 70 miles to the southwest.

Neutralist Premier Souvanna Phouma has expressed fear that Vang Vieng, only 60 miles north of the capital, would be the next target of the Pathet Lao.

Canadian and Indian representatives of the International Commission for Laos flew to Vang Vieng Thursday at Souvanna's request. They said the town seemed quiet.

Commission sources said, however, that neutralist command in Vang Vieng told of seeing two cargo planes believed to be from Communist North Viet Nam in the area. The Communists hold the town of Muong Vieng, 25 miles north of Vang Vieng, which they also are striving.

Souvanna has accused North Viet Nam of supplying troops for the Pathet Lao offensive.

Informed sources said U.S. Ambassador Leonard Unger and the British charge d'affaires, John Denson, told Souvanna their governments favor a meeting of neutralist nations representing the 14 countries which took part in the 1962 Geneva conference guaranteeing the neutrality and independ-

Sweeps Approved By Legion

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Royal Canadian Legion convention breaks up today in the wake of a plea to lead in the fight for Canadian unity.

Manitoba Premier Duff Roblin told delegates at a Thursday night banquet the legion must lead in the search for a fuller nationhood.

"It led in war. It must lead in peace," the Progressive Conservative leader said. The veterans organization must be a major unifying force in the land.

Mr. Roblin said "part of the inheritance of all of us" is the province of Quebec, an area of political unrest.

But "many cultures can flourish in the bosom of a single state."

He said the first principle of "one motherland, one citizenship must bind us all together."

If this first principle is abandoned "English Canada may disappear and Quebec becomes a ghetto."

MUST SEEK

The legion must seek the strengthening of the nation. "The watchword is comradeship. We must write it large on the face of Canada in 1964."

Rejecting the maple leaf design approved Thursday by the federal cabinet, the convention agreed to recognize only the Red Ensign as the official flag of the 30-odd member groups.

Fred O'Brecht of Durham, Ont., the new president, said, however, that is expected legion members would act as good citizens and acquiesce eventually to the new flag when and if it is adopted by Parliament.

DEFEAT MOVE

A strong pro-war movement defeated a recommendation by the legion's resolutions committee Thursday to take no further action on the flag in view of the endorsement of the Red Ensign earlier in the week.

Uranium Plan Offered

By ROBERT RICE

OTTAWA (CP)—The government plans to dangle a $5,000,000 contract in front of Canada's uranium producers in an effort to keep one of them operating for at least another year.

The contract to supply 1,200,000 pounds of uranium oxide to the United Kingdom will go to the uranium company that promises to extend the working time involved by building up its own extra stockpile of uranium at its own expense.

Jack Davis, parliamentary secretary to Prime Minister Pearson, spelled out the general terms of the plan in the Commons Thursday night. Details will be made public by the weekend—possibly later today.

The announcement capped a day that saw the Commons approve a routine measure providing the government with funds until June, plus a government bill to extend existing bank charters for one year from July 1, pending an overhaul of the banking act.

Today the House turns to a debate on foreign affairs, with External Affairs Minister Martin leading off with a report on NATO, Cyprus, Laos and other pressing international issues.

DISCLOSES PLAN

Mr. Davis disclosed the plan to keep one uranium mine in operation during an adjournment debate sparked by H. W. Herridge (NDP—Kootenay West) who wanted to help the Faraday Mine at Bancroft, Ont.

Up for grabs—on the government's conditions—is a 1,200-ton quota of uranium oxide still undelivered to Britain under a contract with Gunnar Mines. The government will pay $4.19 a pound for the radioactive material.

The government hopes that the mine that gets this contract will stockpile enough extra ore to keep between 500 and 600 uranium miners on the job until the summer of 1965.

The contract will go to only one firm, since fewer than 500 or so miners will be laid off at the remaining mines June 30, when the government's new $25,000,000 subsidy ends for uranium producers.

The miners are in the Elliot Lake and Bancroft areas of Ontario. Three uranium producers have given notice of closure when the government's stockpiling subsidy is shut off.

HAVE PHRASES

Earlier, opposition MPs had some choice phrases for the government's negotiation to establish a 12-mile fishing zone off the east and west coasts. They called it a case of a bare skeleton, a cake of flour and water.

With the weather warming up on Parliament Hill, Arnold Peters made a spirited bid for a government promise of a full summer holiday for MPs. Mr. Peters said the government called the MPs back from June 1 to the end of July.

He indicated that if no holiday is granted, the two month might be wasted in a time-consuming filibuster over government legislation.

Labor Council Approves Flag Being Considered

MONTREAL (CP)—The executive committee of the 150,000 - member Montreal Labor Council (CLC) Thursday night approved of Prime Minister Pearson's proposal to adopt a new and distinctive Canadian flag.

The resolution was adopted almost without comment and the council called upon the Canadian Labor Congress to back the new flag and "make its support known."

THE SUBJECT IS LAOS — U.S. Ambassador Adlai Stevenson talks to Roger Seydoux, centre, of France, president of the U.N. Security Council, and U.N. Secretary-General U Thant before debate on the Southeast Asia crisis. In his address to the Council Stevenson pledged that the U.S. will continue to defend Southeast Asia against Communist attacks as long as the people are determined to prevent Red domination.

Suggestion UN Watch Border Of Cambodia Stirs Interest

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—A United Nations presence along troubled border between Cambodia and South Viet Nam was singled out today as the major point of UN Ambassador Adlai Stevenson's policy speech before the Security Council Thursday and it brought favorable reaction from the South Vietnamese.

The government hopes that the mine that gets this contract will stockpile enough extra ore to keep between 500 and 600 uranium miners on the job until the summer of 1965.

The contract will go to only one firm, since fewer than 500 or so miners will be laid off at the remaining mines June 30, when the government's new $25,000,000 subsidy ends for uranium producers.

The miners are in the Elliot Lake and Bancroft areas of Ontario. Three uranium producers have given notice of closure when the government's stockpiling subsidy is shut off.

He indicated that if no holiday is granted, the two month might be wasted in a time-consuming filibuster over government legislation.

Ambassador Voeunsai Sonn, Cambodia's representative at the UN, said in an interview that the suggestions for a UN watch on the border were "the really important part" of Stevenson's address to the 11-member Security Council.

In Saigon, the South Viet Nam capital, Foreign Minister Phan Huy Quat said a UN presence "comes within the framework of our own views on solving the situation."

Stevenson outlined the United States position in Southeast Asia in a speech labelled as a guidepost statement of American intentions in the area. The chief U.S. delegate said the U.S. would push ahead with the war against the Viet Cong guerrillas in South Viet Nam.

The American position was placed before the Security Council only a few hours after France refused with her position that only neutrality for all of Southeast—Asia can guarantee peace there.

Today the Security Council studied U.S. proposals for UN involvement in the Cambodia-Viet Nam troubles.

The council itself is in recess until Monday when Quat is expected to take part in the coun-

Proposed Flag Design

OTTAWA (CP)—There were strong indications Thursday night that the government's proposed flag will consist of three red maple leaves on a white background with a blue bar at each side.

A design was chosen unanimously by the Liberal cabinet Thursday morning, and Prime Minister Pearson told the Commons later that it would be revealed in "a few days."

Meanwhile, all indications pointed to the red, white and blue design, although it is not correct from a heraldic point of view.

Canada's official colors are white and red.

Mr. Pearson was known to lean strongly toward the blue bars—and sources say there was encouraging response to these additions when they were mentioned as a possibility in a newspaper story some time ago.

THEY OPPOSE BLUE

Heraldry experts oppose the addition of blue on several grounds—that it departs from the official colors, that it doesn't correctly depict the "from sea to sea" motto and that it would interfere with use of the flag as part of larger navy, army and air force flags.

But flags of nations don't always include the correct heraldry, and these experts said parliament is free to pick any design it wants.

Mr. Pearson took several possible designs before his cabinet Thursday, and a unanimous decision was reached at its next meeting Tuesday.

The prime minister's view on the blue bars was known, unofficially at least, for some days and some other members of the cabinet were also believed to favor the blue. Informants say that the quick unanimous agreement would indicate a decision in favor of this flag.

The bars shown on the drawings displayed by the prime minister's staff in Winnipeg Monday were colored a medium blue and were straight.

"Sir Winston was right. I am a miserable failure. I just couldn't face Sir Winston now. I'd be too ashamed.

"I suppose I became an alcoholic."

The magistrates said they sympathized with him. Phillips said he would try to do better, and they gave him a conditional discharge.

Privileges Committee Gets Contradictory Testimony

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons privileges committee has been left to ponder for a few days a major dilemma—how to reconcile contradictory sworn testimony by two MPs.

With a number of expressions of misgiving, the committee Thursday adjourned until next week after hearing the second witness in an inquiry into allegations that Gerard Girouard (C—Labelle) was offered election funds and other benefits to switch to the Liberal ranks in the Commons.

On several key points, Maurice Moreau (L—York-Scarborough) gave testimony which contradicted that of Mr. Girouard, who quit the Social Credit party last month to join the Progressive Conservatives.

The points of disagreement:

1. Mr. Moreau said Mr. Girouard consented to Mr. Moreau arranging a meeting with Liberal National Organizer Keith Davey to explore a Girouard move into Liberal ranks.

Mr. Girouard has testified he did not consent to Mr. Moreau's action although he did agree to attend the meeting to please his friend, Mr. Moreau.

2. Mr. Moreau testified he got

Woes Started as Winnie's Valet, 'So Much Drink in That House'

LONDON (AP) — George Phillips said his troubles started when he became Sir Winston Churchill's valet—"there was so much drink in that house."

"It was all too easy to sample it," Phillips, 36, told magistrates' court Thursday, "and once I'd started that I was finished."

Police Constable Clive Garland testified he found Phillips lying face downward on a sidewalk, a half bottle of cheap wine beside him.

"I came out of Wandworth prison Tuesday," said Phillips. "I was celebrating that."

The former valet said he worked for Churchill in 1946-47 while the statesman's regular valet was ill.

"Sir Winston—as he then was—was a fantastic man," Phillips continued. "Once he told me something, you were either be a resounding success or a miserable failure.

"I suppose I became an alcoholic."

The magistrates said they sympathized with him. Phillips said he would try to do better, and they gave him a conditional discharge.

Paroled After 13 Years in Jail, Newly-Wed Man Accident Victim

victs in the Massachusetts prison system. He helped lead an hour rebellion at the old Charlestown state prison in 1955.

When he was paroled, Warden John A. Garde said: "After all my 29 years in the correction field I have never met a man who so thoroughly lived out his promises to straighten out."

Flaherty married Frances McGreavey, 33, a native of Peace River, Alta., soon after being paroled. They had become acquainted by correspondence. She sent him a Christmas card in 1955 from Peace River.

The accident occurred Thursday as Flaherty, on his way to work as a compositor at the Quincy Patriot Ledger, was crossing a street with his wife. The hospital said he suffered head injuries, two broken legs and internal injuries.

Maple Leaf Flag May Be Adopted Within Week

P. M. Tells House New Flag Will Soon Be Seen

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP)—The cabinet approved a maple leaf flag for Canada Thursday but the House of Commons was left no wiser about its detailed design.

Prime Minister Pearson told reporters after a three - hour morning cabinet meeting the cabinet had unanimously agreed on a design, which will be embodied in a resolution to be submitted to the Commons next week.

Mr. Pearson also said that if he were asked in the Commons Thursday to describe the design, he would do so in general terms.

But no one asked him pointblank during the House question period for details.

Instead, Opposition Leader Diefenbaker quizzed the prime minister about the circumstances surrounding a dinner party Mr. Pearson gave last week for some fourstaffs, at which the Liberal leader's personal preference for the flag was displayed and discussed.

Mr. Diefenbaker called it Mr. Pearson's personal flag, and Mr. Pearson said that wasn't so. The cabinet had decided on a design, he added, which would be submitted to the Commons soon.

IT'S JUST SOCIAL

Mr. Pearson said his preview for some reporters was just a social occasion, and he hoped the reporters had as good a time at his house as they did whenever they visited Mr. Diefenbaker.

"We had a cup of tea," Mr. Pearson said, "and some discussion about flags and emblems did come up."

He denied a newspaper report that he had called the Queen to say the flag would not be longer be flown in Canada.

Paul Martineau (PC—Pontiac-Temiscamingue) asked whether the flag design endorsed by the cabinet was the one Mr. Pearson personally favored.

Mr. Pearson suggested Mr. Martineau and the rest of the Commons wait for a few days and they will see the design of the flag.

At the Thursday morning cabinet meeting, there were three designs under study. All had three red maple leaves on a single stem as the principal feature. The difference was in the background—with one having another all pale blue, and the third with blue bars bordering to symbolize Canada's two-ocean national motto.

A spokesman for Mr. Pearson said that the design having been decided on by the cabinet, nothing more could be said about it until it was put before Parliament.

However, it was reasonable to assume that the maple leaf motif was approved since it was

Cabinet For Sask. Is Formed

REGINA (CP) — Thirteen men, all new to the task of administering a provincial government, take over today as Saskatchewan's Liberal cabinet from a CCF administration which has been in power 20 years.

Premier-elect Ross Thatcher, who toppled the CCF government in the April 22 provincial election, announced the cabinet members Thursday and said he himself would be the provincial treasurer for about a year.

The deputy provincial Liberal party leader, A. H. (Hammy) McDonald, 45, will be deputy premier and minister of agriculture.

Mr. Thatcher, who will be 47 years old Sunday, cut his cabinet to 13 men from the CCF's 15 by assuming the treasury duties himself and assigning the ministries of labor and co-operatives to one man.

Three portfolios have new names which will be officially put into effect at the next legislature session.

The former health department becomes health and welfare; industry and information becomes industry and economic development; and co-operatives becomes natural resources and indian affairs.

IT'S CABINET

The cabinet:

Mr. Thatcher, member of the legislature for Moose constituency, premier and treasurer.

Mr. McDonald, member for Moosomin, deputy premier and minister of agriculture. A farmer and businessman

D. G. Steuart, member for Lumsden, attorney-general and provincial secretary, a lawyer.

Herb A. Snider, 49, member for Hanley, industry and economic development. President of local Liberal party

Vancouver Man Tells of Beating After Hallucination Drug Party

VANCOUVER (CP) — Ben Metcalfe, newspaper man turned publicist, said Thursday he was badly beaten after guests at an "LSD party" discovered he was a writer.

He was commenting on testimony given by accordionist Leo Aquino at the preliminary trial of Bernard Roseman, 30, Bernard Copely, 38, charged with conspiracy to sell of LSD, a hallucination-producing drug.

The beating Feb. 4, 1963, left Metcalfe with his jaw broken in three places. Aquino said the writer lay injured for 13 hours before being taken to hospital.

Metcalfe, a former reporter for daily newspapers, operates a public relations firm in Vancouver and is public relations director for the Vancouver International Festival.

"I had done a series on the so-called LSD," Metcalfe said. "I had a continuing interest and when I heard that an LSD party was going there, I went along. It was an opportunity for me to see one of the so-called LSD sessions that had been rumored about."

He said he was followed by two men after leaving the party and asked to return to the house. He declined, was beaten up and returned.

"I was kept there for 36 or 37 hours," he said. "Every time I made a break, they slugged me again.

"Today I wear a beard to cover the scars from that beat-

Will Burn Church Mortgage At Anniversary Services

The Wesleyan Methodist Church, corner Bowen and Henry Streets, marks its 22nd Anniversary this Sunday. At the morning service the pastor, Rev. James S. A. Spearman, who has served the church since the spring of 1941, will conduct a mortgage burning ceremony. He will be assisted by members of the Board of Stewards and of Church Trustees.

Rev. Carrie Hazzard and Rev. Lois Richardson, of Trenton, N.J., have been chosen as guest speakers for the services. Honorary members of the Belleville Church, Misses Hazzard and Richardson were born and raised in the Madoc and Kingston areas, and for thirty years have worked effectively as a team. They have travelled around the world, visiting many mission fields. Their varied experiences as pastors, evangelists and travellers in many communities, have led these evangelists to a breadth of outlook and depth of spirituality, and an enrichment of personality that makes their ministry alive with spiritual vitality.

It was in 1942 in what was known as the Schuster Mission, now a laundromat, that the late Rev. S. W. Blanchard, Conference President, organized a Wesleyan Methodist Church.

NEW CHURCH IN 1955

During the years of 1947 to 1950 the church experienced almost one continuous building program. In 1947 a small congregation moved into a new church building, which had been constructed from materials of a vacated Presbyterian Church in Waltham, Quebec. Two years later the pastor and his family moved from a tent at house into the newly-erected parsonage adjacent to the church. November, 1950, was another highlight, when the rapidly growing congregation moved into the present enlarged building of new construction.

Through the years the facilities have kept pace with the necessary building program, until today the property valued at approximately $110,000 is free of all encumbrances.

During this short history of the church, three young men have entered the Christian ministry, with a fourth candidate presently attending Houghton College. This fall another student will enter college to prepare for medical missionary work. In the near future the church will also have the honor of seeing one of its young ladies, also a graduate of Houghton College, enter missionary work among the deaf in Puerto Rico.

Will Survey Property on Coleman Flats

Although city council at its May 11th meeting gave the go-ahead signal to tenders for the construction of the new city works barn on Coleman Flats they are not likely to be called until the latter part of June.

City engineer Wilbur Purcell said today that before tenders can be called a survey of city-owned property on Coleman Flats is necessary, while certain specification changes in the plans are also necessary as a result of the decision change from Foster Ward to the Coleman Flats area.

Entry to the city public works building will be from Wallbridge Crescent, although eventually an extension of Earl Street may provide additional access to the new city barn and yards.

Original plans were to build the $175,000 city barn south of St. Paul Street, on the bay front, but council at its last meeting changed the location to Coleman Flats.

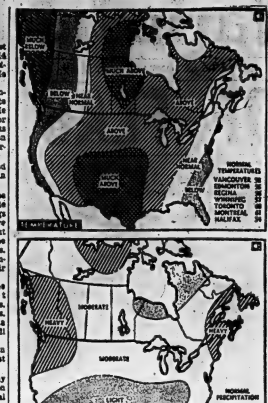
Driver Charged After Accident At Devil's Elbow

You can never tell when an accident is personally serious.

Early today city police were called to the Devil's Elbow where a car had left East Dundas Street, careened down the embankment and was wrecked to the 80-foot drop.



Damage was $2,500 but the driver, LAC Pierre Signan, 29, Trenton RCAF station was unhurt. He was charged with careless driving.

And at the Shopping Plaza an automobile ran into a concrete parking block today. Damage was only $50 but the impact was enough to throw 72-year-old Percy McGlaston, of Kingston against the windshield.

She was admitted to Belleville General Hospital with severe head lacerations.

Kingston Flying Club Will Operate Service Out of City

Commencing immediately the Kingston Flying Club will operate an air charter service out of the privately-owned James E. Marker flying strip east of the city, it was learned today.

Mr. Marker who has had the flying strip east of Elmwood Drive since 1951, said the charter service to be operated by the Kingston club would offer trips anywhere in Canada or the United States.

"I have been anxious to make some arrangements with some flying club for some time, and I feel that the service to be rendered by the Kingston Club is something that has been needed out of Belleville for some time," said Mr. Barker.

"The Kingston club has the equipment and the personnel and I feel this will work out very well."

The marker flying strip east of the city is only five minutes from downtown Belleville and currently has a 2,700 foot turf strip soon to be increased to about 3,500 feet of which 3,300 feet will be usable landing strip.

The Marker flying strip east interest in the proposed charter service and customers will call direct to Kingston for service over a non-jcoll Zenith line.

Service would be available at the Marker field about 30 minutes after making the call Mr. Marker estimated.

Mr. Marker said any service out of Belleville the airstrip would be available for 30 weeks out of the year for flights aircraft and for all but four or five weeks for heavier high speed aircraft.

Hospital Volunteers Given Coffee Party for Services

Recognition of the valued services given by the Hospital Volunteers was made Wednesday evening when the Belleville General Hospital Board of Governors staged a dessert coffee party in their honor at Education Hall. About 80 persons attended.

Mr. J. N. Yarovoy, hospital board chairman, told the volunteers that although their organization did not receive too much in the way of publicity, his board, nevertheless, was highly cognizant and deeply appreciative of their efforts.

Mrs. Herbert Brown expressed the thanks of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary to the volunteers.

The Hospital Volunteers now number about 150, representing all age groups and all walks of life.

The services performed by the volunteers are widely varied and range from manning information desks, giving patients mealtime assistance and escorting patients to various hospital departments and performing other favors helping to make a hospitality rrunETAOIN give the hospital a more human touch.

U. S. Planes on Exercises Wake Area With Sonic Boom

Dogs howled and residents were startled into their sleep early this morning as a tremendous explosion like a sound was heard throughout the area.

This morning the excitement was explained as American defence planes breaking the sound barrier as they were on exercises in the Eastern Ontario area.

The sonic boom created by the high-flying fast-moving planes was heard in Belleville, Trenton, and Tweed and even as far north as Pembroke.

The blast of the plane or planes breaking the sound barrier was heard here a few minutes before four o'clock.

Prince Edward County Homes Are Visited

The usual pattern was broken for the Historical Society's most recent architectural walking tour, for it was opened in the county and was accomplished in a fleet of automobiles. Mr. Lorne Wanamaker acted as guide, and prepared a typewritten literature in advance, a great help on a tour such as this. More than twenty persons took part. The tour went through Ameliasburg, Rednersville, and Carrying Place, and wound up for coffee at Wanamakers' just over the Bay Bridge.

High points of the tour were the three houses, which the owners graciously opened to the group. Mrs. Bosma's octagonal house on the third concession of Ameliasburg was particularly appealing; the unusual angles keep beckoning one around corners to see what is next. Also several such houses in Prince Edward County (and there was once one in Belleville, visible on the 1877 map.) They were presumably derived from the writings of Orson Fowler in the 1850's, who pointed out that a circular or octagonal building required the least wall area for its volume and, being compact, was easiest to heat.

At Ameliasburg the group saw the Owen Roblin house, across from the ruins of his grist mill, which was built in the octagonal house built by him for his son Edward in 1860.

BUILT IN 1879

At Carrying Place the group was welcomed in by Mrs. Morrison, the latter of the famous Weller-Morrison house, built in the Georgian style in 1879. The house is lovingly kept up and beautifully furnished, in great contrast to some other early houses on the same road.

Mr. Blake Young showed the group through his house, with its interesting basement kitchen. Part of this house is said to have been built in 1806, but the rather grand rooms we saw, with their high woodwork and plaster ornaments, seem to date from the 1820's.

This Sunday's walking tour, May 24, will venture a little way along Victoria Ave., with the usual excursions. The interiors of two notable houses will be visited: the Bigsby house, at Tuscan Villa at the corner of George and Queen, and the Ross Bellamy house, overlooking on William below Bridge. The tour will start from the Museum at usual at two o'clock.

Child Ran Into Side of Truck Jury Finding

Child's play had a fatal ending for a pre-school Belleville boy, a coroner's inquest was told last night.

The inquiry learned that 4½ year-old Luc Legace, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Legace, 91 Geddes Street, was seen playing with a group of children before he was inadvertently chased by some of them against a three-ton delivery van that instantly killed him near his home on May 11.

The jury ruled the child had come to his death "by running out and into the road and into the side of the truck." There were no riders to the verdict.

Gaetfield Sauter, 19, a sailor in the van, said he saw a group of children playing in a driveway as the van—operated by Don's Delivery Service—rounded into Geddes off College St.

He said he saw one child chase another toward the street.

"In fact, I kept my eye on them when I saw them," he told the inquest. "I thought they were playing a game of tag or something."

Fellow employee, James Potts, said the van was only travelling 10 to 15 miles an hour when the accident happened.

"I noticed a child running from the side looking back and I noticed one chasing it," he said.

Driver Donald Bird testified he was unaware of the accident until Mr. Benn shouted, "Stop, I think you hit a child."

"I don't think there was anything possible I could have done," he added. "I stopped the truck as quickly as I could."

Police constable Ian McColl, who assisted Constable Frank Hall on the investigation, said he found the vehicle in good mechanical condition.

FIGHT WAS REAL

On the set of the McHale's Navy TV series, when tempers are tense, a fight between Ernest Borgnine and Joe Flynn was so real they had to be separated.

IN MEMORIAM

BRADSHAW — In loving memory of my dear husband Wesley Bradshaw, who passed away May 22nd, 1954.
You fell asleep without goodbye,
But memories of you will never die.
Sadly missed and sincerely mourned by wife Ethel.

BRADSHAW — In loving memory of our dear father Wesley Bradshaw who passed away May 22nd, 1954.
We miss you more than anyone knows,
As each year passes the emptiness grows,
The tears in our eyes will wipe away,
But the ache in our hearts will always stay.
Ever remembered by sons, daughters and family.

PACK — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Leslie R. Pack, who passed away May 22, 1950.
Asleep in God's beautiful garden.
Free from all sorrow and pain,
And when our life's journey is ended,
We know we shall meet him again,
Lovingly remembered by wife Stella and family.

ANAF Favors Red Ensign

LETHBRIDGE, Alta. (CP)— James Baxter of Lethbridge, Dominion Second Vice-President of the Army, Navy, Air Force Veterans in Canada, expressed regret Thursday that Prime Minister Pearson has decided to replace the Red Ensign with a flag containing three maple leaves.

Mr. Baxter recalled that at the Dominion Convention of the ANAF in Winnipeg in 1962 the association passed a resolution adopting the Red Ensign as its official flag.

He added: "I am certain the Dominion Command, representing 200,000 veterans in Canada, will be making further representations to the Dominion Government opposing the new design and reiterating the association's stand that we are opposed to any flag other than the Red Ensign being adopted or designated as Canada's national flag."

Hotel Manager Flies Proposed National Flag

"Some people say I have no right to fly the flag . . . but I can fly my underwear if there on my building if I want to."

Frank Baker, quick to get in on the ground floor of anything that will promote his hotel, was commenting on the reaction to his flying the proposed three-maple-leaf Canadian flag on the roof of his building high above the downtown area.

He said the hotel received about 100 phone calls after running the flag up the pole. Most favored it, but those who did not were really opposed.

Minor Injuries Suffered by Station Airman

TRENTON — A 21-year-old Trenton airman, LAC Lester Ketchen of 58 Queen Street in Trenton was injured shortly after midnight when he lost control of his car at the intersection of Dundas Street West and Finch Avenue.

Ketchen told police the accelerator of his car stuck and the last object of the vehicle which skidded sideways into a hydro pole shearing the pole off.

Ketchen was treated at the RCAF hospital for injuries to the bridge of his nose, a cut on his right hand and a bruised right hip.

SEVERELY BURNED

Corporal G. Mosard of 6 BD Trenton was burned severely here Thursday when a fire started in a fuel tank on which he was working. The fire crew at Trenton RCAF Station came out the fire, which caused little damage.

Police Escort Will Not Be Provided

TRENTON — Trenton council voted last night not to accept a police escort for ice-shippers at Grace United Church to see Sunday school children and adults cross the road, once the extensive reconstruction of Dundas Street E. has been completed.

A request for such an escort on the busy street from a spokesman for the company, Department from Councillor Gerald Weaver, "if we do it for one church, we'll have to do it for all."

Mayor MacDonald said that once the new lanes were opened for traffic, an organized system of traffic movement would be in order and worshippers would probably find it easier to cross the street.

REFERRED BACK

A request for permission to erect gas pumps and install an air line on the property at the corner of Dundas St. E. and Ontario St., brought to council last night by J. P. Dale, will be referred to the Committee of Adjustment for approval.

Mr. Dale told council that he needed to sell his business (used car sales), in order to avoid higher taxes on his corner lot.

As the area is zoned commercial, council could see no real reason why Mr. Dale would not be allowed to install the gas pumps and equipment, but bowed to an official down by at a point to the club of $11 a year. The town - owned land is lying idle at the moment. Council, however, isn't sure how long it will be before it finds a use for the land and provided for cancellation of the lease (by either party) with six months' notice.

WILL PLACE LIGHTS

Councillor Joseph Gould has called for the installation of three 200 watt bulbs in lights on Bowen Ave., across from Cottrell Park. The PUC will be asked to install the bulbs.

Councillor Gould told council last night that the park gets "pretty dark at night," for playing children and suggested a little light be shed on the subject. To discourage vandalism . . . among other things.

TAKE DIM VIEW

Mr. Walter Palset, who recently bought the old Mayhew Mill on North Front Street, appeared before town council last night to ask how council's plans to re - route Highway 33 down Water Street jare coming.

Well, they weren't — according to Mayor MacDonald. Ontario Department of Highways has taken a dim view of re - routing the highway at this time.

Planning Board Request Turned Down by Council

TRENTON — A planning board request that Quinte Court pass a by - law, prohibiting the erection of any new overhead signs until such time as removal from the downtown area, and notify all and sundry that existing signs must be removed from their location by Dec. 31, 1969, was shelved last night by council, pending results of the implementation of the Norwich Report principles on the west side of Front Street. The Norwich Plan, recently taken up by the Trenton Chamber of Commerce, calls for inexpensive improvements on the fronts of business properties and the ultimate the elimination of overhead signs.

"Let's get that comes of this Front Street phase of the plan before committing ourselves," suggested Councillor G. A. Weaver.

Councillor Ross Burtt wanted to know . . . "which was worse . . . overhead signs or merchants displaying implements, etc. on the sidewalk in front of his store," . . . but nobody had a ready answer for him.

LEASE PROPERTY

The Trenton Country Club will be given a six months' lease on property lying adjacent to the golf course by town council, it was the club at $11 a year. The town - owned land is lying idle at the moment. Council, however, isn't sure how long it will be before it finds a use for the land and provided for cancellation of the lease (by either party) with six months' notice.

ATTENDANCE AWARDS

Proficiency awards (in order of merit), were won by. WO2 M. Blamire, Cpl. A. Jarvis, Cpl. R. Lowe, LAC S. Bale, LAC R. Gilbert, LAC R. Patrick, LAC T. Howard and LAC A. Rogers.

Shooting awards were awarded to: Cpl. W. Fraser, Cpl. N. Lowe, Cpl. R. Lowe, Cpl. R. Greenough, LAC R. Masters, LAC R. Gilbert and LAC R. Fulton.

Supply Officer for No. 173 Squadron is F/O G. B. Gabraith; Chief Instructor, P/O R. M. Jamieson and the instructors are G. L. Miluk, K. F. Hicks and W. V. Steiner.

F/O W. M. Mace acts as adjutant to the commanding officer, F/L J. F. Rowe.

Speakers stressed the point that the primary aim of the youth training program was to produce better Canadian citizens and to help provide the foundation for a career in the armed forces or in civil life. The cadet program is sponsored jointly by the Air Cadet League of Canada and the RCAF.

Parents, Friends on Hand For Air Cadet Inspection

TRENTON — Wing Commander E. F. Hodgkinson, Staff Officer Telecommunications, at Air Transport Command Headquarters, was the reviewing officer at yesterday's 22nd annual inspection of Royal Canadian Air Cadet Squadron's No. 173, Trenton High School.

The inspection was held on the school campus with the students, parents and interested friends lining the review square. Spontaneous applause burst out from time to time from the spectator's gallery as the smart stepping cadets performed their drills to the high stepping music of the Trenton Sea Cadet Band, led by Sgt. Howard Kelly, CD, of No. 6 Repair Depot.

For the ceremonial review, F/L R. N. Edward assisted Wing Commander Hodgkinson and at the dais were Douglas Whitley, provincial vice-chairman for the Air Cadet League of Canada and a member of the Trenton Board of Education; Donald Sutherland, chairman of auxiliary services with the board and His Worship, Mayor James MacDonald. Commanding officer of the squadron is Flt. Lt. John Rowe.

Drill squad commander for the review was Fit. Sgt. Victor Wirtiuk, who was also judged by the reviewing officer to be the best cadet on parade, singling the John Proctor Cup.

The cadets and spectators were addressed by Wing Commander Hodgkinson, who was introduced by J. W. Reid, vice-principal of Trenton High School, Mr. Whitley, Mr. Sutherland and John Garrett, principal of the school.

Graduation certificates were given to F/Sgt M. Blamire, Sgt. D. Lowden, Cpl. L. Greenough, Cpl. R. Lowe and LAC P. Bennett.

Council Wants New Fountain In Bayshore Pk.

TRENTON — In other matters pertaining to water, council will ask the Trenton Board of Parks' Management to consider locating an ornamental fountain in the Bayshore Park, south of the Legion Hall, rather than in Fraser Park, the site chosen by the board.

Council gives as its reason the fact that Fraser Park is too small for the proposed fountain which the parks' board means to erect as a Centennial Project.

And still on the subject of water, at a meeting of July 1 of this year, Trenton water rates will be up.

"We're not a collection agency," Mr. Baker said.

MATTER DEFERRED

Utilities manager James Page said that the commission might be "cutting off its nose to spite its face," if it continued to go along with Genelco's proposal.

"We're going to lose out," he warned. (Presumably Mr. Page referred to the possibility that gas and oil companies might benefit should the commission fail to "plug" electric heating.

"I still think it's out of our line," insisted Mr. Baker.

As the third member of the commission, Mayor James MacDonald was not on hand when the matter was deferred until next month.

Speaking of gas — the Consumers' Gas Company was granted the right to log and analyze an old well on the farm of the Victoria Street pumping station, by the commission. The company will pay the commission $100 and compensation for damages incurred in the testing and has agreed to seal off the 700 foot deep well with 955 per hundred feet of casing completed. The gas company official said in a letter to the commission that soil formations in the area were being tested and the best way of doing this was to conduct tests down deep wells. A 1500 foot deep well at Shannonville has been used for this purpose.

Commissioner Baker wondered where the commission stood should the company discover gas down the Victoria Street well.

Trenton insurance agent Douglas Whitley was yesterday given the right to supply insurance to the commission this year, as the lowest tenderer. The annual premium is $2573.95 on a three-year policy.

Bayshore Park Favored by Town Council

TRENTON — Recently, the Trenton Parks' Board voted to make a start on the town's first Centennial project. The board proposes to erect an ornamental fountain in Fraser Park. The fountain would be a smaller replica of the fountain in the sunken garden at RCAF Station Trenton. Work on the fountain would start this year, and be completed next year.

Now, everyone is having thoughts about where the fountain should be located — and nobody seems to be in agreement with the site chosen by the parks' board.

Council thinks the fountain would be of more use to more people if it were located in Bayshore Park, south of the Legion Hall.

Now that a new post office on Front Street is in the wind, the old post office may be "put on the block" and the town has the first option to purchase. The mayor's thinking is that if the old post office were razed, a fountain might be an added attraction to the resulting open space on Dundas St. W.

CANADIAN SCULPTURE

Seventeen pieces of sculpture selected from 267 submissions by 115 artists will be shown in the National Gallery's second exhibition of Canadian sculpture June 5 to Sept. 12.

Many Residents Want Swimming Pool at School

TRENTON — Trenton council, meeting last night, was mostly concerned about water — . . . no one way or another. At the outset of the meeting, clerk comptroller O. W. Larry read excerpts from 18 letters written by Trenton residents, advocating council's support for a swimming pool board proposal that a swimming pool be built in the high school.

Several of the letter writers paraphrased a nursery rhyme, "Water, water everywhere, and not a place to swim," to the point up the fact that the town has facilities where children and adults can learn to swim.

Some of the letters pointed out that the pool could be used by underprivileged children in keep them from playing in the streets and in the hydrotherapy by crippled children and adults alike.

One writer suggested that a pool might do away with juvenile delinquency and another asked council to please think if it wasn't worth a few tax dollars to save even one human life — presumably through water safety instruction.

Council has been asked by the Board of Education to give $25,000 towards the construction of a high school pool.

Such a pool would cost in the neighborhood of $100,000. The school board would use $25,000 promised by the Trenton Lions Club for this purpose; and expects government grant of approximately the same sum and would raise the remaining $25,000 by public subscription. Recently, the Quinte Disabled Persons' Club pledged $1,000 towards the construction of a pool.

Gravel Pit Will Be Fi'd With Garbage

TRENTON — Home owners in Trenton's swank west - end housing development, Stanley Heights, may be surprised one of these days to see a long queue of garbage trucks proceeding through their streets on their way to the gravel pit.

Town council is considering filling up the pit with garbage, in order to bring it level with the rest of the area.

The gravel pit was originally accepted by the town as the sub - divider's five per cent land grant for parks' purposes.

Councillor Joseph Gould told council last night that the pit was useless in its present state and said that the committee of public works' recommended that it be filled up by the sanitary landfill method.

"I don't think this is going to go over with the residents," was Councillor Edward Todd's comment.

"Yes, it might be hard to sell the people up there on the idea," agreed Councillor Ross Burtt.

Councillor Gerald Weaver called for a check into past records to see if the developer, Mr. Klemencic had carried out his agreement to dig the pit before any action was taken.

Many Thousands of Gallons Of Water Recovered by PUC By Repairing Main Leaks

TRENTON — The members of the Trenton Public Utilities Commission have been notified by Ground Water Developments Ltd., that recent soil tests, conducted with an "economical distance" of the town, have been disappointing and indicate a method of reclaiming water from the Trent River, through a process developed by the company, would not apply in Trenton. The company has submitted a bill for $2,400 to the PUC to pay for the tests. Another recent test, conducted by the International Water Supply Company, also indicates that recovering water from ground areas would be economically unsound in Trenton.

But the commissioners aren't worried.

Utilities manager James Page told Commissioners Chas. Hilton (chairman) and Clifford A. Baker yesterday that utility's workmen, testing mains for leaks, had located what amounts to an additional 350,000 gallons per day. Already, repairs have been made to the extent that 100,000 gallons per day are being recovered and work to repair pipes is going forward. The most extensive leaks were found on Front St. and Henry St. Two repaired leaks on Front St. have yielded an additional 3,018 gallons of water a day, and repairs to main repairs have yielded 206 gallons per day. Cost to the PUC for location of the leaks and repairing the pipes, to date, has been between $600 and $1,000. Testing has between two and a half million and three million gallons of water per day, and a considerable third of the supply will soon be reclaimed when all repairs are completed.

An offer of the Canadian General Electric Company to advance money on first mortgages to persons who have electric heating, installed in their homes, provided the commission would see to the collection of monthly payments, and with very little enthusiasm from Commissioner Baker at yesterday's commission meeting.

Let's Build Sandbanks Bridge

Hon. Kelso Roberts, Ontario Minister of Lands and Forests, has announced that a bridge will be built at Wellington giving access to the Sandbanks.

Dr. Douglas Pimlott of the University of Toronto's Department of Zoology has launched a campaign against this decision. He wants the Sandbanks left as they are.

Sentiment places us on the side of Dr. Pimlott; but realism forces us to support Mr. Roberts.

In the Sandbanks, this district has an unusual attraction, one which, despite the growing popularity of water sports, the increased ease of transportation and the rapid growth in population, is still virtually unspoiled.

We do not think there is any real hope that a road along this narrow strip of land separating Lake Ontario from West Lake will not alter all this. Seeking the solitude which this area now offers, people will flock to it as soon as access becomes easy. That, which the crowds seek, will vanish irretrievably. The Sandbanks will become just another strip of beach littered with bodies and picnic paraphernalia.

But it will be used. It will give pleasure to many, instead of to a mere handful. It will relieve the congestion of other district beaches, particularly at the neighboring Outlet.

Such prohibitions as public funds from visiting the area, which would be a shameful waste of a natural wonder, there is probably no way in which the Sandbanks can be preserved in their present state.

At present, however, its pleasures are reserved for the few, for those who are either both able and willing to pay for transportation by rowboat or with a tough trek through heavy sand or who have the funds to purchase or hire a boat. Last year there was at least one tent pitched on the West Lake side of the south-easterly portion of the strip. If no road is built, the number of people who come to camp in this fashion will increase as the years pass. Nothing can preserve the Sandbanks as they have been, short of forbidding trespassers which would only defeat the very reason why Dr. Pimlott and his supporters oppose the road—so that the Sandbanks can be enjoyed by those who appreciate their present state.

Indeed, Nature itself is changing the area. Towards the West Lake end of the strip, where it is widest, there used to be a flat area along the Lake Ontario shore which, at certain seasons of the year, was under water. Frogs abounded. During the last few years this area has been much drier; this year, with the lower water in Lake Ontario, the flats are likely to be almost as dry as the dunes and, if this condition continues, erosion would appear probable, in spite of coarse grass and other vegetation.

But it is man and man's work which make it impossible to preserve these isolated patches of wilderness in the midst of increasingly heavily populated areas. Even when man tries to preserve, rather than to change, his efforts bring alterations. The Department of Lands and Forests has planted many trees among the dunes, in an effort to prevent additional cover and prevent the prevailing wind from swiftly laying waste the mounds of sand. A worthy work—doubtless, but one which, if successful, in the years to come will transform the marvel of a minuscule Sahara into just another woodlot.

Let's have the bridge and the road and the crowded beach for they will please many. Those of us whom they do not please ought not to delude ourselves that the crowds are robbing us of one more dot of solitude in a sea of people—it would have disappeared anyway.

Relativity In Hoodlums

Einstein was not the first man to maintain that everything is relative and space and time are not the only fields in which relativity applies. There are, also, the fields of moods and manners.

The leather-jacketed, motor-cycling gangs who sometimes disgrace the Canadian and American scene, seem about as objectionable a breed as could be imagined—until one reads about the natural foes of the British version of this clan. The leather-jackets, known as Rockers in Britain, were given a Whitsuntide shellacking by the Mods, who use eyebrow pencil, eye shadow, transparent lipstick and rouge without regard to the sex of the user.

One would forgive the Rockers for beating the tar out of such a collection, but the tanning appears to have been performed by the other lot of heels—the Mods giving the Rockers a rough weekend.

From this distance it almost sounds like a rank miscarriage of justice—though if justice has to miscarry we could not think of a more appropriate bunch of victims than the Rockers.

Editorial Comments on Flag Question

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Following are excerpts from editorials in representative Canadian flag issue.

Toronto Telegram (Ind.): The people of Canada should be allowed to decide whether or not they wish to live under the flag of their forebears or discard it in favor of a new emblem.

Mr. Pearson has an enviable reputation for sagacity and diplomacy. Let him now demonstrate it once again. Let him ask the people by referendum whether they want to relegate the banner that carries the symbols of our nationality by one that is mounted on the color of surrender and would be most suitable for a laburnum . . .

Toronto Globe and Mail (Ind.): Mr. Pearson has chosen to press the divisive issue of a national flag at a time when emotions are already deeply stirred by the question of national unity—or rather, by the lack of unity. The proper course for Mr. Pearson is to go to the people. But he should first tell us exactly what flag he wants to fly over Canada.

Regina Leader-Post (Ind.): . . . The tone of his (Mr. Pearson's) statement indicates it is the government's intention to follow the matter through to its ultimate with dispatch. A useful purpose is to be served by discussion. But that is as far as the matter should go at the present stage.

Edmonton Journal (Ind.): Mr. Pearson's timing could not be much worse. At a time when calm judgment is needed if Canada is to be preserved as a viable nation, he has chosen to force the issue of the flag that he settled on the basis of emotionalism. At this time of tension, the best flag that Parliament can design and fly on poles in front of the Parliament Buildings in Ottawa will not impress the country's other main cities, so that Canadians may really see what they are getting—in terms of flag, not a piece of cardboard.

Brantford Expositor (Ind.): The real question to be decided is whether a flag without the symbols of Canada's history and background can in effect contribute to national unity. If a distinctive Canadian flag will help to achieve this aim it is surely a step worth taking. However, if its adoption merely widens the split that already divides the nation on fundamental issues, national unity will receive a disastrous setback.

St. Thomas Times - Journal (Ind.): We don't know why it is that the flag issue has to be resolved so quickly or why the prime minister should be in such indecent haste to get the country of its past, but he seems determined to follow this course. In so doing he is sacrificing a positive reminder of Canada's old and honorable association with Great Britain on the altar of political expediency. And he is doing it in the face of strong opposition from many in Canada who have a deep emotional and historical attachment to the Red Ensign. We think he is making a mistake.

Cornwall Standard Freeholder (Ind.): So long as a so-called flag issue is allowed to remain a powerful force for division exists within Canada. The Red Ensign unfortunately is destined to joy the distinction of being a symbol of unity among Canadian people and it should not be designated as Canada's official flag. If the advent of a new flag promises many people to become real Canadians then it will be worth having.

Chatham News (Ind.): Prime Minister Pearson, in announcing that he was going to the people the life of his government on the line over the flag issue, has pulled off one of the most appalling political parties or the people—plan history. The prime minister knows that he cannot face opposition parties of the people—want an election at this time. We agree with him. He is going "take it to a vote of the people."

Timmins Press (Ind.): The Pearson cabinet has shown complete disregard for public opinion in its attempt to ram a new flag down the throats of the Canadian people. At a time when the nation is plagued with numerous internal problems Prime Minister Pearson is determined to bulldoze his way through with one of his pet projects which even he knows will cause only further disunity. Canada has no need for a new flag.

• • •

Guelph Mercury (Ind.): The Pearson flag now finds Mr. Pearson acting contrary to his lifelong training and success as a conciliator. He seems bent on bulldozing a new flag through the Commons in a frame of truculence worthy of C. D. Howe during the pipeline debate of 1956. Mr. Diefenbaker is not just playing politics when he says that the flag question may add to national disunity rather than to exert the unifying force Mr. Pearson told the (Canadian) Legion it would bring.

Owen Sound Sun-Times (Ind): . . . Several (Canadians) have pointed out emphatically that one (Red Ensign) the Canadian Legion is backing—and incidentally the only one—has both the flag featuring the national symbol, the maple leaf—with the Union Jack as a companion flag, symbolizing our Commonwealth relationship . . . The House of Commons can speak as the people's representative. But to be able to vote freely, the House must not stand under the shadow of a general election.

Halifax Chronicle - Herald (Ind.): Mr. Pearson seems to think that the flag issue is like any other government proposal. . . . But the flag is not a Liberal flag or a Conservative flag. It is—or should be—a Canadian flag, associated with no particular political party. For our part, we still favor the Red Ensign. But if Parliament freely endorses another flag, we will willingly embrace it.

Montreal Star (Ind.) There is a thing about flags that almost everyone seems to be forgetting in the present discussion, and that is that they are flags. We presume that at some point soon the House of Commons will be presented with a flag design, a few alternative flag designs, painted on cardboard and displayed on an easel. . . . Surely it would be a worthwhile investment to make up more than one out of bunting and fly them on poles in front of the Parliament Buildings in Ottawa and in a number of the country's other main cities, so that Canadians may really see what they are getting—in terms of flag, not a piece of cardboard.

Sarnia Observer (Ind.): Because this is an emotional and highly personal issue we believe that the effective way to deal with the problem would be to call a plebiscite some time next year. In the meantime let the people see what the new flag looks like. Let us have a chance to cool down.

Montreal La Presse (Ind.): . . . Quebecers will vote for the flag. Only a majority of extremists, indefatigable loyalists or separatists will be opposed. If the latter vote, it will be good. But if the manoeuvre results in a favorable majority one may conclude (prudently) that a way to ease present tensions exists.

Niagara Falls Review (Ind.): The cabinet has done a good service in the public way to speed the flag question into the House of Commons where it can be properly debated. Several years from now we will celebrate our 100th year as a nation. We have never had our own flag. This is as appropriate a time as ever to produce one.

Welland Tribune (Ind.): . . . Ottawa is being flooded with opinions of many individuals and organizations. It would be well to allow time for these opinions of average citizens and representative organizations to be assessed before Parliament is asked to make a decision. A flag should be a symbol which all citizens should be proud to respect.

Simcoe Reformer (Ind.): A nation-wide plebiscite on the flag issue would seem unwise. It could only serve to further divide the nation. Even if Mr. Pearson's proposal for a maple leaf flag is endorsed, it need not mean the disappearance of the Union Jack or the Red Ensign . . . they can still be flown left-hand side as emblems of our pride in our British heritage and of Canada's long and proud record of service in the British Commonwealth.

• • •

St. Catharines Standard (Ind.): The Red Ensign . . . is Canada's distinctive flag. We don't doubt that the move (for a new flag) could be bulldozed through but it would attract many thousands of Canadians. Let's not cut all the precious ties we have with the history of this country in such an arbitrary manner.

Children Can Grow up Without Having Candy

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: When I bring a little bit of candy to my young grandchildren, my daughter says it is not good for them. They are well served and I give them one or two pieces only if they eat their meals. — Mrs. A. F.

No, I can't reasonably say that "a little bit of candy" is bad for children. Neither can I say that children need any candy at all. They can grow up in good health without ever tasting it.

Too much candy can ruin their eating habits, their health and affect their general well-being.

I can only guess at what you mean by "a little bit" and "only one or two pieces."

If you mean one or two candy bars, that is more than I or anyone else would consider a treat.

Besides why not let your daughter decide what you can give the children — things like balloons, toys or games? Or perhaps an apple or an orange. Come now, be a good grandmother. Don't make any rules that have been established for these youngsters.

Dear Dr. Molner: Please write something about ringing in the new. I am a widow for 15 years, it doesn't seem to go away, although the condition is better. — Mrs. A. B. C.

Rather than gloss over this problem, I suggest that you write for my booklet, "Nervous and Sensitive Booklet." "Ear Noises, Why It Exists In Some, and an unstamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Molner, in care of the Intelligencer, Health Syndicate, P. O. Box 138, Dundee, Ill.

In the vast majority of cases, ringing in the ears is a nuisance rather than a danger sign. Sometimes it can be stopped; sometimes it can be relieved by moderate relief, plus knowing some tricks, outlined in the booklet, about how to reduce the annoyance.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am four months pregnant and have been taking 5-grain quinine pills for my cold. My friend says if I don't stop I will lose the baby or it will be born deformed. What do you say? — Mrs. R. S.

Quinine reduces fever but has no other specific effect on a cold. In large doses and in sensitive individuals, quinine can cause abortion. Personally, I'd say, it may have on the baby is unknown. Since we don't know, I would not use quinine in early pregnancy.

Dear Dr. Molner: My daughter has a birthmark on her face. When she was four years old a doctor said nothing could be done to remove it that wouldn't leave a scar. She is now 12 and we would like to find out if new treatments are available. How would I get in touch with a plastic cable doctor? — Mr. and Mrs. R. M.

It is still true that such surgery will leave a scar, but it can be very unobtrusive, and that's what matters.

There may be plastic surgeons in your town, but either your regular doctor, or county or state medical societies can refer you to several within your vicinity.

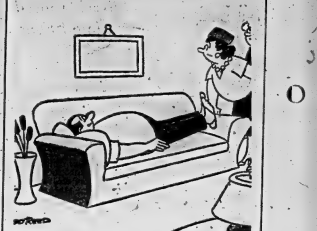
Educational Program Is Need in Laos

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

What we need is an educational program in Laos. According to Washington correspondent, that country "has become a headache again for U.S. policy makers."

The trouble with the Laotians, he reports, is that "they dislike all forms of war, and have been known to break off fighting in the midst of a battle so that Washington can spend 10 days at a water festival."

Laotians are so backward and uncivilized that they "will not rather fire their guns into the air than at human targets." As a result, the report continues, "there have been few casualties during all the years of fighting in this little Asian country."



What point is there in providing such primitives with the finest rifles and the deadliest aerial bombing, when they shoot at the air instead of aiming at human targets, as all civilized nations know ought to be done?

They are a unique people, the Laotians, and they must not be permitted to carry the standards of Western civilization by their stubborn and foolish refusal to follow the other nations. Once you allow a country like that to set a bad example, there is no telling how far it will have spread.

What if the soldiers in other countries got the idea that they could take 10 days off from the battle front for a water festival? What would happen to strategy, to deterrence, to retaliation, to second-strike capability, to overkill—to all the sophisticated refinements and prerequisites behind the concept of the guilt 20th century warfare from the crude antagonisms of the Stone Age?

Somehow we seem to have slipped up in conveying our purposes to the Laotians. Put a rifle in their hands, and they shoot up, not a bird, if you gave them a tank, they would probably use it for ploughing instead of for attacking anyone. It makes one despair that so many people can ever be converted to our way of life.

Here they have been fighting for years — or what passes for fighting — and practically nobody has been killed. Do you call that war? One more water festival and I think we ought to withdraw our recognition of Laos. Let them suffer peace all by themselves.

"We plan to use it to frame the first dollar he ever earns."

Dr. S. A. Moore of London, Ont., will spend Victoria Day with his father, Mr. S. S. Moore Ann St.

Fashion Note from our file copy at this time in 1894: "Some women's bonnets are so diminutive in size nowadays that they approach the vanishing point."

Letter to the Editor

Student Supports Red Ensign as Flag

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

Dear Editor:

Even though I'm only a student of 18, I've decided to write you this letter after reading all the articles in the paper about our proposed flag.

First, I think our country has gotten along quite well with the Red Ensign and I don't know why the government has decided that now to propose this new flag.

Next, I don't think we should have a new flag because Mr. Pearson has a "hankering" for it. During World War Two, thousands of Canadians fought, died and were buried under the Red Ensign, so that we could live in this country as free people, not as a satellite country under the heel of some dictatorship.

Some young students have been sending in letters to the editor saying that it doesn't make any difference if men fought under the Ensign because it doesn't have anything to do with us.

Well I say to those people "it would make a lot of difference if you had fought in the war under the Ensign and had seen the Red Ensign after a bloody battle, flutter over a captured Nazi or Italian position."

Sincerely,
Chris Stock,
374 Bridge Street East.

May 22, 1964 . . .

Louis VIII of France invaded England 748 years ago—in 1216. In the autumn of 1215, Louis had received from a group of English barons a request to "pluck them out of the hand of this tyrant (John)." Louis was forbidden by the pope to legate to invade England, but he went ahead with his plans. He landed in Kent. His army was later defeated and he resigned his claims to the English throne, although he obtained a small war indemnity in a secret article of the treaty of Lambeth, September, 1217.

gaining 70 cents to $4.10. Parsmaque and Northcal were also higher.

Senior base metals traded lethargically. Ikco was down ¼ to 36 while Cominco gained ¼ to 35¾. Falconbridge erased an earlier 1¼ loss to finish even at 73. Highland Bell climbed 45 cents to $5.20.

On index, industrials gained .32 to 156.03, golds .18 to 137.54, base metals .07 to 65.72 and the exchange index .27 to 145.82. Western oils were down .43 to 97.28.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP)—Stocks were mixed to lower on the stock market in light dealings today.

In the main list, losses outnumbered gains as profit taking which started late Thursday afternoon carried through in some issues to today. Bell Telephone gave up ¼ to 55 while CPR was off the same amount at 44¾. Steels were hit hardest by the profit takers. Dofasco, Scotia declined ¼ to 71¾, Toronto-Dominion ¼ to 64¾ and Royal ¼ to 74¼.

There were a few bright spots. Interprovincial Pipe Line gained ⅝ to 64¾ while Husky Corporation was up ¼ to 35¼. Crush International and Consolidated Paper each gained ¼ to 10¾ and 43¾ respectively.

Falconbridge dipped ¼ to 72½ and Inco ¼ to 85¾ in senior base metals. Highland Bell moved ahead 30 cents to $5.20. Specialtires were quiet and little changed. Mentor scored the best gain, up seven cents to 40 cents. Genex moved to a new high of 29 cents with a one cent gain.

Kerr-Addison was up 15 cent at $7.85 in a mixed gold group. Lakehore-which announced it will close late this year or in 1968—dipped 10 cents to $2.

Western oils were mainly unchanged although Pacific Petroleum managed a gain of ¼ to 14¾.

On index, industrial were down .09 to 155.35 and the Exchange index .02 to 14.83. Golds were up .12 to 137.66, western oil .46 to 97.74 and base metals .36 to 65.98. Volume at 11 a.m. with 1,272,000 shares at the same time Thursday.

Industrials closed higher Thursday though late profit-taking reduced gains in key stocks to fractions. Trading totalled 4,787,000 shares compared with 4,230,000 the day before.

Massey - Ferguson continued as the main attraction in the industrial list, trading more than 60,000 shares and climbing 1¼ to 27⅛. Earlier it sold as high as 28¼, an all-time high.

Bell Telephone-which in mid-afternoon sold at a high of 55¾—gained ¼ to 55¾ also in active dealings. New highs were recorded by Argus Corporation, Dominion Tar, Westcoast Transmission, Eastern Ontario Natural Gas and Versatile Manufacturing.

Banks continued to improve with Nova Scotia ahead ½ to 72¾. CPR added ¼ to 44⅛.

Speculative interest perked up Genex traded 375,000 in gaining four cents to 29 cents. Leitch, a gold, traded 321,275 in gaining 7 cents to 43 cents.

Canadians Take Over 2 Houses in No-Man's Land

NICOSIA (CP)—Canadian soldiers of the United Nations force took over two houses in the no-man's land in the Nicosia suburb of Trahhonas Thursday after persuading the Greek-Cypriot occupants to leave.

Maj. Bob Theriault of Quebec said it required "patient efforts" to get the Greek-Cypriots to leave their posts on the so-called green line, between the opposing Cypriot forces.

The no man's land in the district is just the width of one narrow street. On both sides of the street fly flags of the embattled Greek and Turkish-Cypriots, showing where they have entrenched themselves.

Turkish - Cypriots who had moved closer to the line by taking over abandoned homes on their side, stopped strengthening the buildings. A Turkish-Cypriot leader said he had received orders from superiors to remain on the spot, however, pending outcome of negotiations between the two sides on a suggestion from the United Nations.

The UN has asked both sides to move 200 yards back from the line.

Decoration Day To Be Held June 21

The decoration service which was announced at a recent meeting of the Stone Church Cemetery Board will be held on June 21st at 3:00 p.m. and not on June 2nd as was erroneously reported in Thursday's edition of The Ontario Intelligencer.

Weekly Livestock Review

TORONTO (CP)—Trading on slaughter cattle opened on the dull side Tuesday morning at prices about steady with last week's closing levels at the Ontario public stockyards this week.

By Wednesday the trading became more active at stronger prices and closed firm.

Veal calf prices opened steady and closed lower. Hog prices were higher and lamb prices were steady.

Cattle receipts were estimated at about 7,600 head, about 2,800 more than last week, which was mainly because of the extra cattle on hand for the May 15 stocker sale. Weeks' receipts were about the same as the corresponding week in 1965. Calves' receipts were 242 head, down 150 head from last week. Western stock calves numbered 80 as compared to 101 last week. There were 114 mixed slaughter cattle shipped off the market to Eastern Canadian slaughterers and exports to the United States.

Slaughter cattle: Choice steers sold at $24-24.50 with good at $23.50-24; cows to 23.50; good 22.50-23.50; medium 20-22; common 17-19; choice heifers 22-24 with some Canadbred heifers to 23.50; good 21-22; medium 19-20; common 15-17; choice feeder yearlings 20-23; good 21-23; good cows 17-18 with sales to 18.50; medium 15-17; canners and cutters 12-15.50; choice heavy bologna bulls 19-19.50 with odd sales to 20; common and medium 16-18.50.

Replacement cattle: Good stockers 20-23 with sales to 26.50; common and medium stockers 20-22.

Calves: Choice vealers 23-24 with odd singles to 26.50; good 21-23; medium 19-20; common 15-20.

MR. MELTZER ON REAL ESTATE
"What's Your Problem?"

By BERNARD C. MELTZER

Forged mortgages are rare. Banks have procedures that guard carefully against such occurrences. My system, however, is perfect and a number of these crimes have come to my attention over the years. I have been asked many times how such a thing can happen.

This is not intended to be a "How To" answer, but a recent letter from Mrs. G. T. A. is illustrative of the process.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: Please help me before I go out of my mind! I am a widow and have owned my home free and clear for nearly 10 years. The other day I got a notice from the bank saying I was two months overdue on my mortgage and that if I didn't remit payment immediately, they would foreclose.

I called them to tell them there was some mistake. They told me I was the one who was mistaken, for three years ago, through my attorney, I borrowed $10,000 and have been making the mortgage payments faithfully ever since. I attempted to contact this attorney but he has been dead for two months.

Mr. Meltzer, I swear I didn't borrow this money or even know anything about it. Yet, they tell me-if I don't pay, I will lose my home. Please, what can I do? — G. T. A.

Answer: You are seemingly the victim of a forged mortgage. Before you have apparently forged on the mortgage loan application, the mortgage papers and endorsing the check for the loan. Since you did not receive the money and all of the papers are forgeries, stop worrying about losing your home.

Instead of discussing this with the clerks at the bank, demand an interview with one of the executive officers, who will most certainly initiate a thorough investigation and straighten this out to your satisfaction.

The bank is not exactly blameless in this instance. By misplacing their faith in this attorney, they accepted an appraisal of your property without its thorough inspection, accepted a mortgage application without interviewing you, and made settlement and passed the check without your presence.

If the culprit had lived, in all likelihood he would have continued to make the payments and eventually would have paid off the mortgage without your ever having known about it. His death exposed his crime.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I'm 22 years old and have known for a long time already that there is a gimmick a pay - off in everything if you're in the know. I swing pretty good, but I need a hand to go with a new wife and real-estate is not my kind of action.

You seem to be the top man with the answers, so please give me a personal reply with a few angles on how to get a mortgage with enough give to cover the full price, pay for some furniture, and maybe cover a $2,000 note on my sports car while we're at it. — N. A. S.

Answer: Such talk is truly embarrassing. Although I hate to disappoint such a discerning young reader, I am not such a "Top man with the answers" after all, because I don't know of any legal way to satisfy these mortgage demands, and illegal action, I'm afraid, is not my kind of action.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: We and our neighbors are all young couples who moved to a new suburb a few years ago when our incomes and families were both small. Incomes have grown a little, but families have grown a lot, and our houses are all too small. We have had long debates as to whether it is more economical to build additions or to sell out and move to bigger new houses. Can you give us some guidance on this? — Mrs. L. S. L.

Answer: Disregarding the personal factors that each person must resolve for himself, there are some definite guidelines based upon the present value of your house, the cost of the improvement, and the resulting value of your house after the improvement.

For example, assume that the present value of your house is $12,000, and the addition will cost $6,000. If the resulting value of your house would be only $15,000, don't do it — buy a new house. If the resulting value is $18,000, you are justified, more, it would be to your benefit to make the improvements.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: My husband and I thought you would like to know that we took your advice and saved a lot of money. We found a house we wanted that had an asking price of $18,000, and we were about to make a deposit. Remembering your admonition about acting without professional advice, however, we hired an appraiser. He told us the house was worth only $16,000.

When we showed the appraisal report to the owner and his real estate broker, they agreed that it seemed to be fair and we got the house for $16,000, I can't begin to tell you how pleased and grateful we are. You can count on us as faithful readers for life. — Mrs. E. T. B.

Answer: I am pleased that this column has served you so well, and thank you for your kind words. A man who writes this column is necessarily in the public eye. Sometimes I get the impression I am a thumb in the public eye. Letters like yours, however, give me all the encouragement I need.

Mr. Meltzer welcomes your letters and comments. Unfortunately he is unable to enter into personal correspondence with readers, but will attempt to answer as many letters as possible through his column.

ARRIVES IN PARIS

PARIS (Reuters) — Senator Edward Kennedy arrived here Friday to thank the French government for its $500,000 contribution to the Kennedy Memorial Library.

Negro Elected Moderator of Presbyterians

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—The United Presbyterian Church U.S.A. elected Thursday the Negro moderator in its history, Rev. Edler G. Hawkins.

The voting commissioners from 16 presbyteries given the 35-year-old New York City minister a 404-to-368 margin over Rev. Alva Ross Cartridge of Erie, Pa.

The election of the Negro moderator underlines the brilliant role the church's leaders have taken against racial discrimination. He is pastor of St. Augustine Presbyterian Church in Harlem.

"The fact of his election will be more eloquent than any sermon," said J. Vernon Lloyd, a lawyer from Danville, Calif., in his speech nominating the Negro pastor.

"Hawkins himself said he hoped the church can now move closer to achieving "human dignity for all of God's children."

The United Presbyterian Church has almost 3,200,000 members in about 9,100 churches in the U.S., but only a minor fraction are in the southeastern states.

Hawkins has built his Broadway church from nine members to more than 1,000 in 26 years as its pastor. The membership includes all races and services are in several languages.

Foreign Wars Veterans Favor National Flag

HALIFAX (CP)—N. N. Le Rolfe president of the Maritime Provinces of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, said Thursday that about three-quarters of the 1,200 members of the organization have voted in a secret ballot in favor of a national flag instead of the Red Ensign.

Mr. Le Rolfe said he cabled Prime Minister Pearson "commending the maple leaf as was the first badge worn by members of the Canadian Expeditionary Force in the First World War and was part of the Canadian badges thereafter. We are for the maple leaf Veterans of Foreign Wars."

if you can lift a finger you can start the 1964 Lawn-Boy

The 1964 Lawn-Boy has the easiest starting power mower engine ever built. Simply (1) switch starter button to "on" and push once to prime engine (2) lift up starter handle with two fingers and you're ready to start cutting.

And there's an ingenious new grasscatcher that can't clog because it fills from the back first. A throttle control provides low speed for light cutting and high speed for tough cutting. Quick adjustable wheels let you adapt to desired cutting height without tools. Lawn-Boy's 3 horsepower engine gives you enough spunk to cut through even the thickest grass. And back of it all, you get Lawn-Boy's two-year warranty; twice the warranty anyone else offers. Get your fingers on a new Lawn-Boy soon... at your Lawn-Boy Dealer's. Frame for Living

Nothing pegs a nation's living standards more obviously than the way its citizens eat and house themselves.

Canadians may not be a race of gourmets, but it is safe to generalize that a nation that likes its steaks rare knows how to eat well.

When it comes to housing, the national standard is easier to measure. If anything ties this vast and varied federation more closely together than two railways, a coast-to-coast highway and a central government, it is an appreciation of comfortable living.

Housing is a national preoccupation. Canadians love their homes and visitors from abroad envy them. Is there a country in the world so quick to revile the shoddy, monotonous suburbia? Where else do homes become the exclusive, lifetime hobby and object of devotion of so large a slice of the population?

Our mass housing may be repetitious, but it makes the equivalent in most other countries look like communal barracks in comparison.

"Spec" housing for the two-car trade may try too hard to be different, but at worst it provides solid comfort and at the best, very fine living indeed.

Our designed shelter in all its varied forms is a much published, sure-fire convergation lure and an inspiration to builders and architects the world over.

Canadians are proud of their homes and so they should be. Why? Because they provide the citizens of our raw, cold, damp, hot, windy and sticky climate with some of the coziest, most attractive and most convenient living the world has ever known.

This is one Canadian characteristic that has been sorely neglected in our search for a national identity. Perhaps because we are so quick to find fault with our own achievement, or because our success in this department has come naturally.

The fact is that our high standard of housing is probably due more than anything else to our being a forest nation. We learned how to use wood at an early age and we have been using it with increasing skill ever since.

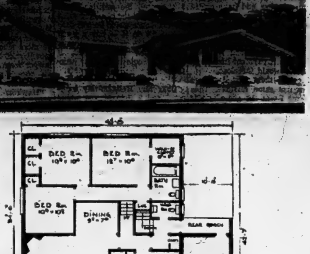
The vast majority of Canadian homes are built on the wood frame construction system. It happens that no other has been found so well suited to Canada's varied and rigorous requirements.

Canadian builders, architects and the lumber industry have developed a winner almost without knowing it. Even the prefabs for granted the advantages he would not dream of being without — all owed to the wood frame construction of his home.

To enumerate: The frame wall provides a cavity made to measure for insulating material. Wood is an excellent natural insulator in its own right, giving double protection against cold and heat or cold.

It provides great freedom of design for the architect. The richness and variety of architecture that Canadians accept as the norm, would be economically impractical with most other materials, certainly out of reach of the small home owner.

Frame walls provide convenient and easily accessible recesses for the concealment of wiring, plumbing and heating ducts.



Frame walls invite a variety of finishes, both inside and out. It is an easy matter to fasten wood siding onto the outside of a frame house, wood panelling on the inside, and to alternate with other materials to suit the dictates of whim and taste.

The frame house can be roofed in and finished with a minimum of delay. This means that Canadian builders have an astonishingly high degree of protection when measured against their counterparts in countries where wood is not in use. They can get homes lower costs.

Canadians may be right thinking the cost of housing is too high, but thanks to wood frame construction, a house is still one of the best buys on the market.

HOME OF THE WEEK

Custom-Built or Ready-Built

A new house, like a new suit of clothes, can be made-to-measure or can be bought ready-made. By far the largest percentage of new homes in Canada are bought from merchant builders. The customer selects his home from among a number of "model homes". While probably not as intimately satisfying as the custom-built home tailored to your own specification, these builder - produced homes still offer considerable variety and comfort. Ready-built homes can also be produced more quickly and the builder can pass on some of the savings to the customer. Savings in land costs, quantity purchase of materials and smaller overhead per unit can mean a substantial reduction in the overall cost of a completed house. Because building competes with each other to offer the best home at an attractive price these benefits are passed on to the purchaser. However, the discriminating buyer who is looking for a more personalized home will have a house built to individual specifications from a selected plan. Before doing this however, the prospective home owner will have to buy a building lot in a locality of his choice.

SILENCER

Muffle noisy clanging of stepon type garbage cans by fitting a length of small-diameter rubber tubing over the top rim of the can by slitting tubing lengthwise. Hold in place with rubber cement.

New House Should Fit Neighborhood

A new house should blend in with neighbouring houses while retaining its individuality. It should not be conspicuously different, but should harmonize with its surroundings. There are certain elementary principles to follow if a house is not to be a misfit among its neighbors. For example a large two - storey house in a row of modest little bungalows would seem awkward and out of place. A house with a high peak roof will clash with other houses down the street if these all have flat deck roofs. The size, shape, and even color of your home should be considered in relation to existing homes or proposed houses in the immediate vicinity. Too much similarity on the other hand can create a drab monotonous effect. Houses in a particular neighborhood should remain within a certain price range. Building an elaborate, expensive home in a low cost development would lower the value of the better house. Building an economy size home among better class homes would not add to its value and would disfigure the neighborhood. Every house in the neighborhood should be distinctive, but not discordant, striving for harmony while avoiding uniformity.

OUTDOOR PROJECTS

For outdoor projects, use special forms of hardboard and plywood that are put together with waterproof adhesive. To preserve these panels properly, coat with paint, varnish or other protective finish.

Note the location of the kitchen which has such convenient access to the extra washroom and basement — also the front and rear entrances both of which have ample closet space Construction is brick veneer. House could be built on a 60 foot lot. 1,296 Sq. Ft.

Standard Blueprints for this Design No. 1002 cost $15.00 for the first set. and $3.00 for additional sets. They are available in Canada by return mail. (Ontario residents must remit 3 percent sales tax) Now available at this Newspaper Office (or from address below) is our new Design Book; entitled "suburban and Country Home. designed for Canadians". price $1.00 and is tax free. This 1964 edition includes information on cost of building and financing in Canada, heating, insulation, constructional details, etc., plus many outstanding new designs — Ranch, one and half storey, split level, two storey colonial, and duplex homes. Also included in this book are full details on how to order blueprints. Apply Ontario Intelligencer Ltd., Box 190, Belleville, Ontario, giving design number and enclosing $1.00.

Suburbs Offer Attractive Living

The things people are looking for when settling in fringe communities of suburbs are accessibility, basic services such as water and sewers, paved roads equitable municipal taxes and as many as possible of the amenities enjoyed by home owners in the longer established neighborhoods. These include schools, playgrounds, shopping centres and parks. If the development is too scattered the cost of services can become excessive. When the population is thinly spread the cost of installing sewers and water mains and storm drains to the new areas, building roads and erecting new schools is divided among fewer households. Revenue to pay for these and other services usually comes from municipal taxation. Caution also demands, when moving into a suburb being newly developed, the zoning regulations should be looked into carefully. Some promising suburbs have been downgraded as a residential community by the presence of heavy industry moving into the area, a plant giving off objectionable fumes, noisy commercial centres or other adverse establishments. A well planned and attractively laid out shopping centre on the other hand can enhance the value of a residential area.

Investment Insurance For the Home Owner

The purchase of a home is probably the biggest single investment the average Canadian family is ever likely to make.

It is probably well insured against fire, wind, lightning and miscellaneous Acts of God. But what about depreciation? The home's future value is certainly most worthy of protection, but it is subject to such vicissitudes that even Lloyds of London would be reluctant to take it on.

Luckily, however, barring major calamity, adequate protection is assured by wise, intelligent action on the part of the home owner himself.

Unless interested in industrial real estate, or sociological studies, he will confine his search for a new home to residential areas with an obvious residential future.

Next, he will select a home with practical living accommodation and a built-in propensity for staying young. Such a home will have the kind of exterior that is easily kept looking fresh; one that will grow old the house.

Any surface will oxidize or become grimy over the years. The exterior finish easiest to maintain attractively is one which may with the least difficulty, be periodically freshened up with a coat of paint or stain.

No exterior is better for this purpose than a finish of durable wood — be it bevel siding, drop siding, channel pattern, vertical or horizontal, board or batten, clear or light knotted, rough sawn or smooth.

Depending upon the pattern selected, the siding may be painted over to a creamy smoothness, or the natural figuring of the wood may be retained within the paint or stain finish to give a unique combination of pigment and texture.

The almost limitless combinations of patterns and treatments that are possible explains why wood sidings look just as right on the Maritime colonial or West Coast contemporary home, as they do on the suburban mansionette or prairie farmhouse.

In addition to adding distinction to a home, siding contributes a precious insulating value. The advantage of adding a wood overcoat to the insulation already inside the walls is obvious, because one inch of wood is equal in insulating value to six inches of brick or about 15 inches of concrete.

Another advantage: Although for best appearance wood siding should be professionally installed, any damage that may occur is easily repaired by anyone with a minimum of woodworking ability.

Provided the choice of pattern and finish is tasteful and appropriate, an exterior of wood siding is probably the only "investment insurance" a home owner is likely to get that also pays dividends in performance and pride of ownership throughout its lifetime.

Kingston Journalist Becomes

A Do-It-Yourself Harpsichordist

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Robert A. O'Brien dissociates himself from the rigid - case school of harpsichord builders. Nor does he hold entirely with the light - construction traditionalists.

Like a professional newspaper editorial writer, which he is, Mr. O'Brien believes in weighing both sides of any argument and extracting the best features of each case to create a fresh approach. This is the technique the music - loving newspaper man used when he built his own harpsichord as a spare-time project.

Mr. O'Brien, while carrying the do-it-yourself trend to a high level of complexity, encountered divergent counsel.

One school of thought among harpsichord builders, the rigid-case group, strives for durability in addition to and sometimes at the expense of good tone, constructing a solid casing for the piano - like instrument and sometimes using metal reinforcement.

Another opinion believes the harpsichord should be lightly built in the traditional fashion in order not to cramp the resonance.

The O'Brien instrument is an attempt at combining the best features of both schools and includes a few individualistic features of his own, such as knee-operated stop levers instead of pedals or hand stops.

Mr. O'Brien, editorial page editor of the Kingston Whig-Standard, became embroiled in building a harpsichord when his desire to buy one was frustrated by high prices.

While making do with recorded versions of harpsichord music, he began discussing with friends the possibility of building a harpsichord, mainly in a joking vein.

However, he was presented one day with a magazine advertisement inviting readers to obtain instructions and some of the materials necessary for building a harpsichord. Mr. O'Brien wrote to Zuckerman Harpsichords Inc. of New York City.

Shortly he was involved in late - night reading sessions, studying plans and instructions, and his basement became a workshop cluttered with plywood, leather and felt, loose keys and strings.

Working from 30 minutes up to six hours of free time in a day, he cut and glued, balanced and polished and tested for 13 months to complete the work.

Today the harpsichord stands shaped somewhat like a miniature grand piano, in the O'Brien living room, finished in black enamel with brass fittings and gold-leaf trim.

The finishing touches involve lettering the O'Brien name and date of construction on the instrument and autographing one of the keys, a custom among harpsichord builders for centuries.

Teen-Age Canada Serious Piano Students Double Across Canada

By JACK HUTTON

The girl sat at the piano, her eyes brimming with salty tears that threatened to overflow any second. Suddenly she dashed to the open window.

A startled male — her piano examiner — gripped the edge of his table, wondering whether he should rush to her side.

"If I don't pass this examination. I shall kill myself," said the girl, staring fixedly at the traffic two floors below.

As far as Earle Moss, the examiner, knows, the girl is still alive and well — despite the fact that he had to fail her on her piano examination.

This is the weekend when 56 brave men and women from the Royal Conservatory of Music fan out over Canada, preparing to examine 40,000 students who have inflicted months of preparation on their families or neighbors.

Six weeks from now they will collapse somewhere in a quiet corner, worn out by days of trying to decide whether Janie C. is or whether Johnny M. even recognizes a piano.

If anyone thinks the piano is going out of style in the family parlor this week is proof to the contrary. I was told by Conservatory officials this week that the number of serious piano students has doubled across Canada since 1952.

The urge to play something — even just to impress the family — apparently hits every corner of our country.

Quebec students start their examinations this week. The first examinations start in both Toronto and Winnipeg, May 26, one day later than the first examinations in Hartland, N.B.

Vancouver music students start proving their calibre May 28 while examinations start in Victoria June 1. By the end of June the results should be in the mailboxes of all applicants.

Whatever way you look at it, it adds up to a lot of piano playing across the country.

If the average student plays 30 minutes for his or her examiner, that means 20,000 hours — the equivalent of two and one-half months — of piano music will be wafted into the air in a short time.

I passed my Grade 10 piano examination last year but am taking a brother this spring. Therefore, I decided to take an objective look at the problems of the men and women who must assign marks to aspiring Paderewsky's.

Examiners, I found, can spot immediately several of the most common types of students.

First type: the student who bounces into the room, hands the examiner the music and announces: "My father's buying me a bicycle if I pass this exam." The poor examiner knows he'll be a hard-hearted wretch if he denies this student a bicycle.

Second type: the student who comes in shaking like a leaf, knocks over the piano stool, falls down with it and plays in the same style. The examiner never finds out whether this student can really play or not.

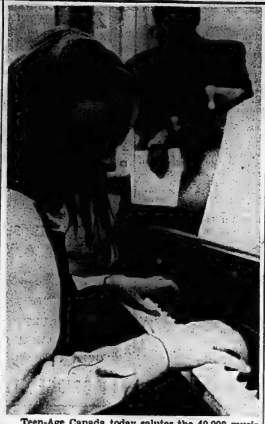
Any reader of this column falls into the preferred type, I am sure — the calm, assured student who smiles politely at the examiner, tests the balance of the piano with an expert arpeggio and then plays faultlessly.

I got 68 out of 100 on my Grade 10 examination which proves I didn't. But good luck to all 40,000 candidates who are being braver than this columnist this month.

YOUNG GENIUSES

A reader from Victoria, B.C., has challenged a recent column on historical examples of people who were successful long before they were out of their early 20's.

"Personally," writes the unsigned reader, "I think teenagers should be encouraged to regard their very young years as years to learn, not years to rule the world or to say how it should be run.



"Could it not be said that genius almost invariably shows ability in youth. People such as Chopin and others you mentioned are immortals because they were geniuses and, usually, child prodigies. It does not follow that youth rather than maturity is the decisive and responsible time of life.

"For everyone early youth is a time for learning, depending and obeying accepting guidance and conviction."

I'm sorry I can't quote all the letter which was an extremely thoughtful and well-written one. But I still stick to my basic point: the fact that someone is under 25 years of age does not mean his or her ideas don't have value.

TOP TWENTY TUNES

1 Hello Dolly, Louis Armstrong; 2 Bits and Pieces, Dave Clark Five; 3 Can't Buy Me Love, Beatles; 4 Shoop Shoop Song, Betty Everett; 5 Do You Want To Know A Secret, Beatles; 6 Suspicion, Terry Stafford; 7 Don't Let The Rain Come Down, Serendipity Singers; 8 Glad All Over, Dave Clark; 9 Twist and Shout, Beatles; 10 My Guy, Mary Wells; 11 Rosanie, Four Seasons; 12 Shangri-La, Robert Maxwell; 14 Dead Man's Curve, Jan and Dean; 14 White on White, Danny Williams; 15 That's The Way The Boys Are, Lesley Gore; 16 Needles and Pins, Searchers; 17 You're a Wonderful One, Marvin Gaye; 18 Money, Kingsmen; 19 I'm So Proud, Impressions; 20 It's Over, Roy Orbison.

Teen-Age Canada today salutes the 40,000 music students across Canada who face examinations during the next two weeks and tells a bit about their problems.

Eddie Sargent Of Owen Sound Enters Race

TORONTO (CP) — Mayor Eddie Sargent of Owen Sound stepped into the race for Ontario Liberal leadership Thursday, saying he will campaign by airplane throughout the province's 108 ridings in his four-seater Cessna 182.

Mr. Sargent, who represents Grey North in the legislature, became the fifth candidate for the office. Three of the other four also are members of the legislature.

Mr. Sargent will open his campaign Tuesday in St. Marys, with a speech to the Perth County Liberal Association.

The other candidates are Robert Nixon (Brant); Andy Thompson (Thunder Bay-Dorercourt); Joseph Gould (Toronto Bracondale), and Charles Templeton, former executive editor of the Toronto Star.

Mr. Sargent, 40, said that already he has pledges of support from throughout the province.

At the annual meeting of the Ontario Liberal Association last week he urged holding the leadership convention next spring to give his campaign time to get rolling.

However, the meeting overruled the wishes of the majority of the members of the legislature and decided upon a convention this fall, probably Sept. 16-17.

Marsh Hill

MARSH HILL — The ladies of Marsh Hill United Church served dinners and lunches on Tuesday at the Belleville Livestock Sales Barns.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Finkle and daughters spent Sunday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Johnston and Sheila at their cottage at Round Lake, Havelock.

Parents night was held at school on Thursday night when the pupils put on a program under the supervision of their teachers Miss Maureen Cooper and Mrs. Ralph Parks.

Guests on Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Campbell were: Mrs. Will Shaw, Mr and Mrs. Milton Shaw of Ivanhoe; Mrs. Blake Ketchenson, Mr. and Mrs. Ross Ketchenson, Linda and Gwen of Moira.

The district annual of Hastings West Women's Institute was held Tuesday at Marsh Hill Church when the members of Pine Grove Women's Institute catered for the luncheon.

Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Clare attended the wedding of her sister in Peterborough on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. David Hollinger were recent Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Mitchell of Demorestville. Miss Bessie Hollinger of West Huntington and Mrs. Edith Gay of Belleville accompanied them.

Prairie Economy Booming, Farmers Expect Bumper Yr.

WINNIPEG (CP)—The economy of the three Prairie provinces is booming as farmers anticipate another bumper year of sales in 1964.

Following a record year of wheat sales in 1963, farm, business and government spokesmen in Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba echo the same feeling of optimism.

Bolstering this was word from a Winnipeg grain marketing firm Wednesday that there are "persistent rumors" that a new wheat deal of about 150,000,000 bushels is soon to be announced between Canada and Russia.

Saskatchewan farmers who received a record $630,000,000 farm cash income in 1963 appear confident the wheat they grow this year will be sold. "Persistent rumors" still in their pockets from last year they have embarked on a farm machinery buying spree.

Said W. A. Robertson, a Regina farm equipment dealer: "We have sold so many combines already this year that it just doesn't make a comparison with previous year."

SALES MUCH HIGHER

He and other dealers in the province report sales as much as 100 per cent higher than during the same period in 1963.

In Winnipeg, a spokesman for a large implements dealer said sales so far this year in Manitoba are up 50 per cent.

Early estimates point to the seeding of a record wheat acreage this year in Saskatchewan while Alberta seed dealers report a moderate increase in seed sales.

In Manitoba a government spokesman said wheat acreage "will be up compared with last year and flax and special crops —especially rape—will also be increased."

Seeding operations now are making rapid progress after favorable weather during the last week and, weather permitting, should be completed in the near future.

Liberals Win Sask. Election By 752 Votes

REGINA (CP) — D. J. Vanscickle, chief Saskatchewan electoral officer, said Wednesday that official figures show the Liberal party won the April 22 Saskatchewan election by 752 votes.

His figures for the official count completed last Saturday are: Liberals, 269,325 votes, or 50.4 per cent of the total 666,547; CCF, 268,573, or 40.3 per cent; Progressive Conservatives, 125,850, or 18.9 per cent, and other parties, 2,699, or .4 per cent.

(Through an error in compilation, The Canadian Press erroneously reported Tuesday that the Liberals won with 568 fewer votes than the CCF.)

The Liberals under Ross Thatcher won 33 seats in the 59-seat legislature. The CCF, in power since 1944, got 25 and the Progressive Conservatives 1. The Liberals will take office Friday.

Following is the official party vote from all polls compared with vote by parties in the 1960 election (percentages bracketed):

	1964	1960
Lib	269,325 (40)	222,066 (33)
CCF	268,573 (40)	276,896 (41)
PC	125,850 (19)	94,713 (14)
Others	2,699 (.4)	85,567 (12)

Crown Appeals Acquittal of NONG Head

TORONTO (CP)—The Crown filed notice Wednesday it is appealing the acquittal of Ralph K. Farris on a perjury charge.

Farris, 53, of Vancouver, president of Northern Ontario Natural Gas Company, was acquitted of the charge last month by a jury that found him guilty of a second charge of perjury.

Farris' lawyers filed an appeal application April 24 when he was sentenced to nine months definite and three months indeterminate on the second charge.

The NONG president is free on $10,000 cash bail pending the hearing on his application before the Ontario Court of Appeal.

Farris is appealing his sentence and conviction for perjury when he told two judicial inquiries in 1958 and 1962 that he did not know who got a block of 14,000 NONG shares.

The Crown is appealing his acquittal of a perjury charge in connection with a statement in which he said he did not give instructions for distributing 600 company shares.

4-H Homemaking Clubs To Hold Achievement Day

Hastings County's 4-H Homemaking Club members will attend Achievement Day for the Spring project, "Sleeping Garments" within the next two weeks.

The Hastings South Achievement Day will be held at Moira Secondary School, Belleville, on Saturday, May 23. Ninety-eight girls, representing 12 clubs, are expected to complete the project that day. The following clubs will exhibit; record books and pyjamas or nightgowns made during the project: Bethel-Zion, Foxboro 1 and 11, Melrose, Plainfield, River Valley, Sidney South 1 and 11, Thurlandale and Walbridge 1, 11 and 111.

The Hastings North Achievement Day will be held at Centre Hastings Secondary School, Madoc, on Saturday, May 30, when about 70 girls will complete the project. They are members of the following clubs: Chapman, Eldorado 1 and 11, Harts-Riggs, Marmora, McArthur's Mills, Queensborough.

The Achievement Days are the climaxes of the project, which began in early February with training schools for Club leaders. In this time of three, each group has met at least eight times, to study factors influencing selection of fabrics, patterns and trimmings, for sleepwear, to learn and practice construction methods and to keep a written record of progress made. At the Achievement Day, each girl will participate by judging classes of fabrics and garments, and will demonstrate one of the new skills she has acquired by applying lace to a hem by hand.

The afternoon program will feature educational skits, demonstrations and exhibits presented by club members and comments on work done by visiting Home Economists. Presentation of certificates of achievement, County and Provincial honors and Sterling Silver 4-H Homemaking Club teaspoons will be made.

Visitors are invited to attend the afternoon program.

The 4-H Homemaking Club program is organized by the County Home Economist of the Ontario Department of Agriculture's Home Economics Service. In Hastings County, all local clubs are sponsored by Women's Institute groups which supply financial support and provide leaders.

SEASONLESS HOLIDAY WARDROBES

There once was a time when all holidays used to be two-weeks-with-pay. In many fortunate homes find the holiday has grown to three weeks and it's still with pay! The airlines tell me that this extended holiday period for many employees is one of the big reasons for the increase in overseas air travel. If your employers are among the forward-thinkers, count yourself lucky and resolve to get as much out of the extra time as possible.

For a 21 day jaunt to Europe, the usual Canadian resort wardrobe just will not do. Except in the Mediterranean fishing villages, shorts and slacks are taboo. Of course, you will need a bathing suit, plus a cover-up robe or jacket on any beach. But with all that night-seeing, you will not have much time for the beach. Some wardrobes for a European jaunt can run into quite a bit of money unless you do what seasoned travellers do. They accept the fact that very few of their travel clothes for the day-time trips overseas have to be new!

In Europe, unless you are going into the heart of Spain, Rome, Southern Italy or Greece in July or August, you will find that a reliable double-knit dress or suit ensemble (perhaps the one you wore all winter in the office) can be your most reliable daytime costume. Of course, a few cool summer dresses and a summer suit should be included, but do leave the play clothes at home. A quick trip to the cleaners for some of your favorite outfits, and they can go right into the luggage. You will find that they look seasonless and correct on a sight-seeing tour, in the Louvre, in London or in the chateaux country.

If you happen to own a mink stole and you are planning a budget tour, give the mink a holiday. Leave it at home. There will not be many occasions to wear it because your budget will not be taking you to the chi-chi places. You will only find yourself worrying about its safety.

With Europe on the planning boards this summer, save your money and send your favourite fashions to the cleaners. Pack a few daytime summer dresses and one summer cocktail dress, plus a few sweaters. Include also a few packable jerkins and two pairs of walking shoes.

If you have a question on fashion, just write Pegg Rogers care of this paper.

St. George's Guild Holds Spring Tea

St. George's Guild hall was the scene of a pretty spring tea held Tuesday afternoon under the convenership of Mrs. L. Domosiy.

Receiving the guests at the entrance to the hall which was highlighted with an attractive tea table centred with an artistic arrangement of multi colored tulips, lilacs and narcissi and flanked with green and yellow candles in crystal candelabra was Mrs. P. Welch. Presiding at the silver tea service throughout the afternoon were Mrs. E. F. Smith, Mrs. R. G. Fleming, Mrs. H. Pitt and Mrs. R. H. Godden. The quartette guest tables were equally attractive arranged in white cloths and centred with arrangements of violas.

There were three sales tables including a generous assortment of candy, homecooking and novelties, with Mrs. H. Armstrong and Mrs. H. Sharp in charge of candy sales; Mrs. Garrow and Mrs. Wessels in charge of the homecooking and the novelty table convened by Mrs. W. Collyer, Mrs. A. Howe and Mrs. G. Gulliver.

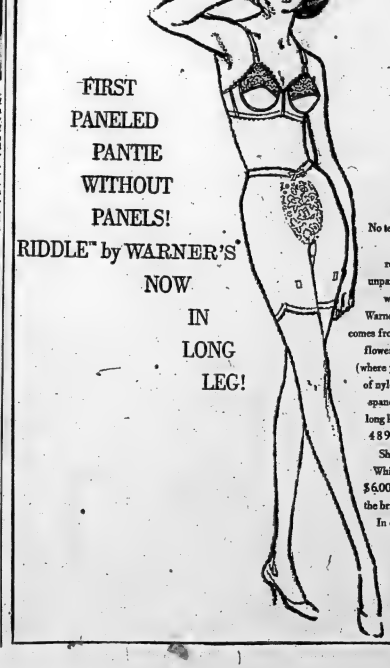
GIRL GUIDE, BROWNIE NEWS

The local association of Guide and Brownie mothers of Belleville South East District recently held a meeting at the home of district commissioner Mrs. T. Colden. The meeting was in the form of a morning coffee party.

The commissioner announced that Guide Lynn Neill has been chosen to go to Great Britain with other Ontario Guides this summer, and will receive some financial assistance from the Division fund set up for the purpose of aiding guides travelling out of the country. It was agreed that South East District contribute $50. to this fund. In order to raise the money required, and to assist new guiders with buying their uniforms in the fall, Mrs. J. A. Ellard, Plaza Square, volunteered to convene a telephone bridge and euchre during May. All mothers and friends of South East Brownies and Guides were asked to assist in this project, by turning in money and scores to Mrs. Ellard.



The Guide movement is always looking for new Guide and Brownie leaders, and the Commissioner asked the mothers to notify her of any prospective leaders.

This summer five girls from South East district are going to Doe Lake Provincial camp.

It was reported that the work, thought and time which South East Brownies and Guides put into making Valentine trys favors at the hospital was much appreciated and it is hoped that this project will be continued another year.

Mrs. S. Reston consented to be the new treasurer succeeding Mrs. R. Bailey.

Several matters of business were discussed.

The meeting closed with prayer followed by lunch with

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

WHAT'S YOUR E. Q.?

The telephone can be a tool of convenience or a tool of torture, depending on how politely it is used. Do you know the proper etiquette when you make or receive a call? Here are a few pertinent questions:

1. What's the correct way to answer the phone at home?

2. How does one properly identify oneself when calling?

3. Who should terminate a call, the caller or receiver?

4. What should one do when someone calls and there are guests in the room?

5 In 5 impolite to indicate to a caller that one is busy and would prefer to call back at a more convenient time?

6. When phoning an invitation and the party you are trying to reach is not at home, should you 'eave a message?

-1. If you cannot reach a person, should you leave your name anyway, with whomever answers?

8. When one makes a phone call, what is the most important point of politeness to r e m e m ber?

9. What is the correct way to answer the phone in a business office?

10. When a secretary p u t s through a call, what is the procedure?

ANSWERS:

1 At home, the phone is correctly answered with a simple "hello" by a member of the family. A maid would say "The Jones residence," but this is stilled when used by a member of the household.

2. Unless plain "Mary" or "Jack" is identification enough, it's correct to say "This is Mary Smith" or "This is Jack Jones," without giving a title of Miss, Mrs. or Mr. which are used in trade and business.

3. The caller should identify himself, state his reason for calling and then terminate the call when finished. The call may be prolonged only if the person being called seems to want to do so.

4 Either make the call short and sweet, or ask if he or she may call back later.

5. It's more polite to call back at a less hectic time instead of keeping a caller waiting or cooperating in terminating the conversation to take care of other things.

6. The person bent on issuing an invitation should leave her name and promise to call back at a time when the other woman will be home.

7. Yes, it's more polite to do so than just to say that a friend called or simply say nothing and hang up.

8. To make sure the phone call is not inconvenient at the time and to keep it as brief as possible, while being cordial and polite.

9. A secretary says "Mr. Jones' office, Miss Smith speaking," and then asks if she may be of help.

10. When she puts through a call, she should make sure her boss is ready to accept it immediately. It's discourteous to place a call and then have the person on the other end wait until the caller is ready to get on the line.

SHOULD HAVE HERO

MONTREAL (CP) — Writer Sybil Black of Montreal says every Canadian child should have a Canadian hero. Mrs. Black writes one-act plays for children to act and produces based on the lives of famous Canadians. Her play Koo Koo-Sing, the Star Gazer, about geographer David Thompson, is being rehearsed by children in two Montreal schools.

Honor Couple At Double Presentation

RAWDON — On Friday evening a double presentation party was held in Wellman's L.O.L. in honor of the newly married couple, Mr. and Mrs. Allan Lake (nee Betty Maybee). The group represented the Wellman's community and the bridegroom's neighbors and friends at Stirling.

Mr. Craig Watson was master of ceremonies in the absence of the pastor, the Rev. W. G. Fletcher, who sent his regrets. Mr. Watson was pianist accompanist for the singing and vocal solos.

Selections were played by Mrs. John Carlisle, Mrs. Stewart Hoover and Mrs. Jack Dunham. Gordon Ashton contributed an accordion solo and Virginia Pollock and Carol Ashton gave a duet selection. Vocal selections were rendered by Jeanette Dracup and Mrs. Marguerite McMillen. Mrs. Burton Morton and Mrs. Percy MacMullen contributed humorous readings. The closing number was a vocal duet in honor of the bride and bridegroom contributed by Mrs. Jim Pollock and Mrs. Fred Van Tassel.

The honored guests were given assets of honor and George Carlisle read an address on behalf of neighbors and friends at Stirling. The presentations of an ironing board and cover, a lace tablecloth, scatter mat, blue wool blanket and magazine rack were made by Mrs. George Carlisle, Messrs. Ross Carlisle and Ralph Jeffs.

Mrs. Gerald Russett read an appreciative message on behalf of Wellman's community and Messrs. Ted Preston and Kenneth Tompkins made the presentation of a room divider and floral tablecloth.

Allan and Betty voiced appreciation thanks to both groups for the lovely gifts and invited one and all to visit them in their home at Wellman's.

The hostess group served refreshments and enjoyed a social half hour, after which they extended best wishes to the young couple.

Enrol Teacher's Aid, Plan Dull Girl's Improvement

DEAR DORIS — My girl friend and I have a friend who tags along with us. She has no personality; no cleanliness; and to top it off our other friends won't go near her. We're not being snobs. It wasn't too bad at first, but lately she has really gotten on our nerves.

We dread to be with her. Help! What tactics can we use to lose our unwanted companion? We can't just say, "Get lost."— SEVENTEENS.

DEAR SEVENTEENS — Blessings on your soft hearts! Little Unwanted clings to you because she senses you just won't say "Get lost!" Doubtless others do.

DORIS CLARK

Here's a thought: If you could help her improve, others would become friendly with her and relieve you. Instead of "Get lost" could you say, "Find yourself?" Tell her you are worried about her and that you don't think she makes the best of herself. This goes for being clean, having good manners, doing interesting things; standing on her own two feet!

How about taking your teacher or guidance counsellor into your Conspiracy to Help?

DEAR DORIS — During the past year I have gained a considerable amount of weight. I seem to look so fat in everything. I have tried to cut down by not eating so much but I just turn around and eat even more.

Could you tell me what things I could eat and lose weight instead of starving myself? What is the average weight of a 15-year-old girl anyway? — DESPERATE GAINER.

DEAR GAINER — Now you are on the right track. You don't have to starve. You can eat lettuce, apples, lean meats, until they come out your ears. But when you come face to face with a cream puff, run, don't walk, in the opposite direction.

This goes for candy, pie, sweets and fats of many kinds. I'll send you a reducing diet if you'll send me a stamped, addressed envelope to put in it, along with ten cents.

I'd need to know your height, as well as your age, before I could say what your approximate weight should be.

To SENDER OF CHAIN LETTERS — Sorry, but I'm breaking the chain. I simply cannot feel that this orderly universe provides good luck for the superstitious members of a chain gang, bad luck for those who don't hitch on.

DEAR DORIS — I am 14 years old and I like a boy who is a little older than I am. I don't know if he likes me or if he is just leading me on.

If he ever said goodbye I don't think that I could go on living. Should I be going out with him? — BEWILDERED.

DEAR BEWILDERED — Not alone.

DEAR DORIS — I would like to become a social worker too. So I have decided to go to medicine and get a doctor's degree. I am a bright student studying in grade 11. Is it possible for me to get admission to college, if I pass this year? If so, do you think I can go straight away to college without taking grade 13 in high school? — LOVER OF SOCIAL WORK.

DEAR LOVER — How's that again? You want to be a social worker or a doctor? Or a doctor's degree? And you want to go to college without grade 13?

Social work and medicine are two different professions. And students are required to finish high school before going to college.

DEAR DORIS — I am concerned about a young mother who is 18 years old and pretty headstrong. When lifting her little girl, who is five months old, she lifts her up by the wrists and says that is the proper way.

Don't you think it is safer to lift a child with your hands under their armpits, even at an older age, in case a bone could be pulled out of place?

I don't like interfering, but it worries me, so will be greatly obliged to have your answer. — ANXIOUS AUNT.

DEAR ANXIOUS AUNT — After checking with paediatrists, I can say definitely that lifting a baby by the wrists is dangerous and can cause dislocations. The pediatricians advise using the method suggested by you, or with one hand under the seat.

CONFIDENTIAL TO HELP — Just because you love him is no reason why he should walk all over you. I'd suggest you seek personal counselling through your child care agency or mental health unit. He is being most unreasonable.

DEAR DORIS — It annoys me no end how a female cannot go for a walk in the evening without all sorts of men wanting you to come over to their cars so they can "talk to you", or asking where a certain street it, or would you care to join them in a cup of coffee?"

After being shut up in a house all day with children, it would be very relaxing to go for a short stroll before turning in for the night, without being pestered by these "Prowlers on Wheels"!

If it really is information they want, there are the police they could ask. I'm sure a lot of other women feel the same way about this.— WISTFUL THINKING.

DEAR WISTFUL THINKING — Well, perhaps they do. What about it, ladies?

Readers' Friday Column

by Mary Moore

QUESTION: My husband does not like to carve meat either at table or sideboard . . . also I dislike old (?) method of host serving meat and passing plates to hostess for vegetables. It seems as much passing is required for that as when one pass vegetable dishes all around the table. I don't like a cluttered table so have been using a TV tables set up on which to place the dishes after they have been passed around. But when my lady guest of honor is seated right of host, this makes for inconvenience to serve her first — what arrangement do you make — where do you place your platter and vegetable dishes and how do you keep serving "orderly"? . . . A Forever Reader.

FRIDAY

Dinner Menu

Chilled Vegetable Juice; Baked Stuffed Whitefish; Lemon Wedges; Scalloped Potatoes; Buttered Green Beans; Shredded Fresh Pineapple-Hawaiian Loaf with apple; Chocolate Mallow Slices (see Wednesday); Coffee.

ANSWER: Please send your address on stamped self-addressed envelope next time.

You ask me how we serve table: I do what you don't want to do — host carves meat at table, passes plate down right side of table to hostess (me) and I serve vegetables on it and pass it to guest of honor. All ladies present are then served, then gentlemen, host passing his last empty plate to hostess on which are places vegetables and host carves his meat and serves himself last. This is the accepted Canadian custom.

But if you don't like it, don't annoy yourself with it. Could you have your oldest daughter pass the platter of meat to the guest of honor and then pass it to her father who could then pass it on to his left from guest to guest at table? Your daughter could then start one vegetable with your guest of honor, then pass it to her father, and so on. Lacking daughter (or willing son), you could pass the meat platter from where you sit and direct the guest at your left to "pass this to Mrs. (guest of honor) please". Thus you direct the traffic of meat. and vegetable without any inconvenience and they can end up on your side table.

Or since you do not like a cluttered table, could you get more leaves in the dining table, so that it would not be cluttered - looking? In my opinion the food in the serving dishes is beautiful. Plates should be covered to keep vegetables warm for second servings.

To sum up, make your decision, then patiently stick to it, for serving at table in an orderly manner is a fine art, and requires conversational properties in the part of you and your husband.

U.C.W. Meeting

WALLBRIDGE U.C.W.

The May dinner meeting was fairly well attended with 31 members present and Mrs. Harris presiding. About $25 was realized.

The caretaking of $25 for three months was brought up to date. Mrs. Harris reported for the card committee. It was recorded that 17 visits were made.

Correspondence on C.G.I.T. work was read and considered. Mrs. Neita Ketcheson read the correspondence on the supply work which is to be sent in, in August.

A reading was given by Mrs. Evans from an excerpt of Nathan Cohen's about his visit to Hong Kong and the appalling conditions they are expected to survive in. The president brought in the report from the Board meeting.

Church Groups

A.O.T.S. GROUP

RAWDON — Twenty men attended the May meeting of Rawdon charge A.O.T.S. at Bethel Church hall. They enjoyed a pot-luck supper after which Kenneth Tompkins was master of ceremonies. Craig Watson acted as sgt-at-arms and he also conducted the singsong with Ralph Griffis as pianist. John Carlisle gave the fellowship and Hugh Lyons the devotional.

The entertainment was a large selection of slides presented by Ray Williams of Campbellford. The views showed various scenes in Florida; also a few from Bay of Fundy and Seymour Townships.

The Rev. W. G. Fletcher voiced thanks and the meeting closed.

ST. ANDREW'S W.M.S.

The Evening Auxiliary of St. Andrew's Women's Missionary Society held their May meeting at the home of Mrs. J. Ritchie, 16 Eleanor Gardens, with Mrs. F. Sheffield as co-hostess, Mrs. J. Allen, president, presided at the business part of the meeting.

Mr. Ritchie in presenting the program asked members to imagine themselves on a one day trip with the Mobile Unit in India. The evangelical driver, two nurses and Bible woman travel in a jeep through the country doing a most valuable work tending the sick, evangelizing and teaching.

Those who had attended the 100th anniversaries celebrations of the Women's Missionary Society Western Division in Montreal, were asked to bring reports on some of the highlights. Mrs. Sheffield gave a most complete resume of Wednesday's three hour sessions, on the Women's Missionary Society's motto "The Whole World," where she said the "Invitation" is in the World as God first presented it in the Bible, the "Motivation" which Christ presented through the Word in Flesh and the Command which is our own witness.

Mrs. Huiser told of the presentations by the national and organization departments on the "Mission to Canada." Mrs. Scott told of the challenge given by Mrs. K. C. McMillan, secretary of the Canadian Bible Society, that there should be no refrain in the complex problems of modern living, and the past should be used only as an inspiration for the future.

LATTER DAY SAINTS

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Department of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints met Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. W. L. Canniff, 239 Dufferin Ave.

The worship period under the direction of Mrs. Canniff, assisted by Mrs. Diane Cline, was built from the writing of Ramona Seeley.

Mrs. G. Else taught the lesson on friendly visiting from the book "Ambassadors for Christ." Beatitudes of friendship by Visiting by Eloise Johnson were also given.

The meeting convened with Mrs. W. L. Canniff in the chair. Items from the "Distaff" by Mrs. Wm. Woodwood Jr. of church headquarters, Independence, Missouri were read. The new course of study for women by Mrs. E. L. Sonnel, "The Righteous Generation" was recommended for the women's department.

Mrs. Nicholl, Mary Mervin told of women's work in the church in Tahiti. Mrs. William Nicholl read a letter, told of women's work in the church in the Detroit - International Stake.

Plans for the future were also informed that recently women in the Korean Mission were organized into a Women's Department.

Mrs. Canniff reminded the ladies of the seventh annual regional women's retreat to be held at Port Elgin in June.

Following the meeting a social time was enjoyed. Prize for the quiz game was won by Mrs. Jack McCurdy.

C.A'S MEET

FRANKFORD — Frankford Full Gospel Tabernacle C.A's met on Monday evening, May 15th and Rev. Fred Spring welcomed everyone.

Mrs. Jim Turner, one of Dr. Billy Graham's representatives gave a resume of Mr. Graham's work and showed a newsreel of the evangelistic team crusade in Hong Kong, China as well as a short newsreel of the "World's Fair Pavilion" in New York City, plus the Paris Crusade in France.

The challenging colored film, a her father who could then her father, Argentina, "Locia" was enjoyed by all.

Women's Institutes

SIDNEY SOUTH W.I.

The May meeting of the Sidney South Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Findlay Scrimshaw on Wednesday evening with a fair attendance. Mrs. F. M. Nobes conducted the business meeting, wherein plans were made for next year's program. Mrs. Stanley Spafford and Mrs. F. M. Nobes were delegated to attend the Hastings County Museum workshop.

Mrs. Fred Aikens, Mrs. Martin Mywaart, Mrs. J. W. Sargent, Mrs. F. M. Nobes, Mrs. Fred Means, Mrs. Percy Sutherland, Mrs. Dawson Douglas, Mrs. Ted Aikens and Mrs. Ken Bush were among those attending the West Hastings annual held at Pine Grove. Mrs. F. Aikens represented Sidney South at the Guelph Conference.

The Institute was invited to visit the County Home, also the Quinte Spring tea. The Canadian Industries committee, Mrs. Deibert McComb and Mrs. Findlay Scrimshaw are sponsoring a bus trip to Ottawa on May 27.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Scrimshaw and her assistant hostesses, Mrs. Keith Johnston, Mrs. Douglas Hooton and Mrs. Fred Means.

BAY OF QUINTE W.I.

2nd SIDNEY — Mrs. Arnold Ketcheson was hostess to the Bay of Quinte Institute last Wednesday evening with over 20 members and one visitor present.

Mrs. Cecil Jeffery opened the meeting in the usual manner after which Mrs. John Reid gave a report on the Tweedsmuir history project held in Belleville recently. She reminded members that in later years these Tweedsmuir histories of each community will be in much demand. One institute has spent as much as $400 on their history. The secretary, Mrs. Harold Dickens will write the Women's Institute Dominion curator to inquire as to an appropriate cover for the Bay of Quinte Institute curator, Mrs. Clarence Holmes.

Mrs. Reid read a ballad and Mrs. Luella Stickle read a poem. Community singing was enjoyed with Mrs. Clayton Curtis the leader and Mrs. Frank White at the piano. Readings were given by Mrs. J. Howe and Mrs. F. McCormack.

Two contests were conducted by Doris Dickens with Mrs. C. Funk and Mrs. F. White as winners. Everyone signed the get-well card to be sent to Mrs. Stanley Holland at the Kingston hospital.

Mrs. Jeryma Palmer was auctioneer for the sale of a number of articles which were sold at a maximum price of 25 cents which caused much merriment during the bidding. An amount of $15 was raised for the fund.

At the recent district annual of Hastings West Women's Institute held in Stirling Hill United Church, Mrs. Frank White, Mrs. John Reid, Mrs. Cecil Jeffrey, Mrs. Mrs. Jeffery, Mrs. J. Palmer, Mrs. Ross Stickle and Mrs. Alva Meyers attended.

STRIPPER SEEKS DIVORCE

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Stripteaser Lili St. Cyr is trying to shed her sixth husband, Joseph Condon, charging extreme cruelty. Miss St. Cyr, 45, known as The Cat Girl, filed a divorce suit at Superior Court Thursday under her legal name, Marie Durnar. She asked no alimony, but asked that Condon pay $3,000 a month for support.

YOUNGSTERS going to camp this summer will want to learn to start that mannequin hope look. Make yourself a pocket sewing kit for on-the-shopping or knitting bag. Put in some socks or patterns or what-have-you, thread-needles, thimble—and a supply of name tapes. You'll be pleasantly surprised how much you'll get done in odd waiting moments.

Canadian Fashion & Fad

FROM THE MAIL BOX

Dear Pegg Rogers: Could you please give me some advice? I am going to have my first baby in four months. That means that I have the warmest part of the summer to get through — somehow. I hate the heat anyway, but this year I am afraid that I will suffer even more than usual from wilted hair-do's" and that boiling feeling. Shift dresses are fashionable, but you do get tired of them. What do you think of maternity shorts and slacks? A friend of mine wore them when she was pregnant, but she wore tucked-in blouses with them and frankly — well!

So far, I have just moved up a size in dresses from size 12 to 14, but the latter are getting quite tight and also a little sloppy through the shoulders.

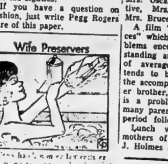
Dear G. E.: First of all congratulations on the coming event! I hope you feel important and interesting because you are.

Please don't waste money buying dresses in larger sizes than you normally wear. By the time you have them altered to fit your new figure, the size has changed again. Every fashion force has, at least, a small selection of maternity clothes. This season, you will find two-piece styles with straight skirts, which have a comfortable adjustable cut-out section. The pieces are then brought to cover the cut-out skirt and hide your face-framing collars. There are shifts, also adjustable, of course and other one-piece styles which are cleverly cut to hide the expanding tummy area.



Maternity shorts and slacks are well-designed with adjustable waistlines, of course, they must be worn with a blouse or overblouse. . . rather like a poncho coat. (Coolie coats just happen to be one of the "in" fashions this season even if you are not pregnant.)

You asked for a basic wardrobe for the summer. I suggest that you buy one good maternity dress, either a one or two-piece style, in any of your favourite colors. Pink is fast one other less expensive dress. These two dresses should be the kind that you can wear anywhere you have to go. . . out to dinner . . . to the movies. . . to church, etc.

For around the-house and garden buy one pair of maternity shorts and one pair of maternity slacks You will need three long overblouses, so you might do a little color co-ordinating here. Try to have everything match or contrast pleasantly.

You should wear low heels as much as possible. That means you have a wonderful excuse to invest in a pair of those comfortable, very chic "Italian type" sandals. These should be in a color to suit nearly your new dresses, slacks and shorts. Then you need a white veiling hat for church and a few hair bands to keep your hair off the nape of your neck when the temperature hits the eighties.

If you have a question on fashion, just write Pegg Rogers care of this paper.

The Queen Has Neighbor Trouble

By HELEN CATHCART

The Royal Biographer

". . . live behind Selfridges — where you live is a cheap Cockney boy once challenged Queen Mother.

She laughed and met the cheerful questioner on his own terms. "I live behind Gorringes," she said, naming another famous London store.

Then, with a wave on the Palace gardens, where the Queen has already had to plant a screen of trees to shield her favorite walk from the windows of the office block. Near there, to prevent office workers from enjoying the unobstructed view of the Palace swimming pool, the summer, house where the Queen likes to work at a ceiling on summer afternoons, and the terraces used for garden parties.

At Balmoral, too, a Swiss hotel group has bought the 60-acre estate that runs right alongside the Queen's own lands.

The connecting gates and drives were extremely useful while Mar was occupied by Prince Philip's brother, Gerald, as royal relatives, used to visit one another frequently.

When the Queen goes deer stalking, she is likely to meet hotel guests doing the same thing.

SCOTTISH NEIGHBORS

The Queen's other Scottish neighbors are the Farquharsons of Invercauld, who have held their turreted castle and lands for 400 years, and indeed once owned Balmoral itself. These days the Laird of Invercauld has to pay his way like everyone else. Invercauld House is often let to paying guests. A piper likewise is well-designed with adjustable waistlines, of course, they must be worn with a blouse or overblouse. . . rather like a poncho coat. (Coolie coats just happen to be one of the "in" fashions this season even if you are not pregnant.)

Home and School News

S. H. CONNOR SCHOOL

TWEED — The regular monthly meeting of the S. H. Connor Home and School Association was held in the school on Wednesday. Due to the absence of the president, Mr. James Keenan, the meeting was presided over by the vice-president, Mr. Murrin Dillsbourgh. He reminded the members of a dinner to be held by the Belleville District Council in Belleville on May 28th.

The association will again be responsible for the expenses in connection with the field day and the annual graduation dinner.

The slate of officers for the 1964-65 term was presented and approved and is as follows: President, Mr. M. Dillsbough; vice-president, Mr. Gilbert Corby; secretary, Miss-Sheila Alford; treasurer, Mrs. Jack Neugehouer; past president, Mr. James Keenan; convener, Mrs. M. McTaggert; principal, Mr. Clive Kingston; membership, Mrs. Mae Thurston; executive, Mrs. Woolley and Mrs. Bruce McDonald.

A film on "Individual Differences" which highlights the problems accountered in understanding and teaching a child of average intelligence who tends to be overshadowed by the accomplishments of an older brother, was shown. This is a problem which concerns many parents and a very good period followed the film.

Lunch was served by the mothers of room 4 with Mrs. J. Holmes as convener.

U.C.W. Meeting

BRIDGE STREET UNITED CHURCH WOMEN

Mrs. Bryson Leslie presided at the final general meeting for this season of U.C.W. of Bridge Street United Church.

In the worship service, Mrs. Donald Scott read one of the short psalms in which the wonders of nature are extolled. Mrs. J. Demeza's sacred song was in harmony with the psalm. Mrs. K. Ward was the accompanist.

The program was conveyed by Mrs. R. Walsh, assisted by a number of members. The thought centred on items of news from the Overseas Mission work in Africa, India and Pakistan. The work in these areas Christianity is in action, whether the special skill of the missionary, is away in a hospital or who is teaching people to raise better crops, better cattle or better poultry. It may be a missionary nurse who is treating and educating them to come for well treatment, the magistrate, the missionary, with linguistic ability, who translates the Bible, then meeting the government regulation that the Bible must be bilingual. They are all evangelists. The message comes through as they live the Christian life of loving and enrich the lives of men, women and children.

It is most encouraging to learn of the growing co-operation of the various denominations in the Overseas C.W.S. work, making for greater effectiveness.

During the social hour, the final arrangements for the A.B.C. tea was the chief topic of conversation.

Ann Landers

Army Tactics Out of Place In Home Discipline

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Six months ago I married a West Point graduate who has made the army his career. This is a second marriage for us both. His two sons by his first wife do not speak to him, and I'm afraid he is building an equally poor relationship with my son.

ANN LANDERS

Leslie is 12, a fine student, good athlete and gets along well with people. He adored his father who died three years ago but has accepted my second husband beautifully. When I asked Leslie how he felt about my remarrying he replied, "You need a husband and I will do my best to like him." I thought this was very good for a 12-year-old.

My husband insists that Leslie say "No, sir" and "Yes, sir." Every Friday he inspects the boy's closet, drawers, and clothing, and gives him demerits if everything isn't perfect. He also gives demerits for poor posture.

I know discipline is important but my husband is so stern with the boy I'm afraid there will be no affection — only fear. Please comment. — M.D.G.

DEAR M.D.G. — Discipline is important, but it must be balanced with justice and love. A cold, commanding father may get perfection but unless he gives warmth as well as orders his son will hate him. Apparently your husband didn't learn much from his earlier failures as a father.

Suggest that he cut out the "No, sir" and "Yes, sir" before the boy gets an ulcer. He needs some outside help in understanding his role as a father.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I've been going with a man for several months. We are not children. I am 29 and Donald is 34. He was married once but it didn't work out.

Last night for the first time Donald talked to me seriously about marriage. He pulled a slip of paper from his pocket and proceeded to ask me some questions. Here they are:

(1) Have you had your appendix out?
(2) Are your teeth in good condition?
(3) Do you have any outstanding debts?
(4) Do you have any money saved?

I asked him what the third degree was all about. He said his first wife clipped him for an appendectomy, $500 worth of dentistry, and $250 in back bills for the first year they were married. He doesn't want to get mixed up in anything like that again.

What do you think about a man who would ask such questions? — FLOORED.

DEAR FLOORED — I think you don't need a goof like this for a husband. Tell him to run an ad.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I'm an active member of a very fine organization. I can name 30 women who wish to be identified as "hard-working members" when they do nothing but pay dues.

Some of these individuals don't attend more than two or three meetings a year. They refuse to serve on committees. Is this fair? What can be done to remedy the situation? — OLD FAITHFUL.

DEAR OLD FAITHFUL — Every organization has its dedicated members and hard working wheel horses. They are few in number, noble in spirit and fantastically energetic.

And then there are the other 97 per cent. They are the joiners and not doers. So accept the fact and use their dues to advance the good work of the organization.

Do you lean on cigarettes as a social crutch? You may regret it later. Send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Teen-Age Smoking" enclosing with your request 15c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

WOMEN NEEDED

MONTREAL (CP)—The engineering profession needs women, says Garnet Page, general secretary of the Engineering Institute of Canada. Sophisticated areas in engineering today are suited to the talents of many women, he added, pointing out that 30 per cent of the engineers in the Soviet Union are women.

GARDENING BOOK

VICTORIA (CP)—A 200-page gardening book aimed at special conditions on the Pacific coast has been written by A. R. Willis, a University of Alberta graduate who was in business in Calgary and later hunted for gold in the Yukon. He's now a nurseryman in nearby Saanich. The book is titled Pacific Gardener.

Ladies Euchre Club Honors Bride-to-Be

FRANKFORD — Frankford ladies' euchre club gathered at the home of Mrs. Sam Kirkey in Sidney to honor Miss Reta Jenkins bride-to-be of Frankford, at a miscellaneous shower on Tuesday evening.

Euchre was played preceding the shower with prize winners as follows: Mrs. Annie Weston, Miss Reta Jenkins, Miss Vera Lyons and Miss Kay Weese. Loneband prize winner was Miss Vera Lyons.

Dainty refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Sam Kirkey and Miss Greta Nicholson.

The bride-to-be was seated at a guest chair in the dining room to where many beautiful gifts were arranged on the table.

Mrs. Allan Kelly read the address.

Church Groups

CHRIST CHURCH PARISH GUILD

A taste of holidays to come was given to a large attendance of Christ Church Parish Guild members at their regular meeting on Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Allen Weese, with beautiful slides and interesting narration, took the ladies on a dream trip to Hawaii and back with stops on the way to San Francisco. Mrs. Fred Lazier, on behalf of the Guild, thanked Mrs. Weese for her splendid presentation. The devotional was given by Mrs. F. A. Beeby.

The business portion of the meeting was in charge of president Mrs. A. W. Jordan who welcomed the large gathering of members and a number of guests. Reports were given by all conveners; the Guild is catering to two weddings and a dinner this month and members were urged to help whenever needed. A donation of twenty-five dollars will be sent to Camp Hyanlo, the Anglican Church camp at Lyndhurst Lake. Replacements of dishes and utensils in the church kitchen will be purchased. The rectory committee reported that renovations were just about complete and were a distinct improvement. Conveners for the Blossom Tea this month reported plans to date and urged members to make this annual event an outstanding success. Cents-a-meal collections were reported by Mrs. Boyd and remembrance by Mrs. Noakes.

The June meeting of the Guild will be held at Consecon Lake on the kind invitation of Mrs. Earl Hickey, an outing which is always looked forward to with much pleasure.

At the close of the meeting, tea was served by the hostesses for the afternoon Mrs. E. R. Hinchey, Mrs. Mark Vanner and Mrs. T. W. Day.

Must Enlist Rank, File Duty Nurses Are Told

By BRENDA LARGE

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian nurses are apathetic about the aims and rights of their profession, a hospital administrator contends.

Judge N. V. Buchanan of Edmonton, immediate past-president of the Canadian Hospital Association, said Thursday during a panel discussion at the association's annual meeting that nursing leaders should abandon their assault on governments to obtain better salaries and working conditions.

Instead, they should "camp on the trail of the general duty nurse, who sits on her fanny in nurse conclaves while the brass hats expound."

While he sympathized with the desire of many nurses to better their socio-economic conditions, the judge said, "you (the nurses) will never win the fight unless you enlist your rank and file."

The president of the 77,000-member Canadian Nurses Association, Pat A. Electa Maclennan, was a member of the same panel, which discussed the future of nursing in Canada.

In answer to a question from the convention floor, she agreed that there is widespread ignorance among nurses about the needs of their profession.

LITTLE FREE TIME

"Since nurses have little or no control over their working hours, they are also often not free to attend nurses' meetings," she added.

—Announcement of the Canadian Council of Hospital Accreditation that it would begin surveying and accrediting Canada's mental hospitals next fall.

—Election of A. H. Westbury of Montreal as president of the association.

—Presidential address of the association's George F. Stephens Memorial Award for special services in the hospital field to Stanley W. Martin of Toronto, executive secretary-treasurer of the Ontario Hospital Association.

—Decision of the association to meet with members of the council of accreditation this summer to determine details of future financial needs of the council in order to ensure its continuance.

Miss Maclennan said: "The self - effacing martyrdom complex instilled in the traditional nurse prevent her from fighting for her rights as an employee."

Dr. W. W. Wigle, president of the Canadian Medical Association said: "Society no longer appreciates dedication and devotion to duty from people in the service professions — instead nurses must use techniques of collective bargaining to better their working conditions while maintaining standards of professional excellence."

common to the three designs, he added.

The cabinet meeting was marked by a vigil maintained outside the room by Miss Edythe Sweet of Montreal, who said she came to Ottawa for the specific purpose of waving the Red Ensign at Mr. Pearson.

He spoke to her briefly and said the new flag is for a national purpose. She insisted the Union Jack was the best flag for every purpose, and clutched her Red Ensign with her pursed lips. She said she would put it with the Union Jacks in her hallway at home, and that she chose the ensign instead of the jack for her one-woman demonstration "because my brother fought under it."

In the Commons, Mr. Pearson again rejected requests that the flag issue be submitted to the provinces and to a national referendum.

"This is a responsibility for the Canadian Parliament," he said.

WANTS ALL VIEWS

Robert C. Coates (PC—Cumberland), an advocate of retaining the ensign, said it was "of the utmost importance to know the views of all provincial governments."

"I would hope the views of all Canadians are represented in this House," Mr. Pearson said.

Louis-Joseph Pigeon (PC—Montcalm) asked whether the government would reject the Red Ensign and adopt the new flag for all purposes.

When Mr. Pearson did not reply, Mr. Pigeon shouted indignantly that "this government refuses to answer because it embarrasses the government," and said he would try to raise the question later.

Seeking parliamentary approval is a new departure for the Canadian government in this field. In the past, flags have been adopted by common assent —such as the Union Jack—and by order-in-council.

It was by order-in-council that the Canadian Red Ensign was ordered flown on the Parliament Buildings and at all government buildings at home and abroad. The authority for such an order by the cabinet is descended from the few remaining prerogative rights of the Crown in Canada.

It is expected that a simple declaratory resolution will be introduced in the Commons. Senate sources say they have no word of the need for concurrent action by the upper house, such as would be needed if the new flag were to be covered by a legislative enactment.

Coupled with the flag question is the official designation of O Canada as Canada's national anthem. Mr. Pearson said Thursday the government, while approving the step, has not decided how it should be done.

IS CHIEF PROBLEM

Chief among the problems created by O Canada is giving official approval to one version of the lyrics in English. The words were originally written in French, and several conflicting translations have been made.

Mr. Martin also said the government has not decided yet whether the flag and anthem should be presented in Parliament as a package deal, or in separate resolutions.

Meanwhile, he said, both anthem and telegrams are running 3 to 1 in favor of the distinctive Canadian flag—presumably the three maple leaves on a single stem which formed the common feature of three suggested flag designs considered by the cabinet.

The latter two designs had solid-color backgrounds — one white and the other blue.

Canada's national colors are red and white and experts in heraldry have advocated that a new flag incorporate only those colors. However, many countries have broken the rules of heraldry with their flags.

Experts in the field who have favored a flag of red maple leaves on a solid white background include John R. Matheson, Liberal MP for Leeds, who has made a long study of heraldry and its significance. He took the matter up with the prime minister more than a year ago.

Col. A. F. Duguid, a retired Canadian Army historian now living in Ottawa, was also a long-time advocate of the red and white flag. He made such a recommendation in 1945 to the Joint committee of the senate and the Commons that considered the flag issue. Recently his views were studied by Mr. Pearson.

The heraldic views of Alan Beddoe, who designed the shields for the Yukon and Northwest Territories, were also studied. Mr. Beddoe, a retired naval officer, lives in Ottawa.

ence of Laos.

NEW COALITION

The Soviet Union informed Souvanna Thursday that it supported a coalition in Laos. But it warned against excluding he Pathet Lao. The Communists have boycotted the coalition for more than a year, leaving the government in neutralist and rightist hands.

French Ambassador Pierre Millet told France's proposal for a new Geneva conference on Laos to Souvanna. Informed sources said the French probably would accept the alternate suggestion of a Vientiane meeting.

U.S. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson told the UN Security Council Friday that the United States will continue to support any government in Southeast Asia which is threatened by a Communist take-over from the U.S. help.

The United States disclosed that unarmed American jets from South Viet Nam have been flying over the Plaine des Jarres here to gather information on the Communist build-up. Officials in Washington said the flights may be only the first of various actions including American military operations in Southeast Asia.

U.S. policymakers have been considering strikes against Viet Nam, dispatch of the more air and sea power to the area, landing of forces in Thailand next door to Laos, and direct military intervention in Laos.

President Johnson's administration was reported hopeful, however, that diplomatic pressure and the prospect of greater U.S. military involvement would persuade the Reds to stop their drive in Laos.

the impression that if the door was open to Mr. Girouard "he'd cross the threshold," and that Mr. Girouard hadn't seemed happy about his stated intention of becoming a Conservative.

Mr. Girouard's testimony was that Mr. Davey offered the fund and mentioned the other benefits. A senior official's memo place Feb. 18 in Mr. Moreau's office here.

Mr. Moreau said he did not tell Mr. Girouard that the negotiation was stopped by Prime Minister Pearson's office following the voting support in the Commons of the Social Credit motion. Mr. Girouard belonged at the time.

He said this theory was advanced by Mr. Girouard's counsel the Labelle MP was told that a move by him to the Liberals would be acceptable to the Quebec Liberals.

FEARED LOSS

Mr. Girouard testified to the committee—and stated also in the Commons—that Mr. Moreau had asked Mr. Girouard's support the negotiation for fear of losing Social Credit support. Mr. Moreau denied this committee's second witness after vigorous Conservative protest. He said he had formed no heard first, spent more than five hours on the witness stand Thursday being grilled by committee members.

He conceded under cross-examination that Mr. Girouard made no formal applications to join the Liberals, but argued that Mr. Girouard's interest in the proposition to investigate Liberal membership and his subsequent actions amounted to a bid for membership. This was rejected as unacceptable by the Quebec Liberals.

The Conservatives appeared to be preparing the ground for suggestions that Mr. Girouard's testimony was arranged with his Liberal colleague. Their questioners were told by Mr. Moreau that he, Mr. Davey and the other officials present had discussed in detail Mr. Girouard's Commons statement which touched off the committee investigation.

In general, Mr. Moreau—as Mr. Girouard before him—refused to budge on key points or testimony such as references to election funds or the theory that Mr. Pearson ordered the negotiation. Both have said they are certain of their testimony on such points.

sibility of wavy blue bars, a more graphic illustration of "from sea to sea." They were also reported to have considered various forms of leaves.

But the design won't be known until the official designs are released by the government. And it was not known when this would be.

The other design that still remained a possibility consists of the red leaves on a plain white background—a combination of the Canadian Army emblem and the official Canadian colors with nothing added. Others included red maple leaves on a solid blue background.

Mr. Pearson has said he would give a rough outline of the design to the Commons when asked. There were no such point - blank questions asked Thursday.

Suggestion

Cambodia has charged that South Vietnamese troops, accompanied by U.S. officers, have been crossing into Cambodia and killing villagers. Sobon denied to the council that Communists fighting against the South Vietnamese government are using Cambodia as a sanctuary.

Stevenson said the Communists are and said "this is the real reason for troubles on the Cambodian border." He admitted that an American adviser was with the South Vietnamese on one of the three border crossings Cambodia cited to the council. Pham Khac Rai of South Viet Nam said his country's troops had made an "occasional inadvertent crossing in pursuit of their enemies."

Stevenson made three alternative suggestions:

(1) That the council ask Cambodia and South Viet Nam to establish a joint military force to patrol the frontier and report to the council. Pham Khac Rai of South Viet Nam said his country's troops had made an "occasional inadvertent crossing in pursuit of their enemies."

(2) that the force be given UN observers from other countries.

or (3) that it be "an all - UN force." He said the United States would be willing to pay part of the cost of a UN force.

Sobn called for a new Geneva conference on Cambodia's neutrality and territorial integrity, but Stevenson said: "There is no need for such conference. A Geneva conference on Cambodia could not be expected to improve upon agreement any more effective than the agreement we already have."

Stevenson said the United States had no fundamental objection to Cambodia's proposition that a UN commission investigate charges that Vietnamese Communists had used Cambodian territory. But he added it would not meet the problem.

Stevenson also said that the International Control Commission, suggested by Cambodia as the body to maintain frontier security, could not do that effectively. Canada, Poland and India are members of the ICC.

said the prime minister has adopted the white flag of surrender instead of the red flag of defiance and activated a psychedelic letter-writing campaign to newspapers and members of Parliament backing the Red Ensign.

Objecting to the official move to take the matter to committee action, one delegate said: "I'm fed up with propriety and good taste in the flag."

Mr. O'Brech also said later of the raising of the flag issue at this time that it is the government "diverted the attention of all Canadians from plans to transfer control of vital industries to local civil agencies. He also said:

Also recommended was change in the Criminal Code "to permit gainful games of chance by non-profit chartered organizations for community or welfare" activities.

The same resolution asked the government to consider operating all rail passenger services with the profits earmarked for hospitals and welfare institutions.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, FRIDAY, MAY 22, 1964

Liberal Govt. Is Heading Toward First Major Test With CLC Over Appointment

OTTAWA (CP)—The Liberal government is heading toward its first major test in its relations with the 1,100,000-member Canadian Labor Congress.

The test is shaping up over the reappointment of A. F. MacArthur, former Canadian head of the Office Employees International Union, to the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

Mr. MacArthur was named to the $13,000-a-year job by the previous Conservative government in 1960—over the loud and outraged protests of the CLC. His term expired at the end of April, but he continues in office until replaced or reappointed.

Indications are Mr. MacArthur may not get the backing of the CLC for the job. The CLC, which has not made up its mind yet, is expected to submit two nominees for the position within a week—at the request of Labor Minister MacEachen.

Mr. MacEachen was out of the Commons Thursday when former Conservative labor minister Michael Starr reased the question of Mr. MacArthur's reappointment.

Prime Minister Pearson promised to check with his labor minister and indicated he may make an announcement today or Monday.

FURORE CAME

A public furore developed when the Conservative government named the CLC's nominations for the UIC post—and chose Mr. MacArthur as the labor member of the commission.

CLC President Claude Jodoin charged political implications were involved.

Mr. Starr denied this and contended that the CLC chief had tried to dictate the appointment to a key post on the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

Prime Minister Pearson, at that time leader of the Liberal opposition, called the appointment "shocking" and said it was government "bungling."

By law, the government is obliged to consult with labor groups before appointing the Labor member of the three-man commission. By tradition, the government has picked one of the CLC's nominees — usually two or, three names submitted by leaders.

When Mr. MacArthur was given the job over the CLC's candidates, the CLC members of the UIC advisory committee promptly quit.

When the smoke died down later, the CLC nominees returned to the advisory committee.

GIVES DETAILS

Mr. MacEachen also gave details of the government's new manpower consultative service, announced about three weeks ago, established to combat employment dislocation due to automation.

"This service will act in an advisory and technical capacity to employers and unions in developing manpower adjustment programs," he said. "It will encourage the use by industry of public training organizations and the National Employment Service."

He said the government would cover half the cost of research for programs of adjustment, and the minister of labor would have the power to enter into agreements with an employer or union.

The federal government would also assume half the cost of moving workers and their dependents displaced by automation, if those workers could not afford to move themselves, he said.

The minister said George Woods, a former personnel director for a Montreal aircraft firm, has been appointed director of the service, to be operated by the department of labor.

Pearson Denies Accusations Over CBC Film

OTTAWA (CP) — Accusations of interference by Prime Minister Pearson with CBC plans to broadcast a television film documentary about him were made in the Commons Thursday.

Mr. Pearson, in effect, denied them in replying to a string of Opposition questions about a program made by an independent producer for the CBC but rejected by the publicly-owned corporation.

Douglas Fisher (NDP—Port Arthur) asked whether Mr. Pearson or his advisers refused to approve the film and thus prevent the CBC from using it.

That, replied Mr. Pearson, was a matter between the CBC and the producer.

Would Mr. Pearson authorize the use of the film by some other broadcaster, Mr. Fisher asked.

'WE DON'T CENSOR'

"We don't censor films on this side of the House," retorted the prime minister.

He conceded that he had seen a private showing of the film "in the early allegations of Erik Nielsen (PC—Yukon) that there were five screenings in his office.

He said he saw the film in his office in Toronto.

Mr. Nielsen also asked when CBC policy was changed to permit Mr. Pearson to rule further questions out of order and Mr. Nielsen gave notice of an adjournment motion to raise questions of CBC policy about editing and the special screenings.

NEXT QUESTION

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker asked "what business was it of his" for Mr. Pearson to review the film, and whether anyone in Mr. Pearson's office had seen it. Did the film "had all the appearances of a horror movie."

Mr. Pearson said the CBC itself had declared that no pressure had been brought to bear on it by any member of the government.

"Under what circumstances did this preview take place?" Mr. Diefenbaker asked.

Mr. Pearson said the producer took the initiative in showing the film to the prime minister.

PREPARING FOR TOURISTS, Chamber of Commerce manager chairman Earl Dickinoother put out 12 displays of local brochures and maps yesterday, at service stations and motels around the edges of the city. The racks will be kept filled by Chamber of Commerce office staff and more literature is being mailed to border crossing points and to service centres on Highway 401. Three new brochures will be added to the display next week, one on the Highlands of Hastings, a shopping and service directory for Belleville and a city map and tourist guide.

Foresees Law Limiting Amount Of Overtime

KINGSTON (CP)—Labor Minister Martin said Thursday night legislation may be needed to impose closer regulation on hours of work and overtime in order to spread employment in an era of automation.

Reliance may be placed on legislative provisions for longer annual vacations, statutory holidays and other forms of leave, he told a symposium of 75 industrial relations executives from Canada and the United States.

"In time, legislation may, in fact, have to match what may now appear to be highly advanced standards of leave and other conditions of employment found in some collective agreements," Mr. MacEachen said.

Britons Paying $2.10 a Pound For Steak

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

LONDON (CP)—Record meat prices in British stores—as high as $2.10 a pound for sirloin steak—led to predictions Wednesday of a full-blown political row.

Officials of the National Federation of Meat Traders said they will go to the agriculture ministry Friday to protest about the meat shortage in Britain—a shortage which, however, in general is confined to sirloin.

And the Labor opposition plans to launch an attack on the government on the issue of rocketing beef prices.

SAYS FIGURES WRONG

George Darling, Labor's spokesman on consumer affairs, declared: "All the figures given by the ministry of agriculture about exports of British cattle and meat to the continent have been misleading.

"It is time we brought some order into the trade. If we don't, we are going to run out of a meat famine in the autumn."

Another warning — this time in milk — was issued by Sir Frank Procter, chairman of the Co-operative Milk Trades Association, who said: "Too many cows have been killed and sold as meat to the continent. If there is a shortage of milk another there will also be a shortage of milk, because the cows are being killed for the shortage of meat."

On top of all this, harried housewives — who are bearing the brunt in higher prices — were informed by the government that the cost-of-living index for last month recorded its highest increase in more than a year, partly because of jumps in meat and milk prices.

Sunday Dinner Of Roast Beef Nearly Ended

LONDON (CP) —High meat prices may cause grumbling Britons to forego their traditional Sunday dinner of roast beef and Yorkshire pudding.

The butchers' trade paper held out Thursday as butchers reported housewives are boycotting beef and turning to pork lamb and poultry instead.

"Beef eaters revolt," is the headline in Thursday's issue while the Evening Standard carries a cartoon of Agriculture Minister Christopher Soames and some cabinet colleagues, in Beefeater garb, staring at a sign: "Beef prices highest ever."

Soames, who happens to be the fattest man in the government, is smack in the middle of the picture, looking a culinary pillar of British life.

Arriving home Thursday from a visit to Moscow, he gave no joy to butchers and consumers who hoped he would chop exports, which are sailing up British's meat. But the cabinet will study the matter in view of an attack being prepared by the opposition Labor party.

Now That Chips Are Down British Liberals Discover Their Popularity Is Fading

LONDON (CP)—It was only last September that Liberal Leader Jo Grimond boasted: "I shall march my troops toward the gunfire."

That was in the brave days of the party political convention but now that the fall general election is creeping along, irreverent people are asking: "How many men in a troop?"

For the Liberals have fallen on thin, thin times and Grimond's September quotation evokes hollow laughter.

Grimond, 50, seemed to reject in a television interview Thursday night any suggestion that the party—which has only seven seats in the 630-member House of Commons—should revise its strategy in view of by-election reverse last week.

Yet seasoned observers are wobdering aloud whether the Liberal party, which enjoyed a resurgence of popularity in recent years, is once again doomed to fall by the wayside as the crunch comes between the Conservatives and Labor.

LOSE 3 BYELECTIONS

The Liberals contested three of four byelections last week and lost deposits in two of them, confirming a downward trend that has become apparent in municipal and county elections.

Their disappointment can be understood only when placed against the great enthusiasm engendered in 1962 when the Liberals toppled the Tories in the famous Orpington byelection. That was when they had the discovery of "Orpington man," a political species that would lift the Liberals to power for the first time since Grimond was a boy.

There have been no other Orpingtons but the Liberals did increase their vote in subsequent byelections — until the general election became imminent.

Reviewing last week's results, James Margach says in The Sunday Times: "For the Liberals the lessons are sombre.

. . . The grand days of Orpington and post - Orpington have gone beyond recall; after nearly two years of success, collecting on an average between 20 and 32 per cent of the total poll, the latest returns are miserable and dispiriting, squeezed before the battle of the giants."

STRATEGY DISCUSSED

A quarrel over strategy, now is reported raging within Liberal ranks. The party leaders are said to be resisting suggestions that to avoid humiliation they should abandon their plans for fighting on a wider front than in any contest since 1950. The Evening Standard says party tactics will be discussed by the Liberal executive May 29.

In the last general election in 1959 the Liberals fielded 216 candidates and elected 6. In 1950 they put 475 in the running, elected nine and lost 319 deposits.

At the party convention in September, the Liberals said they would field at least 470 candidates in 1964. Grimond now has about 385 ready for the fray.

In his TV appearance Thursday night, Grimond insisted the Liberals are not "particularly alarmed" at the Liberal strength but he declined to predict how many seats his party will win.

He admitted that "in theory" he would prefer the Tories to win the election rather than Labor but added he does not want to see the country confidence in wallow in conservatism." It was essential that the people have the alternative of a "non-socialist radical party."

Extension of Anti-Red War in Southeast Asia Not Contemplated by U. S.

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States intends to provide strongman Premier Nguyen Khanh with new funds to expand the battle - pressed South Vietnamese army but there is no authoritative indication that the Johnson administration favors extension of the anti-Communist war into North Viet Nam.

The deepening crisis in Laos and South Viet Nam, where non - Communist forces are steadily losing ground, has led to wide speculation that in a desperate move the U.S. might press American - guided native troops on bombing attacks in North Viet Nam. But a well-informed source says such reports should be discounted.

The South Vietnamese have trouble enough holding territory in their own country without trying to invade and hold territory in the enemy's backyard.

Better than anyone, this source said, it is the U.S. presidential election year.

At this point, there is increasing U.S. interest and support by Britain and France for the neutral of Laotian Premier Souvanna Phouma's proposed 14-country Geneva conference of Indochina.

While the Johnson administration has rejected neutralism as a solution for the Southeast Asia problem, there are indications the government would not be averse to such discussions at the Geneva conference table—providing there is a suspension of Communist pressure in Laos and South Viet Nam.

New Contract Being Offered Uranium Mines

OTTAWA (CP) — A contract to supply 1,200,000 pounds of uranium oxide will be offered to one of the uranium mines threatened with a June 30 shutdown, Jack Davis, parliamentary secretary to Prime Minister Pearson, announced in the Commons Thursday night.

He said the contract to complete the undelivered portion of the Gunnar Mines contract with the United Kingdom will go to the uranium mine that can create the greatest job capacity out of the mines.

Mr. Davis said tenders setting out the conditions of the contract offer will be distributed this weekend.

Mr. Davis made the announcement after a resounding cheer debate after H. W. Herridge (NDP — Kootenay West) asked that the Gunnar Mines contract be turned over to Metal Mines Limited to extend the life of the Faraday Uranium Mine at Bancroft, Ont.

A similar proposal was made earlier Thursday by R. A. Webb (PC—Hastings — Frontenac).

Mr. Davis said that if the remaining Gunnar Mines contract was spread over the Bancroft and Elliot Lake uranium mines, it would provide work for miners for another two months.

He said the government preferred to grant the contract to the uranium producer that was willing to create the most manhours of employment by stockpiling uranium as well, even at its own expense.

The government announced May 4 that it would not extend its $25,000,000 subsidy program for uranium stockpiling beyond June 30.

Mrs. K Starts Revolution of Own in Egypt

CAIRO (AP) — Mrs. Nina Khrushchev, wife of Russia's Red revolutionary, has started a revolution of her own in Egypt. She has brought the wives of Egypt's leaders and officials out from behind the veil of Moslem society.

Mrs. Khrushchev came to town, Egyptian newspaper readers have been startled to see a picture of Mrs. Khrushchev President Nasser's buxom wife Tahia sitting on a bowling role at official functions instead of staying home where most Arab be-hinds belong.

The first ladies of the Soviet Union and the U.A.R. have been the subject of gossip ranging the Nile, making other tourist excursions and appearing on stage to their husband's speeches.

This is routine for Mrs. Khrushchev but a virtual public debut for Mrs. Nasser. In the past, the 40-year-old Mrs. Nasser made a few public appearances at great visitors, but never before have Egyptians been so much of her.

In her book on Egyptian woman-hood, Mrs. Khrushchev has been brought into the limelight a Cairo woman most Egyptians have never seen. She is Mrs. Abdel Hakim Amer, wife of the U.A.R.'s deputy commander in chief and vice-president. Mrs. Amer was so little known that when she began turning up at functions for the Russians some Egyptian photographers had to ask who she was.

DEPOSITS DROP

Government of Canada deposits decreased by $8,325,000 to $23,868,000 in the week ended May 20, the Bank of Canada reported Thursday in its weekly financial statement. Chartered bank deposits increased by 1,542,000 to $863,086,000 and notes in circulation decreased by $3,702,000 to $2,320,622,000.

International Conference On Problems of Great Lakes Water Levels Will Be Held

TORONTO (CP)—An international conference on the problem of Great Lakes water levels will be held in Toronto June 29-30, Premier Robarts of Ontario announced Thursday.

Mr. Robarts said invitations have been extended to Premier Jean Lesage of Quebec and the governors of eight U.S. states—Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Minnesota, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin.

Ontario is taking the initiative because its borders stretch the full length of the northern shores of the Great Lakes, the premier said in a letter to the governors.

He said Ontario is greatly concerned with the mutual problems of our own provinces arising from lowering water tables and drought."

The eight states and two provinces should pool their ideas to see what action can be taken to counteract the low water level "both now and for the future," Mr. Robarts said.

MAKES NO MENTION

A statement the premier issued to reporters made no mention of any invitation being sent to either federal government. However, Mr. Robarts said he eventually the international nature of the problem likely will involve both Ottawa and Washington.

He said he hopes the meeting will establish a working committee at the civil service level to delve further into the problem of receding water levels in the five Great Lakes.

"The purpose of the meeting is to determine what joint action can be taken to solve this serious water problem," the premier's statement said.

Mr. Robarts said the agenda is not yet complete but will be sent out after he receives replies to his invitations.

The governors are Nelson Rockefeller, New York; James A. Rhodes, Ohio; George Romney, Michigan; Otto Kerner, Illinois; Karl Rolvaag, Minnesota; Warren Knowles, Pennsylvania; Matthew Welsh, Indiana, and John Reynolds, Wisconsin.

WASHINGTON (AP) — State Secretary Dean Rusk has been urged by Senator William Proxmire, Wisconsin Democrat, to call for joint Canadian-American action to determine the feasibility of diverting additional water into the Great Lakes basin.

In a letter to Rusk, a copy of which he released Thursday, Proxmire said the problem of water levels in the Great Lakes has been a matter of concern to himself and the entire state of Wisconsin for a long time.

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Jean Lesage said Thursday night he has "heard something" about a possible international conference on Great Lakes water levels but that he has not yet received an invitation to such a meeting.

"The invitation may be in mail at my office that I haven't seen yet," Mr. Lesage told a reporter after a session of the legislative assembly.

Mr. Lesage said the level of the lakes would influence the level of water in Montreal harbor. But he declined further comment on the matter until the invitation reaches him.

OTTAWA (CP) — An aide to Resources Minister Laing said the federal government has not seen any details of the Ontario conference plans and therefore couldn't comment on them.

The government is extremely interested in the problem of Great Lakes water levels and was itself pushing a study of it.

CHICAGO (CP) — Jack Manley, Chicago Port Director, said Thursday he thinks a conference on Great Lakes water levels is overdue.

"There's no greater asset than our Great Lakes but it's time to take cognizance of the greater industrial demands and the dearth of recent rainfall," he said.

In Detroit, Michigan's Attorney General, Frank J. Kelly, said "Canada's problem is also Michigan's problem." If unable to attend the Toronto conference he would send a representative.

Kelley also revealed he will soon announce a Michigan conference on water levels. It would protect the effects on tourism, the economy and the state's future.

William J. Rogers, Cleveland, Ohio, port director, said he was "100 per cent for the conference."

"The lower the water gets, the tougher it is to get the potential out of the St. Lawrence Seaway," he said. The seaway, he noted, has a 27-foot depth, while Cleveland's port depth is about 25 feet because of water levels.

Soviet Delegate Reaches Deep in His Bag of Proverbs

By CARMAN CUMMING
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Nikolai Fedorenko, the big and suave chief Soviet delegate at the United Nations, reached deep into his bag of proverbs Thursday in rebutting the new U.S. policy statement on Southeast Asia.

A lie, he said at one point, has very short legs. A monkey with a crown on his head still looks like a monkey. A bamboo does not become straight even if he is put through a bamboo hoop.

And again, citing a proverb of his native Georgia, a province of civil istration that he refrained from identifying: "One should look at oneself three times a day; once is not enough. . . .

Fedorenko was unusually busy Thursday at the meeting of the security council speech by the United States' Adlai Stevenson.

Stevenson had stressed repeatedly that the U.S. is in South Viet Nam at the request of an internal upriaing there but because of aggression from the outside—and that the U.S. will stay there "as long as the peoples and the area are determined to preserve their independence and ask for our help in preserving it."

Fedorenko brushed this aside as a "rather sensational show of the American military muscle." and a story that only "small children and village idiots" would believe.

Curiously, the Soviet ambassador seemed most indignant at the suggestion that Communists were still exporting revolutions — although Stevenson had made no such charge in his speech on Southeast Asian subversion.

This "fairy tale of Communist terrorism" was one that would not travel far on its short legs, Fedorenko said.

He was equally cutting in rejecting Stevenson's claim the U.S. was protecting the South Vietnamese people.

He conjured up the image of the unstriped tiger who looked at the monkey with the crown while charging the U.S. found it necessary to send "a contingent regime" in South Viet Nam three times in the last six months.

What maudate did the South Vietnamese government have? he asked. Who gave the man—the dead or the living? Was it, perhaps, usually a fast man with a quip, declined this time and to be drawn into an exchange.

He quietly urged Fedorenko not to hold any statement too lightly," and added:

"Soviet policy explicitly supports the elimination and overthrow of independent national governments. . . We will support people who are prepared to resist this. . . ."

UN observers considered Stevenson's speech the first statement the U.S. plans to give continued — and more extensive — support to the Saigon government—at least until after the November presidential election.

Stevenson did not close the door to eventual some sort of neutralisation settlement, saying the U.S. has no national military objective anywhere in Southeast Asia and "has never been against political solutions."

But he added that already had been a political settlement in Indochina, and the South Vietnamese people have been because that settlement had been "deliberately and flagrantly and outside—and this is the point—

One of the most ironic touches of the day's debate came near the end when Fedorenko took objection to the nameplate in front of the Vietnamese observer, which said simply "Viet Nam," instead of "South Viet Nam."

Here, said Fedorenko, "they are putting forth a ram's head but are selling dog's meat."

Christian Has Vote Too

By CLARENCE W. CRANFORD

When our forefathers set up a "wall of separation" between church and state, they did not build this wall to separate them life. They did not say to religious people, "You tend to your prayers and let other people do the voting." The Christian who does not vote is failing to measure up to what the Bible expects of him. Of course, it wants him to pray, but it also wants him to be a good and loyal citizen.

This is made clear by what is called in answer to a "loaded" question. (Luke 20:19-25). It also made clear by Paul's statement concerning a person's responsibility to the state (Romans 13:1-7). For when certain enemies of Jesus wanted to trick Him into making a pro-Roman statement that would make Him unpopular with the Jewish audience, they asked Him, "Is it lawful for us to give tribute to Caesar, or not?" Jesus answered, "Render to Caesar the things that are Caesar's." But He didn't stop there. He went on to say "and to God the things that are God's." And Paul, who said, "Our commonwealth is in heaven" (Philippians 3:20) also said that every person be subject to the governing authorities. For there is no authority except from God, and those that exist have been instituted by God." (Romans 13:1) In other words, God has obligations both to God and to the state by which he is governed, and he is to try to fulfill his obligations to both.

FAITH A PERSONAL MATTER

Religious faith is a personal matter. One cannot repent for another. Each person must repent for himself. One cannot force his religious faith upon another. Each person must believe for himself. He may, unfortunately, have outward signs of loyalty, but genuine faith and commitment are matters of personal response, and can only come from within.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for May 24 is "The Christian's Responsibility to Government." Judges 9:7-15; Luke 20:19-26; Romans 13:1-7; 1 Peter 4: 12-16.

Because of this, no state should try to control or interfere in a person's conscience. All our forefathers spelled out in the Bill of Rights, government should not assist in the establishment of any religion, or interfere with free exercise thereof. Only as men are responsible to God according to the dictates of their conscience can their religious faith be the genuine personal response God wants it to be. Only as the state protects the right of religious liberty can every religious group exist. Only under such laws can every person be free to worship and propagate his religious faith.

LIVE WITH OTHERS

No person, however, lives completely by himself. Whether he is religious or non-religious, he lives with others in a state, and as a citizen he owes certain obligations to his state. He must pay taxes. He must obey laws. He should participate in its civic and political life. Where he is given the franchise, he should vote.

In Romans 13:1-7, Paul points out why this is so. Governments exist, he says, to maintain law and order. To this end they are instituted by God. A person, government and state is afraid of fear of punishment if he were to break its laws, but out of the conviction that punishment is necessary to keep people from breaking the law in their own hands.

WHICH COMES FIRST?

The problem becomes acute, of course, when the state ceases to become a protector of human rights, and itself becomes the persecutor. Rome protected Paul's right to proclaim his religious faith. Later, however, Rome itself became the persecutor of Christians. What happens when the state makes demands of a citizen that go contrary to his conscience and his loyalty to God?

Again the Bible is clear. God's loyalty to the state is important and should be carried out as far as conscience permits. But God, not the state, deserves our highest loyalty. When it becomes a matter of conscience, the true believer can only say with Peter "We must obey God rather than man." (Acts 5:29)

This was the problem confronted by Robert Atkins of Exeter who was jailed for three days for refusing to sign the king's act of conformity. In the last sermon he was permitted to preach before he explained his position by saying, "I beg you not to interpret our nonconformity to the act of unpeaceableness and disloyalty. We will be everything for his majesty but sin. We will hazard everything for him but our souls. We hope we could die for him if the need arose; but we dare not, and will not be damned for him. We are ready in this calibre that make a country great.

ELMIRA, Ont. (CP)—If you have to take a shower and put an antiseptic overalls before entering a pigpen, you soon get the impression these must be pigs with a difference.

In fact, they're models of cleanliness, participants in an experiment that aims to prove more, bigger and better hogs can be produced under disease-free conditions.

Of all goes as expected, Donald Martin, general manager of the firm, expects to see sows nursing out three litters a year averaging more than 10 pigs to the litter.

His contention is that better hogs can be produced in five months, costing less to feed, than an average hog produced can market in six or seven months.

KEEPS OUT DISEASE

The daily shower and antiseptic suits for veterinarians and visitors are intended to ensure that no one carries disease germs into the pens.

The experiment, called SPF for specific pathogen-free — is being supervised by Connaught Laboratories of Toronto and the animal husbandry department of the University of Toronto.

The sows are bred three times in production at the experimental farm managed by Peter Vanderwyst to free them of hereditary diseases. They were taken by caesarean section, as were the piglets.

Now their piglets are reared in a sterile, filtered air incubator where they are bottle-fed and breathe purified air.

At maturity pigs are a three-way cross developed at Connaught and the U. of T. Farm for high-energy feed conversion.

Because the piglets are disease - free when born and the disease-free parents, they use no energy fighting germs and need to reach market weight sooner.

Normally pigs are weaned at about seven weeks. Under SPF they are weaned between 21 and 28 days. This means the sows can be re-bred sooner and they are healthier and better fleshed immediately after birth not being drained of gain and energy by the weanlings.

GAIN 1 LB. A WEEK

At seven weeks the piglets are an average of 43 pounds and are taken to the hardening area for two or three weeks. There, conditions are reasonably similar to an ordinary farm. At nine or 10 weeks they go to another of the company's farms for finishing.

The experiment began Feb. 25 but Mr. Martin and Mr. Vanderwyst say they are confident they will be shipping hogs at least a month sooner than usual. They expect to reduce feed costs and a direct saving to the producer. And since the hogs have a sterile gut they are better profit is also expected. Special feeds are used. They are free of worms, mange mites, lice and tuberculosis, cutting down the chance of transmitting disease through feed.

Income Tax Explained

By C. A. MILLER

A taxpayer who has been directed during the year and ordered by the courts to pay alimony will in some cases arrange to make one lump sum settlement of this obligation, rather than pay on a periodic basis.

When the settlement of alimony has been made by a lump sum, the taxpayer receives quite a shock when he discovers this lump sum is not deductible from income on his tax return. The Income Tax Act distinctly states that alimony to be deductible must be paid on a periodic basis and the claim must be supported by receipts.

If the taxpayer has been paying on periodic basis and then comes to an agreement during the year to pay a lump sum in lieu of any further payments, he can only deduct on his tax return for that year, the amount he paid by monthly payments. The lump sum paid in these cases is deemed to be a capital outlay from which lasting benefits are derived.

On the other hand, the recipient of such lump sum payments does not have to show it on her income tax return as it is a capital receipt. She does have to report any amount received in the year by periodic payments. This also applies to separation payments awarded a wife by the courts on her behalf and for any children affected.

Many separated wives who receive nothing for themselves but do get money for the children mistakenly believe that these payments do not have to be shown on her return. When she claims the children for exemption she must report any money received from the estranged husband for their support.

For personal replies pertaining to income tax problems, please enclose a self-addressed five cent stamped envelope and 25 cents in coin for each question you wish answered.

Question: I paid my divorced wife $5,000 in lieu of alimony; $3,000 of this will make me non-taxable. Can I carry over the balance of $2,000 to my 1964 return?

Answer: No. None of the $5,000 is deductible. Alimony payments to be allowed on your tax return, must be made on a periodic basis.

Question: I am legally separated from my husband. I receive nothing from him for myself. The court did award $10 per week for our two children. Do I have to include this on my return?

Answer: Yes, it is income in your hands.

UN Secretary-General U Thant, who makes his first formal visit to Canada May 25-26, was regarded as a neutralist when he took over the job 2½ years ago. In this story a Canadian Press reporter at the United Nations tells how he has since acquired a reputation for decisiveness.

By CARMAN CUMMING

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — One of the most challenging games at the United Nations is to sit in the Security Council gallery, fix your eyes on Secretary - General U Thant and try to keep yourself perfectly still until he makes a movement.

It isn't easy. Westerners who try it find themselves squirming in their seats, astonished at the almost trance-like serenity of the Burmese Buddhist who has headed the UN for an eventful 2½ years.

He sits at the head of the horseshoe table, on the right of the chairman, watching fixedly through dark - rimmed glasses the speaker of the moment. Occasionally he lights a small cigar and smokes slowly, with an attitude of quiet detachment. "In the East," as Thant is fond of saying, "we put more emphasis on the mind than on the body and the spirit still more than the mind."

In the autumn of 1961, in the dark days after the death of Dag Hammarskjold in an African plane crash, there were those who wondered whether a man with a reputation as a neutral compromiser would be an adequate successor to the brilliant Swede.

SHOWED TOUGHER FIBRE

Those who knew him better realized that his neutralism had an edge to it.

As he had told the General Assembly the year before: "Peace cannot be achieved through a passive neutralism which would mean withdrawal from the battle for peace."

The cold war world did not have long to wait before learning that Thant could be persistent, resilient and bold. Less than two months after he was named acting secretary-general he was involved with a fresh crisis in the Congo's breakaway Katanga province—the same problem that had led to Hammarskjold's death.

In a few days of sharp fighting marked by cries of protest from Britain and several other Western states, UN forces brought Katanga to heel.

There still is debate whether Thant was defending itself or attacking Katanga. But no one disputes that Thant grasped the nettle firmly.

TICKED OFF SOVIETS

Later that year Thant showed that he was also capable of tough talk with the big powers. While still acting secretary-general, he visited Moscow and told Russians in a broadcast that they had heard only one side of the Congo story and did not really understand the character of the problem.

The Russians winced, but continued to back him, letting their plan for a three-man secretariat drop into obscurity.

UN HEAD TO VISIT CANADA — U Thant, formerly the chief of Burma's delegation to the United Nations, is secretary-general of the United Nations. He will pay an official two-day visit to Ottawa May 25. (CP Photo)

Later the same year it was Washington's turn, when Thant described the U.S. action in blockading Cuba as "very unusual . . . even extraordinary, except in wartime."

The American winced but continued to back him and the following month he was unanimously elected to a permanent term as secretary-general — a term which will end in November, 1966.

A few days after his election he again ruffled American feathers by observing that the West had failed to perceive the full significance of the "obvious change" in the political climate of the Soviet Union since the death of Stalin.

"Diplomacy demands hon-eyed words," Thant once said. "I am not a believer in honeyed words."

WAS TEACHER

Thant entered the world of diplomacy after careers as a teacher, newspaper man and civil servant.

Now 55, he was born in Pantanaw, Burma, the son of a prosperous rice miller. He became headmaster of the National High School in Pantanaw, did free-lance writing and after the war joined the government as press director.

A variety of government jobs led to his appointment as Burma's permanent representative at the UN in 1957. He served as vice-president of the General Assembly in 1958.

As the third occupant of the secretary - general's office on the 38th floor of the UN headquarters in Manhattan, Thant puts in long days and attends few social functions outside the building.

When he does go to receptions he is polite, precise and restrained. He dresses conservatively and impeccably—once earning a rare accolade from the British magazine Tailor and Cutter as the "man to lead a sartorial revolt" among world leaders.

He lives in a rented villa in the Bronx, overlooking the Hudson River, where he begins his day with meditation and prayer at 6:30.

His family consists of his wife, Daw Thein Tin, his 24-year-old daughter Aye-Aye, who did graduate work in sociology at New York's Hunter College and who now is married to U Tin Myint, an instructor in aeronautics at New York University.

His only son, Tin Maung, was killed in a bus accident in Rangoon two years ago at the age of 21.

Word of the accident came just four days before Thant was to go to Ottawa to speak at Carleton University.

The Canadian UN delegation suggested that he might want to postpone the trip.

"There isn't a Canadian who won't understand if you want to put it off," one diplomat told him. Thant thanked him gravely and carried on with the engagement.

Eight Girls and 27 Boys Chosen to Attend Course

By JEAN SHARP

TORONTO (CP) — Solving a math problem without all the necessary information isn't everyone's idea of excitement.

Lots of students would consider it a drudge, especially if they had to tackle it during the summer vacation period.

But it will be exciting for the 35 high school students who will try it at a summer school at Lakefield, Ont., near Peterborough.

The eight girls and 27 boys have been chosen from 175 applicants across Canada to attend the second Royal Canadian Institute summer science program.

They will spend five weeks at the Lakefield Preparatory School and a week at Carleton University, Ottawa, July 5-Aug. 14.

These aren't ordinary students nor is this an ordinary summer school. One of the girls has built her own telescope. One of the Grade 12 boys has substituted for regular science teachers at his school. Two of the Vancouver students were tops in the city in mathematics and science aptitude tests.

AMERICAN IDEA

The idea of running a school began when the University Women's Club in Toronto arranged a series of talks in an effort to learn about the needs of science students in Canada.

A speaker from the United States, where about 150 such courses exist, planted the seed.

The Royal Canadian Institute, a 115-year-old scientific society, became involved and in 1962 a Canadian boy and girl were sent to Brown University, Providence, R.I., to attend a National Science Foundation program.

The next year the institute program was launched at Lakefield under direction of Dr. David Lewis of York University, Toronto.

The present director, Dr. John Anderson of Carleton, says the teachers are chosen almost as carefully as the students. They are all practising scientists who are also teachers or are closely interested in the teaching of sciences.

Victoria U.C.W. met Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Clifford Calnan. There was a good attendance.

The Rev. Sherwin of Guelph occupied the United Church pulpits of the charge on Sunday morning in the absence of the Rev. Irwin.

Mr. Ronald Green spent the weekend with friends at St. Thomas.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis of Marmora called at Miss Audra Brickman's on Monday.

Gore

THE GORE—There was the annual display of flowers on the school grounds Monday evening. It was enjoyed by a large crowd. Centre U.C.W. served lunch.

Mr. Don Sharret of Belleville spent the holiday weekend with his sister, Mrs. V. O'Hara and Mr. O'Hara.

Mrs. F. Townsend and Mrs. S. Fox were guests at the May meeting of Massassaga U.C.W. at the home of Mr. Fox's niece, Mrs. McCullough.

The classes are not organized in the usual way. They're designed to show gifted students the relationships between branches of sciences and to teach them how to think creatively.

SOMETHING MISSING

When they are given the intensive math problem, they are expected to try to solve it by scientific method. They must make their own assumptions on the information they have and try to decide what the missing pieces might be, much as they will do on research projects some day.

In chemistry each student will do at least one series of experiments that have not been done anywhere before. While at Lakefield they will go on botany and geology field trips. At Carleton they will be divided into special-interest groups to work for a week in the labs.

For many students, one of the best things about the school will be the chance to talk to each other. They come from 30 communities, including towns as small as Hebron, N.S., and some have been alone and lonely with their ability and enthusiasm.

The institute sent application forms to 1,700 high schools asking principals to nominate their best science students for the program. The six weeks cost $500 but if a student can't afford it the RCI will pay all or part of the tab. In some cases community help has been given to the students.

Moira

MOIRA — Mrs. Etta Mitts, Mrs. Bonter Rollins and Mrs. Will Shaw of Trenton were Wednesday evening callers on Mrs. Blake Ketcheson.

Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Welsh, Corbyville were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Vanderwater.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Thompson spent the week end with Mrs. Gordon Graham to Toronto for the weekend and visited with the former's daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Hughes and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald McIntoy, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace McIntoy attended the Rapp-De-J... wedding at St. Pauls United Church, Stirling and reception in I.O.O.F. Hall.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hawkins, Toronto, Mrs. Garvin of Sarnia, were Sunday afternoon callers on their sister, Mrs. Charlotte Vanderwater, and Mr. and Mrs. James Vanderwater.

Mr. and Mrs. George Varty, Toronto were Friday overnight guests with Mr. and Mrs. Wallace McIntoy and attended the Ray - De Jong wedding and reception on Saturday in Stirling.

Mr. Edward Emerson, Haliburton was a Sunday caller of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Emerson.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Ketcheson, Linda and Owen, Mrs. Blake Ketcheson were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Campbell of Foxboro.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Wallace and Bryant, Mrs. Wallace Sr. of Frankford were Sunday evening callers on Mrs. Blake Ketcheson and also on Mr. and Mrs. Ross Ketcheson.

Mr. John Farrell had the misfortune to have his hand caught in a grain elevator and had to have forty stitches to close the wound.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

A lucky people will walk out of the Bowl-O-Drome around 10.45 Saturday night with a free all-expense paid trip to Bermuda and the New York World's Fair in a collective packet.

It could mean a double-barrel shot of happiness for one couple who are being married in the afternoon and are bowling before they take off on the honeymoon.

Saturday night the final roll-offs of the Player's Bowling Festival take place across the nation. Nearly 10,000 men and women—most of them average bowlers —will be aiming at a share of the record $150,000 stakes, the richest prize pot in Canadian sport.

They will be bowling against their own averages in 125 lanes from Victoria to St. John's.

Each of the 150 winning bowlers will be awarded a trip for two to the New York World's Fair, followed by a luxury cruise to Bermuda.

The final roll-offs are the climax of a step-by-step competition that began with the entry of 166,470 bowlers in the Player's Bowling Festival three months ago. The number of entries set a Canadian record—and probably a world mark—for participation in a sports event.

A few of the entrants in the Festival, like Angelo Mosca of the Hamilton Tiger Cats, are used to the pressure and excitement of big-time competition. But most of these people are of the common or garden variety of plain everyday bowlers who bowl for the fun of it and have never won, nor expect to win, a national sports event.

The prizes go to those who improve on their own average by the greatest pinfall. So it could be two virtual unknowns who will pack their bags and jaunt to New York and Bermuda.

This is the third year the Festival has been held and the number of entries this year is nearly triple the number in the first competition. As the number of entries increased the sponsor has increased the value of the prize kitty.

The festival has a category for each of the four kinds of bowling in Canada — ten pins, five pins, duck pins and candle pins. For each category the starting point is the bowler's established average in league competition. There has been one preliminary roll-off for ten pin bowlers and two preliminaries for the other categories. These who beat their own average by the greatest number of pins advance to the finals.

The prizes Saturday night will be awarded regionally, according to the number of entries. Ontario bowlers accounted for nearly half the entries and therefore they will win nearly half the prizes. Close to 5,000 finalists will be bowling in the 48 Ontario lanes that are roll-off centres and they will be eligible for 69 of the prizes.

Bill Bateman, the likeable maestro of the Bowl-O-Drome here where the roll-offs will take place, tells me that this district also set a record entry-wise in the Festival.

Some 103 bowlers with eyes on the handsome prize will take to the lanes Saturday and one will come away with the trips-for-two award. They hail from Picton, Bancroft, Stirling, Trenton, Napanee, Wellington, Campbellford, and other nearby centres.

"This is by far the largest number of bowlers to compete in the festival tournament," Bill said, "and it seems that the number gets bigger each year."

In former years the announcement of the winner was not made until three or four days after the final roll-offs. This year, Mr. Bateman says, the winner will be announced on the spot. Somebody and his wife or sweetheart will be happy about 10.30.

FLASH

Dan Cupid will be on the sidelines at the Bowl-O-Drome tomorrow night in the Player's Festival. A bride of a few hours will be a contestant, while a proud hubby will be pulling for her to win the gold and the glory.

Tieing the nuptial knot at noon are Barbara Ingram and Mr. Ed Trotson, both of Campbellford, who are postponing the honeymoon to allow the bride to compete in the Festival.

Mr. Trotson, I understand, is the manager or owner of a bowling lane in Campbellford.

And don't think the groom won't be going all out for the new misses to emerge the winner. After all, a honeymoon to the World's Fair, New York, and a luxury cruise to Bermuda is not to be sneezed at. And if the new Mrs. Trotson wins the "moon" will be on the Players' house.

Concretes Trim Read

Plane's Concrete took a 7-4 South Hastings Baseball League victory over Read, getting the decision with a three-run rally in the fifth inning.

The winners had netted one run in the first and three in the second. Read bagged pairs in the fifth and fourth frames for the 4-4 tie going into the fifth.

Butch Clapp pitched a three-hitter for the Concrete crew. He struck out four but issued seven free passes.

P. Milligan allowed eight hits over the route for Read. He fanned four and passed the same number.

Koufax Whiffs 11 In Dodger Win ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

'Captain' Willie Belts Homers 15, 16

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

There's nothing like a promotion to give a man confidence.

The tried - and - true formula was invoked by manager Alvin Dark Thursday when he named Willie Mays captain of San Francisco Giants, reactivating a post that had been vacant since Dark himself filled it from 1960 to 1963.

The newly-commissioned centre fielder, hitless in his previous 10 appearances, rewarded his manager by belting his 15th and 16th home runs Thursday night as the Giants romped to a 9-4 victory over Philadelphia that gave them a one-game margin over the Phillies at the top of the National League standings.

Willie's performance wasn't quite good enough to head off the determined drive of Billy Williams to capture the league's batting leadership. The Chicago outfielder collected three hits in four appearances to Mays' two for four and emerged with a .402 average to Willie's .397. In spite of Billy's production, the Cubs lost 10-3 to St. Louis Cardinals.

Sandy Koufax approached a major league record by striking out 11 men as Los Angeles Dodgers downed New York Mets 6-1 and Houston's Dick Farrell tied Juan Marichal of the Giants for the most victories in the year to date, 5. Koufax, who has suffered some setback as the Cubs vanquished Pittsburgh Pirates 3-1, Cincinnati Reds and Milwaukee Reds had an open date.

Appointment of the 33-year-old Mays to the captaincy merely makes official a number of things Willie has been doing for years, particularly arranging the defensive alignment of the Giants' outfield.

MAYS TAKES CHARGE

Dark said Mays has been the untitled team leader in recent years, adding: "Sometimes he's a leader without even opening his mouth. The other fellows look to him to lead. He takes charge."

He did just that against the Phillies, hitting his first homer with one on in the first inning and breaking a 4-4 tie with a solo shot in the fifth. Orlando Cepeda responded by connecting with Willie McCovey on base to put the game out of reach. Richie Allen hit a homer for the losers.

Williams, who trailed Mays on average by 177 points less than a month ago, led a 12-hit attack against Ray Sadecki but the Cardinals were hitting for distance with two-run homers by Tim McCarver and Bill White and a base-loaded triple by Doug Clemens.

Hal Woodeshick took over from Farrell to get Roberto Clemente to hit into a game-ending double play after the first two Pirates singled to open the ninth. Three singles and an error gave the Colts two runs in the fourth inning to tag the defeat on Vernon Law.

Koufax struck out 10 or more for the 33rd time in his career, moving within one of the record shared by Rube Waddell and Bob Feller. The classy southpaw hasn't lost in eight decisions against the Mets. He also singled to start a four-run rally in the fifth inning.

Pitching — Sandy Koufax, Dodgers, struck out 11 New York Mets in 6-1 Los Angeles victory, fanning 10 or more in one game for the 33rd time in his career.

Tweed Nips Juniors 1-0 In Thriller

By GARRY ALEXANDER
(Staff Sportswriter)

Tweed Lombards handed Belleville Ellis Juniors their second low-scoring setback in as many nights here last night, nipping the hard-luck young stars 1-0 in a crowd-pleasing B. and D. softball battle.

Lombards picked up all they were about to walk all over Ellis in the opening frame when they scored the game's lone run and threatened to add to the total.

Such was not the case, however, as Bobby Boyle and fire-balling Blain Healey hooked up in a low-hit duel.

Healey let the Juniors down on four hits, all of them bunts and never allowed them more than one base on the limit. He struck out 11 and did not walk a batter.

Boyle was touched for just six hits, three over the last eight innings. He did not strike out nor walk a batter and his mates did not commit an error in the last game. Playing time was one hour and five minutes.

Tweed struck swiftly with one out in the opening frame. Gorr singled to left and Meraw stashed another base hit past second, sending Gorr to third. Gray gunned a third consecutive base hit to right field and that was the 1-0 ball game. A fielder's choice, which held Meraw at third, filled the bases but he was forced at the plate by Sinclair and Cotton hoisted out to left field to end the threat.

The Juniors pulled off a fast double play by Woods to cut short another threat in the fifth and Soule saved a homer by Gray with a beautiful running catch in the ninth.

Ellis' sharp fielding went for naught when they could not solve Healey's offerings for a clutch hit.

Their best opportunity came in the seventh when Malloy got to third with none out on a two-base error and a passed ball. Soule popped out and Molloy was cut down in a nip and tuck play at the plate.

Wayne Woods in the third, Stu Malloy in the fifth, Mike Chatland in the sixth and Bobby Moon in the ninth bunted for base hits off Healey — but that was it.

Paul Meraw collected two singles for Tweed with one each going to Garry Gorr, Eldon Gray, Rev. David Sinclair and Healey.

Landscapers Shade City Hotel

Barrage Landscapers squeezed out an extra-inning 3-2 thriller over City Hotel in a well-played Commercial Softball League tussle at Zwick's Island last night.

The clubs fought through five scoreless innings Barrages went ahead 1-0 in the fifth, City moved in front with two runs in the top of the sixth and Barrages tied it in their half of the inning.

The winners broke the deadlock in the bottom of the eighth. Genereaux belted a double and went to third on a wild pitch. Cy Radford hit a hard smash off the third baseman and shortstop Hall recovered the ball and fired to the plate. The play, scored as a fielder's choice, was half a step too late as Genereaux crossed the plate for the 3-2 win.

Jerry Genereaux pitched the victory, allowing only four hits. He struck out six and walked three.

Moe Hawkins allowed eight hits in a route-going effort for the losers. He whiffed nine and walked but one.

Tim Cook hit a double and two singles while Gary Wood also had two singles for Barrages. Genereaux and Tom Coolen had doubles. Don Wood a single.

Frank Donovan belted a home run and single for City Hotel while Doug Moreau also homered. Doug Hall added a double.

Wrestling Makes Debut Tonight

An all-star professional wrestling card has been signed for this coming Friday night's opening program at the Belleville Memorial Arena. Six heavyweight matmen in three matches will supply the action.

Main event billing sees the clash between Gentleman Jim Hady and Japanese import Professor Hiro. Hady is no stranger to the Belleville area and in past performances has proven himself to be one of the most capable matmen ever to wrestle here. Hiro, on the other hand is a newcomer to these parts. The Professor is a master of karate and all the Oriental forms of offense and defence. Manager and second of Hiro during his stay in this country is another rough and ready competitor, Fred Atkins.

Billy Lyons, the high-flying redhead from Hamilton, will have his work cut-out for him in the semi-final. Lyons will be up against rugged Kentucky veteran, Ike Eakinson.

Opening event will pit the hard-punching tactics of the un-masked Destroyer, Joe "Killer" Christie, against the scientific moves of popular Indian star, Chief Suni Warcloud.

CAHA Head Blasts Gardens' Brass

'Junior A Turkey'

By STUART LAKE

OTTAWA (CP)—Don't invite Art Potter of Edmonton and executives of Maple Leaf Gardens to the same party.

Potter, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, ended a temporary truce in his battle with the Toronto arena's brass Thursday as he reviewed the 1963-64 Memorial Cup finals for delegates to the CAHA's 60th annual meeting.

While junior hockey took up most of their time, the delegates also agreed to what Potter called a "royal commission" study of the association, its branch system, affiliations and financial arrangements.

The study is to be made by committees in both the East and West before the 1965 annual meeting in Victoria.

Today the delegates elect a new executive and consider a few more reports before ending their five-day golden jubilee sessions.

ONLY FOUR GAMES

Secretary - Manager Gordon Juckes reported a gross gate of $23,397 for the Toronto Marlboro-Edmonton Oil Kings series in Toronto which the latter won in four straight games without any trouble.

That made the series one of the biggest financial turkeys in CAHA history and Potter made it plain he thought the Gardens was the culprit.

"One can only have a feeling of disgust at the money-grabbing, a selfish way in which the Gardens made a finale out of our national final," he said.

Potter and the Gardens' brass had a running battle during the series over radio rights, ticket prices and dates of the games. Tickets were priced at $4 tops.

"The powers that be at Maple Leaf Gardens figured they could extract more from the paying public than they were willing to pay," said Potter.

A Gardens' executive had promised "to get even" with the CAHA, said Potter, after the association moved Memorial Cup games out of the rink two years ago.

He said this explained "uncalled" for, insulting" remarks aimed at the CAHA and himself by rink executives.

MAY MOVE GAMES

To prevent similar situations, the delegates agreed to a resolution giving CAHA officers the power to move playoff games from one rink to another for financial "or any other good reason."

Potter also pleased with delegates to have future Memorial Cup finals start earlier. The CAHA and the teams "looked ridiculous" playing hockey when baseball weather prevailed.

To strengthen the weak-sister Maritimes and Ottawa district junior champions, the delegates approved a motion allowing them to add three new players to their lineups from their own branch for next season's round-robin playoff series with the other champions.

The winner could add three more from outside its branch for its encounter with the powerful OHA champions.

Orioles Outlast Kansas

A's Grandslam Fails To Save Win

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Bennie Daniels is off to the best start of his unspectacular major league career.

The 31-year-old Washington right hander joined Dave Wickersham of Detroit and Minnesota Twins' Camilo Pascual as the American League's winningest pitchers, picking up his fifth victory in the Senators' 8-2 triumph over the Tigers Thursday.

His victory total equals the number of games he won last season when he didn't win until June 27.

Daniels needed relief help from Jim Duckworth in the ninth inning but still allowed the Tigers only four hits as he reduced his earned-run average to 2.84. He now has permitted one earned run in 15 2-3 innings.

Daniels never has reached the potential he was credited with when he joined Pittsburgh Pirates in 1957 but the reasons with the Pirates he won only eight games while losing 16.

His latest streak is taking the other direction. Thursday's triumph, was his third straight after splitting his first four decisions.

WIN BY ONE RUN

In other AL games, Baltimore Orioles outlasted Kansas City 7-6 despite Manny Jimenes' grand-slam home run and Boston Red Sox nipped Los Angeles 3-2.

The Senators provided Daniels with early support, scoring three runs in the first inning against Jack Hamilton in his first American League game. Chuck Hinton's double and Jim King's single sent home two of the runs. Hinton singled across two more in Washington's three-run seventh.

The Orioles led 7-3 going into the Athletics' eighth. Wally Bunker, who had scattered four hits, gave up singles to Nelson Mathews and Ed Charles before walking Jim Gentile.

Stu Miller came on for the 16th time this season and got Rocky Colavito on a fly ball. Then Jerry Lumpe smashed his homer, cutting Baltimore's lead to a run.

Jimenes homered in the fourth, tying Harmon Killebrew of the Twins for the AL lead with 11. Brooks Robinson drove in three runs and Boog Powell two for Baltimore.

The Red Sox scored by the Angels on Carl Yastrzemski's run-scoring triple to centre field in the sixth off reliever Willie Smith. Boston's Ed Bressoud slammed a two-run homer in the fourth.

Knotty Problem Settled

Harness Racing May 30th

The controversial problem of harness racing in the city this year came to a head last night.

There will be harness racing here with the first card slated for the Fair Grounds, Saturday, May 30th.

The first meet was originally planned for tomorrow, May 23rd but the condition of the track does not permit this.

The seasonal meets will be operated by the executive of the former "Belleville Raceway" now known as the Quinte Driving Club.

The name was officially changed at an open meeting held a short time ago.

It was also announced at that meeting that the executive of the Quinte Driving Club as appointed at the second would turn over operations of racing in the future based on the floor by a director of the former Belleville Raceway.

This is to allow the receipt of a charter of incorporation applied for the Quinte Driving Club executive headed by president Bill Prest.

The announcement this morning stated that ten directors of the former "Raceway" now the Quinte Driving Club would take over racing operations.

Heading the other directors are president, Don Isaacs; vice-president, Doug Hedger; Mrs. Carol Young, recording-secretary and Gerald Vance, treasurer. Other directors are Jack Bush, Ted Cairns, Norm Hickson, Jack Jeffrey, Harry Kemp, Leonard Reid and Don Thomas.

It was stated that work will start immediately on the track to get it in readiness for the May 30 opening meet.

Minor Baseball Results

Mel Barriage Landescapers overcame an early 4-0 deficit to nip the Jaycees 5-4 in a close Bantam baseball league game played at Parkdale last night.

Jaycees built their lead with two runs in each of the first and third innings. Barriages finally got on the scoreboard with two in the fourth, tied it with another pair in the fifth and won it with a single run in the sixth.

At Baker, and W. McTaggart in the fourth, allowed four hits on the Jaycees' mound, walking eight. B. Curtin was their catcher.

Barriage hits, all singles, went to S. Ling, P. Howe, D. Windsor, G. Goyer, D. Thornton ruined Ling's no-hit bid with a single for the Jaycees.

Junior A Series Made Difference

1964 Finals' Receipts Show Decrease

OTTAWA (CP) — Gross receipts for the 1963-64 playoffs for both the Allan and Memorial Cups were down in comparison with the previous year, delegates to the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association learned Thursday.

The 34 senior playoff games in the East and West produced gross receipts of $136,971 compared with receipts of $146,500 in 1962-63.

It was the national junior final at Toronto between Edmonton Oil Kings and Toronto Marlboros that made the big difference in the Memorial Cup figures.

Marlies and Oil Kings attracted gross receipts of $23,397 for their four games in 1963-64. In the previous year Niagara Falls and Edmonton played six games in Edmonton and produced gross receipts of $87,743.

Juckes said final figures for several of the series were not yet available. Here are total receipts and team shares after expenses for most of the playoffs:

ALLAN CUP

MATADOR IMPROVES

MADRID (AP)—El Cordobes, one of Spain's most popular matadors who was seriously injured in a bull fight, was listed in improved condition Thursday. Crodobes, 28, was gored repeatedly by a bull in the Wednesday fight and was rushed to a hospital in critical condition.

Pulford Thinks So Hockey Players For U's

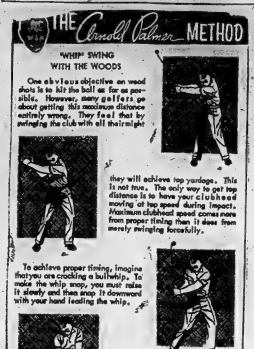
ST. THOMAS (CP)—Bob Pulford, Toronto Maple Leafs' centre, said he would like to see Canadian universities open their doors to subsidized hockey players.

Pulford was addressing representatives of service clubs and minor sports organizations Thursday.

Hockey players going to Canadian universities could be subsidized by National Hockey League clubs or businesses, he said.

He suggested all universities in Ontario have hockey teams coached by NHL-supplied men playing a 35-game schedule.

PALMER TRAILS



MEMPHIS (AP)—Bob Dudley took the first-round lead in the $50,000 Memphis Open golf tournament Thursday with a five-under-par 65. The veteran Portland, Ore., professional, who putts between his legs, didn't go over par on a single hole. Arnold Palmer had a 66 to join Paul Bondeson, Gene Littler and Gay Brewer in second place.

New Zealand Southpaw To Play Here

MONTREAL (CP) — Bob Charles of New Zealand, the first left-hander to win the British Open golf championship, will compete in the Canadian Open here July 30-Aug. 2. It was announced Thursday.

It will be his first Canadian appearance.

In 23 starts on the professional golf circuit in the United States last year, Charles missed the money only twice.

Sport Snapshots

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

Steve Owen spent 34 of his 66 years in football before he left the scene Sunday with a million memories and as many friends in Canada and the United States. Steve died in hospital in Oneida, N.Y., after a brief illness.

Nothing really seemed to bother this huge, big - hearted man who steadfastly refused to take life — and football — as deadly serious. Modern - day coaches may have passed him by their fancy talk about complicated plays and formations, but all it did was leave fans wondering what the game was all about.

They are famous for uttering tired old cliches and making a big thing out of watching game movies to find out what happened on the field. Steve didn't go for any of this stuff.

He contended that "the best offence can be built around 10 basic plays and defence on two."

"All the rest is dazzle-razzle, egomania and box-office."

He once said that "coaching is like a monkey on a stick."

"When you're going up you always see somebody going down."

WITH GIANTS

Stout Steve, a six-footer and 250 pounds, looked at the world with kindly eyes. And he was up and down the stick many times since he first turned to coaching in 1931 with New York Giants after a five-year career as a tackle with the club.

He was top man with the Giants for 23 years and during that time the team won two National Football League championships and eight Eastern Division titles. He came to Canada in 1959, coached Toronto Argonauts, Calgary Stampeders and Saskatchewan Roughriders and in 1962 coached Syracuse Stormers in the United Football League.

It has been estimated that big-time coaches spend about 40 per cent of their time in actual teaching and 60 per cent watching game movies. He didn't follow the party line.

"Some teams," he wrote 15 years ago in his book My Kind of Football, "claim to use hundreds of plays on attack and that sounds mighty impressive and awful difficult. But fundamentally every football club operates with six to 10 basic plays. All the rest are variations.

"In fact, the most brilliant set of plays won't mean much if a team cannot gain off - tackle. That is the essential bread-and-butter play."

His office door was always open for reporters and he never ducked a question. His wit and easy-going manner considerably enlivened the scene in Canada and it wasn't unusual for fans to stop him on the street and talk football.

Leafs Blow 8-7 Verdict To Chiefs

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

All a manager usually asks of the leadoff man in his batting order is to get on base so that someone can eventually bring him home. Earl Robinson performed well beyond the call of duty Thursday.

The first man in the Rochester batting order came through with a double, triple and home run in four appearances, driving in four runs and giving the Red Wings all the offence they needed to defeat Buffalo Bisons 7-3.

The defeat cost the second-place Bisons a chance to gain on Toronto in the International League standings as the Maple Leafs blew an 8-7 decision to Syracuse Chiefs in 10 innings. Jacksonville Suns downed Atlanta Crackers 5-1 and Richmond Virginians overpowered Columbus Jets 8-6 in the other games played.

The Wings struck for four runs in the fifth inning to tag newcomer Steve Sisler (Road block) Jones with the loss after Buffalo starter Dick Selma had retired in the third with a stiff shoulder. John Miller, with relief help from Bobby Scott, was the winner.

FINALLY WIN

Trailing 6-2 at one stage, Syracuse finally bested Toronto when Willie Horton's two-out single plated Bill Roman, who had doubled. Each side hammered three homers with Bobby Del Greco getting two for the losers. Fred Gladding, pitching two hitless innings, won the game over Eli Grba.

KIDD FAVORED

MODESTO, Calif. (AP)—Bruce Kidd of Toronto is rated as the favorite in the two-mile run at the California Relays Saturday. Kidd, Bill Baillie of New Zealand and U.S. star Jim Beatty top the two-mile field. Baillie is likely to be Kidd's chief challenger and Beatty is racing to find out if he's completely recovered from an injury suffered in an indoor meet.

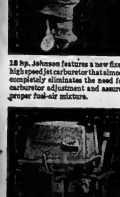
SEE WHAT JOHNSON OFFERS YOU NOW



NEW 9½ HP. JOHNSON
The Compact's Compact

(is it the shape of things to come?)

18 hp. Johnson features a new fixed high speed jet carburetor that almost completely eliminates the need for carburetor adjustment and assures proper fuel-air mixture.

9½ hp. Johnson delivers up to 11 hours cruising on five gallons of gas. One reason it's the best selling small outboard in Canada. If you're in the market for a small outboard, see your Johnson dealer soon . . . he has more to offer for your money than ever before.

The motor in the background of our picture is a famous Johnson 10 hp. It is now replaced by the exotic looking new 9½ hp. Putting Johnson's classic 10 into the background wasn't easy. (Our competitors have been trying unsuccessfully for years.)

The new 9½ cost over a million dollars to develop. Several years work in all. It weighs 10 pounds less than the 10 hp. and is a whole $14* lower. It's exactly the kind of light, bulkless outboard fishermen expect from Johnson. All controls are up front where they belong. The right side is completely free of levers and protrusions for easy stowage in cars, cottages and garages and the carrying handle is positioned for perfect balance, like a good gun.

Like all Johnson compacts the 9½ has many big motor features; full gear shift, fuel pump, thermostatic-controlled cooling, and idiot like. The new Johnson 9½ is indeed the compact's compact. A lot of outboards may look like it in years to come; but, right now, there's nothing can touch it.

Wouldn't you like to be the first on your lake to own one?

2 YEAR WARRANTY

12 models in nine hp. sizes: 9½, 7½, 60, 40, 35, 18, 9½, 6½, 3½

BOMB EXPLODES

MADRID (AP) — A small bomb exploded in a rubbish bin in front of the justice ministry Thursday. It caused no damage or casualties. It was the 18th bomb to explode in Madrid in two weeks. The bombings are the work of anti-Franco groups trying to keep tourists away from Spain.

Plante Now Lacrosse Goaltender

MONTREAL (CP) — Goalie Jacques Plante, who earns more than $20,000 as a target in the rugged National Hockey League, is playing the perilous game of lacrosse in the off-season "for the fun of it."

"I'm playing because I love the sport just as much as hockey," says the New York Rangers netminder. Now, in the warm months, he's goaltender for the Montreal Nationales in the newly-formed Quebec Lacrosse League.

"I'm playing for the fun of it," he says. "But I expect to get a lot out of it when the hockey season rolls around again. Lacrosse will keep me in shape and help my timing."

He says he's lost 10 pounds already and claims the game can help a hockey goalie, especially a youngster.

NFL Rejects Bid For AL Star Game

NEW YORK (AP)—The National Football League turned thumbs down on a bid to play an all-star game with the American Football League and then moved Thursday to meet its own players halfway on their request for more money during the training season.

However, the league turned down a bid by the players for representation on the pension plan committee, as the owners wound up their spring meeting.

The offer had come from the National Broadcasting Company who said the network would donate $500,000 to the Kennedy Library Fund for exclusive television rights to such a game.

Sam Gentile New President Of Curling Club

PICTON (Staff) — Sam Gentile was elected president of the Prince Edward Curling Club at the club's annual shareholder's meeting last night. William Cooke was named vice-president.

Other directors for next season are past president, Frank Wait, Jack Colden, Don Stanton, Lloyd Sharpe, Art Hamblin, Ray Lennox and Carl Boyd.

NO DAMAGE

The drop in temperature to the freezing point on Wednesday night, did no reportable damage to the tomato plants already in the ground.

A low of 30 was predicted, and although white frost was noticed in some areas, growers reported no damage, some growers, to be on the safe side, covered their newly-planted plants, but they were not needed.

'Open House' At Flying Club On Sunday

PICTON (Staff)—The Prince Edward Flying Club is holding open house at the Picton Airport from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Sunday, May 24th. The public is invited to attend. Admission is free.

The band of the 1st Battalion Canadian Guards in full dress, will entertain at 2 p.m. A military display and sky diving are among the attractions planned for the day.

The club will also have a number of planes on hand to take passengers for an aerial view of the county. Their donations for the ride will go to the Rotary Crippled Children's Fund.

How much you weigh will determine how much you pay —cost is one cent per pound maximum of $2 for adults and $1 for students, with a minimum fee for anyone of 90.

At this time of the year, with the leaves coming out, the fields starting to turn green, backed by the waters of the Bay of Quinte make this one of the best times of the year to fly. The air is really smooth too, with no pockets to give you a jolt. Enjoy a ride and at the same time make a donation to a very worthwhile cause.

EAST GERMANS ESCAPE

NORTHEIM (Reuters)—Communist East German border guards fired shots at three young East Germans as they escaped across minefields and barbed wire fences to West Germany near here Thursday. The refugees, two youths aged 16 and 20 and a 20-year-old woman, were uninjured.

Mrs. B. Head Honored on 90th Birthday

PICTON (Staff) — Maurice Head and Mrs. Kenneth Palmatier entertained at a family dinner at Maple Inn Sunday, May 17, in honor of their mother, Mrs. Manson (Bertha) Head, who was celebrating her ninetieth birthday.

The guests included Mr. and Mrs. Ross Head, Pamela and Jimmie, Kingston; Mrs. James Ostrander, Mrs. Fletcher Webster, representing Mr. and Mrs. John Webster and family, California; Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Dulmage, Mrs. Wayland Buck, Syracuse; Mrs. M. Head and Mrs. Kenneth Palmatier. Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Olmstead and boys of Ottawa, cousins of Mrs. Head, joined the party in the afternoon.

Mrs. Head received many lovely gifts and cards from her many friends. Among them were two corsages, one from her great-grandchildren and another from Freddie Palmatier, who was unable to be present.

$350 Damage In Collision At Intersection

PICTON — No injuries were caused as the result of a two-car collision at the intersection of Main and Bridge Streets at 4.10 p.m. yesterday. However, damage was estimated at $350 to the both vehicles involved.

Picton Police said a car driven by Reginald Williams of 5 Low Street, Picton, was proceeding east on Main Street.

Police say the Williams' car had stopped for the stop sign at the intersection when a vehicle being driven by Dr. Lionel Dockerill of 356 Main Street, plowed into the back of the Williams car.

Police are continuing their investigation.

BOAT & MOTOR INSURANCE

MR. JOHN PUBLIC is going to hit more rocks with his boat and motor than ever before. With the extreme low water level this year, we expect more claims.

OUR RECOMMENDATION is the purchase of low-cost marine policy which provides "all risk" insurance coverage. The policy can include boats, motors, trailers, equipment, sails and spars.

UNLESS YOU HAVE a lot of money, you should let us provide the marine insurance protection you require and we will pay the bills when the accident occurs.

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—A recollection in print and on film of an episode of heroism during the Second World War prompted a reunion here of four who fought with Aubrey Cosens the day he won the Victoria Cross.

Sgt. Cosens, the former Timmins, Ont., railway worker, never knew he had won the Commonwealth's highest award for valor. A German sniper's bullet killed the 24 - year - old NCO moments after he had captured three strongpoints, killing at least 20 of the enemy and capturing as many more.

An article in Legionary magazine in February recalled the exploit and within days the author, Capt. Harold MacDonald, an army public relations officer, received several letters from veterans who knew Sgt. Cosens and felt his story was not widely enough known.

CFPL-TV London decided to document the Cosens story on film for screening May 15 and four veterans were assembled to help out.

Don Chittenden, a rifleman in the Cosens platoon, came from Ottawa, Lieut.-Col. Ben Dunkelman, the company commander, came from Toronto, Lieut.-Col. Arthur Adams, who drove a tank in the battle, travelled from his home in Brampton, Ont., and the tank commander, Charles Anderson, was located in Toronto after a search.

Together, and with the help of army research, they put the story of the battle that resulted in the posthumous VC and the Cosens ninth Canadian to win the medal in the Second World War.

On the night of Feb. 23, 1945 the 1st Battalion, Queen's Own Rifles, launched an attack that was intended to capture Kapelsche, a Canadian drive from the Maas to the Rhine rivers across the Dutch - German border. D - Company, commanded by Major Jim Jones, was the spearhead of the attack and the Cosens platoon was in the vanguard.

The platoon attacked three farmhouse - strongpoints near the hamlet of Schobuhl with the help of two Sherman tanks of the 1st Hussars of London, Ont., and Wasserberg. Including Chittenden, to provide covering fire and an across flat, open terrain to the tank, jumped aboard in front of the turret and directed the attack from there while exposed to enemy guns. The enemy troops were driven back to the farmhouses.

Still riding the tank, he ordered it to ram the walls of the farmhouse, two-story houses in succession, each time jumping to the ground himself. Firing his sten gun, he killed several and each strongpoint by himself, killing or capturing all the occupants.

Leaving the prisoners with the four survivors of his platoon, Cosens was ordered back to report to Maj. Dunkelman when the sniper's bullet hit him in the head.

"He was a tough man, but a man with great compassion," Don Chittenden recalls. "I remember how he stopped to help the wounded Germans in the heat of battle and dragged a dead comrade out of the way of a tank. . . ."

Battle of Wine Was Vinegar Says Professor

VANCOUVER (CP) — Haskell Fain is on his way home to Madison, Wis., with a sour taste in his mouth.

He reckons the matter of the bottle of wine as his Great Defeat, the one shadow across a happy year of teaching philosophy at the University of British Columbia.

Fain tells the story in a letter to a newspaper here.

I am a man who has a deep and abiding faith in the process of orderly and democratic government. When, shortly after arrival in British Columbia last September, I discovered that B.C. was in the liquor business, I said to myself: "No reason why the government folks can't run a liquor store in an orderly and democratic way if they're so inclined."

LIKES LITTLE WINE

Well, sir, in addition to having faith in etc., etc., I am a man who likes a little wine with dinner now and again. I'm not a connoisseur, you understand, but I like my Liebfraumilch from a Nierstener bildfolded. I have to look at the label, you see.

Until quite recently, however, I was certain I knew the difference between wine and vinegar.

Two months ago my wife purchased for me a friendly government liquor store a bottle of Orvieto for $1.70 cash.

I was very pleased. "By this stuff any good?" said I. "Can't say," said the man behind the counter. "Never came in the carefully to see if I might be a French-Canadian."

When we arrived home and pulled the cork, we discovered that we had purchased a very expensive bottle of vinegar.

TRIED TO EXCHANGE

Immediately my wife returned to exchange the bottle and was informed that legally she was entitled only to another bottle of the same. It turned out there were only a few bottles of Orvieto in the store, and they were being held sitting upright for some time and all of them with bone dry corks.

"Probably," said my wife, "these bottles are vinegar, too."

"Probably," agreed the manager.

All was not lost, though. It seems that a provident government had provided for such contingencies. The Orvieto was sent to Victoria for laboratory analysis, and there was given a fine official receipt and informed that the results would be made known within a few weeks. The $1.70 remained with the store, of course.

GET TEST RESULTS

Two days, it's later, the phone rang. The liquor store man told us that the test results indicated that the Orvieto had not turned. Now, I'm not a man to quarrel with science. If scientists say the stuff was wine, well, wine it was.

"Could we have our bottle back?" we inquired, envisioning a delicious Orvieto salad dressing.

"They used everything in the bottle to make the test," said the man. And that was that.

I have learned my lesson. You won't catch me buying back any more wine. Or buying it, either.

Foxboro

FOXBORO — Congratulations are extended to Mrs. Tucker and her senior pupils who won first place at Stirling in the music festival.

Miss Janet Mann underwent appendectomy in Belleville General Hospital.

Sympathy is extended to Mrs. J. Daniels whose husband, Mr. Scott passed away in Belleville General Hospital.

Mrs. Harold Bushnell has returned home after attending a wedding in New Brunswick on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Harris, Zion's Hill; Mr. and Mrs. George McClean and Karen were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kelly.

Mrs. Roy Bartlett opened her home on Wednesday for the May meeting of Foxboro Presbyterian Guild and W.M.S.

Miss Tena Watt, president presided and Scripture with a reading. She was assisted by Mrs. Bartlett. Sick and hospital calls were recorded and thankful you notes read. Business was discussed and plans made for catering at Scott's sales barns; also a social evening to be held on Wednesday evening. Mrs. Buskard invited the ladies to her home for the next meeting. Mrs. Bartlett served a dainty lunch and a social hair hour followed.

AT THE BELLE — "Says Whoii?" Tommy Kirk and Annette give Noona Grabowski a couple of pieces of their minds in Walt Disney's Technicolor campus comedy, "The Misadventures of Merlin Jones". Leon Ames and Stuart Erwin also star. Walt Disney's "Disneyland After Dark", 46 minute color featurette, is on the same program showing Today through Tuesday, at the Belle Theatre in Belleville.

Peter Nero Most Successful 'Pop' Pianist in Field

At 7, while visiting relatives, he began picking out the same tunes on a battered old upright piano.

"My grandmother immediately talked our relatives into giving me the piano," he recalled.

By the time he was 14, Peter had won several awards and made a number of symphony hall appearances. He was regarded as a prodigy, and it was taken for granted by his teachers and family that he would become a concert pianist.

"But the most important thing in this world is to be honest with yourself," says Peter. "The turning point in my life came at 22 when I decided I didn't want to be a classical concert artist. I always had to practice, and you can't hate to practise and be that kind of a professional artist."

Despite his early dislike for spending long hours of drudgery at the piano, Peter went on to carve his own unique niche in the musical world.

At 28, he's created a blend of classical forms with jazz improvisations. The slender, darkly handsome performer has become perhaps the most successful "pop" pianist in the field.

Each year he does 100 concerts, appears on up to a dozen television shows, and turns out three albums. Each of his nine albums has sold more than 100,000. He also has composed 30 tunes, acted in and written the music score for a film, and started to do three more films.

Add all this together, and you've got a performer whose annual take is in the six-figure bracket annually. Peter certainly suffered no financial loss by turning his back on a purely classical career.

Success came to him slowly and steadily as he worked out his own formula of combining humor, classical music and jazz. He worked several years on the cocktail lounge and supper club circuit.

"There is nothing harder on a performer's spirit," he recalled. "I used to play in a saloon from 10 at night until four in the morning, and to maintain that you have to be much effort and skill he puts into it, hardly anyone is really listening or listen. They're too busy entertaining themselves."

Hugh Downs up at Four To Start Busy Schedule

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Hugh Downs, head man of NBC's Today Show, crowds an incredible number of activities into his schedule.

He arises at 4:30 a.m. for his daily chores—host, interviewer, salesman, light conversationalist—on the two-hour morning show then moves on to his job of gamesmaster on the platoons on the network's Concentration.

He also finds time for flying lessons, French lessons, guitar practice, skin-diving, gun collecting, studying celestial navigation, carrying on a side-business that packages radio and television programs and commercial films, and working for his favorite charity, the Mental Health Society.

In August he will turn actor briefly to play in summer stock.

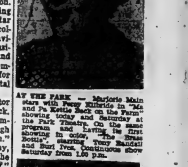
Downs insists that he accomplishes all this activity through "my theory of procrastination."

"If there isn't a time limit, there is always tomorrow or the day after—so just put it off," he says.

There is more to it than that, however. The 43-year-old Downs is an enormously self-disciplined fellow. Almost six years ago he decided he was smoking too many cigarettes.

SO HE QUIT

"I was serious at my weakness, not being able to control the thing, so I gave them up entirely," he says. "I had a self one small out: I allowed myself to smoke cigars or a pipe whenever I was outside the United States."



This has meant that Downs has done quite a bit of smoking, because the show has gone on location outside the U.S. on several occasions.

THEY LIKE BENNY

NOT LUXURY BUT SECURITY

Makes good living and here just a couple blocks from downtown is security and comfort in a modern 3 bedroom home. Broadloom in living room, kitchen and bath, lots of cupboards. Separate dining room, utility room and 3 bedrooms. Utility room and partial basement. Low down payment is low and the terms are easy.

THE BEST BUY ON EARTH IS EARTH

Obey that urge for rural living — it's easy to own nice, fresh air, 11 acres of excellent soil with 1000 ft. highway frontage. Bungalow overlooking the bay. Broadloom in living room, hardwood underfoot and very well kept. A good place for the family. Could qualify for V.L.A. purchase.

WHY PAY HIGH RENT?

When $250 down payment will buy new 3 bedroom bungalow. Everything in your heart desires. One mortgage and payments less than rent.

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For May 23

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Take time to review contracts, agreements. Budget matters require attention. Key is proper pacing. Get chores out of way early. Tonight relax . . . with congenial people.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Avoid extremes. You attract unusual conditions, people. You are especially appealing to members of opposite sex today. Avoid setback by maintaining composure, self-control.

Gemini (May 21 to June 20): Recent decisions, changes due to prove their worth. Emphasis today on home, domestic adjustment, family members. Also there is activity in area of work, fellow employees. Be gracious, amiable.

Cancer (June 21 to July 22): Be perceptive. Look behind the scenes. Realize that minor flaws can be corrected. Avoid unnecessary worry. Fine lunar aspect highlights romance, exciting creative endeavors.

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 22): Security question should be settled. Exercise authority. Leo charm helps. But don't permit others to sweet-talk you. Show appreciation for past favors. But insist on current benefits.

Virgo (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22): Find ways of accomplishing basic tasks. This best done by relying upon past experience. Put original twist on efforts. Realize that your ideas contain value . . . act accordingly.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Cycle continues high. But there are financial considerations crying for attention. Minor budget adjustment could work wonders. Obtain hint from today's Leo message. Display initiative.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Cycle high. Intuitive judgment proves beneficial. Your impressions about people, places, situations are accurate. Spotlight of appreciation shines your way. Could be very creative day!

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Time for reflection, reviewing past. Right people are "heading your way." Recent search is about to end — favorably. Day to relax, enjoy yourself. Evening favors dining out, theatre.

Capricorn (Dec. 23 to Jan. 19): Cultivate friendships. Enlarge horizons, interests. Excellent for attending lecture, special class. Engage in activities which enable you to mix people. Avoid gloom. Exude air of optimism.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18): Problems solved in manner which surprises. The usual procedures do not apply. Imagination due to be very active. Welcome changes. Examine new ideas, methods. Then move ahead!

Pisces (Feb. 19 to Mar. 20): Good lunar aspect coincides with higher learning, journeys, vacating plans or activity. Concentrate on harmony. Especially in connection with family members. Avoid needless disputes.

If today is your birthday . . . you are combination of curiosity and obstinacy. If an idea is your own — you fight for it; otherwise you tend to stick to older methods. Strike balance and you're on the way to greater success, happiness. General Tendencies: Secret agreements in news spotlight.

Caesar in the Swamplands

The Most Powerful Parish Politician in the World

BY SID MOODY

POINTE A LA HACHE, La. (AP) — Leander Perez, the millionaire segregationist swamplland Caesar who dwells as deep in the United States Deep South as you can go without failing into the Gulf of Mexico, thumped a plump fist on his desk.

"Tell me, what is the greatest problem facing the Negroes of the world today?"

I hunted for a safe, noncommittal response: "Poverty! Lack of education!"

"Young man," his voice rose and his eyes squinted coldly behind his glasses, "you show you got only lack powers of observation but you display crass ignorance! You know damn well it's nothing more than the Communist conspiracy to stir up racist hate!"

Then Perez walked over and toasted his valley's hate.

That's Leander. His anger has taken him into battle with his state, his country and its navy, great corporations, his church. His expressions contempt, even hatred for those who press for civil rights for Negroes. And he is campaigning now with a ready laugh, a genial guide through the bayou lands where he reigns as all but absolute king.

TELLS OFF NAVY

Leander Perez is also a man:

—Who's told the U.S. Navy and the archbishop of the New Orleans Roman Catholic Archdiocese to go to hell in just those words.

—Who's worth millions while agreeing an official income that never reached much beyond $6,500 a year.

—Who calls civil rights demonstrations "anarchy backed up by the U.S. attorney-general."

—Who charges President Johnson is "trying to buy an election" through his war-on-poverty program.

Who was also, along side the late Huey Long and has remained a power in Louisiana, although his parish (county) has a population of only 34,000.

Who says there are only two kinds of Negroes: "Bad ones are niggers and good ones are Negroes."

Forty years ago Perez' parish, Plaquemines, was hardly a place for faint hearts — or kingdoms — are made. It was — and is — mighty swamp. It stretches along the Mississippi south of New Orleans.

Then, in 1924, Lafitte hid out in the bayous of Plaquemines which over the centuries had developed the base of a mixture of Slavs, French, Spanish, English and Irish. There were about 1,000 Negroes.

The parish is connected to the outside by only two roads — and pollution a proud violence - prone, independent culture has developed.

Law might remained geographical curiosity had it not been for a triple discovery Leander exploited: politics and oil. Perez was found first.

STRUGGLING LAWYER

A struggling lawyer, he seized the governor's office in 1919 at the age of 28 when the judge of Plaquemines was drowned. The state governor had appointed a successor who barricaded the courthouse. But Perez, who had political tactics, had himself sworn in as judge on the lawn outside and went on to win a legal battle and was seated as the proper office holder.

In 1924 he became district attorney, which meant he was overseer of every piece of county machinery, from the election board to the county councilmen (called the police jury in Louisiana). Perez managed to have passed in the state legislature a constitutional amendment concerning levee boards, responsible building and maintaining the dikes that hold back the Mississippi.

To help defray their expenses the state allowed them to sell off lease certain lands. Perez' amendment stipulated that if a levee board was entirely within the borders of a parish (and Plaquemines' was) those revenues would be the responsibility of the police jury, not the levee board.

When drillers struck oil on those levee board lands, Perez and his parish were swept along on a gusher of prosperity.

The voting history of Plaquemines at that time is almost as spectacular. In 1944 a steamboat carried voters from New Orleans downriver to Plaquemines to produce a count larger than the male population, according to New Orleans newspaper accounts.

Ninety years later they had eliminated the steamboat. In 1930, 2,454 registered voters in neighboring St. Bernard's parish, where Perez was also the power, cast 3,979 votes for Huey Long. His opponent got nine.

EXTENDED POWER

"We'll do better next time," said Sheriff L. A. Mereaux. They did. In 1932 there were 3,152 votes for Governor O. K. Allen. His opponent: 0.

The 1930 census showed one district had a population of 9125—babies, aged, white, Negro. It cast 913 ballots.

Perez extended his power. Never a state official, he nonetheless had an almost perfect attendance record at the state legislature. He was behind the effort that saved Huey Long from impeachment as governor. St. Bernard provided the 12-for - 11th margin that made Huey's son, Russell, a U.S. Senator years later.

How did such a small tail as Plaquemines wag such a large dog as Louisiana?

"Brains," says Hermann Deutsch, columnist for the New Orleans States-Item and a veteran recorder of Louisiana politics. As Perez himself said when asked who was behind particularly clever manoeuvre in the parish: "Who the hell else has any ideas in Plaquemines?"

But there has been muscle, too. Perez doesn't like strangers nosing about the parish. A newspaper man making a doorto - door survey to determine how people in Plaquemines really had voted in a lopsided election found the sheriff had learned of his mission by the time he'd reached the fourth house.

CALLED A COMMUNIST

A TV crew who came down from New Orleans to watch a Negro religious celebration was called a Communist by Perez' deputies and thrown in jail for "disturbing the peace."

If it weren't for the mosquitoes and chiggers, Plaquemines would be a pleasant place to live. Pipes pumping the fertile acres the river, free boat yards for the parish fishermen, a tax rate of about $3 a year on an $11,000 home.

Perez taxes just to keep people happy. "Development," says Perez.

He never says how much revenue the parish derives from the more than $200,000,000 in sulphur and salt wells pumps from the bayous. But, for instance, just one small section of the parish's wells pumps $1,800 a day in taxes and royalties into parish coffers. Currently the parish is spending $24,000,000 for school, road and other improvements. "And it won't cost taxpayers a penny," boasts Perez.

Not that it hasn't been a struggle. In 1946 the state mobilized 500 National Guardsmen who marched into the parish with fixed bayonets to enforce after Perez had refused to accept the governor's appointment of an interim sheriff.

Perez mobilized his own force armed with shotguns, barricaded the courthouse and threatened to shoot anyone entering. He also distributed boxes of oil-soaked oyster shells. But, although his men fled without a shot, Perez claimed political victory by getting his candidate elected.

OIL LIMITS

He's been at war with the U.S. Navy over its base at Belle Chasse. Last year, to keep Negro servicemen out of the parish and their children out of its schools, he declared Plaquemines off limits to naval personnel.

"We say the hell with you, the U.S. government," Perez told Rear-Admiral Charles Lay-man, district commandant.

His stand has caused him to be excommunicated by his archdiocese.

"I had trouble with my archbishop," said Perez, born a Roman Catholic. "I said, 'If you think you can send me to hell, I'll ask you to go to hell.'

"Then a group of my friends organized our own church. We call it the Perez - byterians."

Recently, a group of girl sociology students from Sarah Lawrence College in New York visited the area as part of a field trip they were making on changing patterns of life in the South. Few gulfs are wider than the separating the beliefs of a Leander Perez and those of a sociology student at Sarah Lawrence where spirits are young, dress is bohemian and the intellectuals quest for causes to conquer.

FAVORITE UNCLE LOOK

Perez faced them across a table. With his grey hair, his square, paternal face, Perez, at 72, looked like everyone's favorite uncle.

"Plaquemines parish is the best-governed, best-run parish anywhere," he told the girls. "It's the envy of anyone who knows anything about it. It has the most honest rule."

Perez then took them on a tour of the refurbished courthouse, and the new $250,000 jail which he'd never visited before.

"Do you know why this water fountain is for whites only?" he asked. "Because almost all Negroes have communicable diseases."

Then he handed each a cigarette lighter that played Dixie when lit. "We ordered a gross of them," he said. They were made in Japan.

"Do you have those electric cattle prods?" he asked a girl as Perez showed off the county armory of assorted guns.

"We have everything, even something they haven't used elsewhere. Bushels of handcuffs. If they start trouble, this is the place to come. If Bobby Kennedy (attorney - general) wants to invade Plaquemines, tell him he better bring the 101st Airborne Division.

Canada Quietly Building up Europe Brigade

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP)—Amid talk of NATO being in disarray and an actual further French military withdrawal from the alliance, Canada is quietly building up the strength of its 6,200-man infantry brigade in Europe.

Authorities disclosed Wednesday that the tank strength of the brigade has recently been increased by 30 per cent. Total number of tanks now with the brigade in West Germany can't be given for security reasons.

The defence department announced last week that the 3rd Battalion of the Royal 22nd Regiment at Camp Valcartier, Que., will be converted into an anti-tank battalion and that one company—about 150 men—will join the brigade.

The Sonnet John missile battery, which has been stationed in Germany since December, 1961, will get its nuclear warheads this summer.

On order for the brigade are 500 American M-113 armored troop carriers and 12 heavy cargo helicopters.

RESERVE FORCE SET

Besides this, Canada has agreed to contribute a battalion group — about 1,100 men — to NATO's mobile reserve. This force will be kept in Canada but would be flown to Europe immediately when called on. It will do part of its training overseas.

The government plans to keep concentrating on strengthening the brigade through the rest of this decade, informed sources said.

The present aim is to convert eventually the eight-squadron RCAF air division in Europe to a ground support role—that is, direct tactical air support for the brigade and other NATO ground formations.

This likely will mean acquisition of the American F4B Phantom fighter-bomber, which also could be used in the Canadian air defence system.

When gets its new equipment, the brigade will be able to deploy farther east—in fact, right up against the Iron Curtain.

Food Always Prime Topic Of Conversation of Troops

By GERARD ALARIE

NICOSIA (CP) — Maj. Yves Gosselin of Quebec City, who looks after the needs for Canadian soldiers with the United Nations forces in Cyprus, believes Napoleon was right—an army does march on its stomach.

Or—to put it the way Maj. Gosselin did—"when the soldiers eat well, they do everything with great zeal."

Food always seems to be a prime topic of conversation among the 1,100 Canadian troops on this embattled island. Perhaps it is because most of them are from Quebec, a province noted for its cuisine.

Maj. Gosselin is the commandant of Camp Troodos, two miles west of Nicosia, the capital.

Some 250 officers and men are stationed at the camp, looking after administrative services and provisions for the Canadian contingent of the UN peacekeeping force.

The food comes from the British army's supply services. It is brought to the camp daily by truck from the port of Dhikelia on the south coast.

PEPPER POT SOUP

"We were getting a lot of pork and beans when we first came here," Maj. Gosselin said. "A little too much, in fact. I asked for some pea soup and less pork and beans. After all, French-Canadians like pea soup. The change I made was to get more milk and less and coffee. Our troops here are drinking tea as if it were the elixir of life."

All three companies of the Royal Canadian Regiment in Battalion, encamped in various locations between Nicosia and the north coast, get food from Camp Troodos every day.

The camp tries to keep four days' rations on hand at all times and has also stockpiled considerable quantities of condensed food in case normal supplies are temporarily blocked.

Living quarters, offices and stores are housed in tents on either side of a road connecting the camp with the main route into Nicosia. Electricity was installed toward the end of April.

Bomb Explosion Kills Youth, 17, Maims Another

Were Assembling Home-Made Outfit

KINGSTON (CP) — A home-made bomb exploded in the hands of two Kingston youths Friday night, killing one and ripping the hands off the other.

A third youth who was standing nearby was treated in hospital and released.

Dead is Richard Fort, 17, son of Cpl. and Mrs. Thomas C. Fort of Kingston. Cpl. Fort left Halifax earlier this week on a three-week cruise and his location was not known.

Peter Provencher, 18, son of army signalman and Mrs. Armand Provencher of Kingston, had both his hands amputated and early today underwent additional surgery in hospital. He was in critical condition.

Glen Gordon, 17, was treated for a slight cut to one of his ears and then released from hospital.

He told provincial police the three were assembling the bomb on the back porch of the Provencher home. Fort and Provencher were screwing cast iron caps to the ends of a galvanized pipe when it exploded.

A back window of the house was shattered, the back door was smashed and the wall was riddled with metal shrapnel.

Police Chief Supt. Douglas Lambert said he warned the youths Thursday night when he saw them make a bomb. He said they blew up the cement block that held the back clothesline pole.

$72,700,000 Surplus In April

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Gordon reports a budgetary surplus of $72,700,000 for April, first month of the 1964-65 fiscal year.

His March 16 budget forecast a $455,000,000 deficit for the whole year—but that was before the government decided to give the provinces a larger slice of the income tax field.

April's result compares with a $9,700,000 surplus a year earlier, a Friday statement shows.

Meanwhile, the month-end accounting showed a separate $7,-800,000 surplus in the old age security fund. A year earlier there was a $400,000 deficit.

The government in April had a $227,700,000 shortfall on all its other non - budgetary transactions, and debt operations cost another net $82,500,000.

DREW ON BALANCES

These pay-outs, minus the budgetary surplus, meant the government had to draw upon its current-account cash balances by $223,300,000. But at the end of April the cash balances still was relatively high at $908,-160,000.

In budgetary operations, government revenues at $464,300,-000 were $103,800,000 higher than a year earlier. Personal income tax revenues rose $13,800,000 to $125,800,000. Corporate income tax was $22,600,000, higher at $93,000,000 for the month. Sales taxes yielded $76,400,000—up $24,100,000 more than in April last year.

Expenditures were up $40,-600,000 to $391,800,000 compared with $351,000,000 a year earlier. The bigger increase was in defence spending, which from one April to the next rose by $21,-300,000 to $92,000,000.

Flag Issue Dominant

By RONALD LESEL

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons discussed foreign affairs for nearly four hours Friday, but as issue closer to home—the question of a national flag—obviously was on most minds.

There was another flurry of flag questions and barbs at the government as the sitting and Prime Minister Pearson said he hopes to introduce a resolution for adoption of a distinctive flag next Wednesday or Thursday.

He said the design will include a maple leaf, but declined to go into details. Rumors immediately sprang up that the cabinet may have approved a design with a single big leaf and plumked the three-leaf flags that Mr. Pearson exhibited at a Winnipeg press conference Monday.

Many other questions went unanswered. Will next week's resolution propose O Canada as the national anthem, or will that subject be left for a separate resolution later? Will the Senate sit in June to vote on the issue? If so, how will the independent-minded senators vote?

Perhaps the most urgent of these questions will be answered when the resolution is introduced next week.

On Monday and Tuesday, the Commons goes into a supply debate. This means the way for the Conservative opposition to move a non-confidence motion on any subject it chooses.

Mr. Pearson has challenged Opposition Leader Diefenbaker to censure the government on its handling of the flag issue, but there have been no indications Mr. Diefenbaker will follow that course.

The way it fully government seems assured of enough opposition support to pass the flag resolution in the Commons. Tory Red Ensign boosters could pitch in for a long battle.

Attendance ranged to about 20 at one stage in the 265-seat chamber as External Affairs Minister Martin and four opposition spokesmen opened debate Friday on the 1964-65 spending estimates of the external affairs department.

Mr. Martin indicated there will be no recognition of Communist China until next year, if at all.

Canada might change its longstanding position if China was admitted to the United Nation at the General Assembly session expected to open in November, but that is not likely yet, depending on other factors.

The position of Nationalist China in the UN Assembly and the Security Council posed a special problem, he said. Stability in Southeast Asia was another factor.

Wallace Nesbitt (PC—Oxford) criticized the minister for shying away from a clear-cut policy on China. And Andrew Brewin (NDP — Toronto Greenwood) called for an end to

Hooded Thugs Kidnap Wife Of French Warplane Builder

PARIS (AP) — Two hooded gunmen early today kidnapped the wife of Marcel Dassault, French nuclear warplane builder. Hours later a Paris newspaper said a caller demanded 10,000,000 francs ($2,-000,000) ransom.

The anonymous call was reported to have come amid a massive manhunt for the men and their driver, who sped away with Madeleine Dassault, about 65, after pistol - whipping her husband, 72, and their chauffeur, Louis Dubois, 44.

Police said it was uncertain whether the ransom call to the evening Le Monde came from the kidnappers or a crank. The caller was a man, officers said, but there were no further details on the conversation.

Interior Minister Roger Frey had roadblocks set up before dawn along the south auto route, where the kidnap car headed. Special weather watches at airports and frontier guards were on full alert.

A yellow and black sedan, believed to be the escape car, was found and abandoned later two miles from the scene of the crime.

Dassault, an ardent Gaullist and member of the French National Assembly, was not seriously injured in the attack, nor was Dubois. The gunmen apparently lay in ambush in a stolen postal truck as Dassault's car stopped in front of their luxurious home facing the Bois de Boulogne.

Mrs. Dassault tried to free herself from the two men as the kidnap car rolled up. She threw herself to the sidewalk but the men bundled her into the car and sped off.

Dassault, maker of the supersonic atomic bomber, the Mirage IV, telephoned police.

No immediate motive was clear, although there was some speculation by the commando of the anti-de Gaulle secret army OAS might have a hand in it.

Seven hours after the kidnapping, police had received no demand for ransom.

Legion Protests New Flag

By KEN CLARK

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Royal Canadian Legion Friday wound up its 20th national convention, a six-day meeting highlighted by a running dispute with the federal government on the choice of a national flag.

Both sides remained adamant. The 1,500 legion delegates chose the Red Ensign as the official flag of the 267,000-member veterans' organization, then a telegram settled on the maple leaf.

The long - range dispute erupted in the Sunday night confrontation of Prime Minister Pearson with the delegates in a downtown Winnipeg movie theatre where the opening ceremonies were held.

Mr. Pearson plowed gamely through a barrage of boos and catcalls from some of the delegations while advocating the maple leaf design as Canada's national emblem.

In the earlier days as the federal government took further steps to adopt the maple leaf, the legion backed the government plans. Riled delegates proposed a variety of protest moves from the floor.

SEND TELEGRAMS

Concrete action included the sending of telegrams to all members of the House of Commons outlining the legion stand on the flag and was climaxed by the adoption of the Red Ensign.

Under the adopting resolution, only the Red Ensign, under which many veterans fought, will be flown above legion branches and the group's Ottawa headquarters.

However, the new president, Fred O'Brecht of Durham, Ont., said he expected the legion "to play a "good citizen" and acquiesce to any new flag that Parliament adopts.

One issue nevertheless attention from the legion's reaction to federal plans to transfer operational control of some of the 11 veterans hospitals from the veterans affairs department to local civilian agencies.

At first strongly opposed to the move, the legion finally approved a conciliatory resolution, which in effect agreed to the transfer principle providing certain safeguards were applied for veterans.

One legion official indicated an equivalent answer by Veterans Affairs Minister Anne Teillet went a long way to softening opposition to the program.

Parliament At a Glance

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

FRIDAY, May 22, 1964

Prime Minister Pearson said he hopes the government resolution embodying the design for the new flag will be presented to Parliament next Wednesday or Thursday.

External Affairs Minister Martin indicated the government has no intention of reconsideration on recognition of Red China after the UN general debate this fall.

Wallace Nesbitt PC — Oxford) suggested Canada's withdrawal from the international police force in Cyprus be applied to Malaysia to drive off attacks by Indonesia.

Andrew Brewin (NDP—Toronto Greenwood) said Canada should recognize Communist China now; the government had "dilly-dallied" long enough.

Design Chosen Developing Into A Cliffhanger

Will Satisfy Curiosity Middle of Next Week

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP) — The maple leaf flag design chosen by the cabinet is developing into a cliffhanger.

And Prime Minister Pearson indicated in the Commons Friday that curiosity about the exact design won't be satisfied until the middle of next week.

For the second time, the prime minister left the Commons guessing Friday about the design picked by the cabinet at a meeting Thursday.

There are rumors that the number of maple leaves has shrunk from three to one.

The rumors seem to have arisen from Mr. Pearson's Thursday replies to Douglas Fisher (NDP — Port Arthur). Fisher exchanged the last line of a series of flag questions, went this way:

"Does the flag design he has chosen have a maple leaf on it?"

"Mr. Speaker," replied Mr. Pearson.

"Does it have three maple leaves on it?" asked Mr. Fisher.

Mr. Pearson gave no reply.

ASSUME THREE LEAVES

It has been generally assumed the number is three, largely on the basis of Mr. Pearson's publicly - expressed "hankering" for a tree red maple leaves on a white ground with a vertical blue bar at the staff and fly edges.

Curiously in the Commons was unstated Friday. To Opposition requests for information about the design he will propose to Parliament, Mr. Pearson replied:

"The design will be in the resolution and I don't think that in order to get the exact description before the House it would be advisable to wait until the resolution is presented."

Later, he told George Nowlan (PC — Digby-Annapolis-Kings) that he hopes the resolution will be brought before the Commons next Wednesday or Thursday.

Erik Nielsen (PC — Yukon) asked whether the cabinet on Thursday altered the maple leaf design from three leaves to one and Mr. Pearson replied that "is the kind of question which makes it difficult to answer questions on the flag."

Mr. Pearson declined to give the Opposition any advance information of the government's legislative tactics, possibly in re-

Private Bill Gets House OK

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons Friday furbished the ancient remedy of persons who consider themselves illegally imprisoned and with rare unanimity passed through all its stages a private bill sponsored by John R. Matheson (L—Leeds).

Justice Minister Favreau threw the government's weight behind the measure and it took only the one hour provided by the rules for private bills to adopt it.

The bill provides that where a writ of habeas corpus ad subjiciendum is refused by a judge, application may be made in succession to other superior court judges in hopes of striking one who would grant the application.

COWAN FINDS FAULT

Mr. Matheson's bill provided a springboard for a charge by Ralph Cowan (L — York-Humber) that one judge in Ontario courts finds persons in contempt of court more frequently than all others. He urged Mr. Favreau to provide appeals in such cases. He did not name the judge.

Mr. Favreau said he had always personally taken the stand that this appeal procedure was necessary. He had advocated it as a law professor and he felt it had its place. Mr. Matheson's bill full government support.

Elton Woolliams (PC—Bow River) said the bill is needed because one judge can make a mistake and in such circumstances this decision would be reviewed on appeal.

He said Parliament too often passes laws which take away

WASHINGTON (AP)—Skirmishes aimed at eventual overthrow of Fidel Castro have begun and the bearded dictator of Cuba appears to be in trouble within his own fortress, but his regime is in no imminent danger of toppling.

The anti-Castro raids have not been spectacular affairs to this point. They were not intended to be. They were promised attacks on Communist Cuba by various exile groups have not attained the proportions many had hoped for.

But for the Communist premier, the recollection of the war of the anti-Castro forces comes at a particularly bad time, with the economy in distress.

So far as is known, the pledge of 26 July Fidel Ray, one of the leaders, to be fighting on Cuban soil by May 20 has not been accomplished, if Ray meant attacks on Cuba by his own forces, or dynamiting military objectives, or widespread sabotage.

There are many, however, who think Ray may be inside Cuba now, preparing for events to come, even though the May 20 anniversary date of Cuban independence from Spain has passed without any spectacular uprising.

Ray's group says merely "the new war of independence is in the making." It adds it is satisfied with the progress made so far, especially in the field of psychological warfare.

Another exile leader told this reporter in Miami the Castro regime already has suffered two severe blows.

One is a threat has been Cuban defence forces mobilized, involved enormous expense, in manpower, housing and rations, and perhaps has made many soldiers weary of the whole business.

In addition, the actions and rumors have excited the Cuban populace, kept the whole country in a state of tension and doubtless hampered the economy, he said.

Single Leaf Flag Design Says Station

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP)—Radio station CKNW in a newsbroadcast Friday said that it learned exclusively that Canada's new flag will be a single maple leaf on a white field. The station, said that despite Prime Minister Pearson's assurances that no description of the new flag would be forthcoming before Monday, it had learned that the cabinet had unanimously approved the single leaf on the white background.

Cuban Forces Alerted Against Surprise Attack by Imperialism

HAVANA (Reuters) — Cuban armed forces today were in a state of alert against "a surprise attack by imperialism."

But Raul Castro, deputy premier and armed forces chief, told a rally in Santiago Friday night the alert was not caused by exile raids because "we can deal with them with a single company."

The brother of Premier Fidel Castro threatened to campaign in Cuba against "busano" (worms — the name given to anti - Castro elements), saying they could be deprived of "pensions, telephones and even, if necessary, their cars."

He said the overthrow of President Joao Goulart's regime in Brazil and the "surrender of Panama before U.S. pressure" were reasons for the new "acts of aggression" being planned against Cuba.

Castro alleged in the broadcast speech that Puerto Rico, Guatemala, Salvador and other Caribbean countries were being used as bases for the new aggressions.

Castro's announcement of a state of alert came after usually reliable sources said Cuban army units had clashed with a group of anti-Castro rebels trying to land on the island.

The sources said several prisoners were taken in the encounter within the last three days.

They said Cuban units surprised the raiders in the region of Honda Bay in Pinar Del Rio province about 70 miles west of Havana on Cuba's north coast.

The apparent aim of the landing was to enable the anti-Castro raiders to infiltrate the island. No other details were immediately available.

Cuban exiles in Miami this week claimed landings in Cuba would be made by exile leaders Manuel Artime and Manuel Ray.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: The first sustained heat wave of the season continues today in southern and central sections of the province and will persist at least through Sunday through the lower lakes. Central sections will be cooler late Sunday. Although skies will be mostly sunny both days a few well separated thunderstorms may develop during the afternoon and evening hours. Unsettled showery but warm weather around the upper lakes will turn decidedly cooler on Sunday.

Seek Recognition Of Red Ensign By Petition

TRAIL, B.C. (CP)—Residents of this Kootenay district smelter city Friday began signing a petition calling on "twig and leaves" as Canada's flag and seeking recognition of the Red Ensign.

The petition, sponsored by the local Young Progressive Conservative Association, bore 600 signatures five hours after a downtown booth was set up.

TORONTO (CP)—A committee to promote the Red Ensign as Canada's national flag has abandoned plans to collect signatures on petitions to be sent to the federal government.

Instead, an emergency committee of 36 plans to organize a mass rally in Toronto within the next week or two, promote a vigorous education campaign on the merits of the Red Ensign, and flood Parliament Hill with letters and telegrams.

Negroes, East Indians Clash In Georgetown Racial War

GEORGETOWN (AP)/— British soldiers were patrolling British Guiana today as gangs of Negroes and East Indians clashed in racial warfare in this British Crown colony.

A state of emergency was declared Friday night by Governor Sir Richard Luyt. In a broadcast to the colony, he announced he had asked for 1,000 troop reinforcements.

Outraged by the discovery of the bullet-riddled bodies of an aged Negro couple, bands of bicycle - riding Negro youths roamed through the streets, seeking out East Indians.

Police rescued one youth and a woman. Other persons were beaten and robbed of money and jewels. One East Indian was murdered by police died in a hospital.

Shop-keepers closed and barricaded their stores.

Police said they found the bodies of George and Clothilde Sealey near the predominantly Negro village of Buxton, in sugar cane country. They were the latest victims of racial violence mid-January of racial violence in this spot on South America's north coast.

Adding to the situation was a wildcat strike which began Thursday in the processing plant of the Canadian - owned Demarara Bauxite Company at MacKenzie, 65 miles up the Demarara River from Georgetown.

The strike spread until the plant shut down. Talks between management and workers were in progress.

Last January, the government backed a strike by Agricultural Workers Union went on strike against sugar estates in their drive for official recognition by the Sugar Producers Association. The association has been recognizing only the Manpower Citizens' Association, another labor group.

Gradually the strike developed into a struggle between the East Indians, who make up half the colony's 600,000 persons, and the Negroes, who make up 42 per cent. The remainder is a mixture of European, Asian and American Indian stock.

During riots in February, 1962, one-third of the commercial district was burned down. Other riots last year were marked by widespread looting.

In his address Friday night, Luyt called on the Guianese to remain calm, stay home and co-operate with the forces of law and order.

Apparently behind the three-month-old sugar strike is political manoeuvring by Prime Minister Cheddi Jagan's People's Progressive Party.

Grandma, 80, Gets College Degree, Russ Celebrates 159th Birthday

In Los Angeles, May Case, 88 years old, also today gets an award as the Newspaper Girl of the Year.

Manufacturer Helena Rubinstein, 90-plus, routed would-be thieves in her Park Avenue apartment Friday with a shout of "get out!"

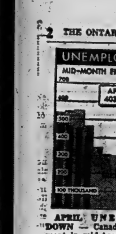
The Soviet news agency Tass reported that Russian Shirali Maliimov turned down a standing ovation on his birthday party — his 150th. Maliimov said he preferred to ride a horse to the party.

Mrs. Rothberger had wanted a college degree since 1901, when she left P.S. 21th Ward from Romania. But she had to drop out twice.

Thirty-four years ago she left college because of a daughter's illness. When she tried again in 1944, a cancer operation forced her out.

Now that she has achieved her goal, she doesn't plan to quit.

"I plan to take audit courses, and learn typing too," she said. For Mrs. Case, today is the 75th anniversary of her debut in newspaper work.



When she was 16 and housework didn't agree with her, she started writing type for the Purcell Register in Oklahoma. Soon the publisher, Spurgeon S. Case, her late husband, "flew off the handle," and sent her back to get shorthand.

She returned to newspaper work and has been working for the Clovis (New Mexico) Register in California since 1924. A news reporter and columnist, she says she has no intention of returning to the sands and pans again.

Helena Rubinstein, reported to be 92, was found tied to a chair in her apartment. Three would-be robbers had gained entrance to her flat wearing chauffeurmen's uniforms and the cosmetics manufacturer to open the safe.

"They did not kill me," she told them. "I'm not going to let you rob me. Now, get out." They did.

In Le Roy, Wis., Louis Grubber, who helped build the rectory of St. Andrew's Roman Catholic Church 73 years ago as a carpenter's mate on the job Friday to help tear down the building.

APRIL UNEMPLOYMENT DOWN — Canada's unemployment in mid-April was 403,000 persons, about six per cent of the labor force. The federal labor department and the Dominion Bureau of Statistics said this figure compared to 462,000 unemployed in April of 1963. The figure also was a drop from a month earlier when 458,000 were jobless, a 6.8-per-cent jobless rate. The seasonally adjusted unemployment rate for mid-April rose to 4.7 per cent from 4.6 percent in Mid-March "which was the lowest rate since 1957.

ogution of Conservative forcasts of a long, hard battle before the flag design is cleared by the Commons.

There seemed little doubt the government could muster a majority of votes for a design built around the maple leaf. Most Liberals appear to favor it and so do the New Democrats. Social Credit MPs and Creditistes in Quebec members in other parties, including the Conservatives, also have indicated support.

But the backers of the Red Ensign have been subjected to heavy volume of mail in support of their stand, which may encourage them to fight for the maple leaf design at length in the Commons.

Rough estimates of the mail arriving at the offices of leaders of opposition parties indicates 10 mostly favors the Red Ensign. On the other hand, Mr. Pearson's mail and telegrams are reported to run 2 to 1 in favor of a design including a maple leaf or maple leaves.

Letters and telegrams are arriving at the rate of several hundred a day at Opposition Leader Diefenbaker's office. Eight or nine are said to favor the Red Ensign as does a flag.

Canadians still seem to feel there's a chance other designs would be acceptable and some letters include drawings.

An occasional correspondent pokes fun at the flag controversy—one suggested a flag with the Kentucky Derby winner Northern Dancer on a field of oats.

However, MPs say it's hard to judge from the volume and division of mail and telegrams just how opinion stands across the country. There may be a tendency for persons with strong views on design to write or wire those politicians who have similar views.

On those terms, Mr. Pearson would be bound to get most of the mail addressed to his office and Mr. Diefenbaker or Red Ensign supporters most of the mail favoring that flag.

SOME PRESCRIPTIONS ARE COMPOUNDED

Because we take great pride in our profession, the opportunity to prove our skill in compounding prescriptions is a welcome one. Many physicians prescribe special mixtures for the patients and whether it be powders, capsules, pills, suppositories, ointments or solutions we can prepare them.

If we tell you it will take some time to fill your prescription, the odds are that your physician has requested a compounded medication. The finished product may look the same but a great deal of time, training, experience and effort have gone into it.

Your Doctor can phone us when you need a medicine. Pick up your prescription if shopping nearby, or we will deliver promptly without extra charge. A great many people entrust us with their prescriptions. May we dispense yours?

Man Charged After Accident

A 25-year-old man from Mobile Village near Bayside, will be charged with careless driving after an accident last night on Highway Two, about two miles east of Air Station Brereton. There were no injuries in the accident.

Raymond M. Stolaruk driver of car, was going west on the highway, police say, when he lost control of his car. The car left the road and hit the gate and fence of White's Cities Service garage. Damage was estimated at about $200.

According to one witness, the car took off about fifty feet of the fence and Stolaruk narrowly escaped injury when a section of pipe went through the bumper of the car and the floorboards to behind the front seat.

Need Specialists To Plan Estate Says Speaker

The monthly meeting of the Bay of Quinte Life Underwriters Association was held last night at Johnnie's Restaurant in the shopping plaza.

The meeting was conducted by Bill Hodgins, C.L.U., in the absence of president Sid Marlin.

Everett Adamson, program chairman, reminded those present of the annual sports day which will be held at Trenton Golf and Country Club on June 19th.

Ben Bailey, C.L.U., introduced the evening's speaker, Kendall G. M. Ross, B.A.L.L.B. of Belleville, who spoke on Estate Planning.

Mr. Ross in his opening remarks said that "most people we talk to feel they are immortal and tend to put things off, but the reaper gets all of us".

"In estate planning," he said, "we should use a team of four specialists, life underwriter, solicitor, accountant and a medical client. The kingpin should be the life underwriter. He should recognize the need, he must have knowledge to cope with the situation, understand money problems and suggest the solution".

Then the solicitor should then be brought into the picture and he will draw up the will and any other legal documents," he continued.

In closing Mr. Ross said "the accountant should be the tax and investment advisor and the client must have clarity of thought, size affairs and can see the plan through. This team has responsibility to the client to see that he gets the best advice and that action should be taken."

The speaker was thanked by Roger Ness.

$645,000 Award Plus Interest Given Widow

NEW YORK (AP)—A judge Thursday approved an award of $645,000 plus interest to the wife of a chemist killed in an airplane collision over New York City on Dec. 18, 1960.

The settlement was the largest single amount ever in a death case, said William F. X. Geoghan, counsel for the wife, Edna Kamlet.

Her husband, Dr. Jones Kamlet, one of 134 persons killed in the accident, was credited with developing a tablet for diabetic diagnosis. He was 46 and had a consulting firm.

Under terms of the settlement, approved by a state supreme court justice, Henry Clay Greenberg, United Air Lines would pay $402,118.75 plus $40,000 airlines $96,881, and the U.S. government $144,000.

The suit against the planes involved in the collision. The U.S government was named as a defendant because the Federal Aviation Agency had been issuing instructions to the planes at the time of the crash.

The settlement was reached after a jury last February returned a $600,000 verdict against United.

Some 40 other cases resulting from the collision have been settled without trial for total awards estimated at more than $3,000,000.

New Officers For B&P Club Are Installed

TRENTON — Past president Miss Eva Baker installed Mrs. Violet Kennedy and her officers for 1964-65 at the annual meeting of the Trenton Business and Professional Women's Club on Wednesday night.

The ceremony was preceded by a dinner at which Mrs. James Kerr and her daughter, Mrs. Mary Kerr, were special guests. Mrs. Kerr has retired from active business life after selling the Hotel Gilbert, where the B. & P. W. Club have held their regular dinner meetings since they were chartered 12 years ago.

Mrs. Kerr and her daughter were presented with a beautiful bouquet of flowers as a mark of esteem by Miss Verna Nelson, first vice-president. Both Mrs. Kerr spoke in tribute to the splendid relationships that have continued throughout the years.

Mrs. Kerr made a gracious and charming reply, adding that "tonight I appreciate a little patting now and then."

Before leaving her office as president, Miss Doris Webb took reports from the various committees. Members have agreed with appreciation that the attendance at the recent May-time Tea, at the North Hill home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bata had accounted for an attendance of 100 persons, in spite of inclement weather.

In her "farewell to office" address Miss Webb remarked that she had come into the office of president with lack of confidence and many misgivings. She was leaving with a broader and richer viewpoint, feeling the year's harvest, truly has been great."

OFFICERS NAMED

The election of officers was conducted by Mrs. Alfreda Wilson, and her committee, Mrs. Alice Hayes and Mrs. K. Stafford.

Miss Baker addressed the new officers and lighted a candle for the club, from which each officer lighted her own candle, as the charge was given, then took her vow of service.

Acting with Mrs. Kennedy for the coming year is vice-president, Miss Vera Clark; second vice-president, Mrs. Helen Coulterjohn; treasurer, Rosamond Smith; recording secretary, Ruth Medal; corresponding secretary, Mary Casselman; immediate past president, Doris Webb.

Committee chairmen: program, Vicki Lee; ways and means, Ila Hart; publicity, Helen Upper; bulletin, Mary Ann Hamilton; membership executives, among the first groups converging on London to attend the 8th birthday dinner will be given here Monday for Lord Beaverbrook by fellow Canadians at a bon publisher Lord Thomson of Fleet.

The three surviving today were John Bassett of the Toronto Telegram, Dick Malone of the Winnipeg Free Press and Gillis Purcell, general manager of the Canadian Press.

Asks Study Hydrant Rent Reduction

TRENTON — Councillor G. A. Weaver has asked the other members of council to do some serious thinking about asking the Trenton Public Utilities Commission to lower its annual rental fee for hydrants from the present $63 per hydrant. Belleville, says the councillor, pays only $35 per hydrant. Other municipalities across Ontario pay various per hydrant sums to their commissions each year, some as high at $100 per hydrant.

Councillor Weaver also questioned the wisdom of locating additional hydrants on Henry Street, which runs between, and parallels Dundas Street and Dundas Street West. Councillor Weaver claims that the presence of hydrants on the town's two main streets, does away with the necessity of placing hydrants on Henry St. Hoses would only have to be stretched a maximum distance of 450 feet to serve any part of the street, he told council on Thursday night.

When it was pointed out to the councillor that underwriters' insurance companies recommend a maximum distance of 300 feet from a hydrant, Councillor Weaver was still not convinced.

"We've got along this way for 35 years," he said.

Ontario Sales Mission Now In Britain

LONDON (CP)—Another Ontario sales mission—the 12th in the last 18 months to United Kingdom—has arrived by plane today in quest of markets for products ranging from women's slacks to magnetic recording tapes.

On the same aircraft was Premier John Robarts of Ontario and his party, arriving for an official visit. On June 4 the premier will formally open the recently renovated and redesigned Ontario House here.

Members of the 14-man trade mission will split up into groups and visit separately various companies in Britain and Europe. Their products include an automatic calibrating device for measuring the thickness of coal and electric meters; anodized aluminum wire; corrugating for airports and bridges, and stretchslacks.

The Ontario missions have returned home bubbling with success stories and encouraging the premier to continue the annual trips.

IN MEMORIAM

DERAW — In cherished memory of a dear husband and father, Joseph Derraw, who died 25 years ago, May 24th, 1964, and son, Irvine William, drowned May 23rd, 1957.

Time may fade and dear ones may take thy rest,
With sadness and memory's sorrow ever by your bedside,
Sometimes we long to understand
Why some things have to be;
But with faith in God we understand
And our sorrow is eased
By knowing our names are whispered in our prayers,
With a heart full of love
Remembered
Dear daughter and brother may he Rest in peace.
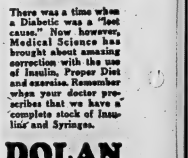
—Always remembered by Orby and Mary and family.

NILES — In loving memory of our friend Robert Lancaster (Chuck) Niles who was drowned May 23rd, 1957.

The winds of May blow softly
On a lonely peaceful spot,
Where the son I loved lies sleeping
And never will be forgot.
—Ever missed and lovingly remembered by Mom.

NILES — In loving memory of a dear friend, Charles E. (Chuck) Niles who was drowned May 23rd, 1957.

Thoughts are memories today
Of a friend remembered by his loving wife and friend, Ruth.



LANCASTER — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Robert Mark Lancaster, who passed away May 23rd, 1957.

20 Canadians Predicting Life Next 100 Years

More than 20 leading Canadians have predicted life 100 years from today in Canada for the foundation stone of the new Ontario Headquarters Building of the Royal Bank of Canada.

Predictions range from the elimination of the wheels as a means of transportation to vast new fields of scientific accomplishment.

The predictions gathered by the Royal Bank of Canada will be enclosed within the foundation stone of their new building at 20 King Street West as the projected life of the building is 100 years.

The papers will be made public at the cornerstone laying for the building to take place Wednesday, May 27th, at 11.00 a.m. The stone will be laid by the Hon. James N. Allan, the Ontario Provincial Treasurer.

The new 11-storey building will house all departments of the bank's Ontario headquarters as well as providing on the ground floors, complete banking facilities.

CNR Luxury Train Makes Debut Sunday

MONTREAL—The Panorama, the first new transcontinental passenger train to be introduced into service since 1955 will have its inaugural run out of Montreal when it departs from Central Station at 11:15 (DST) Sunday night May 24.

This luxury train, equipped, furnished and serviced in the same fashion as the existing Super Continental will complete the trip into Vancouver in less than three days offering as a new attraction the trip through the Rockies during daylight hours.

The schedules of both The Super-Continental and the Panorama are so arranged as to enable passengers to change from one train to the other at various points allowing stop-over for about a ten-hour stop-over. For example a passenger could arrive at Jasper, Alta. on the westbound Panorama early in the morning, complete a sightseeing trip to some of the attractions in Jasper National Park, and then resume his journey on The Super-Continental later the same day. Similar stop-overs can be arranged on the eastbound trip.

CAS Operating Within Budget Meeting Told

The regular monthly meeting of the Children's Aid Society was held at Belleville on Thursday, the 21st of May 1964, with the president, Dr. S. C. Rose, in the chair.

Mr. Thomas R. Colden of Belleville, presented the report of the treasurer. Mr. Colden stated that the society was operating within its budget. Speaking on behalf of the Trustees of the Continuing Education Fund (designed to assist former wards now over eighteen to continue their education), Mr. Colden stated that several recently received donations had enabled the trustees to purchase another $1,000 bond. He said "we now have $3,000 invested and an attempt is being made to stimulate further interest in the fund. Unless the donor specifies to the contrary, all donations and bequests are invested and the interest only used for educational purposes."

Mr. Bruce Kerr, the local director of the society, informed the board that at the end of April there had been 145 children in care. However, Mr. Kerr stated that as an unrealistic number in view of the population served and that an increase could be expected. He said twelve boys and girls would be starting to high school in the fall and that almost all would be taking either a four or five-year course.

Mr. Kerr announced that Miss Betty Ann Makar, who has been a member of the child care staff for the past four years, would be leaving the agency at the end of August to take her Master's Degree in Social Work at the University of Toronto. He expressed regret at Makar's leaving and made mention of the contribution she had made to the work of the society.

NEW APPOINTMENTS

Said Mr. Kerr "I consider Miss Makar to be an excellent caseworker who has outstanding ability in working with older girls". He added to the appointments of Mrs. G. D. M. de Groot, a graduate in social work from the University of Amsterdam, to the protection department staff. Mrs. deGroot, who recently moved with her husband and family to this area from Westport, will work in the City of Belleville. The Board was asked to approve the appointment of Miss Janice Latimer, a recent graduate of Carleton University, Ottawa, and Miss Carole Cleave, a graduate of the University of Western Ontario, London, to the child care staff. Miss Cleave is to be granted a leave of absence to take post graduate work in social work at the University of Toronto School of Social in September.

Considerable time was devoted to a discussion of the report of the evaluation of the Society's work with unmarried parents by the Child Welfare Branch of the Ontario Department of Public Welfare. Making reference to practice, the report stated "On the basis of the data collected by our supervisor, the quality of the service being offered by your agency to unmarried parents is very good within the limits set by policy."

USED CONSTRUCTIVELY

Community resources such as psychiatric consultation and general welfare assistance are used constructively on behalf of clients. Your agency maintains a contact with the unmarried mother who keeps her child until you are satisfied that the care and supervision is adequate. This is good practice.

The section of The Child Welfare Act on maintenance agreements, orders to enforce agreements and affiliation orders are followed carefully and in general the legal aspects of the work with unmarried parents are very well handled. Your agency is having considerable success in effecting maintenance agreements with putative fathers, the number presently in effect in relation to the caseload of unmarried mothers being higher than in many Societies."

BETTER ANIMAL CARE- is the aim of members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce who plan a clean-up, paint-up program at the city animal shelter. Here Steve Delbridge, Trent Hamre and Douglas Brown, pause from labors or preparing outside exercise area for paving.

Jaycees Animal Shelter Program Gets Under Way

Members of the Belleville Junior Chamber of Commerce commenced their city animal shelter rejuvenation program this morning.

Included in their program is paving of the dog pound exercise yard, repainting of existing animal cages and construction of new ones, together with a general clean-up and paint-up of the premises.

Also an overhead canopy for the outside exercise yard is planned.

And the Jaycee's program calls for better care of impounded animals in the future with a steady supply of dog food arranged for through Quaker Oats Company branch at Trenton.

"We hope to improve conditions at the animal shelter so that pet-loving people will be encouraged to come to the pound and retrieve impounded animals," stated Brent Hamre, chairman of the Jaycees' animal shelter committee.

At the present time conditions at the shelter are such that few people care to brave the stench to come and see the animals.

Today Jaycees were excavating the outside fenced shelter in preparation for paving the area next Wednesday. A local concrete mixing firm is supplying the necessary concrete at cost.

Will Consult On Use of Nuclear Weapon

WASHINGTON (CP) — Secret discussions on how Canada and the United States will consult on the use of nuclear weapons during an emergency likely will be undertaken at a Canada-U.S. ministerial conference here June 25, it was learned Friday.

The conference on defence, first in four years, may also consider revisions in the procedure whereby the U.S. obtains permission to fly nuclear aircraft over Canada, an informant said.

The informant said the U.S. has permission to undertake a certain number of flights over Canada for military exercises and strategic patrolling purposes, but the existing agreements have to be renewed periodically. The U.S. would like to see the complete removal of Canadian restrictions.

The conference, to be attended by External Affairs Minister Martin and State Secretary Dean Rusk as well as Defence Minister Hellyer and Defence Secretary Robert McNamara, also will attempt to work out communications procedure for the firing of American nuclear warheads on Canadian territory.

While some informal arrangement has already been made, the informant said the ministerial participants likely will discuss and perhaps negotiate a firm agreement on the methods of joint consultations before any nuclear weapon is triggered.

Spring Onions Fall Parsnips Feature Market

Spring onions and parsnips hit the market this morning for the first time this year. The spring onions had been "Dutch set" for an early start, the parsnips had been left in the ground through the winter. Price on the onions was 10c a bunch, on the parsnips 50c for a six-quart basket, or two parsnips for 15c.

Tomatoes continued at 45c a pound, rhubarb at 10c a bunch and asparagus at 20c a bunch or two bunches for 35c. All were in more plentiful supply than last week.

Potatoes were selling at 65c for a six-quart basket and eggs at several prices, starting at 30c a dozen for medium, 35c for a dozen large and 40c for a dozen extra-large. Cut and potted flowers remain on the market at various prices.

Non-Removable Fixtures Not Subject to Loans

OTTAWA (CP)—Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation said Friday it will not grant loans to home purchasers who buy non-removable fixtures on the installment plan at the time of purchase.

The action is directed against home buyers who use conditional sales contracts and rental agreements to finance equipment installed in their homes on a permanent basis.

A statement issued by the Crown corporation said CMHC will not "make a loan or issue an undertaking-to-insure where any component in the house, shown in the plans and specifications submitted with the application for loan, are being financed by a conditional sale contract or installed on a rental basis."

A corporation official said such equipment includes permanently installed wall ovens, hair dryers, washing equipment, air conditioning equipment, automatic dish washers and similar fixtures.

Former U. S. Ambassador, 6 Others Missing

TAMPICO, Mexico (AP) — A chartered plane carrying DeLesseps S. Morrison, former U.S. ambassador to the Organization of American States, one of his sons and five other persons was missing on the return flight from Matamoros to Tampico.

U.S. and Mexican airplanes and helicopters joined in a search for the twin-engine Piper Aztec, which was to have reached this gulf coast city at 6:00 p.m. Friday.

Hope prevailed that the craft might have made an emergency landing on one of the many ranches or small airfields on the route south from the Texas border.

Morrison and five other persons had flown Friday from New Orleans to Corpus Christi, New Orleans to Corpus Christi, Tex., where Morrison chartered the Aztec. Its pilot was identified as Hugh Ward of Corpus Christi.

Morrison had his youngest son, Randy, 7, on the trip.

Names of the other passengers were not immediately learned, but one of them was said to be a child.

Parliamentary Notebook

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP)—Just how free will members of Parliament be from political ties when they vote on the adoption of a new flag?

This question has popped up as the result of remarks in the Commons about taking a free vote on the controversial subject.

Free votes are occasions when the party whips are not called on to perform their function of keeping MPs in line on party political issues.

They are taken when issues cut across party lines—as does the flag question. Notable free votes in Parliament in recent years have been on such subjects as the abolition of capital punishment.

There was one in August, 1946, on the then controversial issue of legalizing the sale of margarine in Canada. City MPs were in favor but rural representatives — particularly those from dairy districts — bitterly opposed the butter substitute.

That free vote was held on the suggestion of the late C. D. Howe, then the all-powerful minister of everything. It went against the government, but the government easily won a subsequent confidence vote to ensure its right to carry on.

Normally on a free vote the question of the House's confidence in the government is not at issue, and MPs are free to vote for or against a government measure as their conscience—and not their party allegiance—dictates.

But the question of approving the cabinet's choice of a new flag design has been put in a different light by Prime Minister Pearson.

While he has said there will be a free vote, he also says that the government will stand or fall by the result.

He also said last week that any Liberal MP who votes against the design submitted by the government "would not be carried out of the party by me."

"I take it," said NDP Leader Douglas, "we are not to have a free vote."

Around parliamentary corridors there was some grumbling about the attitude Mr. Pearson has attached to the so-called free flag vote.

All MPs—including, certainly, the Liberals—are keenly aware that another general election can come at any time.

In their concern about this they recognize that while they may not be "read out of the party," they will have to seek re-election and need the backing, financial and otherwise, of party headquarters in the campaign.

Moral and Physical Training

Air Commodore L. J. Birchall told the Belleville Squadron of Royal Canadian Air Cadets that the Air Cadet movement can provide the moral and physical training left incomplete by our schools.

This statement can easily lead to misconceptions.

There is the clear indication that Air Commodore Birchall does not think our schools provide adequate moral and physical training. He is right, of course, but some may misinterpret this as discrediting our schools. This is not so, unless one accepts the proposition that moral and physical training are part and parcel of a school's duty. Many persons hold otherwise. They consider the schools have a big enough task developing the intellect, without overly concerning themselves with the body and the spirit.

Having said that, are Air Cadets and similar groups ideally designed for undertaking what the schools do not achieve—and perhaps what they should not even attempt?

We doubt it.

There are almost as many standards of morals as there are moralists, and it is self-evident that one must select a standard before attempting to judge the efficiency of any organization in promoting it. The Air Cadets may promote what may be termed the military virtues, courage, endurance, obedience, steadiness and loyalty, but we very much doubt whether even the Air Commodore would consider that membership in the Cadets enhances tenderness, humility, forebearance, patience, or any other of the virtues which are, mistakenly, sometimes regarded as indications of femininity. The sexual morality of most military organizations would be considered low by the puritans, not because of any influence which is strictly military, but because the sexes are segregated in such organizations and this always seems to promote an undue emphasis on the physical, and a disregard for the spiritual, aspects of relationships between the sexes.

As for physical development, it is true that any military group hardens the bodies of its members. But boys with a normal interest in physical activities are likely to find outlets for these activities in school, or outside it, even if they are not members of a Cadet corps. Those boys who have no sports or other interests which put a demand on their bodies are not likely to be attracted to the Cadets.

The Air Cadets Corps provides excellent physical and mental training in certain military skills, a sense of comradeship, and an experience of discipline which, as the Air Commodore said, could lay the foundation for that self-discipline which is the most valuable asset a boy can acquire.

An Old, and Sorry Story

Forty microphones have been discovered hidden in the walls of the building which the Soviet Union assigned to the U.S. as an embassy, back in 1953.

This is a despicable attempt to discover the secrets of a power nominally friendly. The hypocrisy which surrounds the traditional privilege of diplomatic immunity is self-evident when diplomats are not accorded the common courtesy of being able to discuss their problems without eaves-dropping.

When one has said that, though, one has said everything. The presence of the microphones is unlikely to have exposed the U.S. to really serious disadvantages in the continual diplomatic tug-of-war with the Soviet Union. "The state department," we are told, "had presumed from the outset, when it took possession of the embassy, that the premises were wired . . . All highly sensitive work was done in rooms within rooms—especially constructed so that they could not be penetrated by microphones."

These forty microphones are just the last of a total of 170 listening devices discovered in U.S. premises behind the Iron Curtain. So that, in spite of the sensational nature of the latest discovery, this is really nothing new.

Generally speaking, the African's traditional sense of tragedy is very much like that of the ancient Greeks: the war between men and fate, or rather man's final submission to the overwhelming operations of fate that we witness in ancient Greek tragedy is traditionally an African trait; and then we tend to laugh during the tragic moment, because we feel fate has taken over, it's no more our responsibility, nothing can be done about it. And so we find we can contain the tragic moment. If you bow before fate, you cannot break or go to pieces. — African writer Ezekiel Mphahlele.

Sherbrooke La Tribune

According to Premier Smallwood (of Newfoundland), it would be possible to transmit Hamilton Falls electricity to New York either without going across Quebec territory. In his mind, one could bypass Quebec and use submarine cables between Labrador and the Island of Newfoundland, and between the latter and Nova Scotia.

Have the experts consulted by Mr. Smallwood really made a report favorable to this alternative or does the Newfoundland premier intend to indulge in some kind of blackmail to make Quebec accept his conditions?

It may be doubted that the transmission of electricity by submarine cables over a long distance is possible at the present stage of technology.

Even if it is technically possible, it remains to be seen whether it would be economically feasible. On this point also, there is room for serious doubts.

It seems, therefore, that Mr. Smallwood has once again become prey to his own talent as a crafty negotiator, who does not hesitate to bluff his adversaries in order to bring them around to his point of view. Quebec should not let itself be influenced by this tactic. (May 13)

Montreal La Presse

Montreal La Presse — The legislature's committee on the constitution has just taken the first wise decision to have experts bring them around to his point of view. Quebec should not let itself be influenced by this tactic. (May 13)

Montreal La Devoir

Montreal La Devoir — The legislature's committee on the constitution has decided to make a big detour. It will entrust to a group of experts the study of "the impact of independence on Quebec's political, economic, social and cultural realities."

The committee mistakes the role experts can play at this stage in the study of this question.

To introduce a working hypothesis based on the idea of independence is to put the cart before the horse. It means that the politicians sitting in Quebec City are trying to turn over to technical experts a problem that is mainly political.

For several months we have been hearing some experts declare that the separation of Quebec would be an economic disaster, others that it could be accomplished without too much difficulty. They don't really know. They are just rephrasing their political opinions in economic terms. In the event of a separation, everything would depend on the political climate in which it came about.

Experts can tell us what our status will be in the United Nations, and what the cost of a diplomatic service will be in case of independence. They cannot tell us what our standard of living will be, what our relations with our neighbors will be, or what degree of internal liberty we shall have. Those are matters that depend essentially on the political decisions made, and those are the matters that really count, not matters such as knowing whether we shall have a few perverse riding around in Cadillacs in the world. Moncton L'Evangeline — More than 400 persons attended the public meeting that terminated the Laurendeau - Dunton commission's sessions in Moncton. They left enriched by the exchange of ideas and problems between Canadians of French and English speech.

Each of the two groups lives in its own corner in New Brunswick and the contacts too often are strictly on a business basis. This attitude is perhaps more in evidence among our English compatriots who, because of a certain economic independence, do not have to mix with French-Canadians.

Participants in the discussions before the sessions have agreed that the two languages ought to be recognized officially in this province — Canada Wynn. (May 14)

Once more, however, we have ascertained that the English - speaking elite is afraid. For a whole century the French-Canadian has been ignored. People have discriminated against him at all levels without worrying about the ultimate results.

English - Canadians are afraid the wave of bilingualism across the country, particularly in government services, will deprive their children of jobs. The latter have not been able to learn French and become bilingual. There is anxiety lest the rising generation becomes the victim of discrimination. The fact that French - Canadians have had to suffer discrimination for five generations is ignored. We have made sacrifices for nearly a century but they are not ready, it seems, to make sacrifices for one generation. . . Bernard Poirier. (May 14)

Ottawa Le Droit—Quebec's natural wealth, says minister, Mr. Rene Levesque, played with dangerous words when he addressed students of the large Ste. Marie in Montreal. He asked that the province of Quebec become a state associated with the rest of Canada after negotiations that would be held "without guns and without dynamite as much as possible." Does this mean it might, at some time or other, be appropriate to use guns and dynamite?

Was Mr. Levesque just telling his audience what they wanted to hear? Probably not, by condemning terrorism without fundamentally talking like a demagogue.

The minister, it appears, is a man of great courage. Perhaps. But we do not at all see what heroism is on display to an agitator who declares to 400 young men that we have the gravest problems to solve and implies to them that terrorism will someday probably hasten their solution, the province of Quebec, in the year of 1964, speak against Confederation, indirectly or otherwise, to any young audience and you will be applauded. What courage! The courage, in fact, of talking to young people in this time of crisis, is telling them that the life we enjoy and think we suffer are not all the fault of the "English," nor of the Americans," for that matter, and that, no matter what the economic system or political regime, they will succeed in life only by work, perseverance and competence. Such statements, and other evasions but they can hender serious study. Obviously it is easier to dream in front of them, flatter them and then leave them to their idle fancies. . . —Willie Chevalier. Ottawa Offbeat

As Session Drags, Pearson's Patience Wears Thin

By RICHARD JACKSON

From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Pearson is beginning to show signs of frayed nerves at the end.

More and slowly more, as the long hard grind of the difficult Session wears on, he wears down.

Eroding in front of the very eyes of the House, for all the Opposition to see, is the unique ability — the once easy, relaxed affability —to grin and seem to shrug off his troubles with a quick quip.

It was quite a talent, that warmly pleasing amiability that enabled him in conceal from the Opposition whatever irritation, annoyance and even deep concern that every prime minister must feel.

For a time, it seemed to give him at least the appearance of being personally invulnerable to the attacks of the Opposition sharpshooters.

It has always been great Parliamentary fun to see a prime minister — any prime minister, from Mackenzie King through Louis St. Laurent to John Diefenbaker — and if he roared like a bear in anger, the political sport was that much better.

And goodness knows, anybody who was listening to this particular political observation post of Ottawa Offbeat has been since 1957 has roared, and loudly each of them, on occasion, roared in rage.

CHANGED AND CHANGING

But Prime Minister Pearson was supposed to be different.

He came to office, as he probably by long odds the most brutally demanding and just possibly the most overworked in all the land — as a political freshman, with the special and unusual recommendation of having among the creme de la creme of global diplomacy. His world is far from that.

His the "new politics," as he himself called it.

He was too urbane for anger, too sophisticated to show irritation. He seemed, as never a part of him, to allow himself to become involved in the rude, sometimes rough and tumble of partisan politics.

He would be above all that. He would be the Olympian Cabinet, Parliament and the nation like some exalted Chairman of the Board.

Canada would purr along with the smooth precision of General Motors.

Well, for a time; a short time. It didn't work — just might do the impossible.

But then the problems began piling up, and because it was just wouldn't go away even if they were ignored, they compounded.

It wasn't at all like General Motors.

It was a whole lot tougher.

It was a man-killer of a job, that Prime Minister Pearson has taken on, and it began to leave the unmistakable marks of worry and overwork on him just as it had on tough old Mackenzie King, gently retired Uncle Louis, and intensely intent John Diefenbaker.

THE SPOT:

Even worse, for this prime ministery the Opposition has begun getting at him.

He doesn't shrug off the barbs with an amiable grin any more.

They hurt, and he shows it.

Astonishingly — and it is just that, astonishing, for this so - pleasant man — he can lose his temper now.

The red rises in his neck, climbing like a crimson tide up his face to the hair line. His normally low voice grows higher. And he makes the mistake, in irritation, of trying to fling it out, only to find it tongue, in slanging matches with Diefenbaker, who is still "chief" when it comes to tribal warfare in Parliament.

He has learned to stand off Diefenbaker, but only when he keeps cool. For when his temperature rises, as it now often does, he is lost.

Like the other day . . . Diefenbaker, past master in the fine art of the heckle, jabbed him with a taunt that many people waiting for Government position thought it high time the politicians "shut up and get on with it."

The prime minister's face flamed.

He shot to his feet and out in front of his desk.

The House sat amazed.

Diefenbaker, as shouted, were offensive.

Then, astoundingly, he read the Old Warrior an ill - tempered lecture on "manners" for former prime ministers.

Clearly the prime minister had lost control of himself, and in so doing, in a sense, of the Commons.

Did well content than another Opposition spear had got deep under the thinning skin of the prime minister, seemed a sad satisfied, and unanswerable:

"Petulance is no substitute

To Your Good Health

Muscles When Not Used Lose Tone, Weaken and Wither

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: A year ago my wife had a stroke, leaving her right hand and leg affected. She cannot walk by herself and has little control over her hand.

The doctor says there is nothing wrong with her hand and leg but the part of the brain controlling them is not functioning properly.

What is the treatment or exercise for such cases? Is there a chance for recovery? Will the brain remain permanently damaged? What can we do to effect a cure? — A. J.

What the doctor told you is, of course, correct. Usually a stroke damaged certain centres of the brain, and as a result she has paralysis of the right side, very well.

Nothing happened to the leg and the hand. Not then, anyway. The bones and muscles remain in the same way they were before the stroke.

However, when muscles are not used they lose tone and weaken and wither. A person who has had a stroke should therefore be urged to use a paralyzed limb to whatever extent is still possible.

When the paralysis is complete — when an arm, leg or hand cannot be moved at all — then physiotherapy must be employed. This may be by massage, or by exercising the paralyzed region for the patient, or by some more technical method:

But if some motion remains possible, that is good news. Even if the patient cannot walk, but still has some ability to move the leg, that is the thing to do: exercise it every day. The kind of exercise is not particularly important. It depends on what the patient can do. Just moving the leg, and greater ability to move is develops as you go along.

Some ability of movement indicates that, although there has been damage to the brain, the damage is not total, but is control. When some control remains, this ordinarily indicates that a degree of recovery is possible, too.

Use the hands or fingers, lifting small weights, and gradually increasing the amount; throwing a large ball; working the fingers back and forth, all are simple but practical exercises. As strength and control develop, it is then possible to move on to things requiring greater control — eating, playing games, writing and so on.

This takes time and patient effort every day. When the stroke has been severe it is not wise to expect complete recovery, but steady effort will bring some.

The fact that the motor centres of the brain (the parts which control movement) have been damaged does not imply that other parts have been damaged, as the patient may be able to hear, see or think as well as ever.

They don't always. But in some instances (not for other doctors) may want to know whether there has been any change in your neurological system, and this is a quick way to get some guide. The knee reflex may be diminished, absent or overactive in certain disorders.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is a diabetic diet harmful to a person who doesn't have the disease, but is already on a fat-free diet for gall bladder trouble? — Mrs. R.

It is not harmful. There is no thing mysterious about a diabetic diet. It is merely a mechanical in amount of food and certain types of food such as the carbohydrates. Some diabetic diets are also low in fat.

You may hake her when she gets a gleam in her eye and launches a full-scale assault on every Canadian male in sight. You may think the average Englishman is one man of the rudest people you've met, be she sister or sweetheart or wife.

But figures do not lie, and you have got to hand it to her for doing a bigger than manwise job of work. Not all English women have been toughened and hardened in the machine of war. There's hardly a woman in the British Isles without an ache in her heart. Their menfolk have been away for long years.

Nearly everyone has lost someone — husband, father, brother in the Battle of Britain. But today 7,750,000 are civilians in the armed services, in civilian defence, or vital war work.

More than 90 per cent of all single women between 18 and 40 years are doing essential work as are more than 80 per cent of all married women with no children in the same group. More than 1,600,000 women between 40 and 60 years are working. These are not mere token jobs. Any woman who works in the forces or for a week has to do an additional 12 hours a week national service, civil defence, fire watching or first aid.

Britain is the only country in the world that conscripts its women for the uniformed services. More than 300,000 serve in the Auxiliary Territorial Service. The WAAF gave no figures but the service has grown to 79 times its size at the outbreak of war.

More than 114,000 women work on the British railways overburdened with troop and freight movements. The shipyard is entirely manned by women, in civilian defence women work 60 hours a week for a salary of under $14. In the National Fire Service they handle all types of fire fighting.

DR. W. F. KOERBER

Social Planner Will Address District Council

"Youth at the Crossroads" will be the theme when Dr. W. F. Koerber addresses the annual dinner of the Belleville and District Council of Home and School Associations next Thursday.

Dr. W. F. Koerber, B.A., D.Paed., is well known and highly respected as an educator and as a social planner.

When obtaining his degree as Doctor of Pedagogy at the University of Toronto, Dr. Koerber took as the subject of his thesis "An Evaluation of Methods and Procedures in the Teaching of Reading to Non-academic Adolescent Boys." This in the main has been the story of his career.

With several years of experience on the staff of Jarvis Junior Vocational School, a trade school for non-academic teen-age boys, he became the organizer and first Principal of Variety Village, a vocational school for physically handicapped teen-age boys.

Dr. Koerber is especially known to teachers for his work as lecturer in Psychology for the Department of Education Summer Courses in Auxiliary Education and has, also, been Principal of Auxiliary Education Summer School upon two occasions.

Your Economic Worth at 65 Likely More Than You Think

By THOMAS COLLINS'

You might have another look at your income, if you've arrived at retirement age.

If it comes to $200 or better, and if you can get the perspective on it that a fellow named Albert P. Coons has, you can start walking two feet taller.

Mr Coons says he is tired of seeing retired people being self-conscious about their incomes.

"Retired people are one of the rich commercial markets in this country," he says. "They should know this — even though few other people do. They should be proud of it. They should stop talking a lot of nonsense from those who insist they are an unimportant economic factor. . ."

Mr. Coons retired a year ago after a long retailing career. He has spent much of his time since travelling to various retirement communities around the country in search of a retirement home. He hasn't found anything he likes better than his old home town, but he thinks he has gotten an education in the economic value of retired people.

"And I just wish I had about two more years back in the retail business to cash in on it," he says.

DURABLE CUSTOMER

Mr. Coons discovered first, he says, that a retired couple is the most durable customer in Canadian life. "When they retire at 65," he explains, "they have a dozen or more years of life expectancy. Which means 12 or more years to buy. These years are perhaps on the most even keel of a person's whole life span. Because people after 65 change little, in ideas, actions, or habits. They just grow older.

"So once the retired couple becomes a customer of a certain store, or buyer of a certain product, they stick longer than any other age group. Teen-agers are good only for three or four years, and the same for the greasy-kid stuff set. From 30 to 50 or so, couples are fickle customers. Their careers are growing, their incomes are rising, and they're always moving up a notch.

"Nowhere do you get such a stable, fixed customer as you do in the retirement years. . ."

Furthermore, the income of the retired couple, while small-ish, is mighty steady. Every month, no matter what, the income cheque arrives and in most cases is immune to disaster. The retired man, can't strike, can't be fired, laid off, or squeezed out in a merger. In most cases there are no legal means of depriving him of the income he gets. "That drip, drip, drip of retirement income could keep any business from going broke in a depression."

Mr. Coon also has decided each retired couple is a market of eight people, not two. He explains that a couple will have an average of three children, that they will be married, and that these children and their spouses buy many things for retired people. "Not to mention the grandchildren," he says.

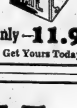
ECONOMIC POWER

The areas where retired people have their economic power, according to Mr. Coons:

In financial institutions. Many retired people have savings of $5,000 to $7,000 and more if they've sold their homes.

In hearing-aids and eye glasses, both of which most retired people need but won't admit.

In medicines, mostly the patented kind. "It's fantastic how many remedies retired people buy," Mr. Coon says. "And not just once . . . but for the rest of their lives."



In annuities, medical insurance retirement, cottages, nursing homes . . . and cemetery lots.

In travel.

In food, and especially in yard and garden products.

In the whole range of durable goods, such as refrigerators, ranges, TV sets, cars. "About two years before retirement people are beginning to buy these items in large volume, in order to pay for them before the salary stops and with the view of buying such things for the last time. Around age 63, people are becoming a fine pre-retirement market," according to Mr. Coons.

"And they should start rapping the knuckles of those who say they are gray-haired economic losses."

Cars Damaged In Rear-End Collision

PICTON (Staff) — Joseph Skrzat, 39 King Street in Picton was driving on Highway 33 and in turning into the Dairy Dip, his car was struck from behind by a vehicle driven by James E. Brown, 36 Paul Street, also of Picton. There were no personal injuries but there was extensive damage to the vehicles according to the police report.

WRONG NAME USED

In the report of an accident in which the name of Dr. Lionel Dockerill was used, it should have read Lionel Dockerill. The doctor was not driving the car at the time of the accident but the vehicle was believed to have been in charge of his son.

St. Michael's Class Pays Ottawa Visit

On Thursday, the grade eight pupils of Sister Mary Anita's room, St. Michael's Academy, went by bus to Ottawa.

While there, they visited the House of Commons and heard part of the afternoon session. They were in the Senate Chambers while the Senators were in session.

The schedule was arranged through Robert Temple, M.P. He spoke to the group in a committee room.

The Mint, the Archives and the War Museum were visited. Students met at the R.C.M.P. barracks and were taken on a tour there. Following this they went to the Mail where they received some souvenirs of the trip.

Interview
subject: electric heating

Dr. and Mrs. T. M. Maxwell live in an electrically heated home in Mountain, near Winchester. The Maxwells are one of many families recently interviewed throughout Ontario to discover their personal opinions of electric heating. Here are their comments:

ELECTRIC HEATING COSTS COMPARE FAVOURABLY WITH OTHER SYSTEMS

"I think electric heating is the coming thing. There are so many advantages you just can't measure in dollars and cents. There's no upkeep or repairs and noise is eliminated. We're heating 1,600 square feet and our cost for the year is about $200. I think this compares well with other heating systems."

INDIVIDUAL ROOM THERMOSTATS PROVIDE COMPLETE COMFORT

"This is one of the things we really like about electric heating—the fact that each room can be controlled individually. We keep our master bedroom low, the children's room a little higher and the living room at 70°. In the Fall and Spring, if you want a little quick heat you can have it."

THE AIR IS NEVER TOO DRY WITH ELECTRIC HEATING

"This is another point with electric heating—it's a lot more healthful. There's no combustion."

ELECTRIC HEATING IS CLEAN

"I don't have nearly as much cleaning to do here as I had in our other house. The dust just doesn't seem to move around. You can see the difference on the furniture and under it too. There's really a lot less work with electric heating."

Electrically-heated homes, insulated to Hydro standards, cost no more to heat than homes with other systems. Flameless electric heating is clean, safe, and offers the convenience of room-by-room temperature control. With all its advantages, is it any wonder so many people throughout Ontario are turning to electric heating for the comfort, convenience, and economy they want in a heating system.

ELECTRIC HEATING FOR YOUR PRESENT HOME

If you are planning home extensions or if parts of your home are not now properly heated, you can install supplementary electric heating for less than it costs to extend your present heating system.

Readers' Saturday Column

by Mary Moore

QUESTION:

In today's paper I read your readers' menus and I'm sure they'll be very helpful to me. Over the years I have used and enjoyed many of your recipes, especially the ones for diets. Recently I have been buying a low-calorie dressing for fruit and cole slaw. It is very tasty and creamy and my family likes it on all salads. Would you have a recipe that resembles this in taste and texture? And could you have it printed in your column as soon as possible? — Mrs. M. V.

ANSWER:

What follows is a reasonable facsimile of the commercial dressing to which you refer.

SATURDAY

Dinner Menu

Hawaiian Meat Loaf with Pineapple Rings; Creamed Sliced Carrots; Broccoli; Tossed Greens with Dill Dressing; Raisin Rice Pudding; Tea.

LOW-CALORIE BOILED DRESSING:

1 tablespoon cornstarch, 2 teaspoons flour, ½ teaspoon salt, 5 teaspoons sugar, ¾ teaspoon mustard, ⅛ teaspoon onion salt, ⅛ teaspoon garlic salt, ⅛ teaspoon celery salt, 1/16 teaspoon white pepper, 1 tablespoon cooking (salad) oil, ¾ cup vinegar, 4 teaspoons lemon juice, 1 cup boiling water.

In a small saucepan mix well together all of the first nine dry ingredients. Then stir in the oil. Then stir in the vinegar and lemon juice. Stir in boiling water and cook over high heat, stirring until thick. Cook, stirring, one minute longer. Cool and chill. When chilled through beat with rotary or electric beater for 3 minutes before storing in refrigerator in covered jar or bottle.

NOTE:

If my version is too sweet or too sour for your taste reduce sugar to 4 teaspoons or vinegar to 3 tablespoons.

QUESTION:

My neighbor told me you gave a recipe for shortbread cookies made with rice flour. My little girl is allergic to wheat and I would appreciate this recipe — Marion McL.

ANSWER:

The following recipe is repeated from June 15/62.

RICE FLOUR SHORTBREAD:

¾ cup butter, ⅔ cup unsifted icing sugar, 2 cups rice flour, ¼ teaspoon baking powder, ¼ teaspoon salt, ½ tsp. spoon cream of tartar (optional).

Cream butter and add gradually, while beating constantly, icing sugar; then work in the rice flour, baking powder, salt and cream of tartar, if used, using the hands. Chill. Roll out on lightly floured board to 3/16" thickness. Bake on ungreased cookie sheet at 325 deg. Fahr. until crisp but not at all brown.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS — BY PATRICIA LEWIS

MAIL CALL

Question: We have a very well-mannered dog who politely greets guests at the door with a short bark and a discreet sniff, then curls up in a corner and leaves everyone alone. When dinner is served, he ambles into the dining room, but, again, he just lays along to be social. Occasionally, however, a guest will give him bits of food from the table, which is a practice I frown upon, since I don't want him to get into the habit of expecting it. I've been tempted to tell guests who do this to please stop, but it hardly seems very gracious. What would be the proper way to handle such a situation? — Mrs. D. D., Trenton, N. J.

Answer: Censuring a guest at the dinner table for feeding the dog doesn't seem to be very hospitable, so if it's not possible to train guests, you might train the dog to stay next to your chair so he's out of reach of the well-intentioned. If this doesn't work, then the most practical solution would be to put the dog in another room while dinner is being served.

Question: I have a number of girl friends from school and office whom I have invited to my wedding. Only a few of them are married, and, naturally, their husbands are included. Several of the single girls have asked if they may bring dates, since there will be dancing at the reception. Actually, there will be enough dancing partners to go round, since my fiance has invited a number of his bachelor friends as well. The guest list is long enough already and my first impulse was to say no right away, but would it then rude to do so? A couple of the girls are engaged so probably I should invite their fiances, if I decide to include them, should I let the girls just bring them along or must I send their escorts separate invitations? — M. F., Hartford, Conn.

Answer: It's not necessary to include friends' casual dates in reception invitations, especially if the guest list is filled to capacity. But fiances should be invited, and each should be sent a separate invitation.

Protest Charges Of 'Apathy'

EDMONTON (CP) — Alberta nurses Friday protested charges of "apathy" made by an Edmonton judge at the annual meeting of the Canadian Hospital Association in Ottawa Thursday.

Mrs. Helen Sabin, executive secretary of the Alberta Association of Registered Nurses, said members of the association actively support promotion of better working conditions.

Judge N. V. Buchanan, past president of the CHA, said nursing leaders should abandon their assault on governments to obtain better salaries and working conditions in favor of tracking down inept or lazy general duty nurses.

Mrs. Sabin said apathy is avoided by the presence of active staff associations in many hospitals. Especially since 1962, she said, has there been growing support from nurses.

IODE Wants Plebiscite on Flag Issue

FREDERICTON (CP) — The views of some women on the Canadian flag issue likely will be heard during the annual convention of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire, opening Saturday night.

For years the IODE has advocated permanent adoption of the Red Ensign as Canada's national flag. The IODE is a Canadian charity organization of some 29,000 members formed 66 years ago to stimulate patriotism through education, foster unity within the British commonwealth and assist with welfare work in Canada and abroad.

Lieutenant-Governor Leonard O'Brien, Premier Robichaud and William Walker, mayor of Fredericton, are scheduled to address the convention's opening ceremonies in the provincial capital's legislative assembly.

Delegates from across Canada will be guests at dinners given by the provincial government and the city of Fredericton. On Sunday, members will tour Camp Gagetown.

Monday and Tuesday officers of the national chapter will report on the society's activities during the last year and announce winners of scholarships and bursaries in university studies. A flag debate may also take place Monday.

Mrs. D. W. McIlhon of Toronto, national president, will preside at the meeting. She has expressed disappointment that Prime Minister Pearson is not holding a plebiscite on the flag issue.

TORONTO (CP) — Grace Crooks of Orillia was elected president of the Ontario Library Association at its annual convention here. The convention ended Friday.

Second Glance

THESE DAYS OF MAY

"In the marry month of May . . . trees did grow and plants did-spring." — Shakespeare.

* * *

When does spring really come — to you?

Has it to do with a certain feeling? An atmosphere?

Has it a certain odor? Has the air a kind of smell, undefinable — But real?

"For me," a Belleville friend declared, "it comes with the flowers of May."

We, too, agree. But it has to be a certain moment of realization.

This year, for us it arrived unexpectedly at the home of a Belleville friend which we'd entered. There we suddenly looked at a view from a truly beautiful picture-window, at a swirl of colorful spring flowers growing in the foreground of green grass. The bare-branched trees of the background were being delicately veiled in a froth of green budded leaves. At the very sight on this May day, Spring arrived — for us.

Surely it would be a barren spring without flowers! Indeed the whole world craves them. And it would seem it always has. "The prairie — where you'd expect nothing could grow — was always a carpet of flowers in spring, it made you wonder . . ." says mother recalls, and speaks of how her own grandmother, a pioneer of southern Minnesota, always had her departing guests down the grassy path flanked by flower gardens, planted by herself . . . she was very stout and how she did it was a miracle . . .") and would stop here and there to snip a blossom with garden shears ever at hand. By the time the carriage at the road was ready, she had a huge bouquet of her treasured flowers was presented, with a graceful gesture of goodwill and love.

Nor is it little wonder that Victoria Day has become the official birthday of our Queen in the month of May where flowers abound. And to queen ever had such a spokesman on behalf as garden delights as Queen Elizabeth the First.

Who but Shakespeare writes:

"There will I make thee a bed of roses

With a thousand fragrant posies,

A cap of flowers and a kirtle

Embroider'd all with leaves of myrtle.

A belt of straw and ivy buds

With coral clasps and amber studs . . ." (Sonnets to Sundry Notes of Music)

Or: "But flowers distill'd though they with winter meet,

Lease but their show; their substance still lives sweet." (Sonnet V.)

Or: "There's rosemary, that's for remembrance; . . . and there is pansies, that's for thoughts, There's fennel for you and columbines: . . . there's rue for you; . . . There's a daisy . . ." (Ophelia in Hamlet.)

Or: "Spring;

When daisies pied and violets blue and lady-smocks all silver-white

And cuckoo-buds of yellow hue

do paint the meadows with delight." (Love's Labours Lost).

It is said there are sixty plants which Shakespeare mentions in his plays and sonnets, and though their names may have changed, such as silly flowers, larks heels, now carnations and nasturtiums, they still are grown in gardens today. In fact there are Shakespeare memorial gardens across the North American continent.

Why is Shakespeare so fond of the English countryside flower? This man not only knew the delights of the garden as he knew the passions of men's souls," but is an up-to-date guide as well.

Barbara Ward, the noted English writer says: "His professional triumphs were in London, but his roots were in Warwickshire. From his country childhood there welled up in his poetry the most touching images of rural life. . . ."

Trudi Cowan in The New York Times observes: "Shakespeare's works abound in flowers, planting and even instructive advice:" such as,

"The strawberry grows underneath the nettle,

And wholesome berries thrive and ripen best

Neighbored by fruit of baser quality." (King Henry V), and adds, "it is interesting to note that whatever the play's period or scene, Greece, Denmark, Vienna — the flowers are English types common to the central countryside where Shakespeare was born."

All of which surely goes to prove how indelibly the language of the flowers and their meanings are printed upon our childhood and early memories — such as those that grow in these days of May.

Women's Institutes

W. I. MEETS

ELDORADO—The Eldorado and Bannockburn Women's Institute held the May meeting last Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Cecil Blackburn and she opened the session in the usual manner.

The president of North Hastings district of the Women's Institutes, Mrs. Edmond Holmes of Queensboro, was the guest speaker who brought information about W.I. work and closed with reading a poem for mothers, which proved most amusing yet so true.

A contest on weddings with names of flowers was conducted, with Mrs. G. Blackburn the winner.

Mrs. Ken Bateman, the Tweedsmuir history curator, gave an account of points discussed at the recent work meeting for curators held in Belleville. She stressed the fact that anyone with pictures or stories of past histories of the area pertaining to Eldorado and Bannockburn notify her in this regard.

The June meeting is planned for one week earlier, at the home of Mrs. Harold Chambers with all women of the area cordially invited to attend.

WEDDING

PRINGLE — BROOKS

Baskets of spring flowers mingled with fern adorned the altar in Holloway Street United Church on Saturday, May 16, 1964, when Judith Helen Brooks, daughter of Mrs. Elmer (Helen) Brooks, Belleville, and the late Mr. E. Brooks was united in marriage to Edward (Ted) Allan Pringle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Simeon Pringle, London, Ontario. The Rev. C. W. Coleman, minister of the church, officiated at the double-ring ceremony. White satin bows designated the guest pews in the church.

The wedding music was rendered by the church organist, Mr. Angus McLeod, who accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Archie Bellamy, cousin of the bride, in her selections.

The bride, given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Ernest Brooks of Callander, wore a bridal gown of Chantilly lace over white satin with a net underslay which was highlighted with a full skirt having layers of lace. The fitted bodice adorned with sequins was enhanced with Sweetheart neckline and long lily-point sleeves. Her shoulder length veil flowed from a crown of seed pearls. She carried a white bible centered with baby pink Sweetheart roses with cascading pink rose buds on white streamers.

Miss Margaret Lee, Belleville, cousin of the bride, was maid of honor dressed in pink organza accented with a full overskirt of sequins and lace. She wore a tiny tulle and carried a bouquet of baby white carnations centered with pink rosebuds, and white streamers. Little Tina Lee, niece of the bridegroom, was attired in a full-skirted maize chiffon over rayon taffeta dress with smocked bodice and scattered rhinestone trim. Her headdress was a band of flowers with matching tulle and she carried a basket of white baby 'mums and tiny rosebuds.

A brother of the bridegroom, Mr. Mervin Pringle of London, was best man and ushers were Mr. Roy Cannons, Belleville, and Mr. Carl Pringle of London, brother brother, were the ushers.

The reception for 50 guests was held in the church parlor which was decorated with baskets of assorted spring blooms. The bride's table was centred with a three-tier wedding cake topped with a double-ring arrangement and, surrounded about the base with white tulle and lapers in four-branch candelabra added to the nuptial setting.

The bride's mother as hostess received the guests wearing a royal blue lace over French crepe dress, white accessories and a corsage of pink Sweetheart rosebuds. Assisting was the bridegroom's mother attired in a dress of pink silk linen with white accessories and a corsage of white baby 'mums.

For the wedding trip to the Thousand Islands and points east the bride chose a pink linene suite with white pillbox hat, white gloves, shoes and purse and a pink rosebud corsage.

Guests were present from Sudbury, London, Niagara Falls, Kearney, Port Loring, Toronto, Nipanee, Deseronto, North Bay, Colborne and Brighton.

Previous to the marriage the bride was honored at a miscellaneous shower when Mrs. Gordon Lee and Mrs. Don Yearwood were joint hostesses.

Mr. and Mrs. Pringle will live in Kearney, Ontario.

Consider Best Way to Travel While Visiting Foreign Lands

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

Getting around in Europe, or any other foreign area, is a project that seems to pale by comparison with its predecessor — getting there in the first place. As a result, it sometimes gets stepchild consideration.

"Oh, we'll just rent a car and drive around" or "We'll buy a package tour when we get there" are common sounds of spring, overheard around the dining room tables where the folders are spread out.

Without wanting to alarm anyone, we might point out that the 1964 edition of the American Automobile Association's excellent "Motoring Abroad — Travel Guide to Europe" devotes more than 30 pages to the ramifications of travelling within Europe alone.

These include shipping, buying, selling, and renting a car with or without chauffeur; arranging for insurance, licenses, and import certificates; train travel; ferries; tours escorted and unescorted, planned and unplanned; and a number of other things the mere listing of which would fill the rest of this column. None of it is as complicated as it sounds, all can be handled by the AAA or any competent travel agent.

DETERMINING FACTORS

What we would like to get on with are some of the preliminary considerations which ought to determine your decision about how to get around. For example:

Your airline ticket to any foreign destination allows you to stop off anywhere between there and there, i.e., your most distant point. As a quick and rough example, with a ticket to Rome you may go by way of London, Amsterdam, and Paris (among others), return by way of Nice, Barcelona or Madrid, and Lisbon (or work it the other way around).

Whether to take full advantage of these can sometimes be a frustrating decision. Big cities are fine, but may not be the only high points of your trip. Fare may be saved, but transportation between airports can add cost, not to mention time — especially when airline schedules are not as favorable as they might be. Some cities are so close together that a bus or train can get you there as fast or faster.

Finally, the choice of stopovers can become overwhelming. A ticket from New York to Bangkok or Singapore is the equivalent of a round-the-world fare. The airlines are so happy to have that kind of business that they'll let you spin it out for a year and stop off in virtually every city of Europe and Asia that has an airport, not to mention much of Africa, Latin America, Australia and the South Pacific! Decisions, decisions.

Driving around is an interesting and sometimes economical idea if planned shrewdly (it is a better idea in Europe than in Africa, Asia or South America where there are simply too many complications — bad roads, insurance and certification problems, shortages of facilities, language barriers, etc.) It is usually cheaper to begin at the point nearest home, so the car transportation there will be less.

Other economy aspects are low rental rates for small European cars and good gas mileage (though gas is expensive). You can also buy a new car and sell it back to the manufacturer before going home, for less than a rental might cost. Or, if you need a new car, you can buy a European make as much cheaper there that the savings, in spite of import duties, will pay your local transportation costs. Some countries also have bargain-rate gas coupons for foreigners.

However, you'd better be temperamentally suited to driving in Europe. All Europeans drive like maniacs, blinking their lights and blasting their horns as they pass you on hills and curves, never budging from the centre of the road if you try to pass them. Comparatively few roads are good, all are crowded, road directions are in sign-language code, language barriers pop up at inconvenient times, and accommodations and service facilities may be few and far between unless you plan your route carefully. Satisfactory hotel rooms may be hard to come by in summer without reservations.

Some North Americans ship their own cars over, but this is fairly inexpensive but involves some insurance and certification complications which are a mild headaches. Also, most European roads are not too well suited to large American cars.

Inter-city buses are popular with Europeans but rarely used by, or catered to, foreign tourists However, they are the most popular vehicle for escorted group tours, even expensive ones. They permit considerable flexibility and reliable scheduling with the most economical use of available time. Their main drawback is that most buses simply are not very comfortable.

TRAIN TRAVEL

Train travel within Europe has had a great resurgence in recent years, and deservedly. European trains are among the fastest, most comfortable and most convenient in the world, and serve practically every place you might want to go. Bargain tickets are available to foreigners in most countries. One overall pass, the Eurail-pass, allows unlimited first class travel for 30 days in any month, $175 for two months, $205 for three months (U. S. dollars). A word of caution, however: At fine as first class rail travel is in most countries, that's how it's second class is often by North American standards. The savings aren't worth the discomfort.

Our idea of the best way to get around any place is by private chauffeured car. No language barriers, no reservations headaches, no servicing or gas problems, no watching the road instead of the scenery, nothing to do but relax and enjoy it.

How much this costs depends, of course, on the company used the limousine, and the kind of car But everywhere it is far cheaper than in this country, and particularly reasonable if the car can be shared by two or more parties.

You never have to use a taxi or airport bus; you pay no parking charges, tolls, or gas bills; and when you

A Lift for Living

'Life's Climate Is Much More Important Than Its Weather'

By REV. HAROLD E. KOHN

The difference between weather and climate is mostly a matter of time. Weather is momentary. Climate endures. Weather may fluctuate wildly, as it does in springtime throughout much of the northern hemisphere of North America. One day is humid, followed by rain. Then comes a high wind that dries off the earth, and we enjoy several days of bright sunshine. Soon clouds remain; the high temperature drops, and more silvery rain slants down from leaden heavens. Weather is a temporary occurrence of any of its various components such as humidity, cloudiness, precipitation, rising or dropping pressure temperature or wind.

Climate, on the other hand, is not an instantaneous occurrence, but a long, enduring, prevailing characteristic of any of these components. It is a pattern or design of conditions that have existed in an area for a long time. It is climate rather than weather that determines which plants, insects, birds and mammals can grow in a region. Climate, more than weather, has helped mold civilizations. Although the Temperate Zone of the world, in which we live, is often affected by the worst possible weather such as tornadoes or hurricanes and tempests of stupendous force, the world's most highly developed civilizations are found in the Temperate Zone because here the climate is not too hot nor too cold to do the work that makes for progress and because here there is enough variation of weather components to invigorate the body and stimulate the mind.

The best climate can occasionally be assaulted with the worst weather. Even such sunny, beautiful Bahamas are sometimes assailed by hurricanes.

The soul, too, experiences both climate and weather. There is a sum total of the soul's condition — its convictions, courage and hopes, its moral purposes, its sense of justice and mercy. These make for a "good climate." Or the soul may suffer from "poor climate" where prevailing conditions consist of hostilities, deceitfulness, infidelity, immorality, anxiety.

Then, again, there is the condition that predominates at any given moment of time, the soul's weather, its moods.

COMPARISON MADE

In the Forty-Second Psalm a comparison is made between spiritual weather and climate: "Why art thou cast down, O my soul? And why art thou disquieted in me? Hope thou in God, for I shall yet praise Him." For the time being the Psalmist is depressed. He experiences heavy skies and stormy spiritual weather. Nevertheless, he lives in a climate of trust, hope and joy. He knows bad weather will pass and good climate will remain. Depression and disquietude are his weather. Hope and joy are his climate. He refuses to confuse the two.

How can we best handle life's changing weather, its fluctuating moods?

First, remember that troublesome moods are universal. Glandular, metabolic or blood pressure changes make emotional differences in everyone. So do the frustrations or good fortune, the failures or successes life brings to us. Everyone every where normally experiences moods, as every spot on earth undergoes some changes in the weather.

Second, keep in mind that the mood will not last forever. Moods come and go as do rainy days. While we are in the misery of a foul mood it appears to us to be permanent. But so did the last mood, as did the one before that and all of its countless predecessors. This one will soon be gone, too. As youth and middle years Abraham Lincoln frequently became so depressed that his friends despaired of his sanity and of his life. One way he learned to handle his low moods was by expecting them to arrive before they came and by expecting them to leave soon after they overtook him. He was often heard to quote from a poem, the last line of which read, "This will pass away." A mood is as transitory as a sunshine - filled day or as a rain storm. Our elation and depression appear permanent. But we have passed from happiness to discouragement and back to happiness again, repeatedly. And it will happen again. Expect a change in mood; then, when it comes, it will be less disturbing.

Third, do something worth while in the meantime, until the mood passes. One woman says she goes shopping for a hat when a stubborn gloom refuses to move away. A new red hat in particular dispels depression, she declares. Probably the mood would pass as quickly without purchasing a hat, but looking for a suitable hat gives her something to do in the meantime.

A housewife testifies that baking bread helps her moods. She feels she is performing a fundamental task and putting her competence to work. By the time the bread is a fragrant brown, her spirits are refreshed.

Take a walk. Hoe the garden in summer or shovel a path in winter. Visit a friend. Do something while the mood passes.

Fourth, refuse to let your moods more importance than they deserve. Many things matter more than whether we are "blue" or sunny, irritable or patient, upset or serene. The happiness of those around us is of more account than our moods. Why should we vent our irritability on children, when they innocent of wrong - doing, or make the family miserable with our inner distress — surrendering suffering with our inconsiderateness or callousness. Hitler, who almost worshipped his own moods, declared, "I think with my blood." Indeed he did and thus precipitated the bloodiest era in history. Whenever emotions run amuck they cause anguish. No matter how we feel, the happiness and welfare of others still exists. Show it.

When we treat our moods as important, then they become far too important. Attach little importance to show you feel at the moment.

Fifth, bear in mind that moods are untrustworthy guides to reality or to conduct. We do not see the world as it is, but we see it through what we are. Moods stain the outside world with the color of our emotions. When we are glad and gay the world seems more trouble-free than it actually is. It takes on the glow of our lively mood. But when we feel hopeless, the world looks bleak and empty. When we feel lonesome, the world appears to be hard-hearted and uncaring. Moods discolor our view of the world.

Moreover, if followed, bad moods would misguide us into wrong conduct. If everyone acted exactly the way he felt, the number of desertions, suicides, killings and suicides would multiply immeasurably. Besides, if everyone worked only when he were in the mood the world's work would grind to a halt in quick order. Only the highest ideals are clear enough windows through which to view the world and only the best principals make worthy guides of conduct. The Psalmist knew he could trust his convictions concerning God's goodness, but not his changeable feelings.

Sixth, drain off excess emotion into good works. Pulsed people also become angry, but they do not thrash out at those nearest them with hard blows or harsh words. Instead they undertake some constructive activity fix up furniture, building a bird house, picking flowers and taking them to a shut-in. A man of my acquaintance says he keeps his spirit from going lopsided under the weight of a chronic physical affliction by the technique of carrying someone else's load of trouble along with his.

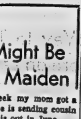
the Miami area, listening to them and to the broadcasts, out of Cuba leave one with some distinct impressions.

It is hard not to believe the leaders of the three major exile groups, and those of smaller organizations numbering dozens, when they say the new fight for independence of Cuba is under way. Except for a raid last week on a sugar mill there have been no spectacular developments.



But the exile leaders all emphasize they do not contemplate any mass invasion, spectacular bombings, or anything resembling broad-scale warfare, particularly in the early stages.

What they do plan is infiltration into Cuba of small groups — two or three men in some cases, 10 to 30 in other — to carry out guerrilla warfare, sabotage, dynamiting of strategic targets.

Exiles say various things hamper more rapid prosecution of their plans. They mention lack of all-out support by the United States; U.S. government policy against use of U.S. territory as launching sites for raids; lack of money; failure of Cubans to find one popular hero around whom they could unite.

A questionnaire recently conducted among Cuban exiles everywhere to select a five-man directorate to provide some degree of unification, but it is doubtful if it could squelch political animosities, rivalries, old hatreds and political differences.

Meanwhile, the question the small amounts to selected leaders, will come in with massive aid if Cubans themselves clear the way for it.

the individual's right to such protections as habeas corpus, singling out the Income Tax Act particularly.

Andrew Brewin (NDP—Toronto Greenwood) said writs of habeas corpus are a fundamental means whereby the rule of law and the freedom of the individual are maintained.

RENT IFALLIBLE

He had smooth experience in his years as a lawyer to realize judges are not infallible and that they sometimes perform better if their decisions are subject to review."

Gerald Baldwin (PC—Peace River) suggested that, in addition to the appeal proposed by Mr. Mathews, the government consider providing limited access to more than one superior court judge after an initial application for a writ had been refused.

He said that sometimes before an appeal could be heard the person who considered himself illegally detained might have served his full sentence. All he could get on appeal was an empty declaration that he had been illegally detained.

Limited access to several different judges might provide an additional remedy that could be applied more than once on an appeal to the appeal court.

HELP BUILDING PLAN

QUEBEC (CP)—The Quebec government has awarded $25,000 in the form of grants to Education Association of Ontario (L'Association Canadienne Francaise d'Education d'Ontario) as a contribution toward the construction of a new headquarters building in Ottawa. Cultural Affairs Minister Georges Lapalme said in announcing the grant Friday he hopes the building will become a headquarters for all French-speaking residents of Ontario.

Ann Landers

Less Popular Boys Might Be Glad to Date Moose Maiden

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Help! Last week my mom got a letter from my aunt who lives in Texas. She is sending cousin Trudy to visit us for two weeks when school is out in June.

I saw Trudy last year at my grandmother's funeral and she is a moose. If they would let girls play on the football team Trudy would make all American. I'll admit she's pleasant and has a cute sense of humor about her size. But, Ann, I know I'm going to have plenty of trouble getting her dates.

All the relas want to see a picture of her and I'm afraid to show them a picture. Please give me some hints on how to get cousin Trudy fixed up.' — TEXAS HEADACHE.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR HEADACHE — If there's any oil in the family, it wouldn't hurt to drop the word.

In the meantime don't try for the dreamboats who have dozens of girls chasing them. Instead, ask the quiet, less-in-demand fellows. They might welcome a fixed-up date.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My husband's son by a former marriage is 17. Bill lives in town with his mother. He is welcome to spend weekends with us but he has never shown much interest in doing so. He drops in occasionally on a Sunday and that's all.

Bill has a key to our home and this is what I am writing about. Yesterday, on my neighbor lady's day off, when we were away Bill brought a young girl and another couple into our home. This neighbor is not a gossip or a trouble-maker.

Should I tell my husband? If so, how? After all, Ann, I'm not the boy's mother. Please advise at once. — TROUBLED.

DEAR TROUBLED — You aren't the boy's mother, but the home is half yours and you should not knowingly provide a 17-year-old boy with such a setup.

Tell your husband to ask Bill for his house key and to make it clear he can visit only when you are at home.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Seven months ago a young girl came to work in this office. She is about 21, sweet, refined and has a lovely, warm personality. Several of the fellows asked her out but she said she was engaged and couldn't accept dates. (The girl wore no ring.)

Last week she came to work looking pale and ill. She fainted at her desk and I carried her to the infirmary. An hour later the nurse called to ask if I would drive her home.

On the way home the girl sobbed out her story. She is pregnant, she can't work much longer and doesn't know what to do. The fellow she was "engaged" to is a married man who lied to her about his marital status. He offered her money to "get lost" but she refused and wants to go it alone.

I am seriously thinking of asking her to marry me. I know this sounds crazy but I think could have a good life together even though we've never had a date.

I am 30, have never been married and am willing if she is. Should I ask her? — LONG SHOT.

DEAR LONG SHOT — If you marry the girl out of pity — or if she marries you because she's in a spot — the marriage is doomed from the start. Remember, this girl is virtually a stranger to you — and you to her.

I suggest that you steer her to an agency that will see her through the difficult days ahead. If you continue to see her and the friendship blossoms into love, that's another story.

Ann Landers' booklet, "How To Be Date Rait," gives sound and solid rules for teen-age dating. To receive a copy, enclose with your request 25c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Records Set In Heat Wave Over Ontario

TORONTO (CP) — A heat wave hit Ontario Friday, driving temperatures into the 90s in Toronto and setting a number of records for the date.

Toronto recorded the highest temperature in the province, 91.4 degrees at 5 p.m. The previous high was 90.5 in 1911.

London, with 87 at 4 p.m. and Windsor with 86 at 4 p.m., both had records. Previous high for the date in London was 82 in 1944 and for Windsor 84 in 1956.

Sudbury had a record with a reading of 86 at both 4 and 5 p.m., compared with the previous high of 82 in 1944.

The city ambulance dispatcher in Toronto reported Friday there had been 36 ambulance calls, mostly for elderly people suffering from this week's erratic weather.

EARNS DEGREE AT 72

TORONTO (CP)—Vernon S. Stevens, 72, a retired Guelph teacher who earned his bachelor's degree in 1916 and his master's degree in 1937, received word Friday he has been granted a doctor of philosophy degree from the University of Ottawa.

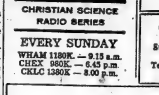
Protestants Learning R. C. Doctrine



SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — Each Sunday morning, after early mass, Rev. Michael J. Taylor, SJ, drives to University Christian Church to teach an adult Sunday school.

This is part of a program designed to increase a Protestant congregation's knowledge of Roman Catholic doctrine.

It also enables Father Taylor to get some first-hand knowledge of Protestants, whom he has studied extensively in theory for years.

The handsome, slightly greying priest has run into sharp questioning, particularly about confession, but says he has received an attentive hearing. One Protestant even asked for his autograph.

The classes are part of the changes in University Christian's adult education program started after Rev. Robert A. Thomas became minister 2½ years ago.

Sport Slices...

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVEN, Sports Editor

Now they've put away their thinking caps and become men again, let's forget the useless bickering, bantering, innuendoes and whatnot and get harness-racing on a down-to-earth level.

A house divided cannot stand and both factions in the up-to-now controversial problem of who was running what, it is hoped, will join forces and give the fast-growing sport the attention it deserves.

Some rather foolish statements and charges were made at that four-hour get-nowhere meeting held under government supervision. Personalities crept into the crossfire arguments that augured ill for any possibility of a sensible settlement.

Now with matters riding on, what is hoped, an even keel, personalities and generalities should be put in the mothballs and efforts concentrated on a successful seasonal operation of a sport that is rapidly growing in popularity in the district.

Doug Hedger, vice-president of the Quinte Driving Club and formerly of the now defunct (in name only) the Belleville Raceway, told me that all efforts will be made to have the track and other racing facilities in good condition by May 30th, the date of the opening meet.

Mrs. Evelyn Zebedee, who was racing secretary for a while of the former Quinte Riding and Driving Club, said she had burned over the pari-mutuels charters to the new Quinte Driving Club executive.

So with things in what looks like some sort of order let's forget the verbal parries and thrusts, the tonsilar cuts and slashes, "off with the old and on with the new," let bygones be bygones, and start from ground level, with all putting a shoulder to the wheel.

A "BUG" FOR "BUGS"

Speaking of racing of another breed, hafts of the auto-racetrack hellions are due for a delightful little eyeful if they attend the "Players 200" at Mosport, on June 6th.

The slippery sleek hellion of the speedways is the newest in what is sports cars and will be introduced to North American race addicts by top British driver John Surtees.

Surtees, a former world motorcycle champion, will pilot this exciting racing bug, a new Lotus 30, in the 200-mile Mosport event. The car is a development of the Ford-powered Lotus that champion Jimmy Clarke drove to second place in last year's Indianapolis "500."

I might say you can wash this peanut of power in the kitchen sink. Potentially the fastest British sports car ever developed, the low-slung Lotus stands just 26 inches high. It has a fibre-glass body and a Ford V-8 engine.

And it will be in excellent hands. Surtees, 28, is a Ferrari team driver on the Grand Prix circuit. He is the third international star to be signed by the Canadian Racing Drivers' Association for the battle for the $11,000 in prize money and the "Players' Cup." Others are Dan Gurney of the U.S., and New Zealand's Bruce McLaren.

Anyone who can "straddle" one of those gas-belching two-wheeled monsters of a world title standard can have any trouble with the new Lotus 30. Surtees, world champion motorbike rider in 1958-59, is reputed to have a desire to become world driving champion very quickly and, according to authorities, has all the qualities for doing just that.

Last year he finished fourth in the world standings, winning the German Grand Prix and finishing among the leaders at Monaco and the British and Dutch championship events.

CAHA Wants Player Money-Spread ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Will Ask NHL To Stop Sponsorships

By STUART LAKE

OTTAWA (CP) — National Hockey League clubs will be asked to invest their money in all amateur hockey players in Canada and not just a chosen few.

Officers of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association Friday agreed to try to sell the idea to the pros at a meeting in Montreal next month.

The officers met shortly after the 50th annual meeting of the CAHA closed here. Highlights of the session included the naming of a new executive with Lionel Fleury of Quebec City as president, and a decision to submit a Canadian bid for the 1967 world hockey championships.

Secretary - manager Gordon Juckes told reporters after the executive meeting that the NHL will be asked to discontinue sponsoring teams across Canada. Instead it would be urged to put its money in one pot and spread it evenly among all hockey organizations. A committee composed of NHL and CAHA officials would control the purse strings, said Juckes.

To make up for loss of sponsored teams, said Juckes, NHL clubs would be permitted to draft all over-age juniors at the end of each season. But the Rockets must be strengthened by adding three players from their own league and must agree to other CAHA conditions before making the trip. The Rockets were eliminated in the first round of the Western Allan Cup playdowns last season.

Ottawa Montagnards will be asked to make the trip if the Rockets refuse.

Fred Page of Fort William moved up to Fleury's former vice-president post and Lloyd Pollock of Windsor, Ont., got the nod over Pius Callahan of Charlottetown to fole the executive as second vice-president. Juckes of Melville, Sask., remains as secretary - manager and registrar-treasurer.

Outgoing president Art Potter of Edmonton said the CAHA would ask to host the 1967 world tourney providing the 18 teams played elsewhere. It would be tough enough to find a centre where up to 26 games among the international hockey giants would be played and supported without adding the same number "of intermediate B class games," said Potter.

Other continental projects include a national minor hockey tournament and possibly a national ice stadium with a better-than-usual ice surface to conform with overseas rinks.

Marciano Signs G. Chuvalo

TORONTO (CP)—Rocky Marciano, former world heavyweight boxing champion, has now a promoter, he announced he has signed Toronto boxer George Chuvalo to a contract.

Making the announcement after arriving here Thursday night, he described Chuvalo as "a great fighter with excellent possibilities," but did not disclose his plans for him.

Chuvalo, 26, regained his Canadian heavyweight boxing championship in March in Regina, knocking out Hugh Mercier in one round.

UFC Signs TV Contract

CALGARY (CP) — The Western Football Conference Friday signed a one - year contract worth $206,000 with the CTV network for television rights to 28 WFC games this season. The price was $6,000 above the annual payment under the previous one-year contract with the network. In addition to the lump sum, each WFC club is to receive $5,000 in free advertising over the CTV outlet in its home city.

Marks Debut As 'Skipper' "Cap'n" Willie Hits Homer No. 17

Willie Mays made four hits—one without a bat.

Willie, the captain, made a big hit before the game when he turned in San Francisco's lineup card to the umpires.

Willie, the player, made three big hits during the game, collecting his 17th homer and two singles and regaining the National League batting lead while the Giants retained the league lead by walloping Pittsburgh Pirates 8-3.

Making his debut as team captain, Willie ambled to the plate before the game and ran smack into his first inspection.

Head umpire Chris Pelekoudas asked Mays to review the Candlestick Park ground rules. Willie did and headed for the dugout. He never got there. Umpire Vinnie Smith, sensing broadly, asked for a repeat performance for the benefit of the other umpires.

Mays, however didn't do anything for the benefit of the Pirates.

Mays drove in the Giants' first run with a single in the opening inning, singled in the third before his homer and Jim Orlando Cepeda hit consecutive homers and then hammered his homer in the sixth.

The 3 - for - 5 performance lifted Mays' average to .405, giving him back the batting lead he lost to Billy Williams of Chicago Thursday. Williams went 1-for-3 while Mays was walloping off Cincinnati and dropped to .393.

Elsewhere, Philadelphia Phillies' Chris Short shut out Los Angeles Dodgers 2-0 on eight hits, St. Louis Cardinals belted Milwaukee Braves 6-1 behind Curt Simmons' three-hitter and New York Mets edged Houston Colts 2-1.

The Giants rattled 18 hits off Pirates' starter Steve Blass and three successors with Tom Haller also connecting for a San Francisco homer. Ron Herbel won it with the ninth-inning relief help of Ken MacKenzie, the southpaw from Comox Bay, Ont.

The Cubs, shut out on two hits for five innings by Reds' starter Joe Nuxhall, erupted for seven hits and eight runs in the sixth.

Williams, Jim Schaffer and Jim Stewart each drove in a pair while Billy Cowan accounted for the other run. Bob Buhl coasted for a 4-1 record.

Short, 2-1, beat the Dodgers for the fifth straight time. The Phillies scored the only run he needed against Don Drysdale, 3-3, in the sixth when Richie Allen reached base on an error and eventually scored on Wes Covington's sacrifice fly.

Simmons, 6-2, got home-run support from Ken Boyer and Julian Javier and the combination was more than enough. Joe Torry scored the Milwaukee run when he singled in the field and moved around on a walk, an infield out and a fielders' choice.

The Colts scored against Al Jackson in the sixth when Jim Wynn singled and raced home from first on Walt Bond's single. The Mets finally broke through in the eighth when Roy McMillis, and Ron Hunt singled and Frank Thomas doubled for both runs.

Offers To Finance World Team

TORONTO (CP)—Harold Ribson, recreation director of Walkerton, Ont., has conveyed to the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association an offer from a private organization willing to undertake all expenses of a Canadian world hockey team.

Ribson, in a telegram to CAHA past president Art Potter lists two conditions in the plan—that the CBC or CTV television networks make available their facilities for radio broadcasts and that Maple Leaf Gardens in Toronto make its facilities available for one evening at no charge.

The private organization has notified the financial requirements of a world hockey team and they could be met if the conditions are agreed on, he said.

Pizarro Whiffs 13 In 4-0 Shutout

—Has 5-0 Record

By MURRAY CHAS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Unlike most players, Juan Pizarro loves vacation this spring. The American League batters wish he was still on it. The Chicago White Sox lefty became the league's top pitcher Friday night, winning his fifth game without a loss in Chicago's 4-1 victory over Washington Senators.

Pizarro allowed only four hits, struck out 13 and didn't walk a batter as he improved his earned run average to 1.15, best among the league's starting pitchers. The triumph also kept the White Sox in first place, 30 percentage points ahead of Baltimore Orioles.

The 27-year-old Puerto Rican pitched winter league ball until mid-February, then rested while he disagreed with the White Sox management over his salary for much of April. He finally signed March 23.

He didn't make his first start until April 24, 10 days after the season started. It didn't take long, though. Pizarro to show his left arm had none of the soreness that kept him out of action the last five weeks of 1963.

The way he's going now, the White Sox may recommend a late vacation — with pay — every spring.

HOMER POPULAR

Home runs decided three of the four other games played in the American League Friday night.

Rocky Colavito's 12th homer brought Kansas City Athletics a 4-3 victory over Boston Red Sox, ninth-inning homers by Sam Bowens and Johnny Orsino helped Baltimore past Minnesota Twins 6-5, Cleveland Indians downed Detroit Tigers 3-2 as Larry Brown hit two home runs and New York Yankees whipped Los Angeles Angels 5-3. Pizarro, whose strikeout total equalled the major league high after one game this season, also supplied batting punch to Chicago's attack.

His first single scored a run and broke a 1-1 tie in the fifth inning. He scored the final run after hitting another single in the seventh. Al Weis drove him in with a single.

Pizarro's victory secured an unearned run in the first on John Kennedy's double and Pete Ward's low throw to first on Bill Skowron's grounder.

The Red Sox led Kansas City 3-1 going into the ninth. Two singles and one out later, Colavito smashed an Earl Wilson pitch over the left field screen.

LACK ONE OUT

The Twins were one out away from a 5-4 victory when the Orioles struck. Baltimore Gerry Arrigo had retired all 11 batters he faced, striking out the last three. Arrigo got a 1-2 count on Bowens before the youngster connected for his second homer of the game. Arrigo was removed after going 3-0 to Orsino. Billy Fischer threw a strike, then watched Orsino's batted ball drop into the left field bleachers.

Tony Oliva, Minnesota's rookie sensation, was benched in the third inning by Steve Barber, who had fined $50 by umpire Al Salerno. X-rays revealed no injury to Oliva, the league's leading batter.

Brown smashed a two - run homer in the first for the Indians, then connected again in the fifth. Max Alvis also homered in the first off Mickey Lolich as did Jerry Kindall in the second. Bill Freehan clouted a homer for the Tigers in the sixth.

Errors by Jim Fregosi and Billy Moran led to three Yankee runs in the fourth. Fred Spencer Pepitone singled across runs in the third and after Fregosi dropped a throw from Joe Adcock on a attempted force at second.

Moran's fumble on a sacrifice bunt led to a run in the fourth.

Fred Sgambati, well-known Toronto-born sports commentator, will be the guest speaker at the Belleville Secondary School's second annual "Banquet of Champions" this coming week.

The banquet will be held at Quinte Secondary School on Wednesday, May 27, at 6:30 p.m. It is a combined effort of the Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School, Moira Secondary School and Quinte Secondary School, honoring their various championship teams and individuals.

WINS EUROPEAN CROWN

TURIN, Italy (AP) — Bruno Visintin of Italy scored a 15 pound decision over Yolande Leveque of France Friday night and won the new European junior middleweight boxing championship.

Will Try For Second Honeymoon

A brand new bride will delay going on her first honeymoon just long enough to take a shot winning a second one here tonight.

Miss Barbara Ingram, 22, of Campbellford was married to Edward Trosin, 23, manager of the Trent Valley Lanes, at noon today in Campbellford.

At 7:30 p.m. today at the Bowl-O-Drome the new Mrs. Trosin will be bowling in the final roll - off of the Flyer's Bowling Festival. She is among nearly 18,000 finalists across Canada vying for one of the 150 prize trips — valued at a total of $150,000 — which will be awarded by the makers of Flayer's Cigarettes to bowlers who improve on their own average by the most pins.

After Festival competition concludes — and only then — the Trosins will leave for their honeymoon — a motor trip to Washington and New York City.

If she is a winner, then the Trosins' second honeymoon will be a trip for two to the New York World's Fair and luxury cruise to Bermuda July 12-25.

"Actually, we didn't plan it this way," Mr. Trosin said. "We had set the wedding date some time ago and it just happened that Barbara kept right on winning her way to the national finals of the Festival."

Forgot To Wrestle Ring

Prof. Hiro Disqualified

Professor Hiro, a tan-karate stockily-built Japanese was a hoist by his own petard when at wrestling's seasonal debut here last night.

The prof is a master of karate, and judo slashes. He had everything coming his way in the third fall of the main bout with Gentleman Jim Healey, but boo, enthusiasm was his undoing.

Hady was getting the better of the Sunis hauling Hiro into the ring from a spot on the apron.

Then the prof. took over. He cuddled the Hady head to his chest and a flurry of judo chops reduced the gentleman to a state of almost submission.

But Referee Bunny Dunlop insisted this was not wrestling cricket. Such antics must be done inside the ropes.

He counted three a half dozen times but Hiro was chopmad. So Bunny did the obvious. He disqualified the Japanese to the delight of the sparse crowd.

Hiro is a colorful chappy. He uses personal sound effect, some prayerful, others, gloating, and others—well—just vocal accompaniment.

He won the first fall after 23 minutes of exciting mauling with a rainplan of judo chops.

Hady squared matters after eight minutes with a series of ring-bops catching Hiro coming off the ropes and applying a crab hold for the fall.

Billy "Red" Lyons and big Doc Atkins went 45 minutes to a draw in the semi-final. Both ins' "secret weapons" which he cleverly concealed from Dunlop had been confiscated.

Twice or three times fans approached ringside but Referee Dunlop was equal to any situation managed to bury whatever he had besides a wide-open elbow, face which he used as a "tournajuest" on various occasions.

Chief Sunl War Cloud, a huge Indian, subdued Joe Christy, the unmasked "Black Destroyer" after sixteen minutes of preliminary action.

Petes Win Over Brampton

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Peterborough Petes Friday night opened their Ontario Lacrosse Association senior season with a 13-8 triumph over Brampton.

The Petes led 4-1 in the first period and 9-4 going into the third. The visitors drew 13 of the 23 minor penalties.

Larry Ferguson paced the winners with three goals. Rich Anthony had a pair with the others going to Cy Coombes, Don Barrie, Tiny Hunt, Terry Downer, Gord Hunt, Paul Clancy and Dave Drummond.

Wayne Thompson, Don Arthurs and Gord Thompson each scored two goals for the losers. Brent Wanless and Gill Foster and the others.

'Series Hinged On First Game'

Ballard Answers CAHA Critic

TORONTO (CP)—Harold Ballard, executive vice-president of Maple Leaf Gardens, indicated Friday he was unperturbed by remarks made by Art Potter, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, in Ottawa Thursday.

Potter accused the Gardens executive of being "money-grabbing" and "selfish" in the way they "made a fizzle out of our national final." He was commenting on a report by CAHA secretary - manager Gordon Juckes of a gross take of $32,397 for the Toronto Marlboros-Edmonton Oil Kings series at the Gardens recently.

Ballard said in an interview: "The success or failure of the whole series hinged on the first game. That game indicated the Western team could not offer sufficient competition for the Toronto Marlboros. So there was nothing to sell.

"As for criticism of ticket prices, all I can say is that the ticket prices were set in a contract which the CAHA signed. If the CAHA felt the prices were out of line, why did it sign the contract?"

Toronto Marlboros won the National Cup in four straight games.

'Oncidium' Wins Trial

LONDON (CP)—Lord Howard de Walden's bay colt Oncidium Friday won the Lingfield Derby Trial by five easy lengths and gave England a derby hope-to-pit against Ireland's spread-eagling Santa Claus.

Oncidium, a son of Skowdown, owned by Mrs. David Frenn from Brampton, Ont., finished well behind in the middle of the pack after being allowed to trail the field in the early stages to conserve his doubtful stamina. It almost certainly means that Skowdown will be scratched from the June 3 Epsom Derby and go for a race at the Royal Ascot meeting instead.

Santa Claus, on the strength of two outstanding performances, is an 11-10-4 derby choice but will probably be challenged for favoritism when the next betting call-over takes place.

Sixteen horses ran in Friday's race over the derby distance. Oncidium went to the post at 11 to 2. The second horse, Pushful was at 7 to 1 and Lionhearted, bears a head for second, was the 9-10-2 favorite.

RETAINS TITLE

Magazine Names 5 Canadians

MINNEAPOLIS (CP) — Five Canadians have been named to the 1964 Sports Afield magazine All-America trapshooting teams, released today.

They are: Harry Willsie of Montreal and Ed Wladichuk of Ancaster, Ont., both named to the men's second team; Mrs. Vera Holdworth of Calgary, women's second team; Carl McGarry of Niagara Falls, junior second team; and Ricky McGarry of Niagara Falls, sub-junior first team.

Wladichuk was 1963 Ontario doubles and all-around champion.

Rick McGarry, 14, won the Ontario handicap championship, the New York state preliminary handicap and the Canadian subjunior titles in 1963.

Car Crash Takes Life Of Pitcher

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Jerry Hummitsch, a Milwaukee-owned bonus player, died Friday in an automobile accident a few hours after pitching his first game for the Austin Senators of the Texas League.

Walter Hrinisk, 21, a second baseman for the Senators, suffered multiple injuries. His condition was reported as fair.

Hummitsch, 23, a right-hander from Sheboygan, Wis., died when his convertible left the road on a steep curve on the western edge of Austin, tore through four wire guard posts and overturned. He was pinned beneath the car. Hrinisk was thrown clear.

Western Horse Club To Hold Field Day

The Quinte Western Horse Association, the city's newest and perhaps most colorful sports addition, marks a big day tomorrow.

Formed a few months ago, it was formerly a part of the Quinte Riding and Driving Club. It decided to operate its own particular brand of sport and to-day boasts some fifty members.

Its first public venture at cure tuneup (Sunday) at the farm of Don McNevin, 5th concession of Thurlow, two miles east of Highway 37, Corbyville. It is the First Annual Field Day.

Lovers of horses are due for a pleasant colorful surprise. As the club name indicates horses and riders must appear in western tack and habiliments.

Western stock saddles are used while riders appear in western hats, shirts, boots, chaps, frontier pants or levis.

"Show Attire" means plus western tack or scarf.

Some of the finest quarter horses and others will be seen in competitive action.

Events include English pleasure, Western pleasure, trail ride, saddle-up races, flag races, pole-bending, egg carry, pick-up race, potato race, open pony pleasures, barrel race, horse race, pony race and pony express race.

The club has developed some excellent riders — especially among its younger members.

It will be a show unique in performance and competition. To call it colorful is putting it mildly.

The first event gets under way at 10 a.m. The show continues through 5:45 p.m.

The public is cordially invited. Refreshments will be on sale but spectators are requested to bring lunch.

Handwashing Habit Cured By Gift of New Puppy

DEAR DORIS — Regarding the 17-year-old boy with the persistent hand-washing. We had the same experience when my daughter was 10 years old. She would smell her hands and wash them continually. We thought it was just a silly phase, but after several months of this we thought she might be having a nervous breakdown.

Before we took her to the doctor we moved into a house of our own where she could have the dog she had long wanted. From the moment she took the puppy in her arms she forgot about her hands, and so did we.

After reading your article we realize how much we owe our little pet. If it had not been for him we might still be going to doctors.

DORIS CLARK

There is quite a difference in the ages of the 17-year-old boy and a girl of 10, but the symptoms may be very close. — EIGHT YEARS LATER.

DEAR EIGHT — What a wonderful solution to a near-mental problem! Thanks for sharing it.

(Let Doris, a trained social worker, help you with your particular problem. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope when you write in.)

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League — Eastern Ontario Club

QUESTION: I am trying to figure out my gasoline mileage to Miami, Fla. Could you please tell me the difference between the U.S. and Canadian gallon? — J. O., Trenton

ANSWER: When purchasing gasoline and oil, motorists should remember that the Imperial Measure used in Canada is one-fifth larger than the corresponding United States measure. Five gallons, Canadian measure, are equal to six gallons, United States measure. As to money, we suggest you have the bank convert your Canadian money to U.S. funds before you leave.

QUESTION: We are going to Baxter State Park in Maine. Could you please tell us if there are camping facilities, or cottages in the park, and what would be the best way to drive there? — Mrs. W., Belleville ANSWER: There are camping areas at the Park to the extent of lean-tos, fire-places, drinking water. This park is quite a wilderness and well-known for its Mt. Katokdin which is the highest point in the State of Maine. There are also further accommodations at sporting camps on Dolcey, Kidney and Tpquepaudo. The best way to get there is on Highway 2 to Quebec City, cross the river and to take Highway 1 to No. 23 and down No. 23 to No. 201 and No. 25, and on No. 15 to Rockwood, then to Greenville, then north to Lily Bay and on to Baxter Park.

QUESTION: We would like information on the Everglades National Park in Florida. Could you give us some information about it, as we are going June 20th, and are taking a trailer? — L. M., Belleville

ANSWER: Everglades National Park, Flamingo, south-west of Royal Palm Ranger Station is at the end of State Route 27. There are 54 camp and trailer sites, toilets, fireplaces, drinking water, shower booths, electricity. There is camping all year, but best from December to April, with a 14-day limit, subject to change. No reservations accepted. Primitive camping is permitted in back country. Campfire permit required from park headquarters or Ranger Station. There are subtropical animal and plant life, boat trips, nature study, swimming and fishing.

QUESTION: We are going to Cape Cod for our vacation, and as we have three children and are on a tight budget, we would like to know if there are cheaper accommodations than the regular motels and hotels? — M. H., Stirling

ANSWER: There are lower-priced accommodations en route to Cape Cod. These are the small wooden cabins that are still in existence along the highways. They don't have the elegance of the new, modern motels, but are just for a traveller to sleep or rest his weary bones. The price of these cabins is just about half that of the regular motels. Some old hotels in larger towns offer good accommodation for a low price also. You could also try tourist homes.

QUESTION: We plan to go on a camping trip this summer, and would like to know where we can obtain a camping book or guide for Ontario, which will show us the various camping spots and what they have to offer. — S. T., Belleville

ANSWER: These booklets are obtained by writing directly to the Department of Travel and Publicity, 67 College Street, Toronto, and from Ontario Government Reception Centres placed at strategic points along the Canadian-U.S. frontier, or may be obtained at any branch or division of the OML in every principal city in Ontario, or from the local Chamber of Commerce in Belleville.

Will Wait Until 1966

AFL Delays Expansion

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The American Football League decided Friday to delay expansion until at least 1966 and named a committee to screen an expected 20 applicants.

Joe Foss, AFL commissioner, said the expansion committee, headed by Lamar Hunt, Kansas City owner, will submit questionaires in the next few weeks to all interested parties.

Foss said 30 groups, including 34 individuals from more than a dozen cities — among them Montreal and Toronto, have expressed interest in joining the league.

The committee will check the backgrounds of all individuals and study facilities and potential of each area.

Foss explained that a team could be voted into the league in 1965 but definitely wouldn't field a team until 1966.

He said other cities publicly expressing interest are New Orleans, Chicago, Atlanta, Philadelphia, Cincinnati, Los Angeles, Portland, Ore., Seattle and Louisville.

Foss was given a new three-year contract at a raise in pay. He received more than $40,000 a year under the old pact.

Bill Sullivan, president of Boston Patriots and AFL president, said the five-year contract given Foss in JANUARY, 1962, was torn up.

Jockeys Hurt In Race Spill

TORONTO (CP)—Two young jockeys escaped serious injury Friday at Greenwood race track here but the first spill of the Ontario thoroughbred season.

Keith Robinson of Minnedosa, Man., suffered a fracture of the tip of a wrist bone and will be out of action from one to three weeks.

Wayne Harris, 16 - year - old Vancouver jockey, escaped with bruises and scrapes and resumed his riding engagements after missing one race.

The spill came in the seventh furlong second race as the field of 12 rounded the first turn.

Bet on Black, owned by Stanley Paulson of Vancouver and with apprentice Harris in the saddle, crashed into Jive Girl as she attempted to rise.

Shoots Blazing 63

Casper Tops At Memphis

MEMPHIS (AP)—Portly Billy Casper posted the best round of the season for the professional tour Friday, a blazing 63, and took the second-round lead in the $50,000 Memphis open golf tournament with a 132 score.

Casper chipped in a bouncing 90-footer for an eagle on the final hole to tie the course record. Mike Souchak posted a 65 Friday and Lema a 66.

Doug Sanders turned in a 68, Geoe Littler a 69 and David Ikin a 66 to wind up tied at 135.

Arnold Palmer, in a four-way tie for second after a first-round 66, dropped to 73 for a 139.

33 Records Broken At SOSSA Meet

WINONA, Ont. (CP)—Nearly 1,000 athletes from 42 Niagara Peninsula high schools Friday staged an assault on Southern Ontario Secondary School Association record books, setting 33 new marks at the annual track and field meet here.

Graham Freeman of St. Catharines established a Canadian interscholastic record for the discus with a toss of 161 feet, 6¼ inches, bettering the existing record of 158 feet, one-half inch set by G. Puce of Toronto in 1960 at London, Ont.

John Joedicke of Waterdown set a meet record of 21.7 in the senior 220-yard dash, missing the Canadian mark by two tenths of a second. Joedecke also came within one-tenth of a second of the Canadian record for the senior 100 - yard dash when he tied with Pete Parker of Oakville at 9.9 seconds.

An Oakville High School team missed the Canadian mark for the 440 relay by only two-tenths of a second, finishing in 44.0 seconds.

Oakville-Trafalgar high school captured individual scoring honors with 11 points, followed by Burlington Central with 73, Parkside of Dundas, 72, Anaster, 65, and Thorold, 63.

The top performers will compete at the Ontario Federation of School Athletic Association's meet in Waterloo May 30.

Officials at the meet did not furnish previous records in the girl's events. Other records set, with previous records bracketed, included:

Junior Boys

Javelin: Ken Schuman, Stamford, 159 feet, 5½ inches (new event).

Intermediate Boys

Javelin: Ross Christian, Stamford, 118 feet 10½ inches (new event).

Junior Girls

75-yard dash: Joan Meganney, Stamford, 9.9.

100-yard dash: Meganney 11.7

Intermediate Girls

Standing broad jump: Diane Chew, Niagara Falls, eight feet, 4½ inches.

'STRANGLER,' EXCITING FILM SHOCKER OPENS MONDAY

Newsmen from newspapers, national magazines, radio and television have all told the shocking, terrifying stories of a strangler loose upon the nation. He first startled terror in Boston with a series of murders by strangulation. All the victims were scarlet clad females — all suffered indignities before death — all were grotesquely rearranged after death. As other cities reported strangulation murders, the police noticed the similarity of cases. The uncanniness, the eerie quality pervaded. Women in stricken cities shuddered. The lonely bolted the doors. The not-so-lonely were fortunate.

Based on this horror-wave is Allied Artists' "The Strangler" which opens Monday at the air-conditioned Park Theatre for its first showings. Written by Bill S. Ballinger, the sizzling screenplay stars one of filmdom's most talented performers, Victor Buono, who won an Academy Award nomination in "Whatever Happened to Baby Jane?"

A tall 300-pounder, Buono is cast in the title role of the schizophrenic killer, a demented, yet cunning monster with overtones of absolute normality. Providing an appealing feminine interest is newcomer Davey Davison. Others in the strong supporting cast are, David McLean, Diane Sayer and Ellen Corby.

Burt Topper directed the Ballinger screenplay for producers Samuel Bischoff and David Diamond.

ADDED HORROR HIT

"THE WILD ANGELS"

Murders are what the police in "Black Zoo" call a series of killings which laboratory tests show were done by wild animals, but finding the human hand behind the horrific crimes is another matter.

The shocker produced for Allied Artists by Herman Cohen who came film history with "I Was a Teen-Age Werewolf" is an added attraction feature on the screen of the Park Theatre in Eastman color and Panavision. Complete shows at 7.00 and 8.50 p.m.

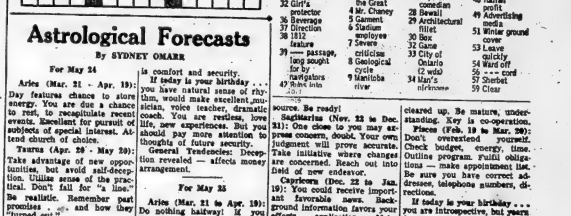
Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23): Instead of merely talking about projects — get to—work! Put ideas on paper. Have some backing of value. But it requires "dreaming." a format. Consult expert if necessary.

Scorpio (Oct. 24 to Nov. 21): Cycle continues high. Decisions necessary in connection with investments, future - security. Important to get details in order. Aid due from unexpected source. Be ready!

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): One close to you may express concern, doubt. Your own judgment will prove accurate. Take initiative where changes are concerned. Reach out into field of new endeavor.



Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19): You could receive important favorable news. Background information, favors your efforts, application. Make "game" of task to be accomplished. Good to include family member.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18): Cement friendships. Resist temptation to by-pass loyal associate. Be patient. Apparent inconsistencies will soon be cleared up. Be mature, understanding. Key is co-operation.

Pisces (Feb. 19 to Mar. 20): Don't overextend yourself. Check budget, energy, time. Outline program. Fulfil obligations — make appointments list. Be sure you have correct addresses, telephone numbers, directions.

If today is your birthday . . . you are introspective, but years of experience, you would make fine writer, psychologist, student for human nature.

General Tendencies: Cycle up for Sagittarius, Capricorn, Aquarius. Special word to Gemini: Opportunity beckons. Garner forces. But hold back on definite statements, stand.

ASTONISHING NEW CHANNEL MASTER "SUPER-CROSSFIRE" Color TV/FM Antenna!

Works Better Than Any Other Ever Designed for this Picture-Poor Area!

No other antenna gives you so many active power elements—all pulling together as powerfully to bring you the best possible results.

No matter how snowy, ghostlike, or fuzzy your reception—no matter how "picture-poor" your home—Channel Master's SUPER-CROSSFIRE creates a picture so sharp and clear on all channels . . . in black-and-white and color TV . . . that you'll be delighted. Gets FM stereo, too.

Thanks to a remarkable scientific advance in antenna design, developed by the world's #1 name in antennas, Channel Master's new SUPER-CROSSFIRE actually obsolesces all other antennas! You must see the difference to believe it!

Why not improve your TV picture today! Replace your obsolete antenna with the one that's tops all around—the Channel Master SUPER-CROSSFIRE. Moderately priced.

GOLD . . . at no extra cost!

The SUPER-CROSSFIRE wears a beautiful lustrous "Golden Overcoat" designed to add a touch of overhead glamor to your roofline. Gives total weather protection, too—because the built-in, corrosion-resistant coating eliminates atmospheric corrosion, that thwarting continuous peak antenna efficiency.

NOTE: Live in an especially tough reception area? Improve your SUPER-CROSSFIRE with a Channel Master Booster-Coupler! See and hear the difference in picture-and-sound power!

"dilly-dallying" with immediate recognition.

Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson did not comment directly on the issue, but warned that China and Russia have not changed their basic goal—a Communist takeover of the world.

Both Mr. Brewin and Mr. Thompson called for a large increase in Canadian foreign aid, the latter suggesting appointment of an associate external affairs minister to direct foreign aid. But Gerard Laprise (Creditiste—Chapleau) disagreed, saying depressing as in Canada should be helped first.

Mr. Nesbitt suggested that Canada seek admission to the Organization of American States as a non-voting observer and Mr. Martin intimated that the government is thinking along the same lines.

HOPES FOR REDUCTION

Mr. Martin said he hopes the continuing isolation of Red China will be reduced. Admission of Russia between 1917 and the early 1930s had brought little good either to the West or to Russia.

Canada had encouraged increased commercial and cultural contacts with China. One Canadian newspaper man now was in China and there was the possibility of other correspondents being admitted.

"We are willing to receive an equivalent number of Chinese correspondents in Canada for the purpose of reporting—and I emphasize the word reporting — on the Canadian scene to their home audience," Mr. Martin warned that the detente between West and Russia doesn't appear to extend to Peking.

Even if we should be able to make some really substantial progress toward an understanding with the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe, there would still remain the ominous question of Communist China."

Our First 14,000 And That Fateful Day In June

Twenty years ago Allied forces landed in Normandy and launched a decisive attack on the Nazi armies in Western Europe. William Stewart, who covered Normandy operations on Canadian troops, recalls their role in the gigantic invasion.

By WILLIAM STEWART
Canadian Press Staff Writer

On a cloudy June day 20 years ago, 14,000 Canadian soldiers gambled their lives in the largest and most intricate war operation of its kind in history.

The desire to be rid of Nazi war lust and tyranny was the reason they did their soldiers' job that day and ran its risks.

With British and United States troops, the Canadians were transported 100 miles through the night across the English Channel due south into the Bay of Seine and the line of fortifications built along the coast of Normandy as part of Hitler's vaunted West Wall.

By daylight they leaped and waded ashore, fought through the maze of defences, seized a solid bridgehead and then dug in to hold it against sharp counter-attacks. Behind them men and equipment were accumulated for the breakout that would spell the doom of Nazi Germany.

The day of the big Allied attack, launched in 5,000 ships and landing craft, 800 paratroop transports and gliders, was June 6, 1944. The risk at the beach defences was the expected loss of one man in 10 at best. But for the whole day casualties were less than that—under seven per cent among the Canadians, who lost 1,000 men, 350 of them killed.

DUNKERQUE REVERSED

The Normandy invasion was in striking contrast to another remarkable cross-channel operation just four years before. It was the disorganized retreat from Dunkerque.

On that occasion the bulk of the British army was encircled under fierce air attack from the Continent where it was backed against the beaches after German motorized columns overran The Netherlands, Belgium and France in a few weeks.

At this grim stage of the war the only remaining Allied redoubt in Europe was Britain where there were few modern weapons, only token Commonwealth forces and stragglers from the defeated forces of conquered Western Europe assembled with their governments-in-exile. The Soviet Union was immobilized by a non-aggression pact with Germany.

The only possible factors thought favorable to the Allies were time—"Time is on our side," commentators said—and the wide moat represented by the Channel. Many doubted even they could prevent a complete German victory in the West.

But by June, 1944, Allied forces had gained immense strength. The Channel now was an obstacle in their way, but the power and diversity of weapons then available were considered great enough to overcome it.

ITALY OUT OF WAR

With the United States and Russia committed to the destruction of Nazi power, the tide of war was running against Hitler, Italy having been eliminated as an Axis partner in 1943.

The Germans were known to be preparing secret long-range bombardment devices, which turned out to be their V-1s and V-2s, but they were not yet in use.

The invasion plan provided the attackers with the important elements of surprise, heavy firepower and air cover and bombing strength of unprecedented size.

Surprise was achieved June 6 by aiming the invasion blow, contrary to German expectations, at a section of the French coast having no major port. A prefabricated port was towed across the Channel in sections and assembled to handle the cargo for the Second Front buildup.

Lessons learned in the costly 1942 Dieppe raid were applied and the 1944 attack was preceded by powerful air bombardment of the coast following bombing raids in earlier weeks designed to isolate the Normandy area by cutting roads, bridges and rail lines the German would need to bring up defence reserves.

FLOATING TANKS

An array of more than 70 warships stood off the Normandy beaches shelling German strong points, while rocket ships delayed beach defence positions with high - explosive missiles. Field artillery went into the beaches firing from their landing craft and some of the tanks supporting the assault troops swam ashore with special floating devices.

Scarcely a German aircraft braved the thick cover of fighter planes in the air all through the hours of daylight.

The weather was a break and caused a 24-hour postponement. But it was unfavorable early on D-day and by late afternoon the sun came out and then prevailed for most of the period of the bridgehead buildup.

In the British-Canadian eastern sector, the assault troops including men of the 3rd Canadian Division, struck across beaches three divisions abreast after paratroops had landed in the dark to establish a left-flank anchor line of key positions at the River Orne.

In its daylight assault a few minutes before 8 a.m. the 3rd Canadian Division was flanked by the 3rd British Division on its left and the 50th British Division on its right.

TROOPS WERE TRAINED

The Canadians with the pale blue shoulder patches and low-brimmed assault helmets were highly trained for their Second Front job. They had worked a year on combined operations techniques in the South of England, taken advanced training at combined ops centres in Scotland and finally carried out exercises with the same naval and air crews who shared in their D-Day operation. They were fit, in good spirits and professional.

As a result of the combined services exercises, the landings were made where they were supposed to be and air support was effective.

The British-Canadian D-Day objective was to seize a bridgehead of about 150 square miles whose corners were the mouth of the Orne, the old cathedral city of Caen, historic Bayeux, 17 miles west, and the coastal town of Arromanches.

It was a quiet, rural district dotted with tiny villages, apple groves, clumps of woods and sloping fields cut by small rivers and their valleys.

The Canadian role was to battle through the coast defence line of beach obstacles, mines, thick, barbed wire tightly strung; machine - gun nests, trenches, concrete forts and gun emplacements. Once through the maze, they were to go on to seize positions astride Caen—Bayeux highway including Carpiquet airfield.

FOUR-MILE FRONT

The Canadians hit the beaches with four assault infantry battalions along a four-mile front at St. Aubin, Bernieres, Courseulles and Graye-sur-Mer, little towns crouched low on the shoreline.

The New Brunswick North Shore regiment landed at St. Aubin. On its right at Bernieres, the Queen's Own Rifles from Toronto went in.

To the right of these two 8th Brigade battalions were two assault battalions of the 7th Brigade, the Regina Rifles who struck at Courseulles while the Winnipeg Rifles hit just west of the Seulles River outlet at Graye. A Company of the Canadian Scottish Regiment from Victoria was with the Winnipegs in their fierce fight against strong German beach defences.

Le Regiment de la Chaudiere followed in behind the 8th Brigade battalions while the rest of the Canadian Scottish followed the Reginas and the Winnipegs.

Each of the assault groups had engineer parties with it to blast away beach obstacles. Tanks of the Fort Garry Horse from Winnipeg were with the 8th Brigade on the left. The 1st Hussars from London, Ont., rode their tanks in with the western battalions on the right.

SHORT OF OBJECTIVE

The division's reserve brigade was the 9th made up of the Highland Light Infantry from Galt, the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Rifles and 9 h anders also from Ontario, and the North Nova Scotia Highlanders. With them were the tanks of the Sherbrooke Fusiliers.

The Canadians met the heaviest fighting involved the Queen's Own at Bernieres, guarded by great concrete forts and fortified buildings among other positions, and the Winnipegs landing in front of Graye. But before the day was over all the units became engaged in stiff battles along the roads, woods, fields and in the villages.

While the battles went on, fat cattle moved about the fields and some farmers tried to go about their everyday work.

On D-Day none of the assault infantry reached their objectives. Troops of the 3rd British Division at one time were reported inside Caen but they did not get beyond the Lebisey Woo, near the River Orne, three miles from the city in the deep valley.

The Canadians, encountering pockets of resistance most of the way, got about half the 10-mile distance to the line of the Caen-Bayeux road before digging in for the night. One tank force went the full distance and beat up German infantry before retiring.

HAMPERED BY SNIPERS

At the beaches and inland, the Canadians came to grips with troops of the 716th German Infantry Division which had been on coastal defence duty for some time, knew its area well and when its organized resistance was overcome dispersed in good concealment for sniping activity.

In reserve behind the coastal division were the 21st Panzer Division and the 12th SS Panzer Division of Hitler Youth fanatics. Most of the Panther tanks of these two divisions were inland, some of them around Falaise, but within 24 hours they came growling at the Canadian positions in strong but local counter-attacks.

The German High Command was not convinced on D-Day that the Normandy invasion was the main Allied invasion effort, which they estimated would come later, perhaps across the narrow Straits of Dover.

Hitler himself was not informed about the landings until late in the day June 6 though he is said once to have pointed out to his generals that Normandy offered a likely spot for the invasion.

Von Rundstedt, German commander in the West, is reported to have asked for authority to throw armored reserves at the bridgehead early on D-Day but it took most of the day to get approval.

MILLION TROOPS ASHORE

Helped by these delays, the 7th Canadian Brigade reached its objectives June 7 when the Winnipegs took positions around Putot - en - Bessin while the Reginas established in and around Bretteville - l'Orgueilleuse and Norrey - en - Bessin where they had to stand off relentless tank and infantry counter - attacks with the help of the Canadian Scottish.

The 9th Brigade, taking over the advance from the 8th on the left side of the Canadian inland thrust, sent the North Nova Scotia Regiment and Sherbrooke tanks forward into the wood clumps and along the winding dirt roads of the Buron and Authie area close to Caen.

A powerful attack mounted by the tanks and infantry of the 12th Panzer Division hit them there and they had to give up the villages and fall back after the North Novas suffered 245 casualties.

The British, by advances south around Bayeux, to the Canadians' right, gradually enlarged the bridgehead though it did not include the city of Caen, its outskirts or Carpiquet airfield, as originally planned. But except for that hinge point where the Germans massed their strength, the Allied lodgment area became sizable enough to accommodate 400,000 troops with vehicles, guns and stores landed within a week of D-Day. Soon after there were 1,000,000 Allied troops ashore.

HELD GROUND

While the buildup progressed with only a few days' interruption when the Channel weather turned foul, the Germans sent dozens of attacks rolling against the Canadian perimeter positions in the area of Les Buissons, held by the 9th Brigade, and about Bretteville, manned by the 7th. No ground was given up.

Meanwhile, troops of the 8th Brigade mopped up the interior of the bridgehead area, including the Mue Valley where some Germans held out.

The Canadians turned to the attack again and with the 3rd and 50th British Divisions captured the severely battered city of Caen July 9.

An experimental daylight raid by heavy bombers on German positions in front of the city proved so successful as part of the attack that bombing by the air force heavies in front of ground assaults became a pattern of offence on the Western Front.

The 2nd Canadian Corps started to function just after the fall of Caen and took under its command the newly arrived 2nd Canadian Division, veteran of the Dieppe raid, and the 2nd Canadian Armored Brigade as well as the 3rd Division which was in the line 56 days from D-Day before it was pulled out for a brief rest.

Within a few days Canada's First Army headquarters organization went into operation for its first battlefield experience with Lt.-Gen. H. D. G. Crerar in command.

It took over the 2nd Corps as well as the 1st British Corps of which the 3rd Canadian Division was part on D-Day and through the battle for Caen ahead. It was much later in the campaign in Northwest Europe that the 1st Canadian Corps with its 1st and 5th Canadian Divisions was taken to France from Italy to join the First Canadian Army in battle.

The battle for Caen ended the bridgehead phase of the Second Front operation and the first major job of Gen. Crerar as Army commander was to direct an advance to Falaise, across 20 miles of open, rolling wheatfields that provided scant cover. Murderous battles resulted.

A heavy weight of German armored divisions was concentrated in front and around the ancient Norman city and initial attacks gained no momentum. But when the powerful right hook operation of Lt.-Gen. George Patton's high - balling U.S. forces began to develop from the Cherbourg peninsula late in July, most of the enemy tanks were ordered to that side of the front.

A personal directive by Hitler at this time played right into the hands of Allied commanders He ordered that the weight of German tanks into an attack at Avranches, at the western base of the Cherbourg peninsula, with the idea of chopping off the U.S right wing, I failed.

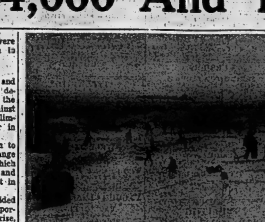
Gen. Patton's forces turned hard left and north toward Falaise while Canadians and British closed in from the opposite direction putting the bulk of the Seventh German Army into a pocket. The slaughter that then occurred was almost indescribable.

The German army was practically wiped out. The Fifth German Panzer Army already had been virtually eliminated as a fighting force in bridgehead onslaughts.

German losses in the Normandy campaign that ended in August were 400,000 men including 200,000 taken prisoner. In addition to losses in the June attack against their coastal defences the Normandy fighting cost them 1,300 tanks, 20,000 vehicles and 2,000 pieces of artillery.

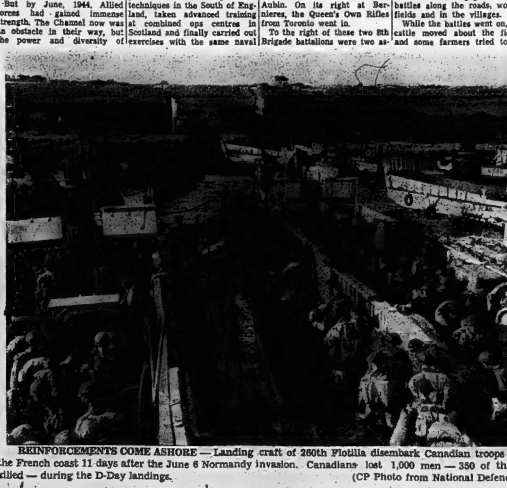
Canadian casualties in Normandy were 9,368 officers and men including 2,238 killed.

PARIS LIBERATED



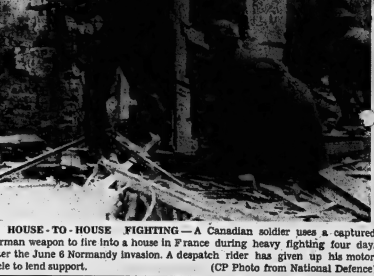
After the liberation of Paris Aug. 25, ending four years of German occupation, Von Rundstedt was called out of brief retirement to deal with a situation in which remnants of German forces were in full flight with Allied motorized columns on their heels.

The German tactic of holding onto ports as the Channel needed to supply the Allied forces was devised by the Canadians got the job of clearing the Germans out of Dieppe, Boulogne, Calais and their other harbor strongpoints.



In the fall, they were assigned to clear the approaches to the major Belgian port of Antwerp through the Scheldt estuary and became engaged there in a semi-amphibian sort of operation that was one of the most difficult of the war.

When it was over Field Marshal Montgomery described their work along the Channel coast and clearing the Scheldt as a "great military achievement."



The Canadians, he said, were "truly magnificent."

North Viet Nam Battalions Join Laotian Reds

Pathet Lao Advances, Takes Neutralist Base

VIENTIANE (Reuters)—Pro-Communist Pathet Lao troops were reported advancing north and south of the strategic Plaine des Jarres in Central Laos today after seven two and four battalions of the Communist North Vietnamese army were reported on the plain itself.

Western sources said the Pathet Lao which Sunday took one of the last two neutralist army strongpoints in central Laos, was moving toward Berikhane, about 12 miles north of Paksane, and down a road into Meo Mountain country west of Paksane.

Paksane is on the Mekong River bank opposite Thailand. The sources said, there were about 800 Pathet Lao troops moving south on the Paksane Road.

Two Pathet Lao battalions and between two and four regular North Vietnamese battalions—in addition to North Vietnamese technicians attached to Pathet Lao units — were on this plain where one of the key roads leads to the administrative capital of Vientiane, 110 miles south.

TRIBESMEN FIGHT

The Meo Mountain country is a stronghold of the diminutive mountain tribesmen who have been fighting the Pathet Lao in the forests south of the Plaine des Jarres for several years. The tribesmen are estimated to number between 5,000 and 6,000.

Word of the new offensive followed an announcement Sunday night that Muong Kheung, one of the last two neutralist army strongpoints in central Laos, had fallen to a Pathet Lao attack spearheaded by tanks.

Muong Kheung was a base for the tanks and other armored vehicles of the neutralist force commanded by Gen. Kong Le. It is a key town about 15 miles north of the plain.

Kong Le's forces have been under heavy attack by the Pathet Lao for more than a week.

USE HEAVY GUNS

U.S. military officers said the Pathet Lao was using heavy North Vietnamese artillery "we never thought they had."

Laotian officials charged North Vietnamese forces were fighting alongside the Pathet Lao for more than a week.

67 Die By Accident In Weekend

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

At least 67 persons died in Canada during the weekend—41 in traffic mishaps, 14 by drowning, five by fire and seven in miscellaneous accidents.

A survey by The Canadian Press from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Sunday local times showed Quebec led the list with 24 deaths, 17 on the highways, four by drowning, two by fire and one killed by a mower.

Ontario reported 16 fatalities including six in traffic, five by drowning, two by fire and three unclassified deaths.

Five died in Manitoba—two traffic fatalities, two drownings and one in a fire. In Saskatchewan, two persons died in traffic accidents and one died in an accidental shooting. Seven died on Alberta's roads and one person lost his life in a plane crash. Two died in British Columbia, both traffic fatalities.

The survey does not include known suicides, slayings, natural or industrial deaths.

The Ontario dead:

SUNDAY

Michael Tenglis, 2, and his sister Janice, 8 months, Chatham, in a fire which destroyed their home.

Ambrose Sampson, about 34, Oiva (Jack) Allan, about 45, and Harold Olson, 39, all of Larder Lake, 18 miles east of Kirkland Lake, when their boats overturned in the lake.

Joseph A. Donohoe, 25, and Darrel Theoret, 35, both of Cornwall when their car struck a bridge abutment and landed in a creek 10 miles west of Cornwall.

Karl Stanley, 70, Kinless Township, 45 miles southwest of Owen Sound, when crushed by his car which slipped off its jack as he worked beneath it.

Rene Sauve, 30, Cookeville, 10 miles west of Toronto, when his kayak overturned on Lake Ontario near Hamilton.

Believe Woman Bank Clerk Strangled to Death Over Holiday

TORONTO (CP)—A 66-year-old bank clerk was found strangled to death Sunday night in her suburban York Township apartment and police immediately began a hunt for a male friend.

Police said Elsie Payne had been dead about a week.

Sergeant of Detectives Robert Bamlett of the Metropolitan Toronto homicide squad said police entered Miss Payne's apartment to investigate at the request of a relative.

Sgt. Bamlett said Miss Payne was killed with a silk stocking knotted around her neck. She was found in her night clothed.

Scratches on the woman's hands indicated she had fought with her attacker but there were no other signs of a struggle.

Police believe she was killed during the May 16-18 holiday weekend. She did not show up for work at the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce last Tuesday.

A nephew, Murray Ramsden of nearby Port Credit, asked police to break into her apartment after he and other relatives failed to get in touch with her most of last week.

An autopsy by Dr. Hugh Van Potter indicated Miss Payne died of strangulation.

A woman who lived next door said a big man called on Miss Payne almost every evening at 6:15 p.m. and left before 10 p.m. She said the man occasionally was drunk when he left.

Last Tuesday a man is reported to have telephoned the bank and told the manager Miss Payne was sick and would be off for a few days.

Henry Wilmer, 64, janitor of the apartment building, said a man approached him the same day and told him Miss Payne would be in Hamilton for a few days.

Inspector William McNeeley said the two moves probably were made to avert early investigation.

Russia Grants Big Loan

CP from AP-Reuters

CAIRO — Soviet Premier Khrushchev ended a 17 - day visit to Egypt today, bowing out in an atmosphere of goodwill following announcement of a $277,000,000 Soviet loan for President Nasser's second-five-year plan.

Cheering workers, given a half holiday, jammed the airport for Khrushchev's departure, and upwards of 2,000 troops and security men were on hand. Nasser gave his guest a warm embrace, and a 21 - gun salute boomed out as the Soviet leader waved just before entering his airliner.

After Khrushchev, accompanied by his wife, took off for home, Soviet citizens at the airport cheered Nasser.

Speculation that everything had not gone smoothly between Khrushchev and Nasser slumped when a joint communique was made public after a final banquet Sunday night in the gardens of former king Farouk's luxurious Kubbah Palace.

Khrushchev said the Soviet Union had decided to help the United Arab Republic with its second economic plan, which begins next year.

PLAN STEEL PLANT

He said the assistance would include a steel plant with an annual capacity of 1,000,000 tons and a 10,000-acre model farm where Soviet techniques would be used to reclaim the desert. He left it to Nasser to tell the cheering crowd the amount of the aid.

Terms of the loan were not disclosed, but it was presumed that they called for repayment over 12 years at 2.5 per cent interest. The previous $500,000,000 in Soviet credits to Egypt was on this basis.

Highlight of Khrushchev's visit—his first to Africa—were ceremonies marking completion of the first stage of the Aswan Dam on the Nile River.

Egyptian observers believed the lengthy talks between Nasser and Khrushchev will have a favorable effect on relations between the two nations.

The substance of their discussions was revealed but the joint communique said the two leaders expressed agreement on "international issues ranging from Laos to disarmament.

In the communique, Nasser defended the "legitimate right of the Cuban people to defend their sovereignty" after Khrushchev warned that U.S. reconnaissance flights over the island could have fatal consequences for those who undertake such gambles."

Both leaders denounced "attempts to torpedo the Geneva agreements on 1962 with regard to Laos," but they did not say whether they thought the United States or Communist China was responsible for the crisis in the Southeast Asian kingdom.

Mikoyan First To Be Received By Hirohito

TOKYO (Reuters)—First Deputy Premier Anastas Mikoyan became the highest Soviet cabinet minister to be received by Emperor Hirohito.

He also had a meeting with top executives of the giant Sumitomo, Mitsui and Mitsubishi groups, described as "epoch making" by economic observers here.

It was the first open sign of a positive attitude towards trading with Japan shown by Japan's leading firms, apparently stimulated to a large extent by Mikoyan's visit. Mikoyan offered to import $350,000,000 worth of industrial equipment from Japan.

The Japanese representatives offered to export factory equipment to help develop Siberia and the eastern maritime provinces of the Soviet Union, as well as for the Soviet chemical industry expansion plan.

Storms, Gale Force Winds Cause Widespread Damage

TORONTO (CP) — Rainstorms and gale force winds caused widespread damage in southern areas of Ontario Sunday.

A disturbance which moved across the province and into Quebec brought winds gusting to 65 miles an hour, caused power failures, toppled trees and snarled traffic.

Rainfall ranged from .28 inches in Toronto to .80 inches in White River between Sault Ste. Marie and the Lakehead.

Forecast temperatures for southern Ontario today were in the low 70s compared with 90 degrees in most areas Saturday, to be in the 65-to-70-degree range.

Toronto recorded winds gusting to 52 miles an hour during Sunday's intermittent storms. Several trees were blown down across streets and construction site fences were toppled in suburban areas.

Police in London said highways near Dublin and Stratford were blocked by fallen trees. In Brantford, winds toppled downtown street booths set up for a Maytime festival.

At Winterbourne, near Kitchener, a garage was buried through the air by the high winds. A wooden warehouse in Preston, in the same area, was carried about 75 feet and landed on a car. Stratford was in darkness most of the night because of a power failure.

Mid - afternoon temperatures in Toronto reached 82 at Toronto and Ottawa, 81 at Windsor, 80 at London and 66 and 70 degrees at North Bay and Sudbury. As cooler air moved in to end a three-day heat wave, Toronto recorded a record high of 92 Friday.

Troops Despatched to Quell British Guiana Racial Strife

GEORGETOWN (CP)—Three more racial murders during the weekend brought the death toll in three months of rioting and arson to 25 as two battalions of British troops were en route to this strike-torn British colony.

The British destroyer Decoy arrived in Georgetown Harbor Sunday and an advance party of British troops arrived by plane.

Governor Sir Richard Luyt asked for the troop reinforcements to enforce peace between the warring Negro and East Indian factions.

A Negro farm worker was shot dead in broad daylight Sunday in a west. coast Demerara village. A youth who went to the farmhand's assistance also was shot and was in serious condition.

Two East Indians also were murdered, one of them a pregnant mother of 11 children. She was caught by a mob and beaten to death after being forced to flee from her home at the village of Bachelors Adventure, 12 miles from Georgetown.

A watchman at a sugar plantation near Georgetown was shot dead from ambush by terrorists.

The discovery of a murdered Negro couple near Buxton led to rioting by Negro mobs in Georgetown Friday.

A military spokesman said incidents at present seemed sporadic rather than centred in any particular region. It was not decided whether the new troop arrivals, numbering 112 soldiers and four officers, would be brought into Georgetown or deployed on the west bank of the Demerara River.

Brig. Ian Hopes of the 1st Battalion, Devon and Dorset Regiment, which arrived by air from England, will join men of the Queen's Own Regiment who are already in British Guiana.

A military spokesman here said the presence of soldiers had "played a large part in keeping trouble down."

Fire Triggered By Mistake, Seven Perish

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A seventh victim died today of burns suffered in a fire that swept the parish hall of All Hallows Catholic Church during a Samoan fire dance Saturday night.

Seventy - five other persons were badly burned and 12 were said to be still in critical condition today.

Meanwhile, one of the three Samoan fire dancers who were performing when the fire broke out said a, misunderstanding triggered the blaze and ensuing panic.

David Quaine, the five years a night-club fire dancer, told reporters he intended to borrow a book of matches to light the gasoline-soaked sword he whirls in his act.

A drummer in the band, he said, "whipped out a light and set the sword on fire," and a bowl of gasoline ignited with a roar.

Once the blaze had begun an unidentified man sprayed water into the gasoline, witnesses said. The blaze flared up. Members of the Samoan Catholic Benevolent Society rushed for a front exit. .

GRABS FIRE HOSE

Charles B. Brock, 60, a member of the All Hallows Dada' Club, said he grabbed a fire hose within 15 feet of the fire when "Whoosh!—all hell broke loose."

"The other guy and I yelled back at the kid, 'Kick that valve on.'

"No water. We turned around. He'd gone out. We ran back and the flames were way out in the middle of the room. It was horrible."

The flames crawled toward the crowd along the hall rafters, witnesses said.

The dead were all Samoans.

The church was not damaged. "It played a large part in keeping all by a lot. .

History's Worst Sports Calamity In Lima Sunday

Spectators Incensed At Referee's Decision

(CP from AP-Reuters)

LIMA, Peru — In possibly history's worst sports calamity, an estimated 400 to 500 persons died in a frantic rush to the exits of Lima's huge sports stadium Sunday after police fired tear gas on rioting soccer fans.

Many of the exits were closed and hundreds of others were injured in the surge of 45,000 spectators turned into a raging mob after a referee's decision went against the home side.

Officials still counted the rows of dead today, and police announced the death toll was at least 350, but Reuters news agency said Lima radio reports placed the death figure at 500 but said it could not be confirmed.

The riot started when a fan jumped out of the grandstand to protest the Uruguayan referee's decision in a soccer game between Argentina and Peru. Argentina won 2 1-0.

The teams were contending for the right to represent their countries at the Tokyo Olympics.

After 15 minutes in the final quarter, Argentina scored the first goal of the game. Within minutes of the final gun, the Peruvians sent the ball into the net

DISALLOWS SCORE

The crowd roared. But the referee refused to allow the score, saying Peru had committed a foul.

Fans screamed their protests, but the Peruvian players continued to play, although they also protested the decision.

The clock ticked on. Only moments were left when a spectator jumped out of the lowest-priced seats at the south end of the field. He raced across the grass toward the referee.

Police cornered the fan and dragged him off. But other spectators were pouring onto the field.

The referee exercised his right to call off the game. He was escorted off the field by police. The players headed for the dressing rooms.

Uniformed police hurled dozens of tear - gas bombs into the crowd in an effort to keep the

IODE Marks Meet With Flag Issue

By JANET KASK

FREDERICTON (CP)—Eighty union jacks were carried into the New Brunswick legislative assembly chamber Saturday night by Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire standard bearers, symbolizing what probably will highlight the order's annual week-end chapter meeting here — the Canadian flag issue.

Under order, a voluntary organization of some 29,000 Canadian women, has for several years supported the adoption of the Red Ensign as Canada's Flag. A resolution on the subject is expected at business sessions.

During the opening ceremonies of the five - day meeting, Mayor William T. Walker of Fredericton said it is unfortunate that the Red Ensign, which has had so much history, "has been completely scrapped," and that the Union Jack should have "at least a small place" in the Canadian flag design.

Mayor Walker, a member of the Royal Canadian Legion which also supports the Red Ensign, received applause when he

Picture of Man Standing Near Kennedy's Car Resembles Oswald

DALLAS (CP-AP)—More than six months after the assassination of President John F. Kennedy, federal agents still are reconstructing the murder scene and a leading New York newspaper caused more speculation when it published on Police Sunday of a man standing near the Kennedy car that resembles Lee Harvey Oswald, who was charged with killing the president.

The New York Herald Tribune called the picture taken by AP photographer J. W. Adams "probably the most controversial photograph of the decade."

If it was Oswald in the picture near the Kennedy car, he could not have been the man who fired the shots that killed the president from a six-floor window of the Texas School Book Depository building.

The picture was taken almost at the instant of the assassination.

Federal agents reconstructed the assassination scene Sunday as cameras recorded the repeated sequence of events from various angles.

Films will be used by the Warren commission investigating the chief executive's slaying.

An estimated 500 persons watched silently as a limousine containing four agents rolled slowly in front of the Texas School Book Depository Building.

The same car carried secret service agents immediately behind the presidential vehicle on Nov. 22.

From the sixth floor, a federal agent poked the rifle through a window similar to the one Lee Harvey Oswald shot Kennedy.

The slamming of the rifle bolt could be heard above the sound of traffic.

A Dallas County survey team also made the reassuring tape to establish the exact location of the car when each of the three shots was fired.

One of the cameras used in the portrayal was mounted to the murder weapon to record each sequence.

He resembles Oswald, but at the time, the AP quoted R. L. Truly, superintendent of the Depository, as saying the man in the picture was Billy Loveday, another employee of the firm, where Oswald also worked.

"I showed the photograph to Loveday," Truly said at the time, "Who said 'Yes, that's me.'

Loveday said again Saturday he was the employee that it was he and not Oswald who appears in the picture.

At the time the picture first came to public notice last December, the FBI said it also had investigated the photograph and was satisfied that the man shown in the picture was not Oswald.

Curb of Foreign Investment Means Hobbling Progress Du Pont Head Tells CMA

By KEN SMITH
Canadian Press Business Editor

MONTREAL (CP) — Placing a curb on further foreign investment means Canadians must also be prepared to hobble their economic progress, Herbert H. Lank, president of Du Pont of Canada, said today.

He said at the annual meeting of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association that recent events in Canada can also scare away some of that needed capital.

He told the 1,200 delegates that foreign investors have provided Canada with immense supplies of capital and skills to accelerate its growth "far beyond what we could have accomplished alone."

"We are going to need more, not less, of this sort of tangible and intangible help in the future."

Mr. Lank said that in meeting European and American businessmen "I have noticed that Canada is creating a feeling of uneasiness in the minds of some people who have money to invest here."

CITES SQUABBLES

"Our serious political squabbles at the provincial and national levels, our consideration of restrictive legislation that tends to scare money away and our emotional and sometimes ill-informed outcries concerning the domination of our economy by outside interests have our friends worried."

An ultranationalistic outlook "is obsolete and self-defeating in an age that is moving toward more and more international interdependence."

Nevertheless, it would be unwise to ignore the possibility that Canada's economic ties with the United States could lead to political absorption.

It was equally unwise, however, to use "expedient or emotional gimmicks in attempts to modify what has already occurred."

"If we do decide to change our economic structure, let us do so only after the most careful and mature appraisal and then let us rely chiefly on persuasive rather than restrictive means."

MUST PAVE WAY

John Deutsch, chairman of the Economic Council of Canada, warned the businessmen that they will have to help pave the way for future technological changes by recognizing the social and human adjustments involved.

If they don't, he said, "the other choice is a social and political struggle out of which could develop a network of protective devices, government intervention, controls, subsidies and unproductive expenditures which, in large part, would frustrate the possibilities of industrial progress."

J. R. Wadsworth, president of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, told the conference it is important to maintain free enterprise economy that decisions on how savings should be invested in large part should by competitive forces in a free market.

Discussing the role that life insurance companies and trusteed pension plans play in Canada's economy, Mr. Wadsworth said these two institutions accounted for 43 per cent of domestically-held debts of Canadian corporations and provincial and municipal governments.

"It is therefore apparent that these institutions play a key role in collecting the savings of Canadians and directing them to the chief public and private borrowers or users of the funds."

He also said it is quite feasible for a reasonable proportion of bank assets to be invested in relatively long-term forms, including real estate mortgages, since a large share of bank liabilities is in the form of personal savings deposits, are fairly permanent.

Some Power Failures Due To Heavy Storms

A brief, but heavy storm, brought heavy rain to the Belleville area early today, along with some power failures.

High tension problems on Ontario Hydro lines serving the city's utilities caused interruptions at two Belleville substations.

Power was out in some parts of the East Hill for 75 minutes. A total rainfall of .22 inch was recorded.

ANAF Unit To Take Part In Blood Clinic

Thousands of members of the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans in Canada are expected to be donors in a special "Blood for Peace" blood donor project early in June.

Plans call for the special donor clinic to be held across Canada during the week of June 1st, but in Belleville the clinic will be held June 10th.

The "Blood for Peace" project will be the veterans' way to commemorate the anniversary of D-Day and to honor their fellow Canadians who gave their lives during World War II.

Dominion Army, Navy and Airforce Veterans' president Jack Lundberg of Belleville, said he hoped the "Blood for Peace" project will be an annual project of his association membership.

The special Belleville clinic will be held at the Kiwanis Centre June 11th from 2:30 until 8:30 and from 6:00 to 8:30 in the evening.

Nine Homeless Following Fire In Tyendinaga

A family of nine are homeless today following a fire on Sunday night which destroyed their eight-room dwelling located on the 5th concession of Tyendinaga.

The house was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Rex Gilmour and their seven children, ranging in ages from eight months to 13 years.

Mrs. Gilmour said the fire broke out around 9.50 p.m., as she was preparing the children for bed.

She said her husband had just left to take his brother to a garage when the blaze broke out in the roof.

She said they were able to save most of their furnishings and most of their children's clothing with the exception of their shoes.

The 5-bedroom home was completely destroyed by the fire in unknown but it is believed to have started in the roof from firecrackers according to Belleville's fire chief, Gerald Vance.

The house was reported to have been worth approximately $10,000. Only a few bricks from the dwelling remain standing.

The family have taken up temporary residence with Mr. Gilmour's brother, Pat, on the 7th of Tyendinaga.

The police is still under investigation by the Fire Marshal's office. There were no personal injuries.

The house was owned by Mr. L. DeSnoo of R.R. 1, Corbyville.

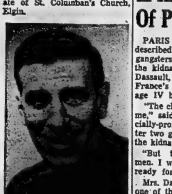
Vern Weir, Active in Church, 'Y', Business and Sporting Life, Honored by Y's Men

The Y's Men's Club, surrounded by many former members and past presidents, held their last meeting in the old building on Campbell Street on Saturday night and at the same time honored one of their first members, Vernon Weir, active in his church, the Y.M.C.A. and the business and sporting life of this city. It was a fitting tribute to one man who has put service above everything else in his life since he came to this city at the tender age of 10 and who has been a guiding force in every project he ever took a part in.

Along with his helpful wife, the former Irene Russell, he was presented with many gifts and eulogies and on hand to witness the event was his young daughter Brother, Alex Weir, and his wife from Niagara Falls; his brother-in-law, Dr. Sutherland of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, and other close and intimate friends he has made through his various activities over the years.



Y's Men's Club president Irene Russell, he said in welcoming friends on hand were Army Armstrong of Oshawa, and Newton Thompson, past International President of the Y's Men, who gave him his first job in the CNR office and where he stayed for many years.

Vern received a new pair of golf shoes, a new set of golf clubs and also, after a meeting at the "Y" Camp at Oak Lake was named in his honor, by which his wife received a beautiful corsage and his brother's wife a bouquet of red roses.

Mrs. Vern Weir said she had a

Rev. W. J. McGee Honored Before Leaving Faculty To Accept Elgin Pastorate

O Friday evening, the students of Nicholson Catholic College called an assembly in the gymnasium to honor Rev. W. J. McGee who is retiring from the faculty to accept the pastorate of St. Columban's Church, Elgin.

Following the singing of the "Alma Mater" by the College Glee Club, Fred Whibbs recited "The Beautiful Hands of a Priest" and then presented Father McGee with a framed copy of the composition.

John Halloran, chairman for the occasion, spoke to the assemblage and reminded the students of the debt owed to Father McGee for his wholesuled endeavour on their behalf. As a testimonial to his interest it the college sports program, the chairman announced that a 'Father McGee Memorial Trophy' had been purchased by the student council to be awarded each year to the top girl and boy athlete. The beautiful trophy was then presented to Father McGee who, in turn, presented in turn 1963-64 winners: Maureen Collins and Don Holoway.

Following this presentation, Sister Mary Stella Maria made an award to Paul Charlebois who was the winner on the College Mathematics team which entered a contest sponsored by the Mathematical Association of Canada and Society of Actuaries.

PLAY PRESENTED

Eight grade twelve girls in floor length gowns of pastel shades presented a play, entitled "The Mystical Gifts" in which the numberless graces and blessings attached to the priestly vocation were made evident through the symbols carried by the girls. The cast was as follows:

Spirit of Music — Jane Doran, (Violin); Spirit of Flowers — Joyce Dorian (16 roses); Spirit of Gratitude — Patricia Green, (Silver box filled to overflowing with jewels); Spirit of Poetry — Alanna McQuaid, (Golden scroll and quill); Spirit of Prayer — Lesley Jobey, (Smoking censor); Angel of Prayer — Kathleen McDonald, (Spiritual Bouquet and Rosary); Angel Guardian — Brenda Cottrell, (Gave Heaven's benediction); Angel of Vocation — Donna Morrison, (Carried a stole, badge of priestly powers).

As the conclusion of the play, the Angel of Prayer, (Kathleen McDonald) advanced to Father McGee and presented the spiritual bouquet from the students; then the Spirit of Flowers (Joyce Dorian) presented her sixteen talisman roses to honor the sixteenth anniversary of Father McGee's ordination to the Holy Priesthood.

On behalf of the students of the college, Jim Lawlor, vice-president of the student council, presented Father McGee with a cheque and assured him that the good wishes of the Nicholson students would always be his.

EXPRESSES GRATITUDE

In his reply, Father McGee expressed his gratitude for the many kindnesses bestowed upon him by the faculty members and students during his nine years on the staff. After pausing to reminisce over the incidents in his teaching career, he assured the assembly that he would keep them in his prayers then terminated his remarks by giving his priestly blessing. The Glee Club responded with a beautiful rendition of "May The Good Lord Bless and Keep You". Saddened fgcss, tear-filled eyes and a thunderous applause spoke more eloquently than words the thought and pent - up feelings in the hearts of the Nicholson students as they bade "farewell" to their beloved spiritual director, teacher and athletic coach, the Rev. Fr. W. J. McGee.

Three Are Held In Kidnapping Of Parisienne

PARIS (AP) — Three men described by police as "little gangsters" are being held in the kidnapping of Mrs. Marcel Dassault, wife of the builder of France's nuclear - carrying Mirage IV bomber.

"The chief was charming with me," said the 63-year-old socially-prominent Parisienne after two gendarmes stumbled on the kidnappers' hideout Sunday.

"But they were dangerous men. I wasn't afraid but I was ready for anything."

Mrs. Dassault, who had belted one of the kidnappers in the stomach with her umbrella, said the men provided her with coffees during a chilly night and brought her grilled steak and boiled potatoes when she complained of being hungry.

The three suspects, said by police to have been mixed up in prostitution and other underworld activities, still were being questioned today.

SEEK FOURTH MAN

A search continued for a fourth man and several police cars and disappeared in Paris.

Mrs. Dassault was freed when two village gendarmes, participating in a check of farms and summer cottages north of Paris, shouted "Is anyone here?" outside an abandoned-looking farmhouse.

They broke in when a woman's voice replied "Yes, don't leave." A gunman meekly handed over his pistol and said some friends offered him a little money to guard a farmhouse.

Mrs. Dassault said the men, who pistol whipped her 73-year-old husband and her chauffeur in front of their home early Saturday, put a chloroform bag over her face. But when she came to, they treated her gently.

Her husband said no ransom had been paid. Nevertheless one of Dassault's friends had flown to Switzerland to make contact with members of the secrety army organization on whose behalf they had been responsible.

IODE Wants Plebiscite Held on Flag

FREDERICTON (CP) — The Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire said today the Canadian government is depriving "citizens of their rights to vote" on the distinctive Canadian flag issue.

The IODE, in a telegram to Prime Minister Pearson unanimously backed by members of the IODE's annual meeting here, said the "National chapter, IODE, deplores that in this democratic country our government would deprive individual citizens of their rights to vote on an issue as vital as the Canadian flag.

"The IODE strongly urges that the prime minister hold a national plebiscite in order that the people of Canada may decide whether the Canadian Red Ensign or a flag of a new design shall be the official flag of Canada."

The IODE is a 29,000-member Canadian women's organization that has strongly supported the adoption of the Red Ensign for Canada's national flag since 1945.

Unions Asked To Keep Strong Leadership

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Claude Jodoin, Canadian Labor Congress president, Saturday said reactionary labor legislation such as has been recently sought—and granted—in British Columbia, Newfoundland and Alberta points out the need for the Canadian labor movement to continue counter-measures.

He described reactionary labor legislation as that designed by anti-labor groups to bring about the end of unions.

Everything the labor movement has won for Canadian workers could be lost, he told delegates to the education institute of London and District Labor Council being held at the University of Western Ontario.

Because of the attitude of some employers, union members cannot forget the need for strong union leadership, he said.

He urged strong representation of industries at the highest level coupled with strong union and government initiative in both short and long-range planning for Canada's economic development.

He clarified this by advocating close industry and labor cooperation with a minimum of government interference in but with information and advice when needed.

Mr. Jodoin, a native of Quebec, viewed the current separatist furore as the work of "irresponsible politicians and a minority group."

He criticized the amount of publicity the separatists are getting.

Anti-separatist Canadians, he said, should start saying so.

"I'm not saying we should beat the drums and form organizations but it is about time those who believe in Canada started saying so with no hesitation."

GUNS FOR BUTTER

HELSINKI (Reuters)—Agreement has been reached on a "guns-for-butter" exchange of Soviet military equipment for Finnish surplus farm produce, a Finnish foreign office spokesman announced Friday night.

Cultural Exchange Suggested

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP)—A massive cultural exchange between English and French Canada as a means of promoting greater national unity was suggested today by Dr. A. W Trueman of Ottawa, director of the Canada Council.

He said it should take in theatre, opera, ballet, symphonic music, concert recitals, picture and sculpture exhibits, literature, television and radio.

Speaking to a convocation audience at Prince of Wales College, Dr. Trueman said:

"By stimulating increased knowledge and experience of each other's arts, we emphasize those things that positively tend to unite rather than divide us.

"... I suggest that such art exchanges, by all media . . . engender mutual respect by making increasingly ridiculous any tendency among the majority group to feel itself inherently superior because of its numbers or its strength and among the minority group to feel that the majority is unduly materialistic and incompetent and maintains a culture characterized by lack of sensitivity and refinement."

U. S. Proposals Turned Down By Red China

By JOHN RODERICK

TOKYO (AP) — Communist China today called U.S. proposals for settling the South Vietnam - Cambodia border with United Nations patrols a plot to extend American aggression in Indochina.

"U.S. aggressors must get out of South Viet Nam; they must get out of Indochina," a Peking radio broadcast quoted a Peking People's Daily editorial as saying.

Responding to U.S. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson's proposition May 11 before the UN Security Council, the Chinese said: "China absolutely cannot allow the United Nations to be drawn into the situation in Indochina."

Stevenson proposed that the Security Council request Cambodia and South Viet Nam to establish a military force to patrol the frontier which South Vietnamese troops have crossed in recent weeks in pursuit of Communist Viet Cong units. He said this bilateral force should be augmented by, and possibly commanded by, UN observers.

SUGGESTS ALLIED FORCE

Alternatively, he suggested formation of an all-UN force to which the United States would be willing to contribute.

U.S. advisers contend the Communist Viet Cong openly use Cambodia as sanctuary before and after raids on South Viet Nam.

Cambodian Prince Norodom Sihanouk has proposed that a Geneva conference be called to guarantee Cambodia's neutrality and "settle the Indochina question as a whole."

At UN headquarters in New York, some diplomats said the U.S. proposal would find favor with at least five of the security Council's other 10 members —Bolivia, Brazil, Britain, Nationalist China and Norway. They thought a compromise resolution could be worked out with some reference to the conference sought by Sihanouk.

TURKISH EXERCISES

Elsie M. Fowler Memorial School Library Dedicated

TRENTON—Elsie May Fowler during her 37-year teaching career at College Street Public School, was "faithful, devoted and conscientious," V. P. Carswell, supervising principal of public schools in Trenton, told her fellow teachers, students, members of her family and long-time friends at the dedication of the Elsie M. Fowler Library in the school rotunda on Saturday morning.

"Her influence on the young people in the community can never be fully assessed or appreciated." Mr. Carswell said.

When Miss Fowler first went to College Street in 1924, Mr. Carswell was principal at that school. An elm tree on the lawn of the school was planted by Miss Fowler in 1941.

"Her life was an inspiration and a benediction." Mr. Carswell said.

Others, her one-time minister, Rev. G. A. Puttenham; T. S. Ketchabaw, chairman of the Trenton Board of Education; Miss Hazel Walker, a former member of the College Street teaching staff and R. Taviner, president of the College Street School and Home Association, paid tribute to Miss Fowler during the dedication ceremonies.

Mr. Taviner said that following Miss Fowler's death on July 1, 1961, the school association had discussed a memorial to the beloved teacher and had finally decided on a library, which would serve students of all ages at the school. Fellow teachers, the principal, K. M. Hamilton, and members of the school board had co-operated, he said.

A memorial plaque to Miss Fowler was unveiled by Miss Lillian McPhail, a former member of College Street teaching staff and a close friend of the late Miss Fowler.

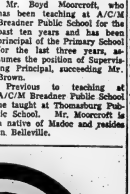
Miss LaVelle will take an extended holiday in Western Canada and the United States.

Driver Charged



TRENTON — Lyle Arthur Cole, aged 34, of R.R. 2 Carrying Place, has been charged by the OPP with making an improper left-hand turn at Brighton. The charge followed an accident on County Road 64 in Murray Township on Sunday.

Police say Cole turned into a driveway just as another vehicle, driven by Kenneth Edward Healey of Islington, was also to pass.

Damage to the Cole vehicle was $300 and $450 damage was done to the Healey car. There were no personal injuries as a result of the accident.

Premier Robarts Attends Service In London

LONDON (CP) — Premier John Robarts of Ontario attended a Commonwealth Day service at Westminster Abbey today as the official phase began of his 36-day tour of Britain, West Germany and Italy.

Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home read the lesson at the ceremony. Later Robarts, accompanied by Stanley Randall, Ontario minister of economics and development, called on Commonwealth Secretary Duncan Sandys.

Robarts held talks with J. E. P. Armstrong, agent-general of Ontario, and toured Oxford.

Three Are Held In Kidnapping Of Parisienne

PARIS (AP) — Three men described by police as "little gangsters" are being held in the kidnapping of Mrs. Marcel Dassault, wife of the builder of France's nuclear - carrying Mirage IV bomber.

"The chief was charming with me," said the 63-year-old socially-prominent Parisienne after two gendarmes stumbled on the kidnappers' hideout Sunday.

"But they were dangerous men. I wasn't afraid but I was ready for anything."

Mrs. Dassault, who had belted one of the kidnappers in the stomach with her umbrella, said the men provided her with coffees during a chilly night and brought her grilled steak and boiled potatoes when she complained of being hungry.

The three suspects, said by police to have been mixed up in prostitution and other underworld activities, still were being questioned today.

SEEK FOURTH MAN

A search continued for a fourth man and several police cars and disappeared in Paris.

Mrs. Dassault was freed when two village gendarmes, participating in a check of farms and summer cottages north of Paris, shouted "Is anyone here?" outside an abandoned-looking farmhouse.

They broke in when a woman's voice replied "Yes, don't leave." A gunman meekly handed over his pistol and said some friends offered him a little money to guard a farmhouse.

Mrs. Dassault said the men, who pistol whipped her 73-year-old husband and her chauffeur in front of their home early Saturday, put a chloroform bag over her face. But when she came to, they treated her gently.

Her husband said no ransom had been paid. Nevertheless one of Dassault's friends had flown to Switzerland to make contact with members of the secrety army organization on whose behalf they had been responsible.

IODE Wants Plebiscite Held on Flag

FREDERICTON (CP) — The Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire said today the Canadian government is depriving "citizens of their rights to vote" on the distinctive Canadian flag issue.

The IODE, in a telegram to Prime Minister Pearson unanimously backed by members of the IODE's annual meeting here, said the "National chapter, IODE, deplores that in this democratic country our government would deprive individual citizens of their rights to vote on an issue as vital as the Canadian flag.

"The IODE strongly urges that the prime minister hold a national plebiscite in order that the people of Canada may decide whether the Canadian Red Ensign or a flag of a new design shall be the official flag of Canada."

The IODE is a 29,000-member Canadian women's organization that has strongly supported the adoption of the Red Ensign for Canada's national flag since 1945.

Unions Asked To Keep Strong Leadership

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Claude Jodoin, Canadian Labor Congress president, Saturday said reactionary labor legislation such as has been recently sought—and granted—in British Columbia, Newfoundland and Alberta points out the need for the Canadian labor movement to continue counter-measures.

He described reactionary labor legislation as that designed by anti-labor groups to bring about the end of unions.

Everything the labor movement has won for Canadian workers could be lost, he told delegates to the education institute of London and District Labor Council being held at the University of Western Ontario.

Because of the attitude of some employers, union members cannot forget the need for strong union leadership, he said.

He urged strong representation of industries at the highest level coupled with strong union and government initiative in both short and long-range planning for Canada's economic development.

He clarified this by advocating close industry and labor cooperation with a minimum of government interference in but with information and advice when needed.

Mr. Jodoin, a native of Quebec, viewed the current separatist furore as the work of "irresponsible politicians and a minority group."

He criticized the amount of publicity the separatists are getting.

Anti-separatist Canadians, he said, should start saying so.

"I'm not saying we should beat the drums and form organizations but it is about time those who believe in Canada started saying so with no hesitation."

Cultural Exchange Suggested

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP)—A massive cultural exchange between English and French Canada as a means of promoting greater national unity was suggested today by Dr. A. W Trueman of Ottawa, director of the Canada Council.

He said it should take in theatre, opera, ballet, symphonic music, concert recitals, picture and sculpture exhibits, literature, television and radio.

Speaking to a convocation audience at Prince of Wales College, Dr. Trueman said:

"By stimulating increased knowledge and experience of each other's arts, we emphasize those things that positively tend to unite rather than divide us.

"... I suggest that such art exchanges, by all media . . . engender mutual respect by making increasingly ridiculous any tendency among the majority group to feel itself inherently superior because of its numbers or its strength and among the minority group to feel that the majority is unduly materialistic and incompetent and maintains a culture characterized by lack of sensitivity and refinement."

U. S. Proposals Turned Down By Red China

By JOHN RODERICK

TOKYO (AP) — Communist China today called U.S. proposals for settling the South Viet Nam - Cambodia border with United Nations patrols a plot to extend American aggression in Indochina.

"U.S. aggressors must get out of South Viet Nam; they must get out of Indochina," a Peking radio broadcast quoted a Peking People's Daily editorial as saying.

Responding to U.S. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson's proposition May 11 before the UN Security Council, the Chinese said: "China absolutely cannot allow the United Nations to be drawn into the situation in Indochina."

Stevenson proposed that the Security Council request Cambodia and South Viet Nam to establish a military force to patrol the frontier which South Vietnamese troops have crossed in recent weeks in pursuit of Communist Viet Cong units. He said this bilateral force should be augmented by, and possibly commanded by, UN observers.

SUGGESTS ALLIED FORCE

Alternatively, he suggested formation of an all-UN force to which the United States would be willing to contribute.

U.S. advisers contend the Communist Viet Cong openly use Cambodia as sanctuary before and after raids on South Viet Nam.

Cambodian Prince Norodom Sihanouk has proposed that a Geneva conference be called to guarantee Cambodia's neutrality and "settle the Indochina question as a whole."

At UN headquarters in New York, some diplomats said the U.S. proposal would find favor with at least five of the security Council's other 10 members —Bolivia, Brazil, Britain, Nationalist China and Norway. They thought a compromise resolution could be worked out with some reference to the conference sought by Sihanouk.

Must Punish This Crime

A UN soldier, a Finn, has been killed in Cyprus.

The next victim may be a Canadian.

And then there will be the devil to pay.

We shall have to ask ourselves whether we are justified in requiring our fellow-Canadians to risk their lives in a situation where, to judge by appearances, little regard is being paid to their safety.

Before we face this question in fact, we might do worse than consider it in the abstract.

What will annoy most Canadians, when our men in Cyprus suffer their first casualty, will be that there seems to be an unreasonable limitation on their use of force. Armed Cypriots, of both Greek and Turkish extraction, are roaming around all over the place, banging away at each other and at anything or anybody which might possibly be each other, and the UN forces do not do much about it.

At this distance, it would appear only sensible for the UN troops to disarm those Cypriots they encounter carrying rifles and other weapons.

The difficulty is that once you disarm a man, in a situation such as exists in Cyprus, you have a responsibility for his safety. If you deprive him of the ability to protect himself, then you must protect him. In the nature of things, it would be impossible for the small UN force to disarm a major portion of the guerrilla-trained Cypriots. What would happen if the UN stripped a Turkish or a Greek village of weapons—and then it was raided by an armed band of the other racial extraction? The massacre which would result would be on the heads of the UN soldiers, a blot on the record of the peace-keeping force and a formidable barrier in any future measures.

Still, the UN ought to have some authority to decide when Greek or Turkish Cypriots are acting in an aggressive fashion and to impose a stern discipline on any hot-heads.

If we let any UN soldier, Finn or Canadian or any other nationality, be killed with impunity, we are inviting a possible disaster.

It is not enough for leaders of an offending community to express "deep regret." Some punishment fitting the crime ought to be imposed, by consent of the community of which the offender is a member if possible, but without this consent even in the face of united opposition if necessary.

In for a Long Term?

Last week the Liberals took over the reins of government in Saskatchewan. It appears likely that they will stay in the driver's seat for many years—not because they were so right in their charges that the province was stagnating economically but for precisely the opposite reason.

After almost 20 years of CCF rule, Saskatchewan appears to be on the verge of a boom —or at least as close to a boom as could be expected in a primarily agricultural region at a time when the expansionist impulses in our economy are essentially industrial.

This is not to suggest that the CCF regime in Saskatchewan is responsible for the economic climate there.

As often happens, this is a development which has occurred outside the scope of provincial government policies and influences.

Firstly, there is the impetus given the province's economy by increased wheat sales, largely as the result of purchases by China and Russia.

Secondly, there is the expanding role being played by the province's gas and oil fields.

And then, to cap it all, we have the potash development at Esterhazy, which appears certain to touch off a whole series of similar projects in other parts of the province.

Under the circumstances, the only realistic hopes the CCF can have of returning to power in the near future would appear to depend on liberal mismanagement. It could happen; there is no guarantee that ex-CCFer Ross Thatcher administers as well as he talks, though his record in building up the Liberal party since he became leader suggests that he may well do so, and perhaps may perform even better than the promises.

The Empire of the Hittites

By Peggy Bonk in UNESCO Features

In 1893 Charles Texier, a Frenchman travelling in Asia Minor on a scientific mission, discovered the ruins of unusual interest near the village of Bogaz-koy on the Anatolian plateau. Half hidden beneath the earth among rocks and pebbles, he noted the foundations of what might have been once an important building and, close by, the monolithic pillars of a huge gateway, decorated with sculptured lions.

Further on in the village of Yazilikaya, Texier's attention was drawn to an impressive series of carvings on the rock face of a kind of natural temple. The scenes represented processions of figures, apparently of a ceremonial character.

These were the first indications of the existence of the Hittite Empire which flourished in Anatolia during the 2nd millennium B.C. No other ancient civilization of the Middle East had suffered such complete oblivion: even 60 years ago, little was known about the Hittites apart from references to them in the Bible.

At the beginning of the present century, a German archeologist named Hugo Winkler began near Bogazkoy, the site discovered 70 years earlier by Texier, unearthed a collection of 3,200 tablets and fragments covered with cuneiform script. These "archives", dating from a some years later, proved to be the key to the history of the Hittites and the site where Winkler found them was revealed as Hattusas, capital of the Hittite Empire.

An exhibition recently shown in Paris — the first of its kind — traced the evolution of Hittite art from the proto-Hittite period of the 4th millennium to the end of the Empire in the 11th century B.C. Objects of great artistic and archeological value during current excavations were lent for the exhibition by the Archaeological Museum in Ankara.

Hittite art follows closely the various periods in the history of the peoples of Hatti, the name of the region later applied to the tribes who settled there at the beginning of the 2nd millennium B.C. These tribes were of Indo-European origin, probably came from the north or from the Caucasus. On the Anatolian plateau, they found a hospitable land with deep river valleys rich in flora and fauna, good communications and a protective range of mountains to the east. The Indo-Europeans soon adapted themselves to the life and customs of the country, even worshipping the local divinities — the Storm God of Hatti, the Sun Goddess — and drawing largely on their traditions to create utensils and ornaments for their own use.

At the time of the Indo-European migration, a prolific trade was already carried on by Assyrian merchants in Anatolia who formed colonies around settlements and trading routes leading south to Syria and Egypt. Brightly - colored cloths, much admired by the peoples of Hatti, were brought on donkeyback all the way from Mesopotamia and exchanged for copper from the Anatolian mines. In these trading colonies clay tablets have been discovered which reveal many destails about commerce and the social customs of the Hittites, as well as information about important personages of the time. The tablets were often letters inclosed in clay "envelopes", or contracts bearing the seals of the two signatories.

Shortly before 1700 B.C., the Assyrian communities seem to have disappeared. Battles between the Indo-European settlers and the local princes and priestesses (women appear to have enjoyed important status among the ancient peoples of Hatti) resulted in the rise to power of King Anitta who established the first dynasty of the Hittites and imposed his authority over a wide territory. The oldest "document" so far discovered in the Hittite language is a text recounting these battles fought by King Anitta. The text is written in a modified version of the older Assyrian script which the Hittites adopted to write down their own language, of Indo-European origin.

From Anatolia, the successors of Anitta — the "Great Kings" as they were called — extended their authority north to the Black Sea and south to the Mediterranean. They ventured further afield, and in the 17th century B.C. their armies, after taking the town of Aleppo in northern Syria, pushed forward along the Upper Euphrates river to Babylon, which they conquered. It proved a short lived victory, however, the Hittite Empire was too unwieldy internally to consolidate. Its armies were forced to withdraw.

The reign of the Great King Suppiluliuma I, which began shortly after 1450 B.C., marks the most illustrious period in the Empire's history. Suppiluliuma I extended his Kingdom over most of Asia Minor and parts of Syria, with centres at Aleppo and Kadesh in the Upper Euphrates valley. Treaties made by the Great King with the rulers of neighboring states of varying races and cultures included a proviso that the subject peoples should support the Hittites in war. Unlike most powers at that period, the Hittite Empire was a federation of states, a fact which often led to internal strife and which finally caused its downfall.

Meantime Egypt under Ramses II was planning a campaign to regain her lost possessions to the north. The clash came early in the 12th century at Qadesh, in Syria, where King Muwatalli leading the Hittite armies halted the Egyptian advance. Basreliefs on the walls of Egyptian temples at Ramesseum in Karnak, Luxor and Abu Simbel picture scenes of the battle in which the Egyptians claim to be the victors. In fact, however, the Hittites lost none of their territories, and a treaty tablet bears the text of a treaty, signed a few years later, between Ramses II and Hattusil III, the text also exists in Egyptian hieroglyphs carved on the walls of temples at Karnak and Ramesseum.

By now, however, the Hittite Empire was showing signs of its two sides: in the east by the growing power of Assyria, and in the west by the migrations of the Aegean coast. It was from the west that defeat finally overtook the Hittites. Migrating hordes of Balkan tribes, swelled by people from the Aegean islands, raided the sub-Empire, penetrating deep into Anatolia, overrunning and looting during and subjugating the vassal states. The invaders pursued their advance southwards and eastwards to the very frontiers of Egypt.

The ancient capital of Hattusa under the last of the Great Kings — Suppiluliuma II — was conquered, looted burned to the ground: the Hittite Empire was destroyed forever. Small communities of Hittites who had fled before the conquering armies settled in northern Syria. Often in conflict with one another, these communities survived up to the 7th century B.C. They carried on the artistic traditions of the ancient empire, their craftsmen producing many impressive monuments in pure Hittite style.

The Paris exhibition included many examples of the considerable artistic achievements of the proto-Hittite who inhabited Anatola before the arrival of the Indo-Europeans during the earliest, dating back to the 4th millenium, the fertility symbol is dominant, with stylized female statuettes evolving from primitive naturalistic figures to a highly stylized "violin" form in white marble or other stone.

During the period of the Hittite Empire, rock carvings, bowards, the forms and decoration of pottery objects show important advances. Cylinder seals and metal molds are used to decorate elegantly proportioned pots and jugs. Animal motifs — such as horses and lions — were also imitated by the Hittites but were used for religious ceremonies. The exhibition contained many such examples. One of the most interesting exhibits, from a historical viewpoint, was a part of the original inscription describing the setting down the terms of the Qades treaty concluded between Hattusil III and Ramses II the oldest known written treaty in the world.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

May 25th, 1944.

A little known word in the every-day vocabulary is chemurgy, a word meaning scientific agriculture and the development of science in agriculture. Through chemurgy will come many advances in processing the agricultural products heretofore unknown. One of the biggest proposals in the chemurgic field is the production of motor fuels from agricultural materials and although the proposal has attracted much attention, the facts regarding it are not generally known.

The use of alcohol as a motor fuel has been studied ever since the automobile came into use, but it is retarded because of difficulties involved in manufacture. It is possible to make water-free alcohol almost as cheaply as ordinary alcohol and since 1930 power alcohol has been produced in forty countries at the rate of 200,000,000 gallons annually.

Alcohol is generally used in a mixture with gasoline in a 10 to 20 per cent blend and experience in other countries has shown that there is little technical difficulty involved in its use. Power is practically almost as cheaply as ordinary alcohol and since 1930 power alcohol has been produced in forty countries at the rate of 200,000,000 gallons annually.

Alcohol is generally used in a mixture with gasoline in a 10 to 20 per cent blend and experience in other countries has shown that there is little technical difficulty involved in its use. Power and acceleration as straight gasoline. Any starchy products can be used as raw material in this project and would assist in maintaining a balanced market for different crops. It would have a beneficial influence on our trade balance with the United States and countries having exchange. Canada imports 1¼ billion gallons a year of crude petroleum and products, (in wartime restrictions) which is valued at about 40 million dollars.

So Canadians Shun Risks?

Winnipeg Tribune

Canadian stock markets have provided a useful lesson during the past week. Regardless of one's view of stock market operations nobody ever again will be able to say that Canadians have become stodgy and security - conscious.

For some years now we have become accustomed to the afterdinner lament that Canadians will not invest in risk enterprises. Not for us our hard-earned ners the heady chance-taking breath of life. Not for us the speeches — for our southern neighbors. Canadians, we have been told, prefer bonds and debentures with no risk and low returns.

Just look at those dour northerners in Timmins and Toronto!

Canadian Tie Made in Japan

Financial Post

There must be some kind of moral in this experience of a Canadian business executive.

He was soon to set forth on a trip around the world. He decided to wear a tie that would set anywhere proclaim him as a Canadian. So he spent half a dozen haberdasheries failed to produce a single tie with a maple leaf design.

Then he remembered that he had seen such a tie in the Canadian Club at Tokyo of which he is a non - resident member. It was the club tie. He sent for one.

While he was pondering upon the irony of the fact that he had to send to New York to buy a maple leaf tie, his straying fingers happened to turn over the end of the tie, revealing a small label. It read: "Hand Tailored: Japan."

To Your Good Health

Doctor Says That Oldsters Should Drink Some Milk

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My three-year-old daughter has 12 excellent teeth. The dentist thinks that fluoritated drinking water would have been of some help in preventing this condition. Our town does not have fluoritation but I work in a safety city that does. I have two younger daughters. Should I bring some water from the city for them? — Mrs. H. E.

Let me answer this two ways. (Thirteen is a frightful lot of cavities for so young a child, of course.)

First: I wouldn't start carting city water home. You can buy tablets which can be added to water, milk or other liquids. (Follow directions: Give only as much as is directed. Don't make the mistake of thinking that because one tablet is good, two will be better. Enough is enough: any more is too much.)

As the children become old enough, your dentist (or, more likely, his technician) can get "topical fluoride." This means that a couple of times a year, a solution of fluoride is painted on the teeth.

Second: The 13 cavities indicate that something more than fluoride is involved.

I wonder whether this little girl with the cavities has been plagued with a disease of some sort. (It has no direct bearing to do with tooth development.) Or is she getting the right diet?

Consult your doctor.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have ulcers and am on a diet. I am not a nervous person and have a happy home, but when problems do arise, they hit me in the stomach. I get very tense but never show it. I never get headaches.

Would you send me your booklet on ulcers? I don't really know much about them. I excuse the required 35 cents in coin and an unstamped, self-addressed envelope. — Mrs. T.

In just a few sentences you've written a very vivid description of the type of tension that people keep bottled up — but it still requires pressure. Each person has his own pattern of responding to tension, and many do so as you do, with ulcers. The booklet, "How to Heal Peptic Ulcers and Keep them Healed" is on the way.

Dear Dr. Molner: What causes ringworm? Could it come from sinus? Would a series of shots cure this? — C. S.

Ringworm doesn't come from sinus trouble, and the drug you suggest wouldn't do any good. What would? It depends. Because there are at least three basic types of ringworm, and treatment must suit the particular type. (It's a fungus infection of the skin, by the way.)

Dear Dr. Molner: I had my tonsils removed when I was a kid ago and the doctor said be could not improve my sight by wearing glasses.

Now I am having trouble because things are blurred, and I get a headache, and white halos around lights. I don't know what that means. I was in an auto accident several years ago, and hit the windshield with my head. Would that have any effect? — Mrs. G.

I doubt that the accident had any thing to do with it, but there may be some injury involved which I can't detect just from a letter.

However, those colored circles around lights are a sign that should never be neglected. Get back to your doctor for examination without delay. Glaucoma may be involved.

Children Have Deep Need For Fantasy

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Although normally a most sociable creature, my little girl not long ago remarked that she often preferred to walk home from school alone rather than in the company of her schoolmates.

Asked why, she said simply: "It gives me a chance to make up all kinds of things — stories and adventures and stuff like that."

The word she didn't have at her command was "fantasy." Children have a deep need to fantasize; until she made that remark, I had never thought about my own childhood preoccupation with "making up things," walking along the street alone, and projecting myself into marvelous situations.

After watching a Tom Mix serial in the afternoon at the movies, I would dawdle home and be completely unaware of passing feats of incredible daring and dexterity, feared and respected by the fatuous men of the West, and beloved by every beautiful woman on the frontier.

Daytime fantasy, like dreamwork, performs a useful function: it enables us to relieve the tensities and find in the world of fancy a flattering role for ourselves that reality may have denied us. If it is not excessive — not a mere substitute for life — fantasy acts as a protective bandage against the bruises of the here and the now.

Children who are over-organized, continually supervised, stimulated into "social activity" since the required 35 cents in coin and an unstamped, self-addressed envelope. — Mrs. T.

In just a few sentences you've written a very vivid description of the type of tension that people keep bottled up — but it still requires pressure. Each person has his own pattern of responding to tension, and many do so as you do, with ulcers. The booklet, "How to Heal Peptic Ulcers and Keep them Healed" is on the way.

Dear Dr. Molner: What causes ringworm? Could it come from sinus? Would a series of shots cure this? — C. S.

Ringworm doesn't come from sinus trouble, and the drug you suggest wouldn't do any good. What would? It depends. Because there are at least three basic types of ringworm, and treatment must suit the particular type. (It's a fungus infection of the skin, by the way.)

Dear Dr. Molner: I had my tonsils removed when I was a kid ago and the doctor said be could not improve my sight by wearing glasses.

Now I am having trouble because things are blurred, and I get a headache, and white halos around lights. I don't know what that means. I was in an auto accident several years ago, and hit the windshield with my head. Would that have any effect? — Mrs. G.

I doubt that the accident had any thing to do with it, but there may be some injury involved which I can't detect just from a letter.

However, those colored circles around lights are a sign that should never be neglected. Get back to your doctor for examination without delay. Glaucoma may be involved.

Children who are "socialized" too intensely lose the capacity for creative solitude and become quickly and easily bored when outside stimulus is lacking. I do not happen to think that either the programs or the commercials on television are in themselves "bad for youngsters; what is bad is the increasing reliance on an outside stimulus, and a corresponding loss of the children's own inner resources.

The wellsprings of creativity are not in the everyday mind, but in the deeper layers, far below the surface, where waking and dreaming meet, and scientific, artistic, and even religious contributions come from. this area; and if it remains under - developed (either from too much reliance on or too much reliance on mechanized entertainment), then the person becomes likely to remain shallow and stereotyped.

"Making up things" in the mind is far from a useless or trivial pursuit. Consider how well-nigh impossible most of a generation ago has been transformed into the concrete reality of our time.

Big Party for 'The Beaver' On His 85th Birthday

By ROD CURRIE

LONDON (CP) — Lord Beaverbrook, 85 today, will be guest of honor tonight at the biggest birthday party in his life, a gala dinner for 650 given at the Dorchester Hotel by Lord Thomson of Fleet, a fellow Canadian-born publisher and friendly rival.

"It will be an evening of surprises," said an official helping Thomson plan the party. Details are secret but rumor has it that there will be a deputation of Indians in ceremonial dress and several Royal Canadian Mounted Police present to add a splash of color to the occasion.

There also will be a seven-tier, 200-pound birthday cake and a presentation to Beaverbrook—"but that's a secret."

"It will be the biggest gathering of leading people from the British newspaper business and associated industries ever held," said the Thomson spokesman. Guests include many who have been associated with "The Beaver" during his career as businessman, journalist, politician, author and newspaper proprietor in Britain and Canada.

Thomson's son, Kenneth Thomson, arrived during the weekend especially to attend the party.

CALLED OFF BEFORE

Plans for a similar party five years ago were called off because Beaverbrook went off to attend to affairs at his art gallery at Fredericton, in his beloved New Brunswick.

Aside from the party, the BBC is to broadcast tonight a half-hour program on Beaverbrook entitled "The Man and the Myth."

And in recent days many British newspapers have paid tribute to the dynamic Canadian.

The Financial Times, in a tribute today, says: "Connoisseurs of the Beaverbrook mind and prose style can still know whether he is in Britain by turning to the Londoner's Diary of The Evening Standard, recently one of the forums favored with his ideas."

Beaverbrook himself, in a interview with George Gale, published today in his Daily Express, laughingly admitted that he still takes an active part after Gale suggested a recent editorial bore his characteristic imprint.

High Messingham, in a birthday interview in this week's Sunday Telegraph, says The Beaver is "like the cat with nine lives —he has been everything, seen everything, known everybody." "It is like interviewing five or six men instead of one."

Francis Williams, writing in the left-wing weekly The New Statesman, said of Beaverbrook: ...

"At 85 he can look back on a career as a newspaper proprietor that, if it had not produced all that he wanted and good deal that many dislike, has made him, for good or ill, one of the biggest formative influences of all time in British and for that matter world journalism."

HUGE STAMP DEMAND

WASHINGTON (AP) — Because of unprecedented demand —reflected in postmasters' orders for 1,000,000 stamps— three printing presses are operating around the clock, seven days a week turning out the John F. Kennedy memorial five-cent stamp that goes on sale May 29.

Russia Said Developing Larger Booster

NEW YORK (AP) — The United States has obtained information indicating that Russia is developing a larger rocket booster, perhaps for a manned expedition to the moon, the New York Times says.

A Washington dispatch adds in part:

The information is not conclusive, but indications are that the Soviet Union is developing a rocket booster comparable to the 1,500,000-pound-thrust Saturn I booster developed by the U.S. National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Such a Soviet development would introduce an important element into the space competition because, thus far the relative standings have been dictated largely by rocket booster power. . .

The new evidence, herefore, has strengthened the belief of some U.S. officials that, despite contradictory statements from the Kremlin, the Soviet Union is intent on a manned expedition to the moon. . .

CAMPBELLFORD

New Golf Course Opens In Area

CAMPBELLFORD — A new golf course, known as, Pine Ridge Golf Course, was opened on Saturday morning at 9 a.m. This new course is owned and has been developed by Mr. and Mrs. Harold Little and family. Two years ago the Earl Skinkle property on Highway 30, seven miles south of Campbellford, was purchased by the Little family and has been in the process of development since. This property consists of 100 acres with Salt Creek running through, which contributes greatly to the scenic panorama.

This is a nine-hole course with four creek crossings as golfing hazards and three bridges, making it a tricky course.

In the course are two par threes, four par fours, and three par fives, making it a par 37, with a total yardage of 3250.

The original farm home is being used as a temporary club house, it is planned to build a new club house later.

On Saturday morning two friends, Mr. M. R. Blodgett and Mr. James Belford teed off to officially open the course.

Rebekah Lodge Celebrates 51st Birthday

Tuesday night Quintena Rebekah Lodge celebrated its 51st birthday when a large number of visitors and guests were welcomed by the Noble Grand, Sister Clara Ironside.

Among the guests were Sister Irene Aman, past president of the L.A.P.M. and Sister Mabel Foster, District Deputy president, district no. 6. Other guests were present from Novo Scotia, Quebec, Farnham, Tweed, Trenton, Stirling and Odessa.

CHARTER MEMBERS

The following charter members were escorted to the centre of the hall by Sister Carolyn Harwood, Warden and Sister Laura Downey, Conductor, Sis. Helen Bialr, Sis. Maud Naylor, P.D.D.P. Also a charter member was unable to be present. Sis. Bernice Hall, V.G. and Sis. Connie Wilkinson, J.P.N.G. presented each charter member with a gift from the Lodge. Sis. Dorothy Webber, soloist honored the charter members with an appropriate selection.

JEWELS PRESENTED

Eleven veteran members escorted by Past Noble Grands to chairs of honor each receiving their 15-year jewel. Sisters Margaret Govier, Mary Jordon, Verna Oliphant, Dicia Ellis, Ivy Ferguson, Bessie Bolderick, Connie Wilkinson, Margaret Novenski, Ila Addy, Alice Adams, Bro. George McDonald, escorted by Bro. Larry Pollitt. Sister Dorothy Harwood P.N.G. assisted by Sis. Gladys Bonser presented the jewels to the Sisters and a boutonniere to Bro. McDonald.

The Noble Grand Sister Ironside honored each Sister with a poem on their personality and best wishes for many more Rebekah years. After the presentation Sis. Beal, chaplain invoked divine blessing, followed by a solo by Sister Webber.

Sister Mabel Foster D.D.P brought greetings from the District. Other guests extended best wishes to Quintena.

BANQUET SERVED

At the close of lodge a banquet was served in the upper hall where a beautiful three-link birthday cake in lodge colors and decorated with the emblems of the order adorned the head table, charter member Sister Cecelia Briens and new member Sister Marriane Ironside cut the cake. Other guests and members at the head table were the District Deputy President, Sister Foster, the charter members, veteran members and the new members of this year.

A vote of thanks was tendered Sis. Phyllis Burley and Sis. Betty Clark and committee for the lovely banquet and to Sister Alice Adams P.N.G. for making and decorating the birthday cake.

Honor Graduates At Tenth Annual 'Dinner-Dance'

Nicholson Catholic College Parent-Teacher Association was host on Wednesday evening to the tenth annual "Dinner-Dance" in honor of the graduates of grades 12 and 13.

Head table guests included the teaching staff of Nicholson College, the pastors and assistants of the parishes of St. Michael, St. Joseph and Holy Rosary, and the executive of Nicholson College P.T.A.

The program included a toast to "The Queen"; a toast to "Our Pastors," given by Don Holoway with a response by Rev. W. McGee"; a toast to "Our Parents" given by Miss Joan Meagher, with a response by Mr. Oriel Griffiths; and a toast to "Our Teachers," given by Brian McDonnell and responded to by the principal of Nicholson College, the Rev. Sister M. Teresa.

Miss Jo Anne Griffith spoke on behalf of the students, expressing thanks and appreciation to the Parent-Teacher Association, and to Mrs. Harold Glancey and her committee for providing a most enjoyable and "memorable" evening.

FINE PROGRAM

After a delicious turkey dinner served by the members of the P.T.A., musical entertainment was provided by the students. Miss Kathleen O'Connor rendered a vocal solo and a group from the Nicholson College Glee Club, accompanied on the piano by the Rev. Sister M. Avila, sang several musical selections. This was followed by a lively singsong led by Brian Colligan.

Mr. G. McNamara of Trenton, president of Nicholson Catholic College PTA, who acted as master of ceremonies, made a presentation to Rev. W. McGee who will take up an appointment as pastor at Elgin on July 1st. Father McGee has been assistant pastor at St. Michael's and St. Joseph's, as well as being on the teaching staff at Nicholson Catholic College.

Dancing followed for the remainder of the evening.

Home Care Pilot Plans To Be Tried

The May meeting of the Victorian Order of Nurses was held at the home of the president, Mrs. J. Nelles on Tuesday, May 19.

Treasurer Larry Lynch has been transferred and Mr. D. Rector was elected to that office.

Mrs. Nelles reported on her attendance at a welfare council meeting. Its purpose is to co-ordinate all public and private welfare services in Belleville. Mr. T. K. Franklin, Mrs. J. Nelles and Miss D. Connor gave brief reports on their visit to the National convention at Ottawa on May 7-8.

UTILITIES AGENCIES

Miss Connor reported that there are several home care pilot plans that have been inaugurated across Canada. These plans were conceived to give hospital care at home for certain cases and utilize services of several agencies such as the V.O.N., Red Cross Homemaker service, local hospital patients, etc. These plans are on a trial basis only.

Next year's annual meeting will be held in Niagara Falls on May 5-7. A financial statement of the recent tea was given by the convener.

Miss Connor in her nurses' report stated that they made 592 home visits this past month. During April two student nurses from the Belleville hospital each spent a day with the V.O.

Copper Dominates French Costume Jewelry This Year

By PEGGY MASSIN

PARIS (Reuters) — Copper dominates French costume jewelry this season.

Gabrielle Chanel's long acknowledged as a fashion trail blazer, unintentionally launched it when she started wearing a copper bracelet as an antidote for arthritis.

In France, many people believe that copper worn against the skin has a therapeutic effect on "rheumatic" complaints.

Now, leading jewelry designers, who work for the top Paris fashion houses are showing not only bracelets but also necklaces and brooches made of copper.

Balenciaga adopts the copper craze with oversized dress clips made of burnished copper and large white "fresh water" pearls. The clips are worn pinned right in the centre of narrow V necklines.

Wrought iron, oxodised metals, or dull-toned gold and silver substances hammered into rough hewn effects are also in the news.

VARIETY IS WIDE

In the wake of Crusade and Byzantine jewelry launched by Yves St. Laurent last season, wide link chains come, on the 20th century fashion scene this summer direct from the middle ages. Some support large medallion pendants. Others feature such shapes as breast-plates.

Brass and copper nailheads in geometrical patterns are used for decorative belts at Pierre Cardin. Graham of Lanvin introduces unusual belts, made of four or five rows of evenly matched artificial pearls.

Polished agate is an unorthodox material used for buttons in oval, round and square shapes.

Enamel, is used by Christian Dior and other leading houses. Colors follow the galaxy of flower shades on the couture palette, or are worked in black and white contrasts highlighted with gold.

Clips and pins are often worn this season in such unexpected places as the cuff of a long sleeve dress, or the top of one shoulder.

Sunday News

BY MARY MOORE

Hoping you are in your habitual indulgent mood I want to tell you of my yearly ecstatic minute under my apricot tree on Sunday morning.

At 6.40 I could hear unfamiliar birds singing. Jumping out of bed, grabbing my duster I slipped out to the garden and quietly stood under the apricot tree, which was in full bloom. It looked like a popcorn tree. It was all abuzz with bees and, gleaming like jewels amid the blossoms, were a Baltimore oriole, a cardinal, a finch and two humming birds, backing in and out of the blossoms. They were so engrossed in nectar-gathering not one of the little winged creatures noticed me.

Hoping you are in your habitual indulgent mood I want to tell you of my yearly ecstatic minute under my apricot tree on Sunday morning.

At 6.40 I could hear unfamiliar birds singing. Jumping out of bed, grabbing my duster I slipped out to the garden and quietly stood under the apricot tree, which was in full bloom. It looked like a popcorn tree. It was all abuzz with bees and, gleaming like jewels amid the blossoms, were a Baltimore oriole, a cardinal, a finch and two humming birds, backing in and out of the blossoms. They were so engrossed in nectar-gathering not one of the little winged creatures noticed me.

Dinner Menu

Hamburg Curry on Rice; Green Beans; Shredded Carrot and Cabbage Salad with Mayonnaise; Snowy White Cocoanut Layer Cake; Coffee.

At that and the heavenly view of my new 1965 tulips. I think the ones that charm me most are "Gudushnik". They are light yellow suffused with pink and are attracting attention from all my tulip-loving neighbors. Last Fall I'll for fun I planted two straight rows, alternating white and dark red tulips against a warm wall. They look like a formal border of flowers in a child's story book. I have yellow Cottage tulips too, and some "Mrs. John T. Scheepers" that are a delight.

To get down to some practical cooking. Since I was up so early I went in the 9 a.m. service at church and in my return put a 10-lb. standing rib roast of beef in the oven for 8 guests who were coming at 6 p.m. This roast had been ordered three weeks in advance and was 79c per lb. It was well hung and a beauty. I roasted it at 300 deg. F. for 2½ hours. The outside was dark brown and well done. The inside was pink but not rare. The whole thing was a tremendous success. I give you these details so that you can add them to your file on the low-slow method of roasting beef, hoping that soon you will have directions for every size of roast.

With it I served corn poppovers and steam fried cucumbers and green peppers but will tell you about them next week.

Across the street in the Millers' garden Bruce was barbecuing a 6-lb. boneless short rib roast on their rotisserie barbecue. You could smell the lovely aroma all over our block. Bruce had the rotisserie spit suspended about 4" above the glowing coals and let it twirl for 3½ hours. Then he took it off the spit and tested it to see if it was done and it was! - dark brown and juicy on the outside and pink and juicy and mouth-watering on the inside. This roast was only 57c per lb. So you backyard barbecuers with rotisseries should take note, but remember that it was best-quality red brand beef.

Explorers Hold Banquet at Marmora

On Tuesday, May 19th the Marmora Explorers of St. Andrew's United Church held their annual mother and daughter banquet in the Christian Educational building with about 40 in attendance.

Miss Connie Bell, president of the Explorers was chairlady and welcomed the mothers and guests. Miss Marilyn Wells proposed the toast to the mothers and Mrs. R. McGarvey responded. The toast to the two girls going into C.G.I.T. was given by Miss Betty Demorest and Mrs. Douglas Wilneff, leader of the C.G.I.T. responded.

Miss Debbie Gray led the gathering in a singsong of familiar tunes. Mrs. Leith Stetson leader of the Explorers held an initiation service for four new members, Judy Neal, Debbie Mantle,, Rhonda Deering and Lois Derry and they received their membership certificates and first and second red stars. Other girls to receive their second red star were Roxanne McGarvey, Trudy Nobes, Desiree Kotulski, Laura Gillies and Debbie Paranuik.

First and second gold stars were presented to Karen Acorn, Betty Demorest and Marilyn Wells.

GRADUATE TO C.G.I.T.

Mrs. Stetson presented diplomas and pins to Connie Bell and Karen Acorn who are graduating to C.G.I.T. and they were welcomed to the C.G.I.T. by Mrs. D. Wilneff. They also received their Achievement "E" pins.

A worship service was put on by the following girls, Trudy Nobes, Desiree Kotulski, Laura Gillies and Roxanne McGarvey.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

THERE'S ROOM FOR ETIQUETTE ON THE DANCE FLOOR

In my day, they all laughed when we did the "Lindy" and the "Big Apple," said it was just a phase, and that we'd all dance back to the waltz after passing this fancy.

Well, the years have passed and, too bad, so has the waltz. And now that everyone's doing the "Frug," the "Mashed Potato," the "Slop" and the "Hitchhiker," shades of Old Vienna are getting dimmer and dimmer.

Of course, the size of dance floors may have had something to do with the passing of the waltz and, to some extent, the good old reliable foxtrot. You need room to navigate long steps and swooping turns, and that's just what you just don't get on most dance floors nowadays. Crowds may be bigger, but the floor space gets smaller and smaller, which may account for some of the popularity of Frug and Company.

With these new dances, participants tend to stay more or less in one spot. The body may twist and turn, but the feet merely shuffle a bit, and this, presumably, is one way of coping with the shortage of dance space.

ROOM FOR GOOD MANNERS

However, even though there's not much twirling space, there is still room for good manners even on a crowded dance floor. Despite a fervour dance names, some degree of decorum can still be observed so no one gets injured in the fray.

For instance, no matter how hard you have to concentrate on the steps, try to give a moment thought to those around you. Avoid dancing too close to ladies and strive to keep a safe distance from the next couple, so twisting arms won't jab into the wrong ribs. If you try to maintain good posture, there's less danger of flying elbows and you'll look at a fellow "Mashed Potatoe - er" or "Hitchhiker."

Another reminder: dance in tempo. If you're out of step with the rest of the crowd, either you are going too fast or you're squeeze play or end up shadowboxing with those on either side. If you're not adept at the dance either try it out safely in a corner or sit it out and, like me, yearn for the return of the waltz.

Another way of maintaining your equilibrium is to do the same dance everyone else is doing. If the band should strike up a rhumba, don't hang on to the "Frug"—and try to adapt the steps to the unfamiliar beat. Such inconsiderate shenanigans often lead to bruised ankles and the like, since this is one time, due to tempo, that the twain can't possibly meet — except head-on.

Debbie Paranuik presided at the piano.

Rev. Mr. McLeod thanked the leaders for their work with the girls. Taps brought an enjoyable evening to a close.

Pant Suit and Knickers High Fashion for Fall

By MARGARET NESS

TORONTO (CP)— The pant suit, the Chelsea look and knickers are high fashion news for fall and winter in sportswear, judging from an excellently edited collection of Canadian and imported sportswear presented Friday by the Fashion Group of Toronto.

Getting the jump on New York whens, presentations won't be shown for several weeks, the Toronto showing indicated that fall sportswear will highlight the return of the wider trouser look as opposed to the present tight-fitting slims.

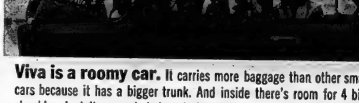
These are not, however, the loose-flapping pants that Marlene Dietrich made famous when she led women in their invasion of this realm of male attire.

Last season Dior introduced his trousered suit and a follow-up seems certain. A couple of Canadian - manufactured adaptations were featured in the collection here. One was a black and white wool check by Miss Sun Valley of Toronto, with wider, circular pants and waist-defining longer jacket. The others are high fashion news for by Lou Lerry of Toronto, featured tubular pants and a double-breasted, barrelled coat in plum velvet.

APPEARS IN CAPE

The new Chelsea look appeared in a fingertip cape in a Chelsea plaid with a flowing back, worn over a slim skirt and wool jersey skirt.

Knickers are back for campus or after-ski wear. The slim knickers for fall have nothing in common with the bulky, sloppy ones of the early 1920s which blossomed on mate golfers and on female students in the gymnasium.



The fall 1964 knickers are fashion smart. One grey knit ensemble comprised slim knickers and a sleeveless blouse on top under which was a black jersey sweater.

For after-ski interest, green stretch knickers were offset by a multi - coloured knitted sweater and matching knee-high socks.

Flag Question Smoldered Below Surface of Canadian Political Life 2 Weeks Ago

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — Two weeks ago the question of a new and distinctive Canadian flag was one of those issues smoldering below the surface of Canadian political life . . . merely an election promise that it would be brought to a head by April, 1965.

This week, the government will ask the House of Commons to approve a new design based on Canada's national symbol — three maple leaves joined on a single stem, and on the country's national colors of red and white.

Veteran political observers are marvelling at the speed with which the issue came to a head and to a decision.

What action the Commons will take on the maple leaf flag remains unpredictable, as does the course of any debate in a House where the government lacks a clear-cut majority. But barring delays caused by filibustering opponents, the proposed new flag appears to be favored by a majority cutting across political lines even though the details of the design are still secret.

Credited with being the sparkling influence in producing the new flag design—though he disclaims authorship—is John R. Matheson, 46-year-old Liberal MP for the Ontario constituency of Leeds who, as an artillery captain, was severely wounded in Italy in the Second World War.

WROTE PRIME MINISTER

It was one year ago Saturday that he wrote to Prime Minister Pearson on the subject of the government's pledge to introduce a distinctive flag within two years of taking office. That would be by April 22, 1965.

Mr. Matheson's concern is the matter, as a lawyer and one interested in the art of heraldry, was that the flag design should be based on proper historical research and be simple and effective.

Gradually, a large mass of documentation was built up in the files of Mr. Pearson and Mr. Matheson. Basically, it hinged on the fact that red and white were designated Canada's national colors, and that three maple leaves "conjoined" on a single stem were declared Canada's national symbol, on Nov. 21, 1921.

That was embodied in a royal warrant issued by the late king George V, on advice tendered by order-in-council passed by the Conservative government of Robert Borden, and following an inquiry by a committee appointed by the Canadian Commons.

Further weight was given to the three maple leaves motif by the fact that it was contained in the armorial bearings of both Ontario and Quebec in 1868, and registered then by the Royal College of Heralds.

During the last month, newspapermen came aware that Mr. Pearson was preparing an important speech for the national convention of the Royal Canadian Legion in Winnipeg.

ENCOUNTERS HOSTILITY

When Mr. Pearson spoke to the legionnaires May 17, of the need for a distinctive Canadian flag, he encountered some hostility.

Legion leaders have long been pressing governments in Ottawa to designate the Canadian Red Ensign as Canada's official flag.

The ensign—which heraldry experts insist it not a national flag but merely an ensign—was officially designated the flag of the Canadian merchant marine in the 1890s. It has been flown on government buildings by authority of an order-in-council passed in 1964 by the Liberals under the late W. L. Mackenzie King, and accepted internationally as Canada's flag.

On his return to Ottawa from Winnipeg last week, Mr. Pearson was beseiged by questioners in the Commons and in the press corps. Yes, he said, the cabinet had decided that Canada's new flag should include maple leaves.

Asked whether it was to be one or three maple leaves, Mr. Pearson made no reply. The three-leaf motif had historical backing, and on an all-white background would be correct from the point of view of heraldry. Mr. Pearson, however, said he had a "hankering" for a blue band at the staff and fly to denote Canada's sea-to-sea motto.

CABINET UNANIMOUS

Last Thursday, Mr. Pearson emerged from a 3 -hour cabinet meeting to tell reporters the ministers had agreed unanimously on a design, but at that point he could say no more until it was embodied in a resolution and put to the Commons.

All ministers were sworn to secrecy on the decision. This was in line with traditional parliamentary practice and was presumed to provide a cover for some other activities.

For one thing, the experts had to consider the correct form of parliamentary approval to be sought—it had never been done before.

There is also a question of the royal prerogative involved. The Queen's approval would have to be sought at some stage, some constitutional experts said.

Some say this should be after Commons approval, in the manner of royal assent given by the governor-general to a bill. Others say that before action by the Commons, the Queen should be asked for her consent to parliamentary action involving her rights and claims.

Mr. Pearson told the Commons Friday he hopes the flag design will be introduced in the Commons on Wednesday or Thursday of this week.

THROW STONES

Enraged spectators replied with a hail of stones and bottles, while some overturned benches and set fire to part of the stadium.

Several doors to the stadium were closed because the games had not yet ended. As a result, hapless bystanders were crushed to death and suffocated as crowds rushed to the exits to avoid the tear gas and snarling police dogs.

President Fernando Belaunde announced on a nation - wide broadcast he had suspended constitutional guarantees for 30 days to investigate the tragedy.

The communique said it was not yet possible to establish the exact number of dead and injured. It added that none of the casualties was caused by police fire.

The referee and players were escorted through a tunnel to take refuge in the stadium offices.

They were later reported to have hidden for three hours before escaping to their hotel.

MOBS START FIRES

As police reinforcements sped to the scene and ambulances arrived to collect the dead and injured, the mobs set fire to a hockey club, a betting parlor, two buses, a bus, 11 cars and facilities of the Goodrich Tire Company.

Civilian police and military hospitals all presented the same macabre scenes of bullet-riddled bodies laid out on lawns and in entrance halls.

On the crushed chests of some of the bodies were the deep purple imprints of the curtain-like metal gates.

Doctors at the hospitals said most of the victims suffocated.

Hoodlums looted the pockets of some of the victims. They also snatched watches and other valuables.

BLAME POLICE

Many persons blamed the police use of tear gas for starting the panic.

Body upon body was crushed and trampled in the dash to escape. Men, women and children died, in the stands and at the exits.

There were screams for help by the injured and the cries of the dying. By the time the gates were raised it was too late.

Traffic around the stadium in the centre city was jammed for hours. Mounted police charged the crowds outside in an effort to keep order.

Outside the hospitals, mobs assembled, shouting denunciations of the police. "Revenge," they screamed. "Down with the police."

The tragedy was the second major one in 18 months to strike Peruvians.

AVALANCHE STRUCK

In January, 1962, an avalanche swept down from Huascaran Mountain, Peru's highest, killing about 1,500 people in the Ranrahirca area. Further Peruvian landslides in the following months killed many others.

Soccer long has had a reputation for inciting a volatile reaction among its fans.

One fan was killed and 80 injured in a rush of soccer crowds in Italy last year. Twenty-three fans were arrested after a disorder at a game in Glasgow last summer.

Even in the regimented Iron Curtain countries, soccer fans have been known to explode in anger.

Awhile back, the East German government called for stiff penalties against any spectator involved in disturbances.

It is not unusual to see referees escorted off by the police to protect them from the wrath of fans, both in Europe and Latin America.

MARTIN IS CONCERNED

WINDSOR (CP) — External Affairs Minister Martin expressed concern Saturday about the emphasis some universities are placing on secularism and pure intellectualism. It is imperative, he said at a dinner, for people living in a world of revolutionary change to commit themselves to the moral principles of virtue, conscience, humility and faith, and inject them into the community.

Troublemaking, Keenie Meenie National Pastime Among Arabs

By DENNIS NEELD

ADEN (AP) — Little sandbagged forts with watch towers, firing platforms and crenellated stone wall dot the wadis and rocky slopes of South Arabia, but are the outposts of the federal guard, turbanned Arab soldiers whose job is to keep the peace in this warlike desert land.

The Federation of South Arabia is made up of Aden colony and the territories of 14 feudal overlords.

Bearded Arab tribes, many waging constant blood feuds against their neighbors, populate the Protectorate of 60,000 square miles.

Troublemaking — keenie meenie—is a national pastime.

Every man is a marksman and in the craggy, ironlike hills a single well-placed sniper can keep a company of troops at bay.

NEVER ADMINISTERED

Much of the country, particularly the treacherous interior stretching toward the Yemeni frontier, never has been administered. Now Britain is bringing a fresh consignment of guns, government agents always are unwelcome.

Travellers through this tan wasteland of boulder - strewn mountains, steep - cliffed passes and dried-up riverbeds customarily are allowed by the local populace to pass unhindered along the principle trade and pilgrim routes, but they risk a bullet in the head or a throat cut by a sharp curved dagger if they stray from the well-treaded tracks.

Lawlessness is dealt with by harsh corps of British political officers who sally out from government forts with a body-guard of a half-dozen local guardsmen armed with rifles and light machine guns.

When the federal guardsmen cannot deal with a situation there is the federal army, a force of 3,000 Arab troops stiffened with 60 British officers. And when the federal army does not cope, British forces are asked to help.

But there is more to the present fighting in the towering Radfan Mountains than mere tribal unrest.

Britain's huge army, navy and air base at Aden is regarded as of key strategic importance for the protection of its vital mideast oil supplies and military staging point for the Far East.

The 14 sultanates, sheikhdoms and emirates which encircle it constitute a buffer between Aden and the Red Republic, which is backed by Egypt and the Soviet Union and lays claim to the federal territory.

The rebellious Quataibi tribesmen, known for bygone bloodfeuds as the Red Wolves of Radfan, are fighting only 60 miles from Aden. They are armed with modern automatic rifles, machine-guns and mortars supplied by the Red Republic, Egypt and Yemen. Many apparently have had military training and wear khaki uniforms.

In a series of night marches and surprise attacks, British Royal Marine commando and paratroops captured a range of 4,000 - foot peaks and quickly achieved the tactical objectives of the present operation—to remove the rebel threat to the important trade and pilgrim route between Aden and the emirate capital of Dhala.

The British seem likely to push the troops deeper into the Radfan Mountains in a bid to crush the rebels once and for all. But with the friendly Yemeni border at their backs, the Wolves of Radfan could pin down the British force in a long guerilla campaign.

Lao troops.

Military sources in Thailand said neutralist Premier Souvanna Phouma had asked the United States for additional T-28 fighter-bombers for use against the Pathet Lao.

Souvanna's air force currently has seven such planes, which can be armed with rockets and are being used to bomb and strafe Pathet Lao troop concentrations and supply dumps.

Souvanna told reporters that he would attend a proposed new 14-country conference only if the Pathet Lao forces retreat to their former positions on the plain.

WOULD ATTEND

The premier said his government would attend the conference "only on the condition that a cease-fire comes about immediately throughout Laotian territory and on the other hand the Pathet Lao, who have deliberately attacked us and dislodged us from our positions in the Plaine des Jarres, retreat to their original positions."

Prince Souvanna said he was well aware "the Laos situation is at a very critical stage and must be urgently solved within the framework of the Geneva accords before it is quite out of hand."

The 1962 Geneva conference guaranteed neutrality for the troubled Southeast Asia kingdom and set up a coalition government headed by neutrals, neutralists and Communists, but the Communists have never co-operated.

The neutralist premier-favors consultations among the 14 nations on an unbanded-list level and suggested this last week in letters to the Geneva conference co-chairmen, the British and Soviet foreign ministers. A formal reopening of the Geneva talks was then proposed by France.

Souvanna said the Soviet Union backed the French proposal. He said the United States and Britain also had endorsed the idea, but these governments have, in fact, only approved the idea of informal discussions among the 14 nations.

SEES STABILITY LOST

Souvanna said Laotian stability will be destroyed unless the 14 nations strengthen the present machinery and take the supervisory power of the International Control Commission.

Members of the commission, created by the Geneva conference, "has been paralyzed and inefficient for the last two years" It is composed of Canadian, Indian and Polish members.

Pathet Lao troops launched the current offensive after a flight-wing coup April 18 in Vientiane led to the merger—on paper at least—of neutralist and rightist armed forces under a national military command staff.

The leader of the Pathet Lao, Prince Souphanouvong, proclaimed the merger and called it illegal.

said a final decision on the Canadian flag design should be delayed until "universal acceptance of the design is certain."

Federal political parties have been creating national disunity than unify by using the flag and anthem issues as "political footballs," he said.

Mrs. D. W. McGibbon, national president of the order, said at the opening ceremonies that the order, contrary to the "cynical opinion held of it some quarters, particularly by some columnists," was not an "outdated organization with an old-fashioned name and ideas."

She challenged anyone to name another Canadian women's organization that does as much for education, to help the poor at home, Arctic and Africa, and to assist Canadian Eskimos and Indians.

Commenting on the "peaceful" mism about Canada's future that gets so much emphasis in the press, Mrs. McGibbon said it is high time those "who believe in Canada" did some constructive thinking in this attitude.

Premier Louis Robichaud of New Brunswick presented the order with a special medallion from the national chairman for International Co-operation Month in recognition of its charitable contributions to the world's needy for "many years."

Quebec PC's, Balcer Favor Canada Flag

OTTAWA (CP)—A split in party lines in the Conservative ranks—and perhaps among government backbenchers as well—is shaping up as the government prepares to endorse its choice for a maple leaf flag for Canada this week.

Quebec Conservative leader Leon Balcer has promised to support the Liberal government's maple leaf design—despite the insistence of his chief, Opposi ion Leader Diefenbaker, that the Red Ensign is Canada's flag.

Mr. Balcer said in an interview during a Young Progressive Conservative Association study conference in Hamilton Friday that he favors a new Canadian flag based on a maple leaf motif.

He said the Red Ensign is not distinctive. And he claimed support from most Quebec Conservatives for this view, behind the maple leaf flag.

Prime Minister Pearson has promised to unveil the design of the new flag in the Commons later this week. It will be submitted in a resolution placed before the House for approval.

MAJORITY ASSURED

The government seems assured of majority backing in the Commons — with indications of support from the New Democrats, Social Credit MPs, Creditistes—and Mr. Balcer and his Quebec supporters.

However, some Liberal MPs are understood to be leery about the new flag. Whether their misgivings materialized in Commons voting may depend on how the government preserves the Red Ensign as the emblem of Canada's association in the Commonwealth, while still adopting a different, exclusively Canadian flag for the country.

The prime minister has refused to poll the nation in a referendum on the flag issue, insisting that a vote in the Commons merely reflects the views of all Canadians.

In Saskatoon, Stanley Knowles, New Democratic party member for Winnipeg North Centre, said the mere passage of a resolution by Parliament won't settle the flag issue.

"General acceptance can only come through time," he said at a press conference.

UNEMPLOYMENT DROPS

LONDON (AP) —Unemployment in Britain is at its lowest rate in 24½ years. The labor ministry said Monday there were 370,112 unemployed in May, a drop of 42,477 from the April figure. In May last year the figure was 534,000 or 2.4 per cent. This month's percentage is 1.6.

Sale of New Cars up 22.6 PC in Quarter

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian sales of new passenger cars shot ahead 22.6 per cent to 182,-346 units in the first quarter of this year compared with 123,864 in the first three months of 1965, the bureau of statistics reported today.

Retail value was up 26.3 per cent to $481,288,000 from $384,-129,000 a year earlier.

Of the total sales, North American passenger cars accounted for 139,026 units—up 30 per cent from 115,866 a year earlier. Retail value advanced 26.1 per cent to $454,374,000 from $360,228,000 in the first quarter last year.

Meanwhile, sales of overseas-manufactured cars were up 60.1 per cent in the quarter to 12,754 units from 7,966 a year earlier. Sales value rose 30.3 per cent to $26,914,000 from $17,201,000.

Canadian Average: 37.05 miles per gallon

We've always claimed that the Volkswagen 1200 gets 38 miles to a gallon of regular gas.

But sticking to our figure hasn't been easy.

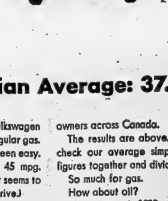
Some customers say they get 45 mpg. Others report in the low thirties. It seems to depend on how and where they drive.

So we decided to settle the question once and for all. We sent questionnaires to VW owners across Canada.

The results are above. (You can double check our average simply by adding the figures together and dividing by 313.)

So much for gas.

How about oil?



The average is 1500 miles without adding a drop.

Tires? The average is 35,000 miles to a set.

Trade-in? The average is better than average because Old Faithful never goes out of fashion.

There's one more thing we should tell you. The average Canadian doesn't buy a Volkswagen.

But then who wants to be average?

Successful Living

Must Show More Maturity To Earn More Privileges

DEAR DORIS — I live with my aunt and uncle and they have a four-year-old daughter. Sometimes I could slap her across the face. She gets into my stuff.

She has to come with me wherever I go. My girl friends always ask me why. And I always say because I have to or I'll have to stay in the house

DORIS CLARKE

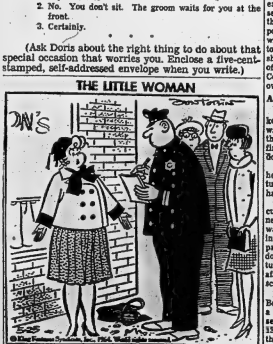
As for my aunt, I hate her to pieces. If I accidentally miss some dishes out of the supper dishes I would have to go to bed early, or I couldn't watch TV. My aunt is driving me crazy. I want to go in a home. (I'm 13.) — GOING CRAZY.

DEAR GOING CRAZY — You do need some freedom for fun with your pals. But you also need a family — in this case, your aunt and your little cousin. And they need you.

A slap across the face of a four-year-old is a poor way to make anybody warm up to you. Have you thought of sharing the toys you no longer care about? Or of doing just a little more kitchen work than you are asked to do? If you are to get more freedom, show you are growing up enough to use it properly — and that you are not off your rocker already.

• • • •

DEAR DORIS — I am going to remarry in June. My future husband has never been married. We are both in our late forties and I have three grown-up children. There will be a few friends and relatives at the ceremony and we would like a small reception for the family after church.



1. Do we go to church together or do we go in separate cars?
2. Would it be proper to walk into church together and where would we sit? Together?
3. Could we have a wedding cake?

— WONDERING WIDOW.

DEAR WIDOW —
1. Separate cars.
2. No. You don't sit. The groom waits for you at the front.
3. Certainly.

'Who Killed Sir Harry?'

Ontario's Golden Mile Ghost Haunts Bahamas

It's been more than 20 years, but in the Bahamas they still talk about who killed Sir Harry Oakes. The trail grows dimmer, but the fascination grows brighter, and everybody has a theory. A new look at the murder case that had everything — except a solution.

By SID MOODY

NASSAU, Bahamas (AP) — Three questions lug at the mind of most visitors on arriving here:

—Where is the straw market with all those funny hats?

—Where are the bargain liquor stores?

—Who killed Sir Harry Oakes?

The straw market and the grog shops are on Bay Street but if you know who murdered Sir Harry, you know more than any one else on the island knows—or will admit. But you will be asking the same question people here have been asking without let-up for two decades.

It's startling to the stranger to hear how a man who died during the Second World War still lives in conversation. Startling? Sometimes it's downright eerie.

"And," said a long-time resident of the Bahamas, "there are some people I just wouldn't bring up the Oakes case with." Feeling is still that high.

People talk about employees who have lived under tenure in their jobs for fear that if they are fired, they'll "talk." Two unsolved murders in recent years have added to the mystery. So have rumors of hidden gold, poor people becoming suddenly wealthy for no apparent reason.

"I know of only one thing about the Oakes case," said an Englishman, "and that is that there are some people here who know who did it."

CASE STILL OPEN

Officially, the case is still open but it's getting harder and harder to scrape off the legend that's grown up around the murder.

"Any time a constable—flown his nose someone connects it to Sir Harry Oakes," said a police official.

The case of Sir Harry Oakes has had just about everything —except a solution. There was Sir Harry himself, a rough tough man who made millions and millions — and many enemies — out of gold in Canada. There was a goateed playboy count from a remote Indian Ocean island. A beautiful young heiress. An ex-king of England. An American woman found stuffed in a well. A secretary of a principal in the case found brutally slain. A renowned private eye. A fingerprint many said was phoney. A romantic setting of an elegant society on a subtropical island. Family feuds. Divorce. And a cat that meowed—or didn't. And to complete the drama, on the night that it happened there was rain.

The storm had been gathering during the night of the day, July 7, 1943. Sir Harry had spent the day leisurely — some tennis, a few drinks, dinner with a few friends and a game of Chinese checkers afterward. Then to bed. His close friend, Harold Christie, a Bahamian real estate operator, was also spending the night at Oakes' estate, Westbourne. The war seemed far, far away even though Oakes did have an appointment early next morning with two local newspaper men to show them how he'd put sheep to pasture on the greens of the adjacent Bahama Country Club course which he owned.

A LEGENDARY FIGURE

The appointment was never kept. Much more startling news was to come from Westbourne that day. Christie learned it first when he called at Oakes' door to rouse him.

"Harry! For God's sake," he cried, and one of the century's most lurid murder cases had begun.

Oakes' death under any circumstances would have been news, even during wartime. He was a legendary figure. Born in Maine of prosperous enough parents, well educated at Bowdoin College, Oakes suddenly turned his back on all of this after two years of medical school and set off to find gold.

He'd told his classmates at Bowdoin he was going to make a million dollars and gold seemed the quickest way. For 13 years he roamed the world—the Klondike, Australia, California, the Congo. He was shipwrecked in Siberia, prosperously raised flax for a time in New Zealand. But always it was gold he sought. Finally near Swastika in Northern Ontario, with only $2.65 in his pocket, Oakes walked miles through 50-below temperature to stake out a claim of promising land which turned out to be one of the world's great gold strikes. It was to become the Lake Shore Gold Mine, near Kirkland Lake, Ont.

Harry Oakes was rich, ultimately worth tens of millions of dollars.

FIRED WAITER

But the gold king, roughened by years of hardship, was a quick - silver personality. He could give an $85,000 skating rink to a town—and turn down a panhandler. He drove a storekeeper who had refused to grubstake him during the hard days out of business—then sent him $10,000 when he heard he was down and out.

In Nassau he bought the British Colonial Hotel for a reported $1,000,000 just so he could fire the waiter who refused to seat him because he didn't have a tie. He gave up his U.S. citizenship, became knighted for his philanthropies — and still loved to charge around Nassau in a bulldozer opening new roads, clearing land, building an airfield. Even at 69 he was still driving, died in high prospector boots, corduroy pants stuffed in the tops, shirt collar opened, a wide - brimmed hat atop his head.

In 1937 he donated a $500,000 site for a new park and outdoor theatre in Niagara Falls, Ont. The site, overlooking the falls, was named Oakes Garden Theatre.

Cost of the theatre, $300,000, was borne by the Niagara Parks Commission.

Oak Hall, baronial former home of Sir Harry and his family, in Niagara Falls, was opened to the public May 18 as a museum and outdoor tea room. Now owned by the Niagara Parks Commission, the 37 - room mansion had been closed, except for occasional art and photographic shows, since the commission acquired it in 1959.

DAUGHTER MARRIED

In 1942 Sir Harry just about flipped his lid when his 18-year - old daughter, Nancy, secretly married a twice - divorced count from the Indian Ocean island of Mauritius. He was Alfred Fouquereaux (Freddy) de Marigny, 33, a tall, fun - loving man who'd made a name in the Bahamas racing his star sailboat Concubine.

Sir Harry angrily accused de Marigny of being a "sex maniac," felt he was more interested in Oakes' millions than daughter Nancy, was overheard during threatening to have de Marigny horsewhipped, and yet could tell the count "Frenchie, you're a son - of - a - bitch for marrying my daughter but I like you."

De Marigny, on the other hand, had been heard saying he would "crack Sir Harry's head" during an argument between the two. The count and his father-in-law had not seen each other for several months when Harold Christie found Sir Harry's body that July morning.

The body was lying on one of the twin beds in Sir Harry's room. It had been badly burned in an attempt to fire the bed. The skull had been pierced four times by a triangular shaped weapon which was never found.

ARREST DE MARIGNY

Within 36 hours de Marigny had been arrested. The Crown's case was entirely circumstantial: De Marigny's worsening relations with Sir Harry, his dwindling supply of money, his early morning visit the day of the murder to the police station to ask about a truck registration, the finding by a doctor of singed hairs on his arms and beard (another doctor found no signs of singes), his presence near Westbourne about the time of the murder occurred (he was taking two women home from a party he had held that night), the claimed discovery of a fingerprint of de Marigny's on a writing screen by Sir Harry's bed, his inability to find the shirt and tie he wore the fatal night, his quoted statement to Assistant Police Superintendent John Douglas that "Sir Harry, the old bastard, should have been killed anyhow," his inquiry to police whether a man could be convicted on circumstantial evidence even if the weapon weren't found, and his removal of several cans of gasoline from his home the day of the murder.

That was the heart of the Crown's case when the trial opened in October, 1943. For a time the Second World War had to share the front pages of the world.

The Crown's case seemed a strong one until de Marigny's lawyers, Godfrey Higgs and E. A. W. Callender, began picking it apart. They particularly bore down on the man who claimed he took the fingerprint from the screen, Miami Police Captain James Barker. Barker and another Miami officer, Captain Edward Marshall, had been summoned by the Bahamian governor, the Duke of Windsor, to handle the investigation. The duke had met the officers when they served as his bodyguard on a trip to Miami. The duke is still criticized for not calling in Scotland Yard or the FBI.

BLOODY PALM PRINT

A thermos by Sir Harry's bed had not been tested for fingerprints nor had the bedstead itself. No tests had been made of a bloody palm print on the wall or bloody prints on one side of Christie's bedroom door. Later two expert defence witnesses, Captain M. M. O'Neil of the New Orleans police and Frank Conway of the New York department, raised considerable doubt that the fingerprint could have come from the screen. Two police constables also changed their testimony to agree with the prosecution contention that the print had been found on the screen before officers had taken de Marigny to the murder room.

In defence, de Marigny claimed he had singed his arms lighting candles at his party the night of the murder. He said a friend who visited rooms in his house could testify de Marigny called him in the middle of the night to take his bawling cat out of his room. The friend, Georges Marquis de Videlou Guimbeau, a former Manitoban, couldn't definitely recall the cat but did remember de Marigny knocking him out of bed at 1:30 a.m. on the night of the murder.

There was testimony by a police officer that Christie once boyhood that he had seen him driving in Nassau during the murder night. Christie had testified he slept the whole night at Westbourne.

In sum the jury found there was enough "reasonable doubt" to acquit de Marigny 9 to 3, the minimum possible vote under Bahamian law.

LIE DETECTOR TESTS

Until the day he died in 1959 Raymond Schindler, a famous American private detective who had aided the defence, claimed he could break the case if allowed to give lie detector tests to certain persons. He never was given the chance. (At a victory celebration after his acquittal, however, de Marigny took a lie detector test from Leonarde Keeler, the inventor of the machine. The results supported de Marigny's claim of innocence.)

In 1947 Scotland Yard investigated and found no cause to reopen the case. Gradually the principals dispersed. De Marigny was deported from the islands after the trial, eventually divorced Nancy Oakes, drifted about selling shoes in New York, windows in Florida, he ran a marriage bureau in Los Angeles, a lithographing business in Pre-Castro Cuba. They say now he's in Fort Lauderdale, or Puerto Rico, or Spain or somewhere. Married again with a family. Nancy remarried and was divorced again. She resides and governs the islands where her mother was has a home.

Westbourne is part of the Bahamas Country Club now and guests live in the room where Sir Harry died. They don't seem to mind.

But the story won't die. In 1950 a lawyer from Washington, Betty Reuner, 38, was found raped and murdered and stuffed down a well. Rumor, refuted on investigation, said she had been looking into the Oakes case for a newspaper. Nonetheless the rumor she was on the track of something persists.

About 18 months ago Miss Dorothy Maxey, long Harold Christie's secretary, was found brutally murdered in her home. Two Scotland Yard detectives who had never failed to get their man, came out from Britain. They went home empty-handed. "Ah, the Oakes case again," said Bahamians, nodding their heads.

"Rot," say police. Residents still talk of Harold Christie's role in the case. "How can I fight that kind of thing?" he said recently. "It gets tiresome being pointed out wherever you go."

They talk of the gold cache that turned up on an island and say Sir Harry had had a chest of gold at Westbourne that never was found after the murder. They talk of a watchman of Oakes' who claimed he saw strangers land from a boat at Lyford Cay at the western end of the island the night of the murder and re-embark several hours later. The watchman was later found dead.

VOODOO MURDER

Some think Sir Harry was a victim of a voodoo murder and cite the feathers found over his body. Others say the feathers came from one of the burned pillows.

They talk of robbery. (De Marigny thinks that was the motive. Sir Harry was about to leave to visit his wife in Bar Harbor, Me., July 9, 1943, and may have cashed a large cheque.)

They talk of the many enemies Oakes had made in his swashbuckling career. "He was a very murderable man," said a resident.

A long-time American winter resident talks of the time a friend, who had read several books on the case, told her in a loud voice across a restaurant table "Why, don't you know who killed him?" At that a man at the next table stood up and walked over and glared at the man until he embarrassedly changed the subject.

They talk, says Etienne Dupuch, editor of the Nassau Tribune, simply because the case has never been solved.

Whatever the reason, whether or not there are embers midst all the smoke, they talk and talk and talk.

And for all the talk only two facts remain, as uncontestable as they were on the morning of July 8, 1943: Sir Harry Oakes was murdered and someone, for some reason, did it.

STILL MYSTERY — The murder two decades ago of multi-millionaire Sir Harry Oakes remains a mystery. Sir Harry's body was found the morning of July 8, 1943, in the bedroom of his Bahamas mansion. Here Oakes is seen with his daughter Nancy at Palm Beach, Fla., in 1940. Nancy's husband, Alfred de Marigny, was tried for the murder and acquitted. They later were divorced and Nancy remarried and divorced again. Sir Harry began his fortune with discovery of gold in Northern Ontario. (CP Photo)

MURDER UNSOLVED — Sir Harry Oakes, the multi-millionaire who began his fortune with discovery of the Lake Shore gold mine near Kirkland Lake, Ont., was murdered in the bedroom of his Bahamas estate more than 20 years ago, on July 7, 1943. The murder is still unsolved. Sir Harry's body was found by Harold Christie, (left) a Bahamian real estate operator. Sir Harry's son-in-law, Alfred de Marigny (right) was tried and acquitted for the murder. THE OPENING DANCE AT THE COUNTRY CLUB was broken up Saturday night when OPP cruisers and Belleville Fire Department's rescue truck arrived on the grounds, called to the aid of two Air Force members whose boat dumped a few hundred yards off shore. The rescue was effected by Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Radonicich and their son Peter, using Mr. Radonicich's launch. The outboard boat upset, apparently because the bow-line tangled in the propeller.

Expects Boom To Last Rest Of Sixties

MONTREAL (CP)—There is every reason to expect Canada's current economic expansion will continue through the rest of this decade, H. Roy Crabtree, outgoing president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association said today.

He told the association's annual meeting that there are many factors pointing to further extension of last year's real growth rate of nearly five per cent.

"At home, the post-war babies are reaching marriageable age and these new family formations should increasingly make their impact on sales of every conceivable kind of consumer product. . . .

"Beyond our borders, world demand continues to grow for the raw materials in which we are so rich and for finished goods of a kind we have proved we can make and sell with the best."

Reviewing his year in office, Mr. Crabtree said the last 12 months were as good and prosperous as Canada has ever enjoyed.

However there had been some less welcome developments, the most regrettable of which was probably the decision last summer to saddle us with a sales tax on production machinery and building materials."

He also warned the 1,200 delegates that the ramifications of the current trade talks in Geneva are so far-reaching "we certainly cannot afford to relax."

"Canada's very prosperity may well be cited by some negotiating countries as an argument to justify their own easy access to our home market . . .

"If there are to be tariff reductions, we must be certain to see that they are not so sweeping as to jeopardize the survival of the affected industries and the jobs of those they employ."

Political Thinkers Kick Off New Form of Discussion Of Governmental Problems

TORONTO (CP) — A weekend of discussion and debate among some 170 Canadian political thinkers marked the kick-off of a new forum for discussion of governmental problems and innovations.

Suggestions of constitutional reform, increased federal-provincial relations and a Liberal-New Democratic Party amalgamation were discussed at the founding convention of the Exchange for Political Ideas in Canada.

Douglas Fisher, NDP MP for Port Arthur, elected president of the new organization, said E.P.I.C.'s leanings, to be derived from its membership, will necessarily be toward the "left."

However, he said, some compromise may be needed as the organization strives to present workers ideas to politicians.

E.P.I.C., the brainchild of several "left-wing" politicians, professors and businessmen, was conceived as a non - partisan arena for free discussion of political thought.

Its membership—for the most part Liberal or New Democrat —included teachers, students, housewives, writers, social workers, businessmen and politicians.

A constitution drawn up at the convention describes E.P.I.C. as a research, study, discussion and information group dedicated to change and reform but independent of party affiliation.

Halifax Crown Prosecutor Peter Ohearn author of a forthcoming book proposing constitutional reform in Canada, told the delegates Canada's constitution is in dire need of renovation.

"The main statute (the British North America Act) is an imperial order for a colony . . . and the other statutes dependent on it retain that character. This form is no longer consistent with the present status of Canada or with its dignity as a nation."

A Liberal member of the Ontario legislature and candidate for the provincial party leadership, Andrew Thompson, said the provinces should take more active roles in prodding the federal government into action—especially in public housing and technical education.

Federal Forestry Minister Sauve called for more respect in Ottawa for politicians on the provincial level.

"Provincial politicians and bureaucrats are as able as the federal ones," he said. "The federal government, must realize that flexibility is essential because of regional differences."

However, a British Columbia New Democrat, Colin Cameron, said that the industrial - political power of large corporations, applied through the governments of Ontario, Quebec and British Columbia, is helping to drag Canada apart.

Those three richest provinces are so powerful as to pose a challenge to federal authority and a potential disruptive affect on national unity, said the Commons member for Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands.

Definite lines of opinion were drawn when it was suggested the New Democratic Party ally itself with the "left-wing" element of the Liberal party.

"The result would be rather to exclude the thinking part of our society from politics than include it," remonstrated J. A. Doull of Halifax. a New Democ-rat.

The Dalhousie University professor of classics warned that his party would be submerged in such an alliance.

At the other pole was John Stewart, Liberal MP for Antigonish - Guysborough, who felt Canada's political system "works best with two parties. If you want a strong power in Ottawa, don't fragment politics."

Although no known Progressive Conservatives attended the convention, E.P.I.C. Vice-President Pauline Jewett, Liberal MP for Northumberland, said they are not excluded from the organization.

Mark MacGuigan, a Liberal and law professor at the University of Toronto, was elected treasurer. Of the 10 directors, five are NDP members, two are Liberals and three are non-affiliated.

In his presidential address, Mr. Fisher said E.P.I.C. committees are at work in Vancouver, Winnipeg, Windsor, Ont., Toronto, Peterborough and Halifax, augmenting the membership of 230 and treasury of less than $100.

Couple Rescued As Golf Club Dancers Watch

A bow-line too long for the boat it was fixed to Saturday night apparently caused an upset that put two air force members in the bay for a midnight swim. The bow-line apparently slipped overboard from the 15-foot fibreglass boat and wrapped around the propeller of the 30 horsepower outboard motor, upsetting the boat.

F/L. Joseph Pelletier and Cpl. Miss Carmel Kielly, both of RCAF Station Trenton, clung to the boat for nearly an hour as it drifted several hundred yards from shore, off the Bay of Quinte Country Club.

Their plight was reported to the Belleville detachment of the OPP and to the Belleville Fire Department.

Arrival of the OPP cruisers and the firedepartment's emergency wagon at the Country Club broke up the club's opening dance, and more than 200 people, abandoning the dance, lined the shore to watch the rescue.

Belleville firemen launched their outboard boat but were beaten to the scene by L. F. Radonicich, his wife and son Peter, in an inboard-powered launch. Mr. Radonicich took Pelletier and Miss Kielly aboard his own boat, and towed the disabled boat to shore.

Non-Confidence Motion by PC's Is Expected

OTTAWA (CP) — The Conservative opposition is expected to place another motion of non-confidence in the Liberal government before the Commons today.

The motion will be one of three major events in Parliament this week. The others will be the government's disclosure of its plans for a distinctive Canadian flag and an address by U Thant, secretary - general of the United Nations, before a joint sitting of the Commons and Senate Tuesday at 10 a.m. EDT.

The issue on which the official Opposition will base its test of the minority government's strength will be kept a closely-guarded secret until debate starts on a government supply motion.

Indications are that the Conservatives will not base their motion on the flag issue—as suggested by Prime Minister Pearson last week.

Once the supply debate ends, the government expects to be ready to submit details of its proposal for a distinctive Canadian flag to Parliament. Already approved by the cabinet, the flag design is to be embodied in a Commons resolution.

REVIEW EDITOR DIES

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — Wilder Hobson, 58, chief book review editor for Newsweek magazine and an authority on American jazz and sports car racing, died Sunday in Princeton Hospital. Wilder at one time worked for Time and Fortune magazines and had written articles on music for the New York Times magazine and Downbeat, a jazz publication.

Tyendinaga Reserve Indians Re-enact Landing of 1784

The Mohawks of the Bay of Quinte Sunday re-enacted their annual pageant commemorating their arrival on the Tyendinaga Reserve, 180 years ago. About 1783, the Mohawks who had remained loyal to the crown during the American revolution left the Mohawk Valley in New York State and came north to Montreal. The nation settled near Lachine for the winter, and one band remains there still.

But in the spring of 1784, most of the Mohawks set out in canoes for the then-wilderness of Upper Canada. One band, led by chiefs John Deseerontyou, Aaron Hill and Isaac Hill, landed just west of the present town of Deseronto on May 22. The others followed Chief Brant on to a site near the present city of Brantford.

A cairn now marks the site where the original band overturned a canoe, after they landed, and used it as an altar for a communion service, and a re-enactment of the landing of the original service has become an annual event in recent years. The Queen Anne communion silver, given by Queen Anne to the nation, when they lived in the Mohawk Valley, was divided among the bands when they resettled in Canada, and the Bay of Quinte Mohawks' share of the service is used in the pageant.

Led by Victor Brant, who carried the flag and by Chief John R. Brant, the procession was escorted by R.C.M.P. Cpl. R. D. Overton and Const. G. A. Lillie, both in scarlet tunics, to the pairnic. Chief Brant then conducted a short service there, and the combined choirs of Christ Church and All Saints Church sang the Mohawk anthem.

British Govt. Attacked In Book for Permitting Federation to Founder

LONDON (AP)—White colonials mustering to resist the British Crown . . . Boys forces gathering to crush the rebels . . . a weeping British prime minister contemplating bloodshed.

According to a book being published today, all these happened three years ago. It was at a crucial juncture in the destiny of that now defunct nation which lived its 10-year life under the title of the Federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland (Central African Federation).

The book is by Sir Roy Welensky, the federation's prime minister. Broadly it amounts to a bitter attack on the British government for letting the federation founder.

Faced with a swelling tide of African nationalism, the British government agreed last year to dismember the federation and its white - dominated government.

The federation now is in process of dissolving into the black-ruled states of Malawi (formerly Nyasaland) and Zambia (formerly Northern Rhodesia) and the still white-ruled Southern Rhodesia.

Sir Roy's book is called Welensky's 4000 Days: The Life and Death of the Federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland.

Dealing with events in 1961, he wrote:

"In the first week of February I began to receive reports from service and other sources that the British were assembling numbers of troop - carrying aircraft at Nairobi, with the intention of carrying out such changes as they had in mind in Northern Rhodesia by force if necessary."

Welensky said he investigated and convinced himself the British planes were gathering for action against the federation.

"I took immediate steps to ensure that, if the British launched an operation in Northern Rhodesia, federal forces could counter it promptly," Welensky went on.

His counter measures included action to douse radio beacons, the scattering of oil drums on runways and arrangements for the British planes to be greeted with small arms fire.

Welensky said that when he subsequently visited London he met former prime minister Macmillan. Sir Roy said of Macmillan:

"He was always one of the most accomplished actors in public life, and in the three hours I spent with him then he put on a truly magnificent performance.

"As he spoke of his deep sympathy and understanding of us in Africa his eyes were moist and shining and his voice vibrated with emotion. Paddling out into this tide of words I mentioned recent happenings in Northern Rhodesia.

"The tears rolled down Macmillan's cheeks. 'Roy, do you mean to tell me that, after having been the horror of two world wars, would have tolerated a situation in which Britishers would have been shooting down Britishers . . . ?'

Welensky said he then told Macmillan he knew about the air force concentration at Nairobi.

"But of course,' he (Macmillan) sighed, 'of course Roy, we all make mistakes. Those aircraft and those troops weren't to be used against you. We were collecting them in case you need help. . . .'

Welensky concluded: "Now the federation is gone. It lived achieved much in its short life and I am proud to have played a part in its achievements."

U Thant Plans Double Life For UN Force

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — United Nations Secretary-General U Thant is reported planning to ask the Security Council to double the life of the UN peace-keeping force in Cyprus.

The council set up the force for a three-month period that ends June 27.

Diplomatic sources said Saturday Thant intends to recommend by June 8 that the council keep it going for another three months to allow more time for carrying out UN objectives for Cyprus.

They said he so informed countries in the operation Friday, and asked if they would continue to participate.

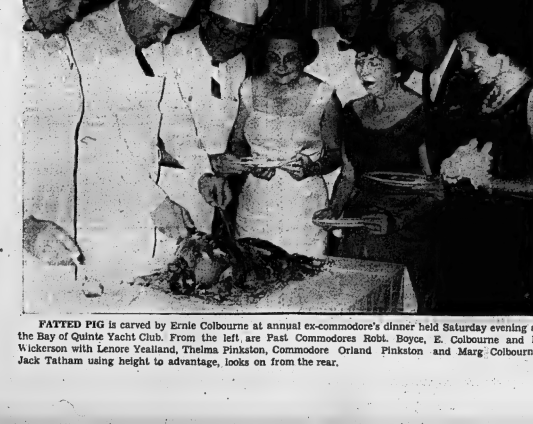
Thant had a private meeting with delegates from the nine countries — Canada, Britain, Denmark, Finland, Ireland, Sweden, Australia, Austria and New Zealand.

He was said to have told them he had an optimistic report on Cyprus from his special representative there, Galo Plaza Lasso.

The Security Council is expected to meet in mid - June to consider keeping the project alive beyond the current period.

Two Children Burned to Death At Chatham

CHATHAM (CP)—Louis Tengelis, 35, whose wife died six months ago, lost both of his children as he saved his two nieces from a fire that destroyed his home early Sunday.



Dead are Michael Tengelis, 2, and his eight-month-old sister Janice. Their father was found on the lawn clutching his brother's two little girls, Rhoda, 4, and Vicky, 18 months.

Police said Mr. Tengelis was babysitting with his brother's children, who were sleeping in the living room, when the fire broke out. The fire woke him and he threw Rhoda and Vicky through the frontroom widow on the the lawn.

When he attempted to reach his own children in their bedrooms flames drove him back and he escaped out the window.

MR. Tengelis was in fair condition in hospital, suffering severe shock, cuts and abrasions. Rhonda and Vicky, the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Alec Tengelis, were in good condition with shock and minor burns.

Mrs. Rose Tengelis, their grandmother, who had spent the night at a friend's home, was under sedation. She lived at Louis Tengelis' since his wife died of natural causes two months after Janice was born.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARTER, Sports Editor

Veteran harness drivers at Connaught Park Raceway, Hull, Quebec, raised quizzical eyebrows when the youngster first appeared in his sulky silks and drove behind the starting gate.

What they didn't know was the young man was no stranger to driving and trotting and had a more than average know-how about harness horses. In fact they learned later that he was the driver-trainer of a stable of six horses.

That's quite a responsibility for a young man who will be only twenty in the near future and who is showing the potential of a top-flight harness horseman.

He is Ed Weeks, son of Mrs. George Weeks, Sidney Street, the third member of a family that is acquiring a top status in the sport. Brothers John and Ken Weeks are no strangers to disciples and other tracks.

Young Ed did not go through the sequence of graduations to acquire his first driving license which he obtained this year. In hockey parlance he "jumped from junior ranks" to the big time.

A former student of Quinte Secondary School, Ed has been around horses, harness, sulkies and stables for not a few years of his young life. And Ed combined his love of harness with an aptitude of learning.

So much so that Mr. Albert Defouse of Trenton, had enough faith in his ability to train and drive that he placed him in charge of a six-horse stable now at Connaught Park Raceway.

Under his watchful eye are, at the moment, Sky Counsel, Roman Dillard, Devon Babe, Clyde's Boy, Butch and Stewart's Jet. More are expected as the racing season rounds into full swing.

I haven't the latest records of the Defouse Stable when I departed Connaught it is not doing badly. Not too long ago bettors who fancied Ed in the sulky behind "Roman Dillard" went home satisfied with what they saw—and bet.

The horse won in 2.11 2-5, paying $74.20, $33.18 and $19.80. Ed was also in the biggest quinella payoff of the day, $256.10.

Prior to taking over the Defouse stable, Ed gained invaluable training and driving experience in Montreal, where he was associated with the Ferme Richelieu Stable.

He took charge of the Trenton horses, trained and drove them all winter preparing himself for the biggest thrill of his life—his first driving licence—and his first official winner.

A friend of Ed's tells me he first became interested in harness horses, training and driving through association with his brothers. John and Ken were the owners of "Dalemite," well known in these parts, at present racing at the Mohawk Raceway under the skilled hands of Ken Galbreath. "Dalemite" has already compiled an enviable record.

My informant tells me, "Ed is a very good driver-trainer who looks every time out for one thing—to win. He has studied and learned a lot about 'inside harness' racing. He is keen and sharp. He was forewarned by a friendly veteran that experienced drivers might take advantage of his youth and inexperience but he seemed to be scared and has proven it on not a few occasions."

So here is a youngster who, it appears, is headed for success in the harness field. It is not too often you find a 19-year-old starting a new career and shouldering the big responsibility of managing a stable. The owners must have known Ed has "what it takes" or they would not have given him the position.

Torrid Torre Sparks Braves' 2 Wins

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

"Boy, are you fat!" Warren Spahn exclaimed nine years ago when Joe Torre first appeared in the Milwaukee Braves' dressing room, accompanied by big brother Frank, then the Braves' regular first baseman.

Spahn didn't get an argument from the younger Torre, at 15, weighed 340 pounds—but today the Braves' pitching ace would be the first to admit that the fattest thing about Joe is his .370 batting average.

On the other hand, if you had asked Bobby Bragan Sunday, after Torre's hitting rampage led the Braves to a 7-4, 10-0 doubleheader sweep of St. Louis Cardinals, the Milwaukee manager would have told you Joe is the fattest commodity in the game.

That's the most valuable piece of baseball property today," Bragan said, following Torre's 7 for 10 effort. He lifted him from seventh to third position in the National League batting derby, "I wouldn't trade him for anybody, not even Willie Mays, because I'd be giving up eight years."

Torre's current streak lends weight to Bragan's claim. The catcher-first baseman has hit a .418 clip since May 1, raising his average 79 points from .291. He hit his fifth and sixth home runs of the month Sunday for a total of nine, five less than his 1963 output.

RECORD DOUBLE VICTORIES

While Milwaukee closed within 1½ games of the NL lead, Pittsburgh and Cincinnati kept pace with double victories. The Pirates stunned San Francisco Giants 3-0 and 9-2 while the Reds downed Chicago Cubs 6-3 and 12-4. Los Angeles Dodgers employed Sandy Koufax in relief to nail down a 3-0 victory over Philadelphia Phillies and Houston Astros shaded New York Mets 5-0 in a night game.

The Braves clouted the Cardinals 9-4 Saturday night, Bragan tamed the Reds 5-3, the Pirates walloped the Giants 9-2, the Phillies out-lasted the Dodgers 4-2 in 14 innings and Houston took a doubleheader from the Mets 8-4 and 4-0.

Torre singled four times Sunday in the Braves' first-game victory, credited Spahn, and drove in two runs. His two homers, a grand slam in the first more RBI, backed Denny Lemaster's three-hit pitching in the nightcap.

The Brooklyn native has 54 hits, second in the league, and is third in RBI.

Pittsburgh's southpaw Bob Veale stopped San Francisco on seven hits and fanned seven Giants in the opener for his fourth victory. Rookie right hander Tom Sisk relieved in three Pirate runs in the second game and recorded his first major league victory with help from relievers Bob Priddy and Al McBean.

MAYS' AVERAGE SLIPS

Mays had one hit in five at-bats and his batting average fell from .400 to .393.

Chicago's Billie Williams regained the top spot in batting from .304 to .306, but the Cubs succumbed to Bill Henry's clutch hurling over Cincy in the opener and an eight-run Cincinnati inning in the finale.

Koufax, making his first relief appearances since 1962, quelled a Philadelphia threat in the seventh inning when the Dodgers whipped the Phillies for the first time in seven meetings.

Joe Moeller, the winner, allowed only one hit through the first six innings but faltered in the seventh where Johnny Callison met with a single and Wes Covington followed with a double. Koufax retired the next three batters and gave up one hit the rest of the way.

Rookie Wes Parker crashed two doubles and a triple to pace the Dodgers' attack.

Houston righthander Bob Bruce set his record to 6-1, firing a four-hitter and striking out 10 mets. Mike White drove in three runs with a first-inning single and a double in the seventh.

20 Coaches Attend Minor Baseball Clinic

Approximately twenty of the city's minor baseball coaches turned out at the Park Dale Community Centre yesterday for a coaches' clinic conducted jointly by the B.M.B.A. and the Recreation Committee.

The clinic was held with the idea in mind of assisting the coaches in the basics of baseball. The B.M.B.A. has extended its program greatly this season with much of the activity centred in the Park Dale area. Improved diamond conditions and new equipment, plus sponsored teams, are all part of the program. Good crowds have been attending the games, played almost nightly and all day Saturdays in the Yoks, Peewee and Bantam divisions.

Three films, baseball in general, throwing and batting, were shown.

Russ Soule discussed the coaches' role in minor baseball, Larry Alexander offered scouting tips and Al Kelleher gave a full demonstration on how to do and how not to do certain things on a baseball field. Much was covered in the films on how to throw, bat, pitch, etc., and Kelleher stressed correcting mistakes during his demonstrations.

Another well-known baseball name here, Jack Carson, was to have addressed the clinic but was unable to attend.

The coaches in attendance appeared appreciative of any assistance they could secure from the films and instructions. Question and answer periods were also held.

Ron Lapsley, president of the B.M.B.A. thanked those who had donated their time and also the coaches who were interested enough to attend.

Officials Reject Hockey Suggestion

Says Lacrosse National Sport

TORONTO (CP) — A proposal by Jack Roxburgh, Liberal member of Parliament for Norfolk, that hockey be designated as Canada's national game, was criticized Sunday by the presidents of the Canadian and Ontario Lacrosse Associations.

In a joint statement, national president Ed Hair of nearby Streetsville and Ontario president James Nalsh of Fort Credit said the national game should be lacrosse, not hockey, which is a sport imported from the British Isles.

They were criticizing a statement made in an Ottawa interview this month by Roxburgh that he plans to introduce a bill in Parliament to declare hockey as Canada's national sport.

Roxburgh, former president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, said there is no documentary support for the assertion that lacrosse is the national game.

WAS ONLY SPORT

The lacrosse officials claim that at the time of Confederation there was no other sport but lacrosse played in Canada. Mr. Roxburgh's bill was defeated.

Hockey did not gain any prominence until the 1900's and hockey today does not resemble the early game. Lacrosse still retains all its early Canadian resemblance, and is the fastest game on foot.

The statement says Lacrosse is as Canadian as "maple syrup, canoe building, corn on the cob, beaver hats and blankets." It could be a unifying force to bring Canadians together.

Inaugural Was Success

Western Horse Field Day

The Quinte Western Horse Association made its public debut on Sunday and it goes down in the books as a big success.

The Association's first Field Day held at the Don McNevin Farm, Thurlow, delighted a large crowd with its sequence of colorful events.

The judging was capably handled by Jack Bush with Lorne Urch doing a fine job as events announcer.

Tribute was paid to Mr. and Mrs. McNevin for the use of their farm, the St. John Ambulance Brigade and to members of the Quinte Band for making the inaugural Field Day the success it was.

Both junior and senior riders acquitted themselves well and many of the competitions were close.

Space does not permit the publication of all competitions. The winners of the various events follow:

Barbara McNevin won the first trail ride on "Crystal" and also the the "English Pleasure" on "Star".

Vicki Radonicich won the horse race, 14 and over on "Penny". Vicki Steele was winning the "Western Pleasure" event on "Rideau Bend Sarah".

"Miss Arlio Anne" ridden by Jack Lange took the open running class with Carol Bateman riding "Timmy's Flash" winning in the Saddle-Up race.

Barbara Cummins on "Dusty" won the pony express race with Jack Lange's "Peggy" taking the flag race. "Dusty" also won the flag race for under 14.

Vicki Radonicich and "Penny" scored another win in the section "English Pleasure."

The quarter horse class was won by Mervyn Smith, on "Tiger" over eight competitors. In the first trail ride, Sharon Lange rode Sandy Bachelor to victory in a field of twenty.

The pole bending was won by Carol Bateman on "Star" while the under 14 age class was won by Judy Day, with "Dusty".

In the egg contest, 14 and over, Jane Parm took top spot, with Tony Mak.

In the pick up race, Crystal was the winning horse, handled by Joanne and Don McNevin Jr. in the under 14 age pack up. Roger Seay was the winning horse, handled by Michelle Radonicich and Judy Bateman.

In the open pony pleasure, Margie Doriand rode Babe to victory while Barbara Cumming rode Dusty to a win in the under 14 potato race and Tony Mak in under 14 barrel race. In the other barrel race, Joanne McNevin was the winner on Crystal.

The horse race, for 14's and over, was won by Don McNevin Jr. with Spider Vandy while the pony race was won by Carol Bateman with Princess.

Wins Bowling House Tourney

Vi Christopher and Paul Bailey teamed up to win the mixed couples house tournament qualifying roll-off at the Bowl-O-Drome on the weekend.

Second place went to Thelma Cooney and Ken Cannon. Ellie and Wes Elliott tied with Peg Ronsky and Leo Locefola for for third place. There were 12 couples taking part.

The winners topped the roll-off with a combined total for four games each, (with handicap) of 2130. The second place total was 2033 while third place score was 1990.

Vi Christopher and Paul Bailey, as well as Thelma Cooney and Ken Cannon as runners-up, will play in the finals at the next weekend against other winning couples from Kingston, Deseronto, Trenton, Stirling, Tweed and Brighton.

The handicap for this tournament is figured on the couples combined composite average. Each couple receives ¾ of the difference between this figure and a scratch point of 400.

Other couples taking part here Saturday were Iris and Mo Stokesbury, Ben Hunt and Cara Dafoe, Madeline James and Cec Hardwick, Winnie Smith and Ivy Elliott, Eleanor and Norm Crozier, Grace Pearce and Jim Scriven, Shirley and Art Atkins and Pat and Wes Andrews.

Bride Misses Second Honeymoon

Tweed Bowler Cruise Winner

A pretty brown-haired blue-eyed teenage girl from near Thomasburg received the thrill of her life here Saturday night.

And an excited young bride of a few hours missed a second honeymoon — but lost no time in leaving for the previously-planned first one.

Nineteen - year - old Shirley Wright won the top award in the final roll-off of the Players Bowling Festival.

Mrs. Edward Trosin of Campbellford who up until noon was Miss Barbara Ingram and delayed her honeymoon to take part in the roll-off was eliminated after her second of the required three games.

The happy couple did not wait for the ultimate winner. They left on a planned motor trip to Washington and New York immediately after learning of the bride's standing.

Mr. Trosin, manager of the Trent Bowling Lanes, did not bowl. But you didn't have to second-guess his favorite bowler in the roll-off.

Miss Wright who won a trip to the New York World's Fair and a luxury cruise to Bermuda took the award with a score of 177 and beating her average of 147 by 30 pins.

Carmen Dafoe who gave Miss Wright an early run for the money, finished second with a plus 11. B. Greer of Tweed was third with a plus of nine and Helen Kokrak fourth with a plus of seven.

Miss Wright was among one of the 10,000 finalists across Canada vying for one of the 150 trip awards given by the makers of Players Cigarettes to bowlers who improve their own average by the most pins.

Ninety-five of 103 district finalists took part in the roll-off held at the Bowl-O-Drome.

"It was" manager Bill Bateman said, "the biggest and most exciting tournament held here in 18 years."

Miss Wright who lives with her mother Mrs. Leo Johnstone and stepfather Mr. Johnstone at R.R. 2 Thomasburg, is an employee of the Lakewood Forest Products (Veneers) at Tweed and is a member of a bowling team named after the company.

She never had a bowling belt in her hand up to six months ago. The game fascinated her and she devoted a lot of time to it.

Since the Players award calls for a trip for two, Miss Wright was asked who the second lucky person will be.

"I think" she said "I shall take my girl friend Sharon Reid with me".

If these plans materialize, the young ladies will enjoy two days at the World's Fair in New York and share with the other winners and their guests the luxuries of the cruise liner "Empress of Bermuda" the holiday starting July 15 through July 25th.

"AND AWAY WE GO!" — Nineteen-year-old Shirley Wright of Tweed, the winner of the Bowling Festival finals here Saturday night, holds the victor's spoils in her hands, tickets for a trip to New York and a cruise to Bermuda. Miss Wright expects to take "my girl friend" along to share the fun. She won the tournament from a field of 95 district bowlers.

"HAPPY BUT UNLUCKY!" —Mrs. Edward Trosin, Jr., of Campbellford, a bride of a few hours, won a husband but missed "a second honeymoon" on Saturday when she was eliminated in the Players Bowling Festival at the Bowl-O-Drome. The former Barbara Ingram is seen in lane action while the "hubby" looks on admiringly.

MODESTO, Calif. (CP AP) — Bruce Kidd and Bill Crothers of Toronto, two of Canada's leading gold medal prospects for the Tokyo Olympics this year, got a preview of their Olympic competition Saturday night—and both finished second.

Bill Baillie of New Zealand finished one second ahead of Kidd in the two-mile run and Jan Underwood of Oregon State University came from behind to nip Crothers at the finish in the half-mile distance at the California Relays.

In the mile, Dyrol Burleson, former Oregon star, beat Chicago's Tom O'Hara on the final stride.

Baillie, Kidd and Jim Beatty of the United States duelled in the two-mile and finished in that order as the New Zealand runner outdrove Kidd at the finish.

Beatty, making his first outdoor start of the year, faded on the final lap after leading the field of 13 most of the way.

Baillie's time of eight minutes 37.1 seconds shattered the meet record of 8:41.9 set by Kidd in '62 but was well off the world mark of 8:29.6 set by France's Michel Jazy.

Kidd was clocked in 8:38.1 and Beatty in 8:41.0.

Crothers, a powerful runner who was the world's best half miler last year, was beaten in the stretch run by Underwood. The Oregon State runner was timed in 1:48.7, four-tenths of a second ahead of Crothers. Ray Van Asten of Oregon was third in 1:49.2.

Underwood led through the 440-yard mark in 54 seconds, then slipped back to third after 60 yards as Crothers moved into the lead. But Underwood came off the final turn right behind the Canadian and won out in the stretch.

Burleson and O'Hara, the premier milers in the U.S., ran a tactical race and hit the tape just one-tenth of a second apart. Burleson was timed in 4:00.2, O'Hara in 4:00.3. Jim Ryun, 17-year-old Wichita, Kansas high school junior, surprised everyone by taking third in 4:01.7, the fastest time ever for a prep-school runner.

Meanwhile, Ralph Boston smashed his U.S. record in the broad jump with a leap of 27 feet 2½ inches—just three-quarters of an inch short of the world record of 27 feet 3¼ inches set by Russia's Igo Ter. Ovanesyan.

TWISTERS THREATEN

MOUNT CLEMENS, Mich. (AP) — Southeastern Michigan's Macomb Country, smashed by a tornado that brought death to 10 persons May 8, spent a tense 2½ hours under a tornado alert Sunday. The still - scarred Anchor Bay area of Lake St. Clair was in a region for which the U.S. weather bureau warned of possible tornadoes. However, the weather bureau issued an all-clear report at 5:30 p.m.

Classic League Bowlers Beat Kingston Again

Belleville Classic League bowlers turned back the bid of the Kingston Major Leaguers for the second time in a row over the weekend.

The Classics featuring Ron Saylor, Doug Bennett, Jack Canning and Leo Labelle ran up an aggregate pinfall of 4,018 as against Kingston's 3,617.

The Majors used Charlie Batty, Charlie Paradis, Charlie Gibson, Geo. Macdonald ("Mr. Bowling") and Bill Griffith.

Classic scores were: Saylor 1011; Bennett, 934; Canning, 1000 and Labelle, 984.

Kingston aggregates were Batty, 832; Paradis, 1012; Gibson, 188; MacDonald, 969, and Griffith, 670.

Belleville scores were: Saylor 281, 306, 195, 229; Bennett 229, 194, 237, 274; Canning 288, 227, 295, 279; Labelle 293, 220, 221, 250.

Kingston scores were: Batty 253, 213, 178, 188; Paradis 306, 194, 272, 243; Gibson 188; MacDonald 254, 260, 204, 251; Griffith 177, 232, 261.

High game score for Belleville was Saylor's 306; for Kingston, Paradis' 277.

Pigeon Racing

The Quinte Racing Pigeon Club held another race this weekend, over a distance of 235 air miles, Allison Country Junction. The pigeons were released at 10.33 a.m. and the winning bird was clocked at 1147.62 yards per minute.

Pigeons owned by T. Woodcock, of Belleville, took first, second, fifth and ninth positions. Clark Steele grabbed third and fourth positions and Jack Thomson, of Plainfield, had the sixth and seventh place finishers. J. Ling placed 8th and Ron Norris tenth.

Oshawa Wins COSSA Track Meet

OSHAWA (CP) — Oshawa McLaughlin Collegiate Institute came through with a record breaking time in the open mile relay to capture the Central Ontario Secondary Schools Association track and field championship Saturday.

The Oshawa team, chopping 2.7 seconds off the former mark in the mile run, finished with 78 points. Oshawa O'Neil took second place, three points back, while Peterborough Central was third with 70 points.

REPLACE PANES

VANCOUVER (CP)—The job of replacing every one of the British Columbia Hydro Building's 3 000 double window panes will keep Ron Forbes and John Oakley busy for the next two years. The old ones developed breaks in their air seals between layers, causing condensation.

WOULD MOVE CAPITAL

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — An opposition senator has drafted a bill supporting an aspiration of President Arturo Illia's government that the Argentine capital be moved from Buenos Aires, population 6,500,000, in land to Cordoba, population 600,000. Senator Celestina Gelsi believes the move would help shake the country out of its economic lethargy.

SEE WHAT JOHNSON OFFERS YOU NOW

NEW 9½ HP. JOHNSON
The Compact's Compact

The motor in the background of our picture is a famous Johnson 10 hp. It is now replaced by the exotic looking new 9½ hp. Putting Johnson's classic 10 into the background wasn't easy. (Our competitors have been trying unsuccessfully for years.)

The new 9½ cost over a million dollars to develop. Several years work in all. It weighs 10 pounds less than the 10 hp. and is a whole 8¼" lower. It's exactly the kind of light, bulkless outboard fisherman expect from Johnson. All controls are up front where they belong. The right side is completely free of levers and protrusions for easy stowage in cars, cottages and garages and the carrying handle is positioned for perfect balance, like a good gun.

Like all Johnson compacts the 9½ has many big motor features: full gear shift, fuel pump, thermostat-controlled cooling, and the like. The new Johnson 9½ is indeed the compact's compact. A lot of outboards may look like it in years to come; but, right now, there's nothing can touch it.

Wouldn't you like to be the first on your lake to own one?

18 hp. Johnson features a new fixed high speed jet carburetor that almost completely eliminates the need for carburetor adjustment and assures proper fuel-air mixture.

9½ hp. Johnson delivers up to 11 hours cruising on five gallons of gas. One reason it's the best selling small outboard in Canada. If you're in the market for a small outboard, see your Johnson dealer soon . . . he has more to offer for your money than ever before.

2 YEAR WARRANTY
Every new Johnson is now warranteed for two full years.

13 models in nine hp. sizes: 9½, 75, 85, 40, 28, 18, 9½, 7½, 3½

Batting: Dick Stuart, Red Sox, hit grand-slam home run in first game and two-run homer in second and Sunday's give Boston sweep of doubleheader over Kansas City Athletics, 6-2 and 7-3.

Pitching: Robin Roberts, Orioles, stopped Minnesota with five-hitter to start Baltimore on sweep of Sunday doubleheader, 7-0 and 7-6.

Ward, Stuart Hit Grandslams

Bosox, Orioles Sweep Pairs, Yanks Split

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Dick Stuart's bat did nearly all the damage for both sides at Boston Sunday.

The big first baseman, whose glove costs the Red Sox the odd game, gave Jim Gentile one of his bats and the Kansas City slugger promptly hit a home run that gave the Athletics the lead in the first game of their doubleheader off Moe Drabowsky in the first.

But Stuart had a pretty good bat left in his collection. He used it to whack his second grand slam homer of the American League season in the eighth inning to give the Sox a 6-5 victory, then connected again with a man aboard in the fourth inning for the winning runs in a 3-1 triumph in the nightcap.

The big first baseman's grand slam off Moe Drabowsky in the eighth inning broke a 3-3 tie. It was his first homer since April 28 when he also smashed a grand slam.

Stuart's average is only .230, but he has 40 runs batted in, third best in the Amahlebaer League. Last year he hit 43 homers and drove in 118 runs.

ORIOLES HAVE SWEEP

Of five scheduled doubleheaders in the AL, Baltimore Orioles had the only other sweep, beating Minnesota Twins 2-0 and 7-6. Chicago White Sox downed Washington Senators 6-4, then lost 3-0 while New York Yankee defeated Los Angeles Angels 2-1 after dropping a 3-0 decision. Detroit Tigers got by Cleveland Indians 7-5, then walked off in the second game.

On Saturday the Angels whipped the Yankees 9-5, the Athletics edged Boston 5-4, the Twins crushed Baltimore 5-1, Cleveland out-slugged Detroit 11-9 and Chicago hammered the Senators 12-3 with Montreal-born Pete Ward contributing a grand-slammer.

Stuart's blast in Sunday's opener enabled Jack Lamabe, who came to Boston from Pittsburgh Pirates in the first baseman, to win his fifth game in six decisions. Rookie Ed Connolly won his first major league game in the nightcap with relief help from Bob Heffner and Dick Radatz.

The Orioles were on the verge of losing the second game when they struck for three runs in the ninth. Jerry Adair's homer, a walk, an infield hit and an error brought home the tying runs. Then Luis Aparicio knocked in Eddie Brandt with a sacrifice fly.

Harmon Killebrew socked a two-run homer for the Twins in the eighth, tying the game 4-4, and Tony Oliva connected with one on in the ninth.

ROBERTS CUTS ERA

Robin Roberts set down the Twins on five hits in the opener, reducing his earned run average to 1.88 on a 2-3 record.

The White Sox had a five-game winning streak until Buster Narum limited them to six hits in the second game.

Pinch-hitter Floyd Robinson doubled with the bases loaded in the ninth, driving in two runs and bringing the White Sox from behind in the opener.

Mickey Mantle sparked the Yankees to their second-game triumph after Dean Chance blanked them on three hits in the opener. Mantle homered in the second, then triggered a four-run rally in the sixth with a two-strike bunt. The Yankees trailed 5-0 going into the inning. Ed Kirkpatrick hammered a two-run homer for the Angels in the second.

Los Angeles actually won the first game in the first inning. Billy Moran doubled home Leo Thomas and Bob Rodgers, then scored on a double by Tom Satriano.

Dave Wickersham received relief aid from Larry Sherry and became the first AL pitcher to win six games. The Tiger led 7-2 when the Indians struck in the seventh. Four singles scored two runs and brought on Sherry, who ended the threat after another run scored.

Leafs Split With Wings, Bisons Lose

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Life in the minors, as far as Mike McCormick is concerned, isn't what it's cracked up to be.

The onetime bonus marvel of the old New York Giants finally got his first taste of baseball's lower echelons when Baltimore Orioles shipped him down to Rochester Red Wings last week and his first taste of International League action came Sunday.

By the time he got out of there in the fifth, Toronto Maple Leafs were halfway to an eight-run inning and an 11-4 victory in the first game of a double-header in which the Wings salvaged the second game 2-0 on Nels Chittom's two-hitter.

The split left the league-leading 19½ games ahead of Buffalo Bisons, who were beaten 4-2 and 6-4 by Syracuse Chiefs.

Richmond Virginians split with Atlanta Crackers, winning 4-3 and losing 3-2 and Jacksonville Suns down Columbus Jets 4-3.

The Jets took a twin bill from the Suns Saturday, 3-2 and 4-2 in 10 innings, while Rochester edged Toronto 1-0, Buffalo shaded Syracuse 4-3 and Atlanta swept Richmond 3-2.

HAD 4-2 LEAD

Rochester led Toronto 4-2 when the roof fell in on McCormick. The Leafs put together seven hits with three walks and a Red Wing error before the side was retired. Bobby Del Greco finished with four runs batted in from a single, double and solo home run. Kurt Blefary's two-run homer in the first inning looked after all the scoring in the nightcap.

Legrant Scott's two - run homer in the 10th inning broke up the 0-0 game for the Chiefs and a three-run blast by Ray Oyler wrapped up the nightcap. Dennis Ribant pitched nine inning home run defeated the Virginians in the second game at Atlanta, giving the Eli-led Crackers their first series victory of the season by a 3-1 margin.

Jack Damaska's three - run homer in the bottom of the ninth gave the Suns their victory over Columbus.

LIVERPOOL LOSES

NEW YORK (AP) — The Liverpool soccer club suffered its first defeat in four visits to North America when Hibernian Athletic League Division 1 champions were defeated 2-0 here Sunday by Hamburg's Sports Verein.

Kelso Ran Eighth In Field Of 9

NEW YORK (AP) — Kelso, making his first start in six months and carrying 130 pounds, ran next to last Saturday in his California debut as Cyrano captured the $55,500 Los Angeles Handicap at Hollywood Park.

Practically earlier in the race at any stage, Kelso, the heavily-backed favorite, ran eighth in the field of nine. Cyrano, the second choice, won pulling away.

Quita Dude was second and Admiral's Voyage third.

Time for the seven furlongs was 1:21.2.

Cyrano returned $8.20, $4.60 and $3.20. Quita Dude, with Johnny Longden aboard, paid $18.60 and $7.20 and Admiral's Voyage returned $4.80.

At New York's Aqueduct, Oil Royalty, the favorite, staged a spectacular rush from last place and won the $37,200 Top Flight Handicap by a half-length over Jewel's Secret, Tuna Smart and Deb, the early pace setter, was third.

The six-year-old mare earned $37,180 and paid $7, $4.20 and $2.80.

Tuna returned $6 and $3.80 with Smart Deb $3.20 to show.

Meanwhile, at Cherry Hill, N.J. Inbalance, running as an entry with Inside Story, won the $25,350 Camden Handicap at Garden State Park by a head over Why Lie. Rebellious was third.

Inbalance paid $3.40, $2.80 and $2.20 after running the 1⅛ miles in 1:50.

Why Lie paid $6.20 and $3.20 and Rebellious $2.80.

At Chicago's Arlington Park Clem Pat, owned and trained by Mary D. Kelly, a grandmother from Evanston, Ill., won the $27,375 Sheridan Handicap for three-year-olds.

Clem Pat paid $7.40, $3.40 and $3.20. Dunfee returned $5 and $3.20 and Native Sis $4 to show.

Mrs. Kelly received her trainer's license only two days ago.

CAHA Likely To Reject Private Offer

OTTAWA (CP) — Past president Art Potter of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association said Saturday the association likely will not accept the offer of a private group to finance a Canadian senior hockey team.

"We (the CAHA) have made our own arrangements and we will organize our own team," he said.

Mr. Potter was commenting upon the offer of Harold Ballyson, recreation director of Wallaceburg, Ont., who said a private organization is willing to undertake all expenses on condition that a television network made available the facilities for two hours and that Maple Leaf Gardens in Toronto make its facilities available for one evening at no charge.

Arnold, Nicklaus In Ruck

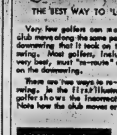
Souchuk Wins Memphis

MEMPHIS (AP) — Mike Souchuk fired a 69 Sunday and clipped past three other golfers for a one-stroke victory in the $50,000 Memphis Open golf tournament with a 10-under-par 270 total.

Billy Casper and Jumping Jack Cupit tied for second with 271. Six golfers—Bob Rosburg, Art Wall Jr., Mason Rudolph, Gene Littler, Dave Sanders and Gay Brewer—were tied for fourth with 272.

Goldiron's perennial tournament favorites, Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus, were far back in the pack. Nicklaus fired a second straight 66 and had a total of 276. Palmer had a final 69 for 276.

AMERICAN WINS



VANCOUVER (CP) — Dave Ridenour of San Francisco piloted his Comet Genii around the twisty 1.8-mile Westwood race circuit Sunday to easily win Western Canada's top sports car race. Chuck Parsons of Monterey, Calif., was second in a Lotus 23B and Toronto's Lodwig Heimrath third in a Cooper and Ford.

THE Arnold Palmer METHOD

THE BEST WAY TO "LOOP"

Very few golfers can make their club move along the same path on the downswing that it took on the backswing. Most golfers, finishing the very best, start "reversing" or "looping" on the downswing.

There are two ways to re-route the swing: In the first illustration the golfer shows the incorrect method. Note how the club moves or loops to a more vertical position at the top of his swing. Also note how this golfer has allowed power to leak by. This sort of loop becomes the swing and problems of the week-end.

The second method of re-routing the swing is shown in the second illustration. Here I have moved the club to the inside, or to a more horizontal position. See how this method will allow you to return to its proper position against my right side just as I start the downswing. This puts the club in line to deliver a powerful and solid blow at the ball.

Sport Snapshots

By ED SIMON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

As far as memory goes, the election of Jack Riley as president of the American Hockey League marks the first time a former profes sional player has been chosen to guide the destinies of the 33-year-old organization.

You'd have to call it a borderline case. With all respect to Riley, a capable general manager with Rochester Americans until his elevation, his playing career can't be described as illustrious. The records show he played 17 games for the AHL's defunct Washington entry in the 1947-48 season as a right winger scoring five goals, and got into a couple of games for Tulsa of the United States League in 1949-50.

But the fact remains that the 44-year-old Toronto-born executive has laced up a skate in actual battle conditions, unlike his predecessor, James Balmer of Pittsburgh, or the late John Digby Chick of Windsor, Ont., who guided the AHL through most of its existence.

That doesn't automatically make Riley a better president than the NHL's Clarence Campbell, a respected referee in his day but never a player, or Al Leader of the Western League, whose hockey career has been limited to the front office.

But it should mean something to the players.

Specifically, it should be a sound comfort to a man summoned to the presidential office to explain the circumstances of a suspension earned in the course of discussing a disallowed goal with one of the referees. The man behind the desk presumably knows something about his side of it.

The same can't be said of his counterpart in the NHL.

Campbell has many excellent qualities but his background can scarcely inspire a wrong-doer with confidence as he advances timidly across the presidential carpet.

It's bad enough that his judge is a former referee, and former referee-in-chief to boot. But this one long time off from his job to act as a prosecutor at the Nuernberg war crime trials. Things may have been different in the 1940s when the NHL presidency was occupied by Red Dutton, who once handed out some fearsome bodychecks for Montreal Maroons and New York Americans. Now there was a man who had parted a few players from their teeth before he started separating them from their salary.

At the club level, there is a steady rise of former players to executive rank. Former pros currently hold three of the six general managers' chairs in the NHL and five of the nine AHL governors' seats are pursued professional careers.

There's no question whom the players would like to see when they'd been asked to name the new AHL president. A guy named Eddie Shore who currently presides over the league's Springfield entry.

In his 20 years as a defenceman, Shore spent some 26 hours in the penalty box. He wouldn't throw the book at you for spitting in somebody's eye.

Few Viewers Want to See Show Run Second Time

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Television reruns, which have just about taken over the homescreens, present problems never encountered in other entertainment areas.

Few TV shows prove so fascinating that viewers want to savor them a second time.

Maybe some indomitable souls chuckled again at the surprised look on a lady's face—on Cardinal Camera Sunday night—when she discovered that a cigarette she had just put into an ashtray had disappeared. This viewer didn't laugh the first time.

The second rerun problem for most of us is that we are creatures of habits formed last fall when we made our choices of preferred shows—and stuck with them.

It would seem that rerun time should give a follower of CBS' social work drama, East Side, West Side, a chance to watch the ABC or NBC shows he missed. But it doesn't seem to work that way.

Ed Sullivan had a mighty impressive list of guest stars on his show Sunday night—Duke Ellington, the great Lipizzaner horses, Michaelangelo's Pieta, The Beatles and more.

Tonight is NBC's Emmy Awards show, 10-11:30 p.m. EDT—and for the first time it will be more interesting to note who keeps away than who turns up.

Record 33 Entries For Big '500'

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A record-cracking 33-car starting field for the Indianapolis 500-mile race Memorial Day was filled Sunday by four front-row gainers that appeared unlikely to worry pole position winner Jimmy Clark of Scotland.

Clark, who set the 10-mile qualifying record at 146.3 miles an hour May 16 in his rear-engine Lotus-Ford, spent Sunday winning the Dutch Grand prix while the Indianapolis Motor Speedway trials were being concluded.

The 33 cars averaged 152.5 against the 149.1 of last year's record field. The speeds ranged down to 148.7 by Bill Cheesbourg of Tucson, Ariz., who qualified the only Layrock Offenhauser.

Owner Andy Granatelli put the third of his Studebaker-powered jobs into the field and had the session's fastest qualifier for the second straight day. Art Malone of Tampa, Fla., was high at 151.2.

MAY BE BY BACH

BOLOGNA, Italy (AP)—Professor Napoleona Fanti, a music museum librarian, says that after months of study he is convinced he has found a manuscript of three fugues for clavichord by Wilhelm Friedmann Bach, a son of Johann Sebastian (The Great) Bach. The two folios were among documents of the G. B. Martini Conservatory.

Foxboro Wins Over Concrete 4-2

Back to back doubles by Dickey Plane and Foxboro in the sixth inning carried Foxboro to a 4-2 South Hastings baseball league victory over Plane's Concrete, of Cannifton, Saturday night.

Plane's took an early 2-0 lead with single runs in the first and second. Foxboro tied it with two in the third and got the win with the key hits in the bottom of the sixth.

Dickey hurled four hit ball on the Foxboro hilltop while O'Connor, with Dafoe taking over in the fourth, also gave up four hits for Plane's in the high-scoring affair.

Reynolds and Charlton added singles to Dickey's and Babcock's doubles to account for the Foxboro hit total.

Empey and Urch rapped two-baggers for Plane's and Smith Cole and Dafoe getting singles.

Minor Baseball Results

The tyke Lions, peewee Jaycees and bantam Park Dale teams chalked up victories in a full schedule of R.M.B.A. games played at the Park Dale diamond on Saturday.

In the Bantam tilt, Park Dale came from behind with four runs in the sixth inning to defeat the Jaycees 8-4.

Wayne McTaggart pitched four-hit ball for Park Dale over the route. His mates was Ted Shaw. Baker had a whitter going for Jaycees and Jack ahead 3-2 in the sixth when he was relieved by Lambert. Lambert gave up two more hits. The catcher was Butch Curtin.

W. Fudge and Kevin Allen hit doubles and B. Burnette had a single to account for all the Park Dale safeties. K. Williams had two doubles, Lambert and Thornton a single apiece for Jaycees.

In Peewee play, Jaycess whipped the Redsox 17-3 with the aid of strong hitting and pitching to match.

T. Demers and P. Hall formed the winning battery, with Demers allowing just two hits in all. Gill, Coughlin in the third and Mason in the fifth, pitched for the Redsox, tagged for 13 hits. Meagher was the catcher.

T. Demers, A. Smith and D. Bailey each collected three hits for Jaycees. T. Meagher and B. Coughlin had singles in defeat.

The Tyke game was another free-scorer in which the Lions thumped DeMille Construction 21-1.

R. McTaggart hurled a one-hitter and struck out 12 for the Lions in a good pitching chore. G. Edwards had the receiver. R. Guest pitched and R. O'Neil caught for DeMille. There were a number of walks in the game. The winners scored their 21 runs with only seven hits.

G. Edwards and W. Gray had three hits each and D. McTaggart and R. Guest, M. Mattis had a single and scored the only run for the losers.

Shannonville Shuts Out Latta 9-0

A powerful two-bit pitching performance by Bill Barberstock paced Shannonville to a 9-0 South Hastings baseball league victory over Latta yesterday afternoon.

Barberstock gave up singles to B. Sullivan and R. Bellamy while slamming strikes past 12 batters. He walked four in a strong performance.

The winners scored all their runs in the last three innings. Shannonville collected nine hits off the slants of three Latta pitchers. Howard Lemon started and lost, relieved by Lorne Cronkright in the eighth and Richard Hall in the ninth. Meeks fanned eight and walked four.

Barberstock helped his own cause at the plate by belting a double and single. C. Rowbotham and C. Green contributed doubles with Lewis, B. Hill, D. Lewis and E. Green getting singles.

The losers played errorless ball while the winners were charged with four miscues.

ELECTRICAL MARVELS

HAMBURG, West Germany (Reuters)— Electrical marvels from grandfather's day, including the world's first electric iron (circa 1893), are on display in a new museum at Altona near here. Filled with everything from ancient generators to vintage telephones, the museum was opened to mark the 70th anniversary of the Hamburg Electricity Works, one of the oldest in the world.

Thornhill H. S. Wins Track Meet

ALLISTON, Ont. (CP)—Thornhill high school captured the Georgian 'Bay Secondary Schools Association boys' championship in a track and field meet Saturday that had 400 athletes representing 31 schools participating.

Thornhill took the title with 68 points, followed by Richmond Hill with 54½, Barrie North 37, Markham 31 and Toronto Bayview and King City, 28 each.

Jim Anderson of Barrie North set a pole vault record of 11 feet, five inches, topping the previous meet mark of 10 feet, 11 inches.

The Thornhill team was also a big winner in the girls' meet at Newmarket, collecting 68 points to win the title.

Richmond Hill finished second with 31 points, followed by Alliston-Banting, 28, Aurora, 23, Stouffville 22, Barrie North 21, Markham 21, Midland 20, Sutton 18, and Newmarket 13.

Jean Kettle of Midland took the senior laurels.

Parsons Drop 5-0 Game To Hungaria

Heat and too much Kingston Hungaria deprived the Parsons Cleaners of a third victory in the Kingston District Soccer League played in the eastern city Saturday.

The Hungarians were held to a scoreless first half, but broke loose for all their five goals in the second period.

The defeat gives Parsons a 2-2 league record. They play the next league game at home to Trenton RCAF next Saturday.

A team spokesman says the club is moving its playing activities from the Fair Grounds to Zwick's Island.

It has been requested by the Parks Board to assist in the removal of stone from the proposed field next Wednesday.

The new field on the "Island" is expected to be ready for soccer in the new year.

King of the Hill

After a one week layoff the King of the Hillers were back in action at the Bowl-O-Drome on Saturday afternoon and once again Ron Elliott emerged as king. His challenger was Leo St. Louis who came up with a five game total of 1353. His single games were 255, 300, 314, 288 and 311. In second place just 20 pins behind St. Louis was Ron Saylor with 1333. Frank Duclos was third with 1107. King Ron had a 686 in the roll-off with St. Louis.

In the bid for eight consecutive strikes Leo St. Louis put six together and Ron Saylor five.

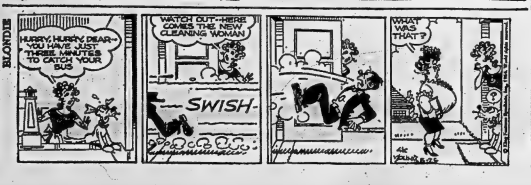
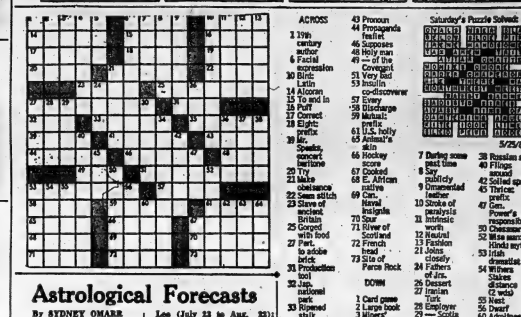
"What a relief to see you — for a minute I thought this was a harp!"





Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For May 26

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Full Moon highlights change of mood, desires for change of scenery. But wise course is one which sees you holding fast. Permit intellect to rule rather than emotions.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Make sure you can fulfill promises concerning money. Otherwise don't make them in first place. Three is nothing to prove. Your own charm speaks for itself. You can't "buy" your way.

Gemini (May 21 to June 20): Speak "low." Permit actions to rule over boasts, claims. Many in top positions are supersensitive during this Full Moon day. Be a good listener. Don't be too quick to answer.

Cancer (June 21 to July 22): Take care of yourself. Don't do things merely to please others. Simplicity is order of the day. Avoid extremes. Your health may require attention, including diet. Be sensible.

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 22): Your Leo flair for drama, showmanship, making impression, could create spending problem. Give more of yourself. Forget timel and outer concerning . . . reveal inner feelings.

Virgo (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22): Looken up! You are not being "hemmed in." The closure is of your own design. Break it down. Make this a day in which you start anew. Have hope, faith . . . and you won't need charity!

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Depend only upon yourself. Friends may mean well — but lose interest. Full Moon highlights journeys, ideas, reports. Much action — some opposition. Key is steady approach.

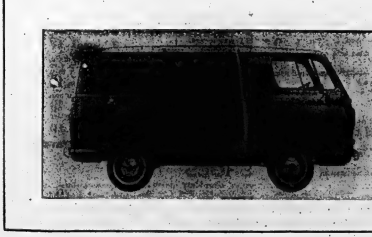
Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Obtain hint from Libra message. Better to be steady than flashy. Means attend to basic matters. Get routine task out of way. Put solid foundation under your ideals.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Full Moon coincides with unusual circumstances. Much action indicated. You may meet people in unorthodox manner. You will obtain results . . . but not the way you planned.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19): Work favored in conjunction with organizations. Fine for motion picture or theatrical activity. Includes areas of community projects. Reach out for stimulating experiences.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18): Full Moon spotlights aspirations — the way to attain fulfillment. Offer is due. Take solid steps forward. No time to go backwards. You have ability . . . this is day to prove it!

Pisces (Feb. 19 to Mar. 20): Better for finishing than for beginning — piece puzzle together. Full Moon emphasizes profession, dealings with experts. Key is caution. Double check all facts before acting!



If today is your birthday . . . you really could succeed in business without really trying! Plenty of initiative, much drive and the will to "win" shown.

General Tendencies: Full Moon stresses international trade agreement. People "at top" are in shaky position.

FREES MAN

LEEDS, England (AP) — Brian Wigglesworth, thin man of the city fire brigade, wiggled through a 15-inch-square aperture in a 140-foot chimney and freed a trapped steeplejack who had fallen from a boson's chair slung from the top and become engulfed in soot.

NEW HANDI-VAN 1964 G.M.C. TRUCKS

The Handi-Van, newest member of the big line of GMC van and panel models, offers special load carrying features which distinguish it from other models. Its unitized body-frame construction provides a rigid, durable structure with an unusually large load compartment and high weight carrying ability. With engine and driving controls up front, the load compartment has a large flat-floored area. For all-around hauling utility at rock bottom cost, The Handi-Van offers more than any other truck in its class.

Two Rescued After Sailboat Is Capsized

PICTON (Staff)—Two young people can be thankful that they were seen when their small sailboat capsized on the Bay of Quinte near the cement plant on Saturday afternoon.

Arnold Covert, R.R. 2, Picton, was watching the water through a pair of binoculars when he noticed a capsized sailboat. He called the O.P.P. where Constable Harold Sisty called the airport requesting assistance. Murray Clapp CFI at the club, raced out, and finding the capsized vessel, radioed back to the club.

He continued to circle the boat until a cat was dispatched from the Picton Marina.

The young couple, Janet Ruth Slack, 20, R.R. 5, Picton, and Michael Beaumont, 22, Bower St., Picton, were clinging to the overturned boat. They had been in the water for over two hours when they were picked up.

They were very wise in staying with the boat, but according to reports received, they had only one life jacket on board, and it, "floated away".

Apart from a severe ducking, and slight suffering from the extremely cold water, neither of the young people suffered any ill effects from their "dunking".

Ameliasburg Twp. Completes Canvass

The Cancer canvass in Ameliasburg township has been completed, and campaign chairman Hermon Montgomery reported a total of $280.22 collected.

The chairman would like to thank the residents of Ameliasburg for their wholehearted support of this campaign, with a special thank-you to those who gave their time in conducting the canvass.

These donations will assist the Canadian Cancer Society in its threefold program of supporting cancer research, educating the public, and assisting cancer patients.

Three sky divers were bitterly disappointed that they could not jump for the entertainment of the crowds at Picton Flying Club Sunday. Left to right, all set to go up are, John Beaudreau, RCAF Trenton; Don Miller, Napanee, and Clarence Soucy of the Halifax Sky Divers' Club. The wind was too high to permit them to jump.

Airplane Rides Given 400 for Rotary Club

PICTON (Staff) — The Rotary Club of Picton is many Collars richer — over 400 men, women and children received an airplane ride over the county, and ten pilots are rather weary.

This was the aftermath of the annual Prince Edward Flying Club show, whereby the passengers paid a cent a pound of their weight (with a maximum of $2 for adults and 50c for children) with all of the money so paid going to the Rotary Club to aid in their efforts with the crippled children of the county.

The 25 m.p.h. wind stopped three attempts by the sky divers to thrill the crowds with their delayed jumps. They went up three different times, but the high winds forced them to return to earth via the aircraft, not the silk chute.

Five aircraft and ten pilots under the direction of Murray Clapp, CFI made the "circuits and bumps" starting at ten a.m. they were forced to stay down for about an hour at about 6 p.m. when a torrential rain swept the airport, but as soon as it stopped raining, they were back at the monotonous grind.

Rotary officials were more than pleased with results, and Murray Clapp was happy that so many people turned out for the day." We were very glad to be able to offer our aircraft and our services for such a worthwhile effort," he said.

U Thant Warns Of Dangers In Cyprus Crisis

Addresses Joint Sitting Of Commons, Senate

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — United Nations Secretary-General U Thant warned today that a total breakdown in Cyprus "could all too easily lead to a far wider and more lethal conflict."

In an address to a joint sitting of the Commons and Senate, he appealed to the Cyprist leaders to arrest and reverse the "vicious circle of accusation and counter-accusation, of incident and reprisal."

Mr. Thant said the local newspapers in Cyprus and the information media of both the Greek and Turkish communities do little to lessen "the hatred or to calm the fears of their readers and listeners."

Rather, they tend to fan the flames of violence and suspicion by sensational reporting and propaganda and thus aggravate the very conflicts and disasters which have brought death and suffering to so many of the people of Cyprus.

SHOOTING RANDOM

Leaders of armed bands on both sides, whatever their official status, serve no interest, "except perhaps their own self-esteem, by random shooting, abductions, terrorism, harassment and rhetorical demonstrations."

The world is long past being impressed by such performances," the secretary-general said.

Mr. Thant also said the UN force in Cyprus is not conducting a punitive expedition.

"We are trying to help the people of an embattled and embittered island to live in peace and prosperity again.

We are not guided by martial criteria, however glamorous and momentarily decisive they may seem; but by the deep desire to solve a human problem by civilized means.

"It may take a little longer—perhaps very much longer—but I have no doubt that, in terms of the present and of the future, the effort is worth it and the results will be enduring."

Mr. Thant spoke as reports arrived here that Canadian troops serving with the force were fired on again in the Kyrenian Mountains.

Mr. Thant gave his support to Canada's plan for organizing an international peacekeeping

Body Rejects Transplanted Kidney Given by a Grandmother

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Eight weeks of hospital reports, sometimes "encouraging" but more recently "deteriorating," ended Monday with the death of Robert Bainbridge.

The 21-year-old London native died after receiving an extra six weeks of life because a stranger gave him one of her kidneys.

Two crucial stages had passed — the transplant operation itself and his remarkable recovery — but the third, and most hazardous, was tentatively labelled the killer.

Doctors who performed the operation at St. Joseph's Hospital March 28 said Monday death appeared to have been caused by the body rejecting the new kidney.

Today's Chuckle

He who is too busy to laugh is too busy.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: An influx of warmer air today heralds the approach of an area of scattered showers and thunderstorms expected to move through the district later today, tonight and early Wednesday. Somewhat cooler air will spread over the district behind the showers.

The donor was a 44-year-old grandmother, Mrs. James Ackworth.

By chance she had overheard a doctor's conversation about Bainbridge and offered her kidney on the spot.

"I want to live as long as I can," she said. "I'm sure he does too."

Mrs. Ackworth, released from hospital in fine condition April 20, said Monday: "I'm all broken up about it . . . he was a fine boy and my chance he might have had for a normal life was worth any risk I might have taken."

Bainbridge had suffered a kidney ailment since 1956. It worsened last September and doctors discovered his kidneys had started to deteriorate.

By the time the transplant operation was performed—the second of its type in London—he had been given only two weeks to live.

A hospital spokesman said after the death Bainbridge had been on an artificial kidney machine three times in the last three weeks as his condition gradually deteriorated.

Attending physician Dr. Boris Bagula said: "We could get no response from any of the medications we used (during the last two weeks)."

Critical Of Farm Policies

By ROBERT RICE

OTTAWA (CP) — Alvin Hamilton, former Conservative agriculture minister, called Monday in the Commons for an all-party political truce to draft a comprehensive program to cure the troubles of eastern farmers.

He followed up this proposal with a non-confidence motion aimed at toppling the minority Liberal government over its "continuing failure" to solve pressing agricultural problems in eastern Canada.

The government is expected to survive the attack—as it has on the nine previous motions of confidence in government policies raised by the opposition parties.

The vote is due at 8:15 p.m. EDT tonight—the eve of the day the government is expected to unfurl its maple leaf design for a Canadian flag.

Mr. Hamilton said the government was trying to force a "shotgun decision" on Canadians over the flag. He charged the government with using the flag issue to hide its unfilled promises and to whitewash its sins of commission.

ELECTION COMING?

Canadians are wondering whether an election is coming, he declared.

For a while, it looked as though Mr. Hamilton was going to make his non-confidence motion on the flag issue—thus answering the challenge issued last week by Prime Minister Pearson.

But he veered from the flag theme, plowed into a statistical appraisal of farm problems and wound up with a motion criticizing the administration on eastern farm policies.

In the process, he suggested that the standing Commons committee on agriculture be allowed to act as a non-partisan, fact-finding committee.

"We would come up with a strong program supported by all parties if the government will let the members of the committee act as members to help agriculture in eastern Canada," he said.

AIRS COMPLAINT

But New Democrat Arnold Peters, a trade unionist who generally speaks on farm matters for his party, complained that Conservative committees never generally speaks on farm matters for his party, complained that Conservative committees never generally speaks on farm matters for his party, complained that Conservative committees never

Council Agrees to Buy Land Rather Than Expropriate It

Despite a warning that some day the city will be "stuck badly" because of its failure to adopt a definite land purchase policy, city council yesterday returned down a recommendation to commence expropriation proceedings to acquire something over an acre of land taken up by construction of an access road in the Hillcrest area.

Council approved of a motion to pay Mr. Gordon Olivier at the rate of $2,000 per acre for 1.179 acres used for the Tice Crescent access road leading off 37 Highway south of 401 Highway. Payment to Mr. Olivier will include legal costs not to exceed $100.

Earlier this year council authorized an offer to purchase to be made to Mr. Olivier for the 1.179-acre property required for the road right-of-way.

Mr. Olivier agreed to the offer, subject to the city also paying his legal costs.

FAVOR EXPROPRIATION

But at least two members of council Aldermen Ben Corke and Ross Bailey felt expropriation proceedings should be commenced rather than pay the price offered by the city.

Ald. Bailey said eventually the city would have to take a firm stand in its land acquisition policy, otherwise property owners would be out to "get all they can from the city".

Ald. Corke suggested that in this instance if the city expropriated it was not sure that the city would have to pay at the rate of $2,000 per acre, but if some policy was not set eventually the city would end up by paying much more than the market value.

Alderman Doug Boyle said in this case however it might not pay to proceed with expropriation. He felt it would be more economical to pay the offered rate but not pay Mr. Olivier's legal costs.

Ald. Don Whalen said it would cost approximately $300 to get appraisals if expropriation was proceeded with. He said the council should accept the offer and pay legal costs.

Council defeated Ald. Bailey's motion to commence expropriating proceedings and in turn approved of Ald. David's motion to pay the price offered by the city plus legal costs not to exceed $100.

Resolution on Hospital Services Is Turned Down

Belleville city council yesterday turned down a resolution originating from the municipality of New Toronto asking extension of the Ontario Hospital Services Plan to cover payments to licensed nursing homes.

The resolution in question was before council two weeks ago, but it was tabled pending a report from the hospital board.

The preamble to the New Toronto resolution indicated that patients admitted to hospital under the Ontario Hospital Services, after some months, have been advised that they must vacate to a nursing home as their benefits have been cut off.

The resolution asked that OHS plan be extended to cover payments to nursing home or to allow such patients to remain in hospital.

Belleville Hospital Board, chairman, J. N. Yanover in a letter to council noted that contrary to the New Toronto resolution, patients are not advised that they must vacate the hospital because benefits have been cut off.

HOW SERVICE CUT OFF

"What does happen, he said, is that the patients are informed that in the opinion of their attending doctor they require active hospital treatment and that if they continue to stay in hospital after they no longer need hospital services then their benefits are cut off as custodial care is not a covered benefit.

He said, that the OHSC does and will pay for patient care in a recognized and approved nursing home where these institutions must comply with all regulations set forth by the commission.

City Manager J. R. Reynolds, however, told council that few nursing homes in the province are licensed. He therefore recommended approval of a resolution asking payments be extended to cover nursing homes.

The city manager's suggested resolution however did not spell out all aspects of the matter in detail and a vote was taken referring the resolution to the finance committee.

Questioned as to whether a proper vote on the referral had been taken, Ald. Donald Gas as chairman of the committee of the whole, ruled that it had. But his ruling was overturned and the matter was still before council.

Mon. Frank Murray offered to write the resolution out in full, but when this came before council it was defeated by an 8-5 vote.

Several other out-of-town resolutions were also before the council.

One of these, from the city of Woodstock asking for federal and provincial governments to assume the educational portion of municipal tax assessments, had been before council two weeks ago but was referred to the public school board for report.

Schools superintendent L. A. Kells in a letter to council suggested the premises for the argument in the city of Woodstock resolution is not soundly based. Council voted not to concur in the resolution.

Council also turned down a resolution from the city of Cornwall asking that the provincial sales tax be raised from three to four percent, the increase to be allocated to the municipalities for municipal purposes.

Retaining Wall To Be Built, Paint City Hall

Re - construction of a section of retaining wall north of the Upper Bridge, which collapsed a week or so ago, is being held up pending acquisition of proper materials, city council was told yesterday.

Alderman Jack Allin said an $11,000 estimate had been placed on reconstruction of the wall if done with concrete and priced were being asked for metal bin wall materials. Estimate of cost with the latter material being used was about $7,000, the alderman said.

Council yesterday also authorized close to $4,000 worth of redecoratin. and maintenance at city hall.

Included is painting of the city hall exterior at a cost of $1,250. General maintenance work is estimated at $2,004.

WENT BY AIR

For the first time, New Zealand's National Airways Corporation carried more than 800,000 passengers in a year in 1963.

Council Pays Tribute to C. L. Hyde

Tribute to Charles L. Hyde, well known Belleville businessman, former city councillor, school board member and community worker, was paid at city council yesterday.

Mr. Hyde, an active worker in the Belleville community since 1926, died in Belleville General Hospital yesterday afternoon following a six weeks' illness.

In his honor, the flag atop city hall today is flying at half staff, while with the exception of a skeleton staff, city hall will be closed Thursday afternoon during the time of Mr. Hyde's funeral.

Yesterday prior to the regular meeting of city council, Mayor Jack Ellis called for a moment's silence in Mr. Hyde's honor.

"I never sat with Mr. Hyde on council, but I am well aware of his long service on council and other civic bodies," he said.

TRIBUTE PAID

Alderman George Wishart also paid tribute to Mr. Hyde noting that he had sat for several years with him on the school board.

"Mr. Hyde took a great interest in the Belleville community," said Ald. Wishart. "He was a first class citizen."

Alderman Jack Allin echoed Mr. Wishart's tribute to the former councillor and school board member.

"I sat with Mr. Hyde both on city council and on the school board. He was a stalwart of the city," he said.

Mr. Hyde served for a total of 18 years on city council, ten years on the public school board and had been active in many other civic bodies.

4-H Members Of 2 Counties Visit Ottawa

One of the highlights for 4-H members each year is their annual bus trip to Ottawa, which is sponsored by Hastings County council. This trip is awarded to the high member in each 4-H Agricultural Club with 85% or over in the 4-H Homemaking Club members with four years of 4-H Homes (8 projects completed). On Thursday, May 21st, a chartered bus load of 4-H members accompanied by Lyall MacLachlan, Assistant Agricultural Representative, and Miss Elizabeth Spouse, Home Economist, travelled to Ottawa.

On the way, the Hastings group were joined by a busload from Prince Edward County, the Members Home Economics Committee from Marmora, Mr. Rod Webb and Mr. Douglas Aikenbrack, members of Parliament for Hastings and Prince Edward, welcomed the group and guided them through the Parliament Buildings, explaining the history and features of the library, tower, Senate chamber and other committee rooms. 4-H members were privileged to be the guests of some time observing the House of Commons and the Senate in session. Dinner was enjoyed at the Parliament cafeteria, thanks to the three members of Parliament.

In the afternoon members visited the R.C.M.P. barracks and later had a tour of the Central Experimental Farm.

Both groups stopped for supper at the Hedgerow Shopping Plaza in Ottawa before returning home.

A bright sunny day, with thousands of tulips at their peak of bloom made the gardens and driveways a sight all present will long remember.

Al-Anon Aids Families of Alcoholics

Alcoholism is a serious problem affecting the entire family. Help must be given to not not only to the alcoholic, but to the members of the family, in order that they may learn how to adjust to living with the problem drinker.

Undoubtedly, all are familiar with Alcoholics Anonymous for the alcoholic but may not be aware of a source of help for the families of problem drinkers, known as their Al-Anon Family Group. These groups number over a hundred in Canada and more than a thousand in the United States, meeting regularly for the purpose of helping members of the alcoholic's family to better understand alcoholism as a disease and how to meet the consequences. The primary aim of Al-Anon is to help the relatives gain greater peace by the removal of harmful attitudes, such as resentment, self-pity, fear or shame, through knowledge gained, one becomes more objective and the results in greater harmonie in the home. In many instances this encourages the alcoholic to seek help for himself.

An Al-Anon Family Group has been active in Belleville for the past 3½ years. Meetings are held on the 2nd and 4th Tuesday of each month at the Tabernacle United Church. All families of problem drinkers and those who can extend this message of hope to the family are invited to attend.

The program is anonymous. There is no creed, no obligations, no charges or anything that would tend to hinder joining.

Anyone who would like to know more about the program or feels a need for help should write Al-Anon Family Group, P.O. Box 164, Belleville.

Charles L. Hyde, Business, Civic, Church Leader, Dies

Prominent in the business, civic, church and sporting life of this city for many years, Charles London Hyde, 86 Victoria Avenue, of the firm of C. L. Hyde and Son, Ltd., Plumbers, died in Belleville General Hospital late Monday afternoon, after an illness that extended for five weeks. For over a quarter of a century he gave unstintingly of his time and ability to the furtherance of his adopted city in many avenues of community life.

CHARLES L HYDE

He was born in Sidney township, 76 years ago, being the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Hyde and as a young boy he came to this city and with the exception of a few years in the United States spent his entire life in this community. He was educated in the public and high school and then graduated from the Ontario Business College in 1914 and joined William McGee in the plumbing business. He entered business shortly after with the late James Diamond and since 1918 has operated a successful business on Front Street. In 1958 the firm, which now includes his only son, observed the 50th anniversary of the business.

Despite his growing business, he found time to assist his city in many facets. He was a devout and faithful member of Bridge Street United Church and took an active interest in the Sunday School, being a teacher and treasurer for many years. He was a member of the Board of Stewards for 25 years and a member of the Board of Trustees for 15 years at the time of his death. Mr. Hyde never lost his youthfulness and took a deep interest in the Men's Club of his church.

The Board of Education received his attention for many years. He was a member of the Board for nine years and was honored with the chairmanship of that Board. He was also a past-chairman of the Library Board and was an active member at the time of his death. Mr. Hyde was also a member of the Film Council.

CAS DEAR TO HEART

The Caldron's Aid Society was very dear to his heart and he faithfully served the organization for 17 years. He was honored with the presidency of the Society for four years and was then the efficient treasurer for another ten years. He was never happier than trying to advance the lot of the underprivileged. He took an active interest in the Senior Citizens' Club and was honored with the presidency for two terms. During his term of office in the club, Mr. Hyde supplied interesting reports of the meetings. His interest never lagged in service work and when the Kiwanis Club was formed in this city he became a charter member and was an active member for many years.

In the fraternal life of the city he was also active. Mr. Hyde was a life member of The Belleville Lodge A.F. and A.M. No. 122 and a Past Worthy Patron of Minerva Chapter Order of the Eastern Star No. 138. He was also a member of Benjamin L.O.L. No. 274 in this city for many years.

The field of civic politics attracted Mr. Hyde as a young man and on three separate occasions he served as an Alderman of this city. He was first elected in 1926 and served until the end of 1930 and again served from 1943 to 1953 inclusive. In his third term he went into the civic arena he served in 1956 and '57 and in all these terms he gave unstintingly of his time and ability for the advancement of the community. He entered the mayoralty contest on two occasions.

ARDENT LAWN BOWLER

Mr. Hyde derived his busy life took time out for recreation and lawn bowling was his favorite pastime. He was a member when the greens were located on William Street and assisted when the management was made to the fairgrounds, where the greens are now located. He bowled for many years and was the winner of many tournaments throughout the district. With his son, Gerald, he sponsored the Hyde Trophy, which today is one of the main tournaments of the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club.

Charles L. Hyde was a gentle, charming man, a lover of his home and church and one who easily made and held a wide circle of friends in every walk of life. He enjoyed companionship and fellowship with all classes and he built a successful business on honesty and integrity. Mr. Hyde will be sadly missed by a wide circle.

Surviving are his wife, the former Laura Bateman, one son, Gerald B. Hyde, ex - mayor of the city and member of the firm and one sister, Mrs. Frank (Ada) Treverton also of this city. Also surviving are one granddaughter and two grandsons.

The funeral will be held from Bridge Street United Church on Thursday afternoon at two o'clock with interment in the family plot in Belleville cemetery.

Delivery Boys To Get Less Under New Law

TORONTO (CP) — Labor department officials said Monday the 20 - cent - an - hour minimum wage for delivery boys will be cut to 60 cents under the new regulations of the Ontario Minimum Wage Act which go into effect June 29.

The new rate is designed to cover unskilled youths and schoolboys. The 90 - cent rate had caused many messenger and delivery boys to lose their jobs, the department said.

Previously limited to the Toronto-Hamilton area, the minimum wage coverage will be extended across the province June 29. Nearly all non-farm men and women workers will be guaranteed a $1 hourly wage minimum by December 1, 1965. Construction workers will be guaranteed $1.25 an hour.

Exceptions include a 60-cent rate for news - vendors, bowling alley pin setters, shoeshine boys, caddies and persons working in municipally-operated public libraries and exhibition amusement booths.

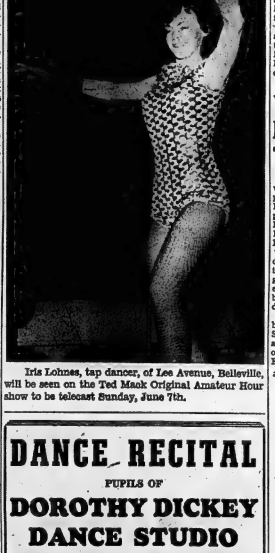
Not in Favor Of Smoking At Meetings

If Alderman Ben Corke has his way smoking during city council sessions will be a thing of the past.

Yesterday the finance committee chairman introduced a notice of motion that at the next meeting he would present a motion for an amendment of procedural by-laws, which would prohibit smoking during council sessions.

Under rules of procedure there was no discussion on the notice of motion, but immediately following the meeting Ald. Corke was the target of queries from his fellow councillors.

Mounties Still Want to Build Quarters Here



The Federal government is still interested in a Belleville location for its proposed new Royal Canadian Mounted Police district headquarters.

Several months ago the federal public works department sought to purchase property along East Bridge Street near the Belleville Plaza as a site for its Belleville headquarters, but nearby residents objected and the matter was dropped.

At the time there was some fear that an out of town location might be chosen for the headquarters building, but last night Mayor J. Ellis said the department was now interested in another Belleville location.

It would still be another three or four weeks however, before a decision on the location would be reached, he said.

Press and RCAF Personnel Take Ride in New Hercules

TRENTON — Press representatives and RCAF personnel were yesterday taken on demonstration flights in Air Transport Command's newest aircraft, the Lockheed C-130-E Hercules. Test pilot Ralph Evans of Lockheed put the aircraft through its paces and allowed Trenton pilots to take over the controls to get the "feel" of the big bird.

The C-130-B model Hercules has been used as a dray horse by the RCAF for a number of years because of its payload capabilities and the fact that it can take off and land on a thin dime.

The C-130-S, with a strengthened wing, to support pylon tanks, which carry approximately 1,400 U.S. gallons of gas to supplement the internal aircraft supply of almost 7,000 U.S. gallons, will be able to travel greater distances with the same cargo load. The RCAF has ordered 16 of the new Hercules; seven for 436 Squadron; seven for 435 Squadron at Edmonton and two for ATC's Operational Training Unit at Trenton. The first Trenton delivery will be made before the end of the year.

Yesterday, the dime got thinner and thinner as the new Hercules took off and landed in what seemed incredibly short runway space. Performance in the privately-owned passenger plane performance for "smoothness" and speeds. Two weeks ago, Evans took off and his crew took the aircraft aloft and held to a prescribed course in the southern USA for 25 hours.

The aircraft demonstrated yesterday afternoon, last night carried Air Commodore R. J. Lane, Air Officer Commanding Air Transport Command and staff officers to Montreal, where they will attend the Second International Air Cargo Forum. The capabilities of the aircraft will be demonstrated at the three-day forum.

Air Commodore Lane will deliver the keynote address at the forum today.

On Saturday, the demonstration aircraft will take off on a world tour of military installations and commercial airfields.

Accepted as a military cargo aircraft in almost every country of any size in the world, Lockheed now hopes to gain license to sell the aircraft commercially.

Pedestrian Walk, Bicycle Path Is Requested

A plea for provision of a pedestrian walk and bicycle path along the Bay Bridge Road to Zwick's Island was made yesterday at city council.

Alderman Douglas Boyle said that such a path or walk was badly needed for safety reasons.

He noted that improved facilities at the Island were attracting more and more visitors but pedestrians and bicyclists were in constant danger from auto traffic along Bay Bridge Road.

Alderman Boyle also asked that proper school signs be placed in the vicinity of St. Michael's in the Victoria Ave. district.

"Children are not careless, just carefree," he said, asking that proper provisions be made for their safety.

A Dundas Street West, resident also addressed council in the interests of safety.

Mrs. H. Reed, said that reflective tape had disappeared from warning signs in her area with result that motorists are driving too fast along the street.

PROMISES RELIEF

TORONTO (CP) — Highways Minister MacNaughton Monday assured homeowners bordering Highway 401 in the northern suburbs of Toronto they will receive compensation when the road is widened to 12 lanes. The minister told delegates from a ratepayers' association "the situation is sufficiently unique to warrant some measure of relief."

Victor Burtt Named to Head Trenton Legion

TRENTON — Victor Burtt was last night elected 1964-65 president of Trenton Legion Branch 110, to succeed retiring president Horace Matheson. First vice-president is Harold King; second vice is 'Red' Brummell.

Reports of the Royal Canadian Legion's national convention in Winnipeg last week were given by former zone commander Eli Donaldson and past branch president Kenneth Craddock.

Speaker for the June 3 D-Day banquet at Trenton will be Col. S. M. Lett, of Tweed, himself a D-Day veteran, who will tell of the first day and invasion of Europe.

"YEAH, YEAH, YEAH, YEAH," . . . but it isn't who you think. Mrs. Georgina Smith, Miss Dorothy Matthews, Mrs. Ena Corke and Ringo, Mrs. Muriel Yorke, all of Belleville, were part of the entertainment at last night's celebration of the Soroptimists' Club's 17th birthday, at the home of Trenton members, Miss Marion Baker and Miss Lucy Baker.

Study Repairs Required for Swing Bridge

TRENTON — Department of Transport engineers have been examining Trenton's bridge for the past few weeks to verify a repair bill of $80,000, estimated by Ontario Department of Highways engineers last year.

In order to get an upwards of $300,000 grant from the federal agency towards a new bridge across the Trent River, the town of Trenton must take over all repairs and maintenance of the swing portion of the old bridge . . . and infinitum. Mayor James MacDonald is determined to take over the swing portion only when it is in first class condition, and the Department of Transport has guaranteed to foot the repair bill to make it so.

Since the Ontario Department of Highways has promised a 75 per cent grant on the bridge structure itself and on approaches leading up to the bridge, the more-than-a-million-dollar structure should cost the town nothing. The DHO pledged last year to consider the bridge and the approaches in the light of a connecting link between highways 401 and 33 — hence the 75 per cent subsidy.

17th Birthday of Soroptimist Club of Belleville Observed

TRENTON — Fifteen members of the Soroptimist Club of Belleville celebrated the 17th anniversary of the club with a dinner at the Glenburnie Motel, west of Trenton, last night and went on to the home of the club's newest members, Miss Beaton Baker and Miss Lucy Baker, on Byron St., Trenton, to enjoy entertainment by The Beatles and a troupe of Hawaiian dancers and to eat a slice of birthday cake.

Blowing out candles on the cake was the charter president, Georgina Smith and she was assisted by four charter members, Helen Keeler, Tillie Mazer, Frances Bennett and Leona Riggs.

Miss Riggs, who is leaving Belleville to take up residence in Rhode Island, U.S.A., was presented with a gift from the club by the 1963-64 president, Muriel Yorke.

A special guest at the meeting was Mrs. Helen Upper, past-president of the Cobourg-Port Hope club.

A joint installation of executive members for 1964-65 of the Cobourg-Port Hope club and the Belleville club will be held in Belleville on June 15.

One Man's Folly Kills 500

Five hundred lives is a fearful price to pay for bad manners.

In essence, though, that is what happened at Lima, Peru, where hundreds of spectators died at a soccer crowd rioted and panicked.

The blame rests squarely on the shoulders of one man, who started the riot by racing across the field in an effort to get at a referee who moments before had made a decision unpopular with the crowd.

Yet precisely the same reaction may be seen almost any season, in almost any town where sport is played.

Fortunately these unmannerly fools rarely succeed in starting serious trouble.

Nevertheless, the possibility exists.

The lesson is obvious. Police are present at most games. They ought to act promptly the first time a spectator, any spectator, invades the playing field. A few arrests and appropriate action by the courts might curb these over-enthusiastic "fans"—and perhaps prevent the Lima tragedy on a lesser scale, being repeated.

A Difficult Trick

Adlai Stevenson suggests the United Nations might establish a watch on the border of Cambodia and South Viet Nam.

This would be a good trick if the UN could do it. It would prevent Viet Cong guerrillas from using Cambodia as a base for raids on South Viet Nam and it would also prevent the South Vitnamese from disrupting the life of Cambodian peasants by chasing alleged guerrillas through Cambodian villages.

Perhaps the plan is feasible. We can, however, think of two formidable barriers, one geographic and the other physiognomic. From what we have read of that part of the world, the topography of the border area does not make it exactly easy to police, what with jungles, marshes, mountains and whatnot. Even supposing, though, through some miracle the UN could intercept all persons wandering through the region, by what magic are the UN policemen to distinguish between a peaceful Cambodian peasant and a ferocious Viet Cong guerrilla?

A UN border watch might prove helpful, but it is the essence of guerrilla warfare of the type being fought in Southeast Asia that it is virtually impossible to distinguish a warrior from a farmer if one strips one of his rifle and the other of his hoe.

Up to Provinces

Mayor Charlotte Whitton has told members of the Canadian Hospital Association that provincial governments soon will have to take over the financial burden of municipal hospitals.

We wish someone else had said that.

Miss Whitton is right. But she has carried on so many crusades, some of them wrong, that there is a danger of this warning being dismissed as just another of her pet theories.

This is no theory. Municipalities cannot afford to pay for hospitals out of taxes. They cannot expect to finance their expansion by voluntary contributions, as was largely done in the past. Charity towards the sick is one thing; digging into one's pocket to provide the facilities for the use of which the province has already collected a hospitalization tax, or premium, is another.

Hospitals are now very much the province's baby.

Peace-Maker?

Premier John Robarts says that he regards the Red Ensign as an "old friend" but recognizes Canada's need for a distinctive flag. Somehow we cannot help wondering whether this really expresses his personal views on the matter.

We have a hunch that he may have been endeavoring to pour oil on the troubled waters, an activity with which he has experimented on several occasions recently, notably in connection with pension proposals.

Premier Robarts ought to be more careful.

Despite his unfortunate "Casualty" with the "police state" bill, he frequently sounds suspiciously like a statesman, a condition which has proven fatal to many Canadian politicians in the past.

That a modern advertiser can assess our mental age to be about 8 and get away with it in sales and profits reflects little credit on him, but it is an even more terrible indictment of ourselves.—Ven. E. F. Carpenter, Archdeacon of Westminster

Separatist Jokes Could Be Harbinger of a Mild Thaw

By RICHARD JACKSON

From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — "... notes off the reportorial cuff ...

Sign of a Thaw?:

Could be the deep freeze of the cold war that Quebec seems to have been waging against the rest of Canada now may be melting just a mite.

For bitter and acid though Quebec Resources Minister Rene Levesque and other French Canadian ministers on the outer edges make threatened Separatism, people are beginning to joke about it.

The laughs are a little on the very side, but still it could be all to the good that they are laughs.

Among the heartier comes from Forestry Minister Maurice Sauve who quotes a Saskatchewan farmer on Quebec Separatism as saying:

"I don't much care whether they go or whether they stay — but if they leave, I hope to goodness they'll take Toronto with them."

DOWN TO EARTH:

Young Erik Nielson, the combative Conservative, comes not from the frontiers, but from the Yukon, but he has that certain earthy Western touch.

He has become such a hard case in heckling the Liberals in general and hectoring the prime minister in particular that the Commons has come to know him as "Yukon Eric," a name you'll really recognize as borrowed from another hard case, this one engaged in the wrestling business.

Tough-talking Erik Nielson the other night, in charging Agriculture Minister Hays with operating his Federal department in old-time pork barrel style, accused him with his plunge into political patronage of "sticking the manure fork into the nearest rump."

Millionaire Calgary stockman that he is, Harry Hays "got" it quickly enough, bellowing like a bull.

PAL JOEY

Friend of Newfoundland Premier Joseph Smallwood — and they are multiplying madly since he left Ottawa to succeed Outer Fringer, Resources Minister Rene Levesque, in vertical triplicate — will beginningly disappointed that he can't really be called "Sir Joey."

As just about the only upper echlon political man in Canada with guts enough to tick off and swat down Rene Levesque, he royally deserves recognition of the knighthood that Portugese Premier Antonio Salazar sought to bestow on him.

Pal Joey has his thousands of new friends cheering for him having called a startling three-day halt to Monsieur Levesque's vast territorial ambitions which had included Mr. Smallwood's jealously-guarded Labrador.

But sadly, the stuffy External Affairs Department, in the face of Joey's "no trespassing" order to Rene — or, could it be because of it? — has refused to become "aware," as the Stripped Pants Boys like to phrase it, of the Smallwood honor.

The announcement came out of St. John's: "Premier Joseph Smallwood of Newfoundland has been granted a knighthood. During his visit to Portugal he was invested with the Grand Cross of Prince Henry the Navigator, by Admiral Tomaz."

But External Affairs apparently is not taking the Premier's word for it and insists that the only Portugese knighthood in Canada is held by Paul Bouchard, President of Quebec's Expagnol.

FAIT ACCOMPLI:

Rene Levesque would be pleased to know that in Quebec Park eyes, the National Capital apparently is already a French-Candian city, perhaps even to be considered a Quebec beachhead on the Eastern Ontario shore.

Copies of Ontario's hadsome-ly printed official tourist brochure arriving through the mails are French.

Queen's Park must assure that with one - third of the National Capital's metro area population of 450,000 Anglophones living, the Quebec take - over is inevitable even if Mayor Charlotte Whitton's brave fulminations on flying the Red Ensign over City Hall and having the street signs in English only.

Closing note: "The Separatist element has become so bold in the Capital that the Canadian Red Ensigns are being defaced here on Parliament Hill — in the West Block, in fact, where some of the MPs have their offices.

Hardship Pay

Ottawa Citizen

Perhaps a suitable recompense for senators kept waiting by the Commons is to give them hardship pay, like the Canadian troops in Cyprus.

Mishaps Due Drivers' Own Inattention

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

"I was very interested in your column on 'projected' a few weeks ago," writes a man in Pennsylvania. "As someone who has worked in traffic safety for the last 18 years, I can assure you that the tendency to blame others is the outstanding characteristic of every motorist involved in an accident.

"I have almost never investigated a case — even on the scene, where the facts quite plainly spoke for themselves — in which a driver admitted his fault. And this is not just fear of prosecution, for even when an law is broken, the average motorist has a need to blame something outside of himself for an accident.

"Nobody ever admits he was going over the speed limit. No one ever does off at the wheel. No one ever takes reckless chances. No one ever darts out on a highway from a sideroad without looking. No one ever begins passing on a curve or up a hill.

"The people in my business have a standing joke about the phantom truck.' When a driver cuts in too suddenly and hits another car, he invariably blames it on some truck that was coming toward him too fast and forced him to cut in. No one else has ever seen this truck. It has no licence plates, and can not be found.

"Then there is the stuck accelerator. You'd be surprised at how many accidents are caused and are responsible for accidents — although when we examine the car carefully, the accelerator seems to be working fine. Brakes fail, too, at the most peculiar time — and, just as peculiarly, are in good working order again after the accident.

"Drivers get blinded by rays of sunlight, but the sight is obscured by fog, or they suddenly sneezed, or the cigarette lighter jumped out of its socket and disconcerted them. It is never their own inattention, their carelessness, their failure to look, their radio or lighting a cigarette when they should have been paying heed to the road.

"In 19 years, Mr. Harris, I can remember only one person — a college boy — who openly and completely admitted his responsibility and refused to blame anything outside of himself. We almost kissed him with joy. But all the others — and they included ministers, judges, public officials — had no trouble in projecting their fault onto the car, or another car, or the road or the lights, or a black cat that had crossed the highway just in front of them.

"Yet, in more than 90 percent of the cases, this is the only and nothing else, that is at fault. We know this for an absolute fact. It's little wonder that we in traffic safety are so cynical about all excuses. We've heard them all, and every one is a kind of phantom truck."

Russia smashed Napoleon 132 years ago and sent the beaten conqueror into retreat across the cold snows of Russia.

Less than three years ago with loud acclaim the Hitler armies crossed into Russia in their hope to conquer that land of vast resources within a brief period of time. Hitler intended to be the unbeaten conqueror, to do what Napoleon did not have the power to do. But the Hitler armies have been driven far into Poland and Romania, the Russians are on the edge of Hungary; the Hitlerite have been passing through the experience of being trapped in the Crimea and there Russian arms have been winning victory upon victory redeeming

Card of details and disasters which have been inflicted upon them. A like doom to that of Napoleon's in the Russian campaign.

Not Much Can Be Done To Control Sex of Baby

By JOSEPH C. MOLNER, M.D.

Can the sex of a baby be determined in advance? Can the sex of your next child be controlled?

At this stage of understanding of the process, the answer is no. But there are all sorts of theories: the degree of alkalinity in the vagina, the exact time of fertilization, and the degree of emotional stability all influence the sex of the baby-to-be.

However, in my opinion, there is not much that anyone can do to control the sex. All the theories may have some validity. If so we still must determine which of them exert the most influence and discover whether still others might have even more importance, and find ways, perhaps, of making sure that all factors are mobilized at the same time.

In my mail came a letter from a lady in Duluth who has two girl babies and a lot of books, clippings and magazine articles on how to control sex. She takes me to task for not presenting all these theories to readers of this column and adds:

"In my case, if I succeed in conceiving a boy as planned, I'll always attribute it to science, although you'd probably rather call it coincidence. I hope you'll print this even if you may not be convinced that these doctors may know more than you on the subject."

I concede that the researchers on this subject know more than I do about it, but I'm saying is that, with all the work they've done, they've only begun to scratch the surface, and such factors as they have not yet studied may well be far more potent than any they have undertaken thus far.

I'm neither discouraging nor making light of this study. Quite the reverse. I hope the lady in Duluth has a boy. But I doubt that we yet know enough to change Nature's odds very much. It is now a matter of anybody's trouble (except in the cause of research) to try to "decide" whether the next baby will be a boy or a girl.

It may be that some day such control will be possible, if so it will then be necessary to write some new laws governing whether or not you be permitted to have a boy or a girl!

You think I'm joking? If you want to really crudite, look up the archives of last winter's meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science in Cleveland and you will find some papers dealing with the impact on society if for whatever reason, the ratio of boys to girls should be substantially upset.

In fact, I don't even need any learned papers to convince me that there would be a problem! And I'm glad that Nature proves that it can be too easily upset in her designs.

But I still hope the lady in this story has a boy. Maybe twin boys. I wonder if that wouldn't make her doubly sure that she's right and I'm wrong.

Great Oyster Conspiracy

Vancouver Sun

In spring the palpitating oyster does not turn to thoughts of love. Well, not exactly. He (or she, or it) merely palpitates a little faster to pump additional gallons of cold, nourishing British Columbia sea water through his system. He gets plumper and plumper all May and June.

Fattening up, of course, for late summer's spawning season. Thus the succulent B.C. oyster is at his best in two months without an "r" between them.

This plays hob with the great oyster myth that puts the bivalve out of season for some people from the end of April to the beginning of September.

Excusable, of course, from the oyster's point of view. Considering how many oysters get fried or swallowed alive during the "r" months, no wonder they want some protection at the time they reach their peak of gustatory perfection.

Still, timid souls cling to superstition and swear off oysters May 1.

This leaves all the more for the rest of us who are really in the mysterious know. But let us rise superior to mere shellfishness. In the interests of the oyster industry and the human palate we bring you this revealing expose of the great oyster conspiracy.

What Typical Yank Is Like

Hamilton Spectator

Senator Kenneth Keating, a United States senator from neighboring New York State, says this about some of his fellow countrymen:

"So far as I can make out, a typical American is one who comes home from an Italian movie in his German car, has Brazilian coffee in his English mug, sits down in his Danish chair and picks up a Japanese ballpoint pen to write his congressman to support 'Buy American' legislation."

Senator Keating has a point. What he says about the typical American could also be said about the typical Canadian. Only in Ontario, the typical citizen would enjoy his coffee while glancing over the latest American magazines, and he would write his letter to his Ontario MLA on notepaper made in Chicago with ink also made in the U.S.A. And what would he be writing his MLA about? Why, telling him that he thinks the hippopotamus in the Buy-Ontario campaign is just great. Even though it is an African product.

Letters to the Editor

Maple Leaf Flag Is Like Guatemala's

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:

The issue of Canada's national flag is getting out of hand. Could this not have been kept out of politics? To place a government in the position of a "Vote of Confidence" gives the loyal members of the party in power designs for a dictatorship. If the Prime Minister, no other choice but to vote with the party. A referendum is the only people would avoid the restrictions regarding crossing party lines and get a fairer opinion of the masses. A referendum would cost little financially if conducted at the time of a general election.

The flag itself should be free from the political history of the country such as does the Stars and Stripes of the United States and the Union Jack of Great Britain. The Canadian Red Ensign does this but the proposed Maple Leaf is not pretty as it is, lacking in this requirement.

It has been said that Canada needs a distinctive flag. The design preferred by the Prime Minister is not very distinctively Canadian as is the Canadian Red Ensign since the proposed flag is merely a modification of the flag of Guatemala. There is a great danger in adopting a new design lest we err in approving a design, such as the above, which unconsciously resembles the flag of another nation or state. There are two nations and four states using plain white with a symbol and six nations and 23 states using plain blue with a symbol. The addition of maple leaves to such a flag will not make it nearly as distinctively Canadian as the Red Ensign with the Canadian shield and we do have an historical attachment to the Red Ensign.

It is impossible to believe that the United States or the fleur de lis on the Canadian Red Ensign are causes of disunity. Look deeper and find the real causes of disunity, remove them and then the problem will be solved rather than false animosity against the flag will disappear. It is interesting to note that Hawaii, one of the states of our neighbor to the south, is proud to retain the Union Jack in the upper section of its flag.

Has anyone considered the immediate and long term effects of branding the Canadian Red Ensign as a symbol of disunity? What will happen to the colors and emblems of our Armed forces? Are we to have a new Coat of Arms? Will the Union Jack and the fleur de lis of Old France be expunged from this. Will the emblems of France, England, Scotland and Ireland disappear from the Canadian shield? What will happen in the provinces and municipalities and business firms? Will subersive elements within the provinces or the fight for more recognition by French Canadians and other cultural groups force us to drop the Union Jack and other emblems from their shields and flags? Are we to remove from the fleur de lis from its flag and shield?

These things are worth considering but we must set aside such matters as these lest we let the passions of the moment lest we find ourselves in much deeper trouble which may be multiplied many times over.

The future is of great importance. Think ahead. Let the men of vision lead us but do not take an action that will compound our problems including the problem of unity.

Yours sincerely,
John M. Clarke, CD, DDS.
Trenton.

Wants Flag Shown Favors Red Ensign

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.
"Here's to it;
"The fighting sheen of it;
The Red, White and Blue of it;
Every thread of it;
The fair floated for it;
The brave have died for it;
Foemen sought for it;
Honor the name of it;
Drink to the fame of it—
The Red Ensign!

I have read the above mentioned poem from a book entitled "The Clans and Tartans of Scotland."

I have changed the wording slightly, but feel that these few words are quite applicable to The Red Ensign.

On Victoria Day, 18th of May, I had occasion to drive around Belleville. I counted five flags flying, five out of my own.

On May 21st at 5.30 p.m. I was again downtown and counted two, one each the Royal Canadian Legion, one on the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans in Canada.

I might add that there was no flag flying at the city hall or at the armories, where only some few days ago, the Hasty Pees put on such a fine show.

I would suggest that Belleville should "show the flag" as do other cities and towns in this area.

What colors will you have? I choose the Red Ensign, although I am only a small cog in the big wheel.

Yours truly,
"Lesser Person, S.D.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP) — Highland Bell soared $1.50 to $7.55 as the bright spot of action on the stock market today. Trading was moderate. The company has been silent on any major developments to prompt the rise.

Speculative mining issues got some increased play. Belleterre gained four cents to 62. Manchant five cents to $1.20 and Gulf Lead one cent to 26 cents.

Senior metals were fractionally higher with Falconbridge gaining ¼ to 72⅛.

Golds mixed with Kerr-Addison down 15 cents to $7.80.

On index, industrials were up .05 to 156.16, base metals .26 to 63.56 and the Exchange index .05 to 145.55. Golds were down .25 to 143.80 and western oils 38 to 97.66. Volume at 11 a.m was 1,436,000 shares compared with 1,286,000 shares at the same time Monday.

On Monday, industrials put on a robust display in stepped-up trading.

While the index showed a gain of only .36 to 156.11, some impressive gains were recorded by quality issues.

CPR was an outstanding example. It gained 2¼ at 48⅝ and sold at a new high of $49 at one point. Argus Corp. tacked on 1⅜ to 17⅜ and Building Products was up 1¼ to 36¾.

Algoma Central and Hudson Bay Railway climbed 4¼ to 36¼ while Dist. Seag. advanced 1¼ to 47¾. and Moore Corp. $1 to 55.

Speculative mining issues also received some attention. Marchant jumped 25 cents to 1.15 while smaller wins went to Jelex, Kirkland Minerals, Belleterre and MacDonald. Genex countered the trend with a loss of four cents to 23 cents.

SENIOR METALS LOWER

Senior metals were lower. Noranda and Inco dropped ⅛ each to 47¼ and 85¾ respectively. Falconbridge and Hudson Bay were down ¼ to 72¼ and 68. Showing well were secondary issues such as Lake Dufault which gained ⅛ to 10¼ and Highland Bell which gained 80 cents to $6.05.

The drop of 1.93 to 136.05 in the gold index was misleading. Dome was the major reason for the decline with a loss of $1 to 28¾. But other than that, few changes were recorded by index stocks, and "outside index" issues were generally stronger. Campbell Red Lake gained ⅛ to 14¾ while Leitch jumped 40 cents to $4.40.

Western oils were firm.

On index, base metals were down .39 to 65.30, western oils were up .21 to 98.04 and the exchange index was up .26 to 145.80. Volume for the day was 4,021,000 shares compared with 4,702,000 Friday.

State Secretary Lamontagne announced a three-man committee has been set up to make a new study of broadcasting legislation.

Prime Minister Pearson said he has communicated with the Queen "in an informal way" about a new Canadian flag design.

Alvin Hamilton (PC—Qu'Appelle) moved a non - confidence motion criticizing the government's agricultural policies.

Arnold Peters (NDP — Timiskaming) said the government should act to solve the pressing problems of farmers in all parts of Canada.

Louis-Joseph Pigeon (PC—Joliette - L'Assomption-Montcalm) said the government is ruining Eastern farmers by abandoning Conservative policies.

John Mullally (L—Kings) said Mr. Hamilton's motion was hypocritical because he did nothing for Eastern farms in six years.

Ald. Requests Properties Be Tidied Up

Tidying up of two pieces of property—one on the riverbank in downtown Belleville and the other on Dundas Street, West, near the Bay Bridge Road, was requested last night at city council.

Alderman Ross Bailey said that trucks and other machinery had been parked on city owned property on the hill along Dundas Street West, for months, while at the rear of a lot north of the footbridge and on the east side of the river it appeared that a car wrecking project was being carried on.

He said there apparently had been no effort to tidy up either of the locations and asked that the matter be looked into.

Minister Calls Sunday Schools Just Big Baby-Sitting Service

KINGSTON (CP) — Sunday schools are generally the "biggest baby-sitting service in Canada" a United Church minister told the church's Bay of Quinte conference Monday night.

Rev. William Piercy of Bethany, a village 17 miles southwest of Peterborough, told a panel discussion that the effective teaching time in a one-hour Sunday school period is only 25 minutes and this is "useless in teaching the gospel."

"If you just have 25 minutes for a lesson period about the only thing a teacher can do is tell the children what the lesson says. There isn't time for explanation or any participation by the children.

"And if you don't have time to teach the gospel properly, then lessons just become a baby-sitting service while the parents are in church or at home in bed," Mr. Piercy said.

PERHAPS ABOLISH?

Mr. Piercy said that if churches find they can't solve this problem at Sunday school classes, they should abolish them for children of school age and conduct classes for an hour on a weekday night.

He said his church had experimented with these classes and found attendance was consistently high. They also helped break down the trend of the church being "used for only one hour each week."

Mr. Piercy also suggested that church schooling be based on family groups rather than age and sex groups.

"Maybe we can fill the church with families again," he said.

He urged ministers to experiment in methods of getting across the drama of Christian worship to their congregations.

"It must be done without the sepulchural voice and the sanctimonious affectation from the pulpit," he said.

TELL OF CURRICULUM

Delegates were also told of a new educational curriculum which was more expensive but was expected to further fellowship between congregations, provide more complete study for young people, further home missionary work and possibly institute a new revival.

The new curriculum, featuring new educational methods and modern teaching techniques, will be introduced in many United Churches in Canada this September.

Rev. Wilbur Howard of Toronto, a general council representative, told the conference the church is concerned about the breakdown in health of "many of our young ministers." He said the situation was being studied by officials.

Quinte Kiwanis Entertains Tweed Members

Under the direction of President George Brown, the Quinte Kiwanis Club entertained president Harry McLean and a number of Tweed Kiwanians at an inter-club meeting held at the Centre on Monday evening. The visitors brought along their own speaker, Kiwanian Edward Way, who gave the members a talk on "Dead Sea Scrolls." This talk had been given previously in the city, but was still most interesting and instructive.

The speaker was introduced by Bob Carleton, a former Tweed Kiwanian and the thanks of the club were expressed by Bob Norris. There were 17 members of 22 signed up by the Quinte Club at the meeting.

Diplomas, Awards, Medals Presented At B. G. H. Graduation Exercises

By GLADYS WARD

Looking beautifully crisp and capable with the efficiency that comes from three years of training and discipline the 41 girls of the graduating class of 1964 from the Belleville General Hospital School of Nursing, took their places on the platform at the Collegiate auditorium on Monday evening, May 25th, for their graduating exercises.

The graduates entered the hall to processional music played on the organ by S. Alec Gordon, each girl carrying a sheaf of red roses, providing a stark contrast with the white uniforms.

Vice-chairman of the Board of Governors, Frank Domenico, presided over the ceremonies, and the invocation was given by Rev. Sackville Palmer.

In his opening remarks, Mr. Domenico stressed the importance of this night in the lives of the graduates. "Things worthwhile are never easy," he told the graduates. "You have been tempered as women, as well as nurses." Plans had been formulated for a badly needed new building and considerable progress had been made for a new wing which should be underway in 1965.

A musical part of the program added interest with the school choir, directed by Mrs. D. Reilly, contributing two selections. The choir was seated in the balcony. Dr. H. F. Williamson, accompanied by Mr. Gordon, sang a baritone solo.

Mayor J. Ellis brought greetings and bade the parents of the graduates welcome on behalf of his colleagues in council and the citizens of Belleville, and offered best wishes to the graduates.

Dr. C. N. H. MacDonald, president of the Medical Staff Association, brought greetings from that group, noting that the girls had had hard physical and mental work, and mental anguish putting up with the idiosyncracies of the doctors, and having patience with the patients themselves. He wished them every happiness and success in whatever road their profession might lead.

On behalf of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary, president Mrs. F. Beeby congratulated the graduates and remarked that in this mechanized and mechanical world there were few places where compassionate services were found, but nursing was one where this quality was important. She hoped they would keep their freshness and kindness.

SHARE PRIDE WITH PARENTS

Miss D. H. Smith, Director of Nursing, spoke of the pride and love which the staff shared with the parents on graduation night. Nurses as a group were trying to solve some of their problems, and were searching for clarification of their role in the profession.

"The type of work you do brings immediate and deep satisfaction from being of use in the world," Miss Smith told the class. "We need people who have a welcoming attitude to change; we need people who are honest and who consider life a disgrace; who can judge wisely and take action on that judgment; who are stimulated by serious problems. All progress is made by people of faith. You must create an atmosphere of harmony and love. We need people who enjoy doing work and attempting the difficult. The opportunity to become citizens of the world is readily available to this profession. We need people with imagination, humor, curiosity, who have an acceptance of people and a concept of learning as a life process."

Miss Gladys Sharpe, guest speaker of the evening was introduced by Warden of the County T. Burnside as a woman who had had many honors conferred on her in her career as a nurse and instructor. At present Miss Sharpe is senior consultant with the Nursing Services of the Ontario Hospital Association.

SPEAKER'S MESSAGE

Miss Sharpe's message was directed to the graduating class with a review of the philosophy, aims and objectives of their school of nursing.

"The aim has been to promote the development of a mature, self-directing person, capable of taking responsibility as a nurse. Today you were a student, tomorrow you will be a graduate nurse. You will have an ever growing realization that the field is broad and fertile. You will promote the climate of learning and will learn to discriminate between what is good and what is best. You will have to show loyalty to your hospital and your profession as a whole and participate as an alumna of the Association.

"Never underestimate the importance of public relations based on the performance of the individual nurse. The patient judges the whole profession by the care given by nurse.

"Your diploma reveals that you are prepared to leave. You have had a thorough grounding in psychological nursing; you have secured experience in extra-curricula activities. You have an obligation to society, the society that has a good idea of what kind of society it wants. As a contributing member of the society to which you live you have a duty as well as a privilege to promote good government. You will have a chance to elect the members of the College of Nurses now administering nursing problems.

Miss Sharpe told the graduates that they must be aware of the personal needs of the patient. "You cannot walk alone in the cries of life," she said. "You need spiritual resources to help you.

"Nursing should be approached as a science and performed as an art. Meeting the need of each patient and giving the maximum in understanding is important.

"The spirit of nursing is not constantly alive by the infusion of new ideas. I hope the new frontiers go forward in the spirit of the founding fathers not in their steps."

The valedictory address was given by Annamae Clarke, who spoke on the feeling of accomplishment which the class had felt and their many memories. She compared nursing education to the construction of a building. In a complex society the nurse sees many phases, new life and its opposite, death. It was not an easy task, but it had helped them to become mature in their profession. Sometimes difficulties encountered meant they had to do some reconstruction at times. Miss Clarke gave sincere thanks to all who had shared the past years of training and to the parents of the graduates.

Diplomas were presented by Miss D. H. Smith, assisted by Mrs. M. Hookings and Miss M. Kilpatrick.

Senior Citizens Enjoy Varied Entertainment

At the recent meeting of the Senior Citizens, the group was entertained by the A.N.A.F. Veterans Pipe Band and by Brenda's Dancing Academy.

The varied program was much appreciated by all concerned.

A buffet supper was served after the entertainment, the food was donated by Belleville Order of the Elks Lodge.

A bulky knit sweater was drawn for and it was won by Mrs. John Robinson, 22 Earl St., Belleville.

Nurses' Alumnae Honors Graduating Class of B. G. H.

The Belleville General Hospital Nurses' Alumnae honored the graduating class of 1964 with a dinner in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. The turkey dinner was catered to by the Welfare Group of the church and enjoyed by all.

Nurses gathered from many places to pay their respects to the graduating class.

Forty-one young graduates, each wearing a corsage filed into their appointed places. At each place was a miniature nurse's cap with the black ribbon on and each one's name on it for a place card. At each graduate's place was also a membership scroll which gives them a year's membership into the Alumnae Association.

The tables and hall were decorated with bouquets of lilacs, tulips, pink and white mums and pink candles.

Presiding was Mrs. Ruth Bly who has taken the former president's place, Mrs. Margaret Barry, who has recently moved to Ottawa.

Miss Sheila Sager proposed the toast to the graduating class and Miss Alison Storey replied.

Miss Doris Smith, director of nursing in Belleville General Hospital spoke to the graduating class.

Entertainment was provided by the Morrow sisters, who delighted all with their vocal selections.

Class reunions were noted and recognized. This is always a happy event.

GUEST SPEAKER

Mrs. Shirley Ackerman of the teaching staff, introduced Dr. Sam Cronk, known to all the nurses as "Dr. Sam." Dr. Cronk has been associated with the hospital for at least 45 years, was public health officer for Belleville for many years. Dr. Cronk with his friendliness and kindness and helpfulness to all the hospital nurses and staff won a warm place in their hearts.

Dr. Cronk spoke on the early days of the hospital. He compared medicine, drugs, anesthesia, blood transfusions, with the early days and present time. The introduction of anti-toxins and vaccinations, blood banks, penicillins, purification of water and milk which now saves babies' lives and adult lives.

He told the graduating class always to be themselves and to keep busy. He wished them joy in their service.

Mrs. Doris Howris thanked Dr. Cronk, and also thanked the Morrow sisters.

Miss Donna Plumpton of the teaching staff, introduced each of the graduating class and Mrs. Ruth Bly congratulated them on behalf of the Alumnae.

Mrs. Bly dedicated the album which the Alumnae had made of all the class pictures from the year 1918 to the present time.

Ladies' Club Friends Enjoy Annual Dinner

On Wednesday evening the Prince Edward- Belleville Ladies' Club entertained their families and friends to their annual potluck dinner at the Recreation Centre. The tables were attractive with the lovely floral arrangements by Mrs. M. B. Weese.

The president, Mrs. Baird, welcomed the members and their guests.

The program opened with three selections of community singing.

Mr. Robert Burke, guest soloist, contributed two selections, with Miss Kathleen McCullough as piano accompanist.

Mrs. G. D. Lee gave two readings; also a reading by Mrs. Baird.

GUEST SPEAKER

Mrs. Gerald Gorsline introduced the guest speaker, Rev. Morgan G. McFarlane, of the Tabernacle United Church, who spoke on the topic "Prince Edward County and its Pioneer Settlers."

Mrs. Arnold Mastin thanked Mr. McFarlane for his interesting address.

Mrs. Clarence Holmes expressed the appreciation of the guests for the lovely dinner and evening's entertainment.

Church Groups

MISSION CIRCLE

The Vota Vita Mission Circle met in the Victoria Avenue Baptist Church for the monthly meeting with Carol Sobel presiding. After a hymn sing led by Marj Hales the various reports were given and president Ruth Campbell conducted the business session.

Mildred Fox's group was in charge of the remainder of the meeting with Mildred leading the devotional period. Miss Beth Woodcock sang a solo and Miss Jewell Demorest gave a piano selection.

Diana Woolley presented the topic which was a book review on "A Woman's Choice" which is on the list of books to be read by Circle members. The book is about women facing life themselves and their problems realistically. The eight main problems dealt with were doubt, ingratitude, keeping busy, darkness, extremism, conditioning and competition. These were all dealt with in an interesting and instructive manner.

BOY DESIGNED FLAG

Bermersyde Chapter I. O. D. E. Hears Talk on Centennial

CAMPBELLFORD — The regular meeting of Bemersyde Chapter, I.O.D.E., was held at the home of Mrs. S. Hopping on Thursday evening, with Regent Mrs. W. Kingston, presiding.

At the conclusion of regular formal opening one minute of silence was observed in memory of Mrs. H. Bealy, recently deceased.

Som excerpts from the provincial annual were reported early in the meeting before a fully report was given, one of which concerned jury duty for women, at present it appears a woman called for jury duty, may ask for exemption for a year, the Provincial annual opinion urged that a woman accept jury duty when called.

In discussion of a centennial project the National IODE proposes to build a fund of $50,000 for a centennial project; this fund to be raised by assessment of 50 cents per member from 1963 to 1967. It was announced that should such a plan be introduced the project would be announced at the Provincial annual in 1965.

It was also stressed that local IODE units support the Canadian Scene, a publication reporting and translating typical Canadian life to ethnic groups in Canada.

Thirty-seven members were present at the meeting, full membership is 71.

RESULTS OF TEA

Mrs. D. Hughes reported the results of the anniversary tea in April, showing a net balance of $144.45.

Temporary transportation had been supplied to two school children living outside town, per kindness of Mrs. Helen Anderson.

It was agreed to cater for the Bell Telephone Company at the opening of the new building on the evenings of June 4th-5th, when it is expected several hundred people will tour the building. A committee to look after the event will be convened by Mrs. R. B. Bennett, assisted by Mrs. R. Locke, Mr. D. Carswell, Mrs. G. Gray and Mrs. M. Tanner.

VARIOUS REPORTS

Groups reported various activities to be carried out during the year, each one of the five groups to contribute $100 or more to the general fund by the end of the year.

Mrs. J. Trumble and Mrs. G. Vandevaiter will call on members who are ill. Reports of committees were given; services at home and abroad by Mrs. J. Trumble, who reported 7 pounds of reading material had been sent to overseas Canadian military bases, also a basket of groceries to a family.

The educational secretary, Mrs. E. Cryderman reported an appreciation from a student who has been given a $200 loan to be used in September, and also an application from another for a similar loan.

Mrs. Cryderman also mentioned many scholarships and bursaries are available at the high school. She also asked that a suggestion from principal L. Caughill of the high school that a scholarship from Bemersyde chapter be given for a Grade 10 pupil in history or geography, also from principal William Rothwell of Bridge Street public school that a financial recognition be made to high standing boy and girl in Grade 8, such donation to have yearly continuity. Both of these suggestions were deferred until September because of proximity of examinations for this year.

MUSIC SCHOLARSHIP

The $25 scholarship donated to the Northumberland Music Festival had been presented to Eileen Griffith for highest standing in accordion playing by Mrs. Cryderman, Membership convener Mrs. R. B. Bennett proposed the name of a prospective member Mrs. F. Fisher.

Mrs. F. Pallaser reported for public relations and Mrs. D. Carswell for Echoes stating membership names had been forwarded to the "Echoes" secretary. Commonwealth relations was reported by Mrs. D. Walters on the responsibilities of Canadians as citizens stating that Sir J. A. MacDonald once said "citizenship is a great heritage bequeathed to us by our fathers." While democracy as Canadians know it brings great freedom; it also brings great responsibilities which must be assumed.

Mrs. D. R. Maybee read the old minutes of March 1937 which proved interesting in comparison to present day activities.

Regent Mrs. W. Kingston, delegate from Bemersyde chapter to provincial annual gave a concise interesting report and expressed her appreciation to the chapter for having been delegated. In the report she stated 6 per cent of all educational awards given in Canada in 1963 were given by the I.O.D.E.

GUEST SPEAKER

John Fisher, centennial commissioner was the guest speaker choosing as his topic "All Aboard" speaking of the 1967 centennial. Mr. Fisher said, "The centennial must live in the hearts of the people and that the centennial celebrations could unify the nation. Special 1967 coinage will be circulated and medallions given to school children." Mr. Fisher also suggested that Canadians do more travelling in their own country to become familiar with the country of which they are a part.

The next meeting will be held at the cottage of Mrs. D. R. Maybee, June 18th. Group 4 in charge.

At the close of the meeting lunch was served and appreciation on behalf of the chapter was expressed to the hostess by Mrs. William Peeting.

MAIL CALL

Question: Who should suggest where to go on a date, the boy or the girl? My older sister says the girl should let the boy plan the evening. I had a date last Saturday to go to a basketball game, but I suggested we go to a movie instead. My date agreed, but my sister said it was rude of me to spoil his plans. What is correct in this instance? — E. V., Washington, D.C.

Answer: Big sister has the right idea. The boy is in charge of the evening and a young lady correctly offers suggestions about what to do and where to go only when the young man asks her to state a preference.

Question: When one receives a letter from a woman, who simply signs her name 'Mary Jones' without indicating whether she's a Miss or Mrs., how should she be addressed when the letter is answered? Since starting a new secretarial job, I've occasionally had to answer a letter signed in this manner and am not sure how the woman should be addressed in reply. — Mrs. A. R., Chicago, Ill.

Answer: If there's no indication whether the correspondent is married or single, then the letter may properly be addressed to "Miss Mary Jones" in reply.

Light Fruit Cake That Will Freeze

by Mary Moore

Last December in this column was a request for a fruit cake that would freeze. Subsequently, friendly readers sent in their tested fruit cake recipes from which they made cakes that they froze successfully.

TUESDAY

Dinner Menu

Stuffed Baked Calves' Hearts; Pan Gravy; Baked Potatoes in Jackets; Cauliflower; Tossed Vegetable Salad with Creole Dressing; Cherry Cottage Pudding; Spice Sauce; Tea.

One of these recipes was for a light fruit cake from Mrs. L. H. and was so carefully described and highly recommended by her that I made and froze the cake. Now I have cut and tasted it and it is indeed as good as Mrs. L. H. claimed. She adds "this cake will slice very thin beautifully — never a crumble. I cut and wrap it in one-lb. pieces (from a five-lb. square pan) and wrap in either wax paper or saran wrap then in heavy foil and freeze. I can then take them to the beach all summer."

For those who have freezers and want to freeze fruit cakes, here is Mrs. L. H.'s tested recipe.

½ cup butter, 1 cup sugar, 5 large eggs, 1 cup unsweetened canned pineapple juice, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1 teaspoon almond extract, ½ teaspoon lemon extract, 2½ cups sifted all-purpose flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon nutmeg or mace, 1 lb. light raisins (soaked and drained and dried — see below), 12 oz. mixed red and green glace cherries (1¾ cups well-packed when quartered), two 2-oz. rings yellow glace pineapple, chopped, 4 oz. fruit cake fruit (or mixed peels), ½ lb. desiccated coconut, 2 tablespoons fleur (for flouring fruit).

First pour some boiling water to cover over the raisins, bring to boiling point, remove from heat and let stand 5 minutes. Drain well and dry raisins.

In large mixing bowl cream the butter and sugar together until light and creamy. Beat in the eggs, one at a time. Add pineapple juice and flavoring extracts. Sift together the sifted flour, baking powder, salt and nutmeg or mace. Into a separate bowl measure the fruits and coconut and mix the 2 tablespoons flour through them. Add sifted dry ingredients to wet ingredients; stir in. Add floured fruits and mix in well. Turn into 2 loaf pans 8½ x 4½ x 3," lined with triple thickness of buttered wax paper or into one 8¾ x 3¾ x 2" square pan, similarly lined. Have waterpan on bottom rack of oven, filled with boiling water, throughout. Bake at 275 deg. Fahr. for 2¼ hours. Cool on cake rack. (If desired do as Mrs. L. H. does: cut into one-lb. pieces, wrap in wax paper or saran wrap then in heavy foil and freeze.) Or slip cake or cakes into a plastic bag, twist into a round plastic bag, twist top and fasten with wire tape and freeze.

Fur Coats Will Remain Same Length

MONTREAL (CP)—The Canadian woman shopping for a fur coat this fall will find slimmer lines, lighter weights and shorter sleeves.

The Fur Trade Association of Canada's 1964 fur fashion preview here indicated a trend towards more fitted, belted fronts, straight backs and smaller collars.

Length of coats will remain the same—about an inch below the knee. Sleeves are shorter, ending an inch below the elbow. Some sleeves can be worn long or rolled back to the elbow.

Some interesting details shown were side slits, patch pockets and small, notched collars.

J. K. Walkden, vice-president of the National Federation of Fur Retailers of Canada, forecast a "big future" for long haired raccoon and skunk coats, especially in three - quarter length for wearing over slacks.

He said in a press conference the greatest interest this year is expected to be in beaver and mink.

Mr. Walkden said beaver is one of the best buys in furs. Even the actual cost of the skins is less than it was 15 years ago." This is partly due to the efforts of the Quebec government. Beaver now is much more plentiful and the pelts are better quality."

He said spotted furs are overpriced, and mentioned an auction in Montreal Feb. 5 at which grad coat cost $9,000—and this was before the cost of labor. On the other hand, black and gray lamb is currently underpriced, Mr. Walkden said.

Wartime Baby Lies Deserted In a Fraser River Backwater

Businessmen

rent unemployment levels further and provide jobs for the large numbers of young people who will be entering the labor force.

NEED HIGH RATE

"To match expected labor force growth, employment over the next eight years will probably have to increase at an annual rate of 2.5 per cent — since 1957, the average annual rate of employment expansion has been 1.9 per cent."

In other sessions of the three-day meeting Monday, the association was told by Industry Minister Drury that Canada's secondary manufacturing is riddled with costly duplication of facilities.

He urged the businessmen—and said it is a job for his new department, too—to try to eliminate more of this duplication.

Two speakers called on the Canadian government to go easy on promising any tariff cuts at the current trade talks at Geneva.

ANSWER NEEDS

R. J. Wooden, president of Kelvinator of Canada Ltd., said today's tariffs "are seemingly answering today's needs.

"While we neither seek nor desire discrimination against any nation, likewise we are not interested in internal disintegration."

D. G. Willmot, president of Anthes Imperial Ltd. of St. Catharines, said great care should be exercised to determine the long-term effects of any tariff cuts in Geneva.

H. D. Cameron, vice - president of international affairs for Canadian Pacific Airlines, criticized the government for letting the RCAF cut into what he said should be the business of Canada's regular commercial air carriers.

He said the extent to which the RCAF is conducting air transport services that can be provided more economically by commercial carriers is an important problem.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Faced with an uncertain future because of technological changes, a wartime baby lies deserted, prey of vandals and only the ghost of her once-proud self.

A sleek-bulled vessel which fought U-boats, the storms of the Pacific and summer fog and winter ice of the Atlantic, the MS Gulf Mariner fell victim to economics and now sits at a mudbank near here, rusting and forlorn in a Fraser River backwater.

Originally she was HMCS Truro, a Bangor class diesel minesweeper built in 1942 at the Davis yard in Quebec. She was based at Halifax during the war, performing convoy escort duty along the Nova Scotia coast.

The Truro was transferred to the RCMP after the war for use as a patrol vessel along the east coast. Gulf Lines Limited purchased Truro in 1947, brought her to the west coast and converted her to passenger service between Vancouver and Powell River, B.C.

The little ship was smart and popular, but passenger traffic declined and she was converted into a tugboat.

A succession of owners, Tidewater Shipping Company, Union Steamships and Northland Navigation, found the Gulf Mariner uneconomical to operate and the tug spent most of her time at dockside.

Several years ago she was purchased by Mr. O. Grecenkl of Delta Flour Mills who planned to convert her to a fridge. But nothing has been done on this project and the Gulf Mariner is gradually rusting into the dreary landscape.

SENTENCE YOUTHS

LONDON (AP) — Judges in courts in England and Wales Monday sentenced more than 120 youths arrested for gang battles that have plagued this country for the last two weeks. Jail sentences ranging to six months and fines up to $140 were imposed. The fighting was generally between the nattily dressed Mods who ride motor scooters and the leather - attired Rockers who roar around town on motorcycles.

Point Anne

POINT ANNE — Mrs. Harold Mills of London, Ontario is visiting with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Phil Loft and David.

Mr. and Mrs. James Juby and Bill spent a week at their cottage at Sloco Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Humphrey of Toronto spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Jack Whitehead.

Mr. J. M. Legate superintendent of Canada Cement plant No. 5 is a patient in the Belleville General Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Milton Akey and family and Paul Whitehead, Mrs. Percy W. Akey, Canifton, spent the weekend at their cottage a Long Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Genereaux and family accompanied by their daughter and son-in-law and baby, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Alexiaos of Toronto spent the holiday weekend at their cottage near Denbigh.

The weekly euchre club was held at the home of Mrs. Michael Whalen. Winners were: Mrs. Dorothy Hart, Mrs. Nellie Breach; low, Mrs. Eva Juby.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Henderson accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Earl Selder of Consecon spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Harold Longwell at their cottage near Marlbank.

Mr. and Mrs. William Juby spent Thursday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Wood in Belleville. Mrs. Wood is leaving on Friday to visit relatives in Calgary, Alberta.

BAPTISMAL

The sacrament of Holy baptism was performed in the Point Anne United Church last Sunday morning by the Rev. Alexander McDowell. The children baptised were: Darren Joseph, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Yonet. Dawn Elizabeth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Horwood and Bradley William, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Horwood. Mr. McDowell in the same service accepted and dedicated a new baptismal bowl, a presentation to the Point Anne United Church from Mr. and Mrs. Robert Horwood of Belleville in memory of the late William George Horwood.

Garden Notes

How to Grow Hardy Primulas

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

Polyanthus or primulas will bloom for weeks and make a colorful and wonderful spring bedding plant. Many gardeners complain that theirs only last one year. With proper care they will last for years.

The hardy primulas can be grown from seed or bought in the fall ready to set out where they will bloom, or they can be bought in flats in bloom in the spring. Fall planting allows the plants to settle, make new roots and these plants will usually last much longer and give a longer season of bloom than those planted while in bloom.

Planted in a broad band beside the walk, or driveway, they are very showy. Planted at the base of a tree, in solid beds or in large clumps alternating with clumps of spring bulbs, they will provide weeks of color in the garden.

PROLONG BLOOM

The soil should be light and loose made will prolong the bloom. To keep them over for these spring beds move them when the flowers are spent. Set them out in the back yard where they will be shaded and the soil is heavier. They enjoy clay soil if it is lightened with some humus. Soak well once a week when the weather is dry. Remove all blooms and damaged leaves at time of transplanting in the fall bring them back to the front garden for the spring display.

If you want to avoid the labor of transplanting, plant in clay soil, with a good quantity of humus mixed in. They should be well protected from the summer sun by a shady hedge, or trees with dense shade. When the blooms are spent, cut them off, along with any yellowed leaves. Spread half to one cup hoof and horn meal, or cow manure around each plant. Scatter on a light layer of peat, ground corncobs, or other mulching material. Work this in lightly. A good soaking is needed if the weather is really dry.

Chemical fertilizers are taboo All members fo this family resent them.

Do not divide plants before they are three years old. Each plant should have six or more stocks of bloom.

To start them from seed you have a good choice of hardy primulas. Started in the spring they will make healthy compact plants ready to be transplanted in the fall to their spring flowering place. Fall planted seed will sprout in the spring but will not bloom until the following spring.

FREE BLOOMER

Primula auricula has many rich colors and is a free bloomer P. Cashmerians is a real gem Large dense board are globular and lavender in color. Very hardy even in exposed places, good for cutting and rock gardens. April to June. For damp places choose P. denticulata. This is a hybrid, very showy and hardy. Flowers on foot high stocks are lavender and white.

P. bessians is a very hardy bright purple.

P japonica and their hybrids must be planted in January in flats and placed outdoors. Cover with snow and then with boards. When the weather warms up in spring take off the boards and the seed will sprout. Transplant when the second pair of leaves develop. Primula plants resent crowding. These primulas are hardy but must be covered with straw or brush to prevent frost heaving. Available in solid colors or choice mixed.

CAMPBELLFORD

District High School Board Holds Meeting

CAMPBELLFORD — All members were present at the regular meeting of the North-East Northumberland District High School Board meeting on Monday. Chairman Mr. A. Buchanan presided.

Two representatives from the Department of Transport were present to show a film on driver education for students. A two-week course for instructors is offered in July and August. A grant for instruction is paid by the Department of Educaton and dual controls, texts and literature and supplied by the Department of Transport. Cars are supplied through local dealers and cost to the board would include gas, oil, car insurance, insurance with a total cost of about ten dollars per student. The Board decided to defer the matter further consideration at a future meeting.

Mr. Lloyd Holmes, secretary-treasurer of the Campbellford and Seymour Softball Commission, advised the board concerning the use of the ball diamond. The Commission is making arrangements to locate the ball diamond on the fair grounds and requested permission to have the diamond on the high school grounds. Permission was granted.

Mrs. Barbara Fox, Mrs. G. Balfour and John Irwin, staff members, had each attended activities in their respective departments which were of interest to the Board. Each spoke briefly on the particular activity in which they were involved and the information offered insight into some of the phases of each subject presented.

The Board was advised that Douglas Carswell had accepted the appointment to the advisory committee.

Principal Mr. L. S. Caughill reported that 11 staff vacancies have been filled by competent, experienced members of the teaching profession.

The position of Junior Secretary for the school office is being advertised due to the resignation of Miss Georgina Peaks.

Mr. Caughill with the co-operation of several local firms, has made arrangements for students to receive four day work experience.

He also advised that he would be making a preliminary survey of the district concerning the re-organization of a night classes program.

force to be held in readiness for UN service when called upon.

He also praised Canada's peacekeeping efforts in many parts of the world.

Mr. Thant said the UN forces in Cyprus is performing magnificently but it was still far from achieving all its aims.

This was due to discords in the force, which had limited bloodshed and misery in the island.

"What is just enough and better results must, and, I believe, will, be achieved."

The force was not a repressive military action but a preventive and protective police action.

The police force does not fight the population it serves or seek a military victory. . . . Only in extreme situations can I consider the use of quasi-military methods as an emergency measure."

Some of the criticisms of the Cyprus operation were based on a fundamental misunderstanding of its nature and purpose.

SALUTES FORCE

Mr. Thant saluted the force and all civilian colleagues in Cyprus for "their courage and patience, their discipline and their humanity."

"I believe that their example has given the best of the factors that will lead to an improvement in Cyprus."

He also said that press and public opinion in Greece and Turkey are too often, wittingly or unwittingly, the instigators of suspicion and hatred."

Of the Cypriot leaders, Mr. Thant said: "I am sure they will not force them to a solution of their problems, but we appeal to them to help us to help them before it is too late."

Sales Mission Entertained at Ontario House

LONDON (CP) — Premier John Roberts and a 12-man sales mission from Ontario attended a reception at Ontario House Monday night.

Earlier, the premier, accompanied by Stanley Randall, provincial minister of economics and development, called on Commonwealth Secretary Duncan Sandys; They also attended a Commonwealth Day service at Westminster Abbey.

They visited Canada House and with their wives were dinner guests of Lionel Chevrier, Canadian high commissioner in London, and Mme. Chevrier.

Members of the trade mission, who arrived Saturday with Robarts, are going their separate ways to make contact with business firms in Britain and Europe.

Among those greeting Randall was R. D. Perry, a director of Tasqueray, Gordon and Company Limited, who reported that his firm will begin production at its new plant in Waterloo, Ont., in June. Perry, who is going to Ontario early next week, declared:

"We have decided to distill our own gin in Canada to maintain quality and to overcome differentials and price differentials between imported and locally made products."

Reports said today's message basically followed the Soviet-backed French proposal for a full scale conference, which is opposed by the United States.

The message blamed the U.S. in harsh terms for the present Laos crisis. It said American reconnaissance flights over Laos directly contravened the Geneva agreement and made the situation extremely dangerous.

Earlier, authoritative sources said the Chinese government today sent Britain a message replying to her appeal last week for China to influence the Pathet Lao to halt their attacks in central Laos.

Sensational Successes in Fight By Scientists Against Polio

By FRANK CAREY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ten years ago, polio struck down 40,000 Americans every year.

This year, there are likely to be only 200 cases among the 190,000,000 people of the United States.

Behind this medical miracle stands the genius of two men, Dr. Jonas E. Salk and Dr. Albert Sabin.

Medical scientists estimate that at least 212,000 Americans have been spared from death or crippling by poliomyelitis (infantile paralysis) since 1955. That was the year the Salk vaccine became available. The Sabin vaccine, after sensational successes in other countries, including the Soviet Union, became available in the United States in 1961.

Together they have virtually eliminated the ancient scourge of polio as a health problem in the United States.

(Canada also has experienced great success with the fight against polio. During the six years prior to 1955 the number of cases reported in Canada averaged 7,632. The range was from a high of 9,109 in 1953 to a low of 3,79 in 1950.

(Then came anti - polio vaccine, the Salk type being distributed. In 1963 paralytic polio cases among Canada's 19,000,000 inhabitants totalled just 125. Federal health department officials are optimistic that widespread use of vaccine will keep the number low. Both Salk and Sabin vaccines have been used in Canada.)

ARGUE MERITS

The principal dispute in the U.S. today is over the relative merits of the Salk or Sabin vaccines. The Salk is given by injection, the Sabin is taken orally.

Some experts say the strongest hope for eliminating polio lies with the Sabin vaccine. In mass campaigns it has been given to 2,000,000 persons in a single day in a single city.

A few doctors say the Salk vaccine "will become a obsolete as the horse and buggy," but all grant that it was the Salk vaccine that accounted for most of the gain so far achieved in the United States. That gain cost nearly $940,000,000 in research and other expenditures, but has saved the U.S. an estimated $8,400,000,000 in other ways, such as medical costs.

Basil O'Connor, president of the National Foundation — formerly the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis — says Salk vaccine alone achieved the victory. His organization supported research on both the Salk and Sabin vaccines.

Without downgrading the Sabin vaccine, O'Connor rejects statements that Sabin protection is necessary even for people who have already received the complete course of Salk shots.

Despite medical arguments, 1964 could be the year that marked the beginning of the death rattle of the polio virus.

POLIO-FREE WEEKS

This was the year when, for two successive weeks in early January, and in another week in February, not a single case of paralytic polio was reported in the United States, which as recently as 1952, had recorded a peak of 58,000 cases, with 3,000 deaths.

The complete holiday from polio occurred right after health authorities had triumphantly recorded these statistics for the year 1963:

—Only 431 cases, of polio, including 303 paralytic ones— the lowest number for a single year since reporting began in 1912.

—Fewer than two persons per million were paralysed by polio in 1963, which is fewer than the number of people attacked by typhoid fever.

For the first 15 weeks of 1964, only 19 cases of polio were reported throughout the U.S., including 13 paralytic ones.

This compares with 123 cases annually for the period 1959-1963.

If the present rate continues, 1964 should see only half as many cases as last year, when the record low was 431. Thus, the prospect of only 200 cases of polio in a country of 190,000,000 people.

TYPES COMPARED

Behind that record were these procedures and statistics on vaccines administered:

1. Salk "killed virus" shots: given as a course of four injections, with an interval of six weeks between the first and second and the second and third shots, and six months or longer between the third and fourth. A booster shot every two years thereafter is recommended.

From 1955 through 1963, some 457,000,000 doses of vaccine were distributed—enough to give 113,750,000 individuals the full course of four shots.

However, because of apathy or distaste for needled shots, some people got as little as a single shot.

One estimate is that only 30 to 50 per cent of the population has received any Salk shots, and that many who took the full course have not received "the booster" shots recommended at two-year intervals.

Another estimate is that 80 per cent of school children have received Salk shots, along with a lower percentage of pre-school children, and about one-half of the adults.

2. Sabin vaccine: made of living, but toned-down virus. Given in three oral doses, one to two months apart, with each dose containing a different type of virus. A booster is recommended one year later for infants.

By the end of 1963, Sabin vaccine distributed on and presumably used—including 85,300,000 doses of type I; 74,100,000 doses of type II; and 77,700,000 doses of type III.

SABIN ON RISE

Since total distribution of Salk has declined while distribution of Sabin has steadily increased. Currently, 4,000,000 doses a month of Sabin are being distributed, against 2,000,000 a month for Salk.

The public health service says many "pockets" of unvaccinated people still exist throughout the U.S., especially in poor areas.

The public health service has taken no stand on which vaccine is preferable, Salk or Sabin. It says both are effective and leaves the choice to individual doctors.

The American Medical Association and the American Academy of Pediatrics, while giving no preference to either, says the Sabin vaccine has become a highly effective pioneer have come out for the Sabin product.

SABIN ADVANTAGES

Proponents say its chief advantages over Salk include, in addition to ease of administration:

1. Longer immunity—possibly for a lifetime, compared with perhaps only several years with a course of Salk shots. Basil O'Connor says there is no proof of this.

2. Sabin vaccine gives "gut protection." That is, they say, Sabin vaccine, which gets into the intestinal tract, not only protects a person's intestines, but prevents the growth of wild polio viruses in the intestines, and their possible later spread into the community

3. Sabin vaccine is faster-acting than Salk—hence can be used to check an epidemic even when it is under way.

4. Salk is more effective than Salk. They say up to 20 per cent of all paralytic cases occur among patients who have had four or more injections of Salk. Dr. Salk has conceded no such superiority for Sabin vaccine.

Despite the claimed advantages of Sabin, a number of state and local health departments are using Salk vaccine alone. Still others are using both.

Some doctors, especially in rural areas, use Salk because it is easier to store than Sabin. The oral vaccine must be stored frozen and, after thawing, the recommended life is only a week.

Canadian," also read tributes from Sir Winston Churchill, Prime Minister Pearson and the Duke of Windsor.

Churchill and Beaverbrook are the only two men living who served in the government during both world wars and Sir Winston, recalling words he wrote of Beaverbrook in 1940, said: "Time has but added to the intensity of what I then felt, and to my regard and affection."

PROGRAM BROADCAST

As the guests sipped champagne and brandy, and dined on salmon with champagne sauce, beef and strawberries and ice cream, the BBC broadcast a half-hour birthday program: Lord Beaverbrook — The Man and The Myth."

Churchill's son, Randolph, said in a broadcast that Beaverbrook "is one of the most highly developed political animals that ever came into this world.

"He's capable of immense kindness and immense unkindness; he never forgets a friend or an enemy."

Thomson, speaking in the same program, said: "I have a tremendous regard for him as a man of very great vitality, as a money-maker . . . I pay him the greatest credit that I could by saying that I think Max could make a lot of money doing anything anywhere and that is indeed a compliment as I see it."

And another fellow peer, Lord Boothby, said Beaverbrook is a dual personality — "the puritan in continuous conflict with the buccaneer."

SHOT MOOSE

An estimated 13,295 moose were bagged by hunters in Ontario in 1962.

Writers Discuss Scholastic Standards for Nursing

DEAR DORIS — I take exception to your recent statement that makes it appear that low marks are not a bar to nurses' courses. A young naive girl might get the wrong idea from your advice. At one time nurses had little standing or education, but social workers were on a par then, as they are now.

Keep up the good work but check up on qualifications for professions other than your own. — REGULAR READER.

DORIS CLARE

DEAR DORIS — Nursing is a real test of mental and physical endurance. I think you are raising "Trying Hards" hopes without thinking it out. If 51 is the best she can do in Grade 11, why do you tell her she is likely to obtain a clear Grade 12 and including the sciences at which she seems poor?

She will be far better to try for nurse's aide, receptionist, or the course in cooking, which sound more in line with her marks. — FAMILIAR WITH NURSING.

DEAR DORIS — I am 15½ and am the oldest in the family now that my older brother has died of leukemia. My parents just won't allow me to do anything. I can't go to any chaperoned high school dances or any orderly chaperoned parties with my decent friends. They say I am far too young. They don't allow me to go out on "a date with a boy even if he is a good friend of the family and comes from a decent home.

I'm not allowed any privileges other girls my age do. I am a decent girl and have done nothing to receive this punishment. — TREATED UNFAIRLY.

DEAR TREATED UNFAIRLY — Not punishment — protection. To them you are precious, and very young. Soon you'll be 16; a reasonable time for mixed activity, perhaps, even in their eyes. Work on the idea of a mixed birthday party, a small one, in your own home. They can't hold out forever.

(Doris has counselled thousands of others. Write to her today about what's troubling you.)

MOVE POPULATION

By July of 1965, the entire population of 47,000 in the Wadi Halfa area of Sudan will have been moved to escape rising Aswan Dam Nile waters.

Sgt. Ernest Smith, V. C., Meets Friends Ere Retiring

VANCOUVER (CP) — Ernest Alvin (Smoky) Smith still gets admiring letters from children 20 years after he won the Victoria Cross while fighting in Italy in the Second World War.

"I get them every November when the kids get to my story in the Grade 5 readers," says the 50-year-old Smith who on May 4 left the army for the second time.

Then a private, Smith was serving with the Seaforth Highlanders near the Savio River in Italy in 1944 when he earned his Vc, highest decoration for valor in the Commonwealth.

With the swollen river at his back, he held a bridgehead almost single - handed against German counter - attacks until anti-tank guns could be brought across.

He knocked out one Panzer tank with a mortar and then, with a sub-machine gun, fought off German infantry attempting to attack his company's position. He took time out only to carry a wounded friend back for medical aid.

LEFT ARMY

In the tradition of the army, Pte. Smith was returned home from active service after winning his decoration, the eighth VC awarded to a Canadian in the war and the first below the rank of commissioned officer.

He left the army and was a commercial photographer for six years before re-enlisting in 1951.

For the last 13 years he has been an army recruiting officer and the only one of five British Columbia VC winners on active service. Now he is going overseas again, this time as consultant for a Vancouver travel agency.

Chubbier than during his wartime career, Sgt. Smith says he is seldom recognized these days. He also says there was nothing unusual about his achievement.

"We fought up and down Italy for two years and there were lots of other spots just as bad.

"But even so, I would have liked to have stayed for the drive up through France. I got awfully tired of Italy after two years."

He is often asked to speak at schools and luncheons but has saved most of his spare time for the Seaforth Highlanders Association, where he meets with his old comrades.

He is married and has two children, David, 21, and Nomajean, 15.

STIRLING

Legion Shows Fireworks At Stirling

STIRLING — On Monday evening hundreds of people gathered at the Stirling Agricultural Park to view the community display of fireworks. The Stirling branch of the Canadian Legion under the leadership of Allen Lawes, president and his committee canvassed the Stirling area for funds and over $200 was realized. The display was exceptionally attractive with multi-colored stars, florets etc. The Stirling Rawdon District High School Band furnished music until darkness came. The Scouts and Guides sold popcorn and other refreshments. Members of the Legion were in charge of various duties throughout the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Belshaw, Mrs. Jack Green and Mrs. Clarence Rollins attended the funeral of Mrs. Charles Bailey at Deseronto.

Mrs. Alex Bush and Miss Adeline Bush were guests at the Thompson-Burkitt wedding, and reception held Saturday in Christ church, Belleville.

Mr. Denton Shortt, Ottawa spent the weekend with his parents Mr. and Mrs. Ray Shortt and family. They all attended the Potts-Provost wedding in Marmora and Denton was an usher.

Mrs. Janet Utman and Miss Mildred White spent a day last week with Mr. and Mrs. Sandford Hubble, Belleville.

Mrs. Floyd Armstrong, president of Stirling Horticultural society presented a book entitled "Flower Arrangement" to Stirling Public Library. This was accepted by the librarian Mrs. Carleton Potts.

Mrs. Vernon Harry, president of River Valley Women's Institute. Mrs. Ernest Carr, Mrs. Percy MacMullen, Mrs. Roy Bush, Mrs. George Heasman and Mrs. Roy Irven attended the two sessions of Hastings West District annual at Marsh Hill United church on Tuesday. Others who attended part time were Mrs. Charles Wilson, Mrs. Claude Tucker, Mrs. John Beswick, Mrs. Glen Bush and a non-member Mrs. Glenn Brooks.

LODGE MEETING

The Past Noble Grand of Laurel Rebekah Lodge no. 211 were in charge of lodge duties on Tuesday evening at the lodge hall. Later a short program was enjoyed with P.N.G. Hilda Rose, president in charge. Sis. Isabel Heasman showed her pictures of Mexico, California, and other scenic views. At the close the group repaired to the banquet hall where refreshments were served.

Word was received in the village of the death of Torrance Dunlop of London, Ontario in his 77th year. He was a former manager of the local Bank of Montreal.

Mrs. Janet Utman, Stirling, Mr and Mrs. Charles Irvine and Keith, Fuller, were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Irvine and Douglas, Holloway.

Laurel Rebekah Lodge members catered at the I.O.O.F. banquet room for the annual dinner of the Belleville District Queen's Alumni association with 60 in attendance. The walls were decorated with pennants, and the tables with candles and flowers in Queen's colors of red, yellow and blue.

Khrushchev Persuasively Argued Soviet and Arab Interests Identical on Visit

He got the nickname because the Egyptians found Khrushchev hard to pronounce, while artichoke—which comes out "kar-shoo!" in Arabic — seemed to fit handily.

The familiar acceptance by the Egyptians of the 70-year-old visitor emphasized the popular success of his state visit.

From a tumultuous greeting in Alexandria 17 days ago to his climactic dedication of the first stage of the Soviet - financed Aswan Dam, Khrushchev's dumpy figure proved a crowd pleaser such as Egypt had never seen.

SOME ARGUMENTS

Though Khrushchev occasionally upset his hosts with his outspoken manner and publicly argued with Nasser over the nationalist versus Communist interpretation of Arab unity, such bobbles cost little. And there was every indication that, speaking privately to Nasser and his heir - apparent, Abdel Hakim Amer, Egypt's defence boss, Khrushchev persuasively argued that Soviet and Arab interests were identical.

Khrushchev had so much going for him in Egypt he couldn't have failed without a real effort. Since the formation of Israel and later the Suez war, Western standing in the Arab world has been delicate.

Communist China's influence is negligible. Khrushchev, on the other hand, is a man who furnished $1,000,000,000 worth of tanks and jets, who financed the Aswan Dam and who brandished his rocket at the West at the time of Suez.

The Soviet leader picked the spot for his first African visit with care and timed it for drama. His propaganda target was not only Egypt but all Africa. Asia and to a lesser extent Latin America. And he came with a $277,000,000 loan to ensure his welcome.

STUCK TO PEACE

Khrushchev stuck mainly to his line of peaceful coexistence — save to murder in neutralist Egypt—and the equally popular theme that genuine socialism must give the workers more goulash to win the ideological battle with the West.

The only basic shift Khrushchev permitted himself while in Egypt was his strongest pledge yet to support Arabs in their dispute with Israel—and even here nothing in his statements contradicted United Nations resolutions already adopted.

More important for the Soviet premier, Nasser officially recognized that the Soviet Union is both a European and Asian power—by implication entitled to sit in Afro-Asian councils.

While Khrushchev's persuasiveness was evident in the final communique, equally present was Nasser's determination to remain a neutral—which position earned him lavish aid of East and West plus an international role out of all proportion to Egypt's size or power.

P. M. Asked To Hold Plebiscite

FREDERICTON (CP) — The Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire Monday asked Prime Minister Pearson to hold a national plebiscite on a Canadian flag.

In a telegram read by National President Mrs. D. W. McGibbon of Toronto, and unanimously supported by 300 members attending the 64th annual meeting here, the order told Mr. Pearson and leaders of the opposition parties they "deplore" the fact that Canadians are being deprived of their right to vote on the flag.

The message said the IODE "strongly urges the prime minister to hold a national plebiscite in order that the people of Canada may decide whether the Canadian Red Ensign or a flag of a new design shall be the official flag of Canada.

"IODE members deplore that in this democratic country our government would deprive individual citizens of voting on an issue as vital as the flag."

FLAG NOT ISSUE

The flag has been the leading issue at the meeting, now in its third day.

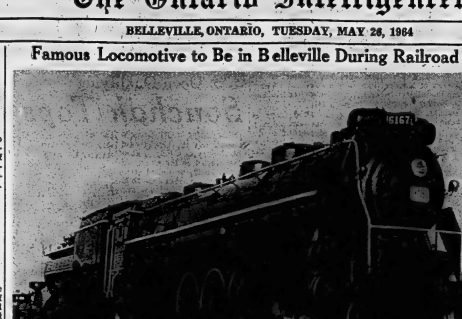
The IODE, a voluntary women's organization of 20,000 members, has supported the Red Ensign since 1945.

The national secretary, Mrs. H. G. Chant of Toronto, reported that the order conducted an all-out campaign during the last year for adoption of the Ensign.

She said the order wrote twice to Mr. Pearson urging the government to adopt it and members were asked to "write, telephone or talk to" their members of Parliament on the issue.

The world affairs secretary, Mrs Harry J. Brook of Simcoe, Ont., said IODE members have requested the Red Ensign with the Canadian sacrifice in two world wars and with patriotic endeavor and thought across Canada."

A resolution was passed that the order raise $50,000 for educational projects to commemorate Canada's centennial in 1967.



The money collected will be divided equally among the provinces as a "gesture of national unity." Each province would have charge of its own project.

Educational Secretary Mrs. George E. Tait of Toronto announced the establishment of an IODE scholarship fund for Canadian Eskimos and Indians.

The $500 scholarship will be awarded annually to an Indian or Eskimo student living in the Northern Territories for university or other higher education.

Mrs. Tait said the order spent $353,000 on education in 1963.

Famous Locomotive to Be in Belleville During Railroad Week

The only steam locomotive operating in Canada, Canadian National Railways' No. 6167, will be in Belleville June 22-28 during Railway Week. It will pull a special train twice daily for the school children June 23-26 to Anson Junction and on Saturday, June 27, it will go to Peterborough with a "rail fan" excursion. On the Saturday trip a number of photo stops will be made en-route, which have been selected for their scenic background. At these points it will be possible to photograph the 94-foot-long locomotive in high speed action. The following day, the locomotive will go to Cobourg Beach with a picnic train. Other highlights during the week-long celebrations marking the lifting of tracks from Pinnacle Street, which date back more than a century, include horse racing, military and name dance bands, motor cycle racing, a live radio show featuring well-known personalities, and a Hootenanny. In addition, there will be a large railway exhibition at the CN station, consisting of steam and diesel locomotive as well as passenger and freight cars. A full program of events will be available at Belleville retail stores, hotels and motels early in June.

Labor Experts Tackle Problem Of Automation

OTTAWA (CP) — Government labor experts are searching for new ways to make collective bargaining more effective in grappling with the manpower problems of technological change.

One idea being advanced in the labor department is to alter the federal Industrial Relations and Disputes Investigation Act to empower trade unions to raise issues of job security posed by technological change during the lifetime of an existing contract.

Under present law, management can refuse to talk to a union on such issues until the existing collective agreement comes up for renegotiation.

Applied literally, this policy could mean that a plant is automated and the employees long dispersed before a union is in a legal position to do anything about it.

FACE SWIFT

The swift pace of automation could revolutionize a plant, leaving the union and its members high and dry with their agreement, but without any recourse to arbitration, conciliation or strike action to protect their interests.

To cope with this situation, Labor Minister MacEachen may order a special study of the feeling labor has to see how it can be used to bring about prior discussion and solution of manpower problems.

A highly - placed source says no decision has been made on a possible study and no action can be expected until the situation has been thoroughly researched.

However, government experts feel the rapid advance of automation has exposed a gap in labor relations legislation—a gap that will widen as employment dislocation by automation grows greater.

Nasser Still Playing Both Sides of the Political Street

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Just what did Soviet Premier Khrushchev get for his 17 days of the blistering Egyptian sun? Taking a close look at the Nasser - Khrushchev communique, the United States concludes the Soviet leader didn't get much.

Reading between the lines of the ringing generalities, American officials gathered President Gamal Abdel Nasser carefully restrained from giving a complete endorsement of Soviet policy, going along with Khrushchev's views only to the extent necessary to get the $277,000,000 Soviet loan.

Nasser condemned imperialism, but the U.S. says it does not mind because, after all, it also is against imperialism and colonialism. Nasser agreed that the Cubans have the right to protect their sovereignty but it was Khrushchev and not Nasser who denounced American overflights of the Caribbean island.

Weighing the language of the communiques, the Americans suggest the only really significant element in Nasser's support of Communist China's claim to Formosa and to a seat in the United Nations. The U.S. opposes both.

But this Egyptian endorsement is not so shocking that it means the end of American aid. France and Britain recognized China diplomatically and other allies may soon move in that direction. It is acknowledged in American quarters that there is a limit how far the U.S. can go in trying to persuade her friends to hew the anti-China line.

But Nasser's commitments on this issue still leave a big gap between communism and Arab nationalism. Khrushchev bluntly appealed for a switch in Arab outlook, to make at least some room for Soviet communism, but prompt editorial rebukes in the Arabian press gave the Soviet premier a clear answer.

The American analysis concludes that Nasser still plays both sides of the political street with professional skill. He takes from the East and the West with the prime aim of building his own prestige and power structure in the Middle East.

And so the Americans will continue to give him aid. Since 1958, the Soviet Union loaned Nasser about $1,342,000,000, including the current $277,000,000. Some of this money will come to the Soviet treasury in the form of cash and some in the form of Egyptian cotton. There appear to be no outright gifts from the Soviet Union.

In contrast, the Americans gave Nasser about $841,000,000 since 1959 — and more before that. About $238,000,000 was in outright grants. An official explained if the U.S. doesn't keep on giving aid, Nasser may be forced to get it all from the Russians and that could mean a building up a complete Soviet "satellite" base in the turbulent land of sand and sun.

The concern in American quarters is the reaction in Israel—a land of 2,020,000 pitted against an Arab multitude of 40,000,000.

The Nasser-Khrushchev communique talks of peaceful cooperation in atomic energy. The Americans hope this means what it says—and not the introduction of nuclear warheads in the Middle East as they were introduced in Cuba in 1962 with almost disastrous results.

Broadcasting Industry Will Go Under Microscope Again

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's broadcasting industry is about to go under the microscope of a royal commission to see to whether the public and private sectors should be separated, and if so how much.

State Secretary Lamontagne, who reports to Parliament on broadcasting matters, told the Commons Monday he has appointed a three-man committee to take a fresh look at broadcasting legislation and recommend any changes it thinks necessary.

The committee will be headed by R. M. Fowler, 57, of Montreal, president of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association and the man who chaired the 1956-57 royal commission on broadcasting.

Serving with him will be Marc Lalonde, 34, Montreal lawyer who worked with the Norris inquiry into marine union strife, and Ernest Steele, 44, who recently became undersecretary in Mr. Lamontagne's department.

The men are expected to hold their first meeting in about a week and have been asked by the government to submit their report early next year.

Mr. Lamontagne indicated the government would act quickly on the report. It planned to set up a special Commons committee on broadcasting in the 1965 parliamentary session and submit proposals for its study.

He tabled four reports prepared for him by the three top spokesmen in the broadcasting industry — CBC President Al-phonse Ouimet, President Don Jamieson of the Canadian Association of Broadcasters and Dr. Andrew Stewart, chairman of the Board of Broadcast Governors.

The reports—one from each man and another written jointly —spelled out industry views on some of the major problems.

On the big one of control, Mr. Ouimet and Dr. Stewart took fairly firm stands in favor of splitting the public and private sectors of broadcasting into two self-operated camps.

CBC ON OWN

Under such a scheme, the publicly-owned CBC would be put on its own to run public broadcasting and report to Parliament on its operation. Another body would run private broadcasting and have a similar legislative duty to Parliament.

Mr. Jamieson's report was in the same general direction but he did not go as far in splitting the two. He said some kind of central authority seemed necessary.

The BBG, a product of the 1956-57 royal commission report, now is the regulatory body for Canadian radio and TV broadcasting, setting rules for the CBC as well as private stations.

Prior to the BBG, the CBC had the overriding powers of regulation.

The next step appears to be a division of power, perhaps by putting the CBC loose from the BBG.

Three Marylaj Guardsmen Hurt In Race Rioting

CAMBRIDGE, Md. (AP)— One National Guardsman was shot in the shoulder and three others were injured here Saturday night in a new flareup between integrationist demonstrators and troops using bayonets and tear gas to disperse them.

State police said several demonstrators also were injured in the clash as bullets, bricks and bottles whizzed through the air in the city's Negro district.

Hundreds of whites milled along the edge of the district, heckling guardsmen and shouting taunts at integrationists across the street.

Further disorder was averted when Brig.-Gen. George M. Gelston clamped a curfew on the town and guardsmen moved shoulder to shoulder down the main street to clear it of spectators. Ironically named Raced Street, it divides the Negro section of about 4,000 from the 8,000 population of whites.

None of the injuries was described as serious, but it was the third outbreak in two weeks and the most serious in nearly a year. The guard was ordered into Cambridge by Governor J. Maliard Tawes last summer after a series of shootings and arsons. It has been there since.

Negroes want the removal of racial barriers from restaurants and other public accommodations. The city council amended the town charter in a move to make this possible, but the step was voided by a narrow margin in a referendum last Oct. 1.

Fan Saw People Crushed To Death and Heard Screams Of Others Trying to Escape

Editor's note: Among the 45,000 in the stands Sunday when disaster struck at an Argentine - Peruvian soccer game in Lima was Roland Selfio Angeles. This is his account.

By Rolando Selfio Angeles

LIMA, Peru (AP) — I saw people crushed to death in the tunnels of National Stadium and heard the horrible screams of others trying to escape the human stampede.

I was on the east side of the field when the trouble started Sunday afternoon.

Argentina was leading 1-0 in the last minutes of the soccer game when Peru sent a ball into the net.

You should have seen the fans scream and yell. Because of interference on the play, the referee disallowed the goal. The Peruvian players protested some, but the game went on.

The crowd jeered, booed and whistled and some bottles and rocks were thrown on the field. But things were not yet out of control.

Then away down the field on the south side of the stadium a heavyset man started running toward the referee, screaming insults.

The police grabbed him quickly, roughed him up some and got him off the field.

The players resumed the game, but about that time in the south end of the stadium another fellow ran out on the field and argued for the referee. Police were steady.

CROWD SCREAMS

By now the crowd was really screaming and began to pour out on the field.

The referee ran for his life and escaped. The players left the field without any trouble.

The police started shooting tear gas into the stands to try to calm the fans down a little and keep them off the playing field.

But, especially at the north end of the stadium, things really got out of control. The fans started slugging it out with police.

Spectators everywhere then tried to leave the stadium before they got hurt. The ones who went through the tunnels at the south end were lucky. The gates were open.

The rest trouble was at the north end, where the gates were closed.

There was a stampede. The first people to the gates and were crushed by the ones behind them trying to get out. They fought, fell on top of each other.

They were screaming for help and gasping for breath. I saw some collapse and fall to the ground. They were trampled to death.

In the stands, fans were fighting also, to get out and head for the exits.

Finally, after it was too late, the gates gave way and some fans were able to get out. They were gasping for air.

Others lay dead, and everybody pitched in and started carrying them out, or fanning others with their coats or newspapers to get them some air.

Outside of the stadium there was rioting and hoodlums had a field day setting fire to cars and buses and trying to rob the dead who were stretched out on the sidewalks.

Police put dead and dying into ambulances, cars and taxis and sped them to the hospitals. I went home sick.

Sue Rockefeller, Wagner Over Racial Issue

NEW YORK (AP)—Summonses alleging misappropriation of public funds were issued for Governor Nelson Rockefeller and Mayor Robert Wagner by the Bronx criminal court Monday on application of a civil rights leader.

The charges result from complaints of racial discrimination in employment in construction of a new $38,000,000 terminal being financed by public funds.

Herbert Callender, director of the Bronx chapter of the Congress Of Racial Equality, applied for the summonses. He was accompanied to court by Paul Zuber, a Negro lawyer active in school integration litigation.

Zuber asserted that Rockefeller and Wagner violated state laws against expenditure of public funds in any project where racial discrimination is practised. The summonses charge felony violations of the state penal code.

The C.O.R.E. official said also that C.O.R.E. members would make citizen arrests of any plumbers at the terminal site on Friday.

Plumbing construction at the market was halted for several days after three Puerto Ricans and a Negro who were not members of the plumbers union were hired.

Union plumbers refused to work with them—saying it was because of their non-union status rather than race. Wagner worked out a settlement whereby the union agreed to test the four for union membership.

But the three who took the examination failed it.

ANAF Pipe Band Winner In Competition

For the second year in a row a Belleville Pipe Band has top honors at the Legion International gathering.

The Army, Navy and Air Force Veteran's Band under Pipe-Major Ken McNevin and Drum-Major George Christopher took first prize as the best pipe band on parade.

The event, which alternates each year between the U.S. and Canada, was held in Gananoque, Ont., on Saturday last.

Some 32 bands and numerous majorette groups and color parties from both sides of the border took part.

The parade and competition will be held in Clayton, N.Y., next year.

TROPHY for champion pipe band at international competition proudly displayed by George Christopher and Fred Carmichael of Belleville ANAF.

SPRING TEA . . . featuring sale of antiques, home baking and candy, will be held by Bridge Street United Church women on Wednesday afternoon. Seen displaying some of the antiques up for sale are Mrs. Bruce Cronk and Mrs. Freeman Burrows.

Ontario Intelligencer SPORTS

Sport Slices...

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The Royal Canadian Legion, Branch 99, aided and abetted by the fine athletes of the 1 Canadian Guards, Camp Picton, will resurrect a sport here June 3rd, that died a colorless death a dozen years ago.

Crack boxers of the Guards, through the kind permission of commanding officer Lieut.-Col. H. W. Malherbe, OBE, CD, will stage a card here that will far outshine the disappointing exhibitions that marked the sport on previous occasions.

The Guardsmen rate highly in military boxing circles. Most of them appearing on the card are army champions or runners-up to the champions of their various classes.

This should be amateur boxing at its best. At least there will be no skullduggery or under-the-table tactics that marked some of the exhibitions staged here in the past.

Unless the army has changed since I played my nurse to a pair of movies that helped lug an eighteen-pounder into action, or the more recent era when I closed my ears and ears when a 25-pounder coughed loudly, its athletes get the same type of training as in other phases of military life.

Indicative of the high calibre of boxers that will participate in the exhibition is Guardsman Tommy Chesson, national and army champion, who with Bob Totton of Northern Electric, is helping organize the show. Fred Fisher is tossing in a helping hand, too.

The Guardsman boxers take their sport seriously. Whether exhibitions or in inter-unit competition they go in to win. Boxing buffs hereabouts can rest assured they will see amateur boxing of the highest calibre with no punches pulled or feelings hurt.

Four outstanding boxing bouts and two added attractions in other sports round out the card slated for Memorial Arena. All boxing bouts are five two-minute rounds.

In the welterweight class Guardsman Johnson, army championship runner-up, meets Guardsman O'Quinn. Lance Corporal Ballam tangles with Guardsman Keetch in a middleweight bout.

National and army champion Chesson will show his war against B.O.A.R. champion Lance Corporal Keetch, in a novelty bout.

Incidentally Guardsman Chesson was a national champion in 1956-57-58 and 1959 and was voted the best boxer in Canada in 1958.

A prominent Royal Canadian Legion branch official here said the show is a "gamble." He probably has in mind that boxing fans hereabouts—and they are quite numerous—probably retain the dark taste left in their mouths after the displays of a decade ago.

They can rest assured there won't be the slightest similarity. As was noted, this will be amateur boxing at its very best. I've seen some of the Guardsman boxers in action in "command" competitions, and take my word, gentlemen, you won't be disappointed.

Other champions will add their exhibitions to this "Mad Variety Show." Ken Carr-Brain will have his national champion weightlifters, John Lewis and Price Morris, in action with other members of the Apollo Barbell Club.

Also on exhibition will be seen members of the Hatzahits Judo Club of Belleville, under Jim Driscoll. Participants include: Gladys Smith (brown belt) and Gordon Oliver (black belt). Jack Devine will be the master of ceremonies.

Ex-Champ Given Bad Beating

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—California 11-pound lightweight champion Paulie Armstead gave former world lightweight king Joe Brown a severe drubbing Monday night in winning a unanimous 10-round decision.

Brown, 137, of Houston, was able to win only one round on the combined score cards of the three officials. Armstead, 139½, was in charge all the way and had the 38-year-old ex-champion holding on in several rounds. There were no knockdowns.

Boomer Was Rocket's Shadow ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Retirement Spikes Geoffrion Guns

QUEBEC (CP) — Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion never escaped the shadow of Maurice Richard through his brilliant 13-year National Hockey League career and Monday, when he called it quits, he was still second best.

The Boomer's awesome slapshot established him to do almost everything the Rocket did. He scored goals, he won games, he sparked championship teams, he captured awards, he was an all-star many times.

But one time Geoffrion surpassed the Rocket and fans of the Montreal Canadiens appreciate never forgave him for it. Although lesser, lights snared their solution, Geoffrion never earned the esteem he perhaps deserved.

His grave misdeed occurred in 1956-57 when he won the NHL scoring championship, a feat Richard never accomplished. The Boomer captured the title by a point while runnerup Richard sat out a suspension that caused the notorious St. Patrick's Day riot at the Forum.

FEAR HAUNTED HIM

Geoffrion, a hockey player with a full range of emotions, often relived and regretted that year. He spoke of it often and although Richard and Geoffrion always were available to public that season was never forgotten.

Despite his heroics—especially last season when at 33 years of age he inspired a young club with 21 goals—Geoffrion never escaped the shadow Monday when he embarked on a new career as coach of the Quebec Aces of the American Hockey League.

He left behind an array of accomplishments that rookies dream of. His 371 goals rank him third best in NHL history of all time. Gordie Howe had 506 and, as usual, Richard stands ahead of him with 544.

He succeeds Floyd Curry at Quebec on a one-year contract. Curry resigned recently to devote more time to his Montreal oil business after coaching the Aces through five seasons, including a league championship this year.

Despite reports of a Geoffrion trade and apparent interest in Toronto, Geoffrion said he welcome retirement and will not play again. That's not surprising, considering his career was riddled with injuries—one nearly fatal.

ONLY ONE FULL SEASON

He only completed one 70-game schedule. The other years he suffered broken arms, legs, ankles and jaw and in 1958 incurred a bowel rupture and was given the last rites in hospital.

There were some times, such as his initial year when he scored 30 goals and won the Calder rookie award. Then he scored 50 goals in 1960-61, sharing the record with Richard and Bobby Hull of Chicago Black Hawks.

The season just ended was one of the most gratifying for the man who could sunk in a corner or bang down a dressing room door, toss his stick and burst into song after scoring three goals.

They thought he was through but even on his last legs he scored 21 goals, nine of them winners, and banged in the decide marker as Montreal beat New York 3-1 to win the NHL title on the last day of the season.

U. S. Open Qualifying

Souchak Tops In Casualty List

NEW YORK (AP) — Mike Souchak was the biggest casualty Monday as a field of about 2,000 started on the long qualifying trail to the United States Open at Washington June 18-20.

Local qualifying rounds over 36 holes were staged at 54 courses Monday. Three more tests will be held today, all in the New York area.

A total of 428 golfers will advance to sectional qualifying rounds scheduled for June 8-9.

Twenty-one players, including defending champion Julius Boros and recent champions Arnold Palmer, Jack Nicklaus, Casper and Gene Littler, are exempt from all qualifying and 45 others were allowed to skip the local test.

HYNDMAN OUT

Souchak's failure was the most noteworthy. Another was Bill Hyndman III, Walker Cupper and former runner-up in both the U.S. and British Amateurs.

Frank Stranahan, former British Amateur champion and veteran pro tourist, failed to qualify when he soared to 73-86—159.

Mike Fried at Memphis, scene of the Memphis Open last week which he won with a 72-hole score of 270, lowest on the tour this year.

But the best he could do Monday was 73-74—147.

Bill Ezinicki, former National Hockey League player from Winnipeg who now lives in Massachusetts, was among the qualifiers.

LANE FILLS BILL

LONDON (AP)—Dave Charnley, British lightweight boxing champion, signed Monday for a 10-round fight with Kenny Lane of Muskegon, Mich., at London June 2. Lane, Ring magazine's No. 1 contender for the world crown of Carlos Ortiz, is a substitute for Brian Curvis of Wales, who has a heel injury.

Yesterday's Stars

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Batting—Jimmie Hall, Twins, stroked four hits and drove in three runs, leading 16-hit attack that overwhelmed Los Angeles Angels 8-5.

Pitching—Ed Rakow, Tigers, limited Baltimore to two hits over final 8 1-3 innings, preserving 5-3 victory over Orioles.

Landis Bludgeon Marks Peace Treaty

Oliva Ups Lead

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Jim Landis has closed the book on his squabble with Chicago White Sox and started to write an impressive batting average.

Landis, only four days removed from the White Sox doghouse, led off the seventh inning Monday night with his first homer of the season, a pinch-hit job that triggered Chicago's American League leaders to a four-run rally and a 7-4 victory over Kansas City Athletics.

It was the fourth hit in seven at-bats for Landis since a peace parley with manager Al Lopez. Landis got off on the wrong foot this season when he argued with general manager Ed Short over fees for television appearances. Landis wound up asking to be traded. Lopez countered by keeping the 30 - year - old outfielder on the bench.

Until last Thursday, Landis had been to the plate only five times. Then Lopez and Landis, who hit .272 when the White Sox won the pennant in 1959 but only .228 and .225 the last two years, got together to work out the problem.

"I felt a little odd about being out for so long," said Landis after lifting his average to .417 with the homer. "But I wasn't worried about getting out of shape, because I'm thin anyway and I was taking batting practice very day."

While Landis boosted his average, Minnesota Twins Tony Oliva raised the league's leading average to .391 with a 3-for-4 performance and Detroit Al Kaline stroked four hits in a 16-hit attack that carried the Twins to an 8-1 triumph over Los Angeles Angels.

DRIVES IN TWO

Bill Freehan drove in two runs with a homer and double as Detroit Tigers whipped Baltimore Orioles 5-3 and Boston Red Sox turned two errors into three unearned runs and a 6-5 victory over Washington Senators.

Cleveland Indians and New York Yankees were not scheduled while the entire National League was idle.

Landis, batting for starter Gary Peters, tied the score 3-3 and the White Sox took it from there. Al Weis then singled, moved around to third on a balk and an infield out and scored the tie-breaker on Pete Ward's single before Ron Hansen wrapped up the outburst with a two-run homer.

Ward of Montreal and J. C. Martin also homered for Chicago while Peters brought his record to 5-2 with Hoyt Wilhelm's relief help.

Oliva tripled three runs for the Twins and Hall drove in three in support of Camilo Pascual, who hurled his record to 6-2 with a four-hit, 10-strikeout performance. Oliva supplied the first attempt to post victory No. 1. Ed Rakow was the winner, limiting Baltimore to two hits over the final 5 1-3 innings.

The Red Sox broke a 3-3 tie in the seventh as the Tigers Dick Tillman drove in the lead run with a double following a single by Willie Horton. An error by Don Zimmer that let Roman Mejias reach base. Jose Kenndy homered for the Senators.

Record Attendance Looms

Baseball Passes Early Physical Test

BY BEN OLAN

NEW YORK (AP)—Who said baseball is a dying sport?

A survey of attendance figures indicates big league baseball is a healthy patient, particularly the National League in which an all-time high looms for the second straight season.

The senior circuit gate is up 273,760, 11 per cent over last season. The American League has a decrease of 295,449. But the overall totals show an increase of 68,291, despite cold and rainy weather in the opening weeks.

Twelve of the 20 teams are ahead of 1963, led by Los Angeles Dodgers, who have played before 727,973 at home—a gain of 99,543. Cleveland Indians showed the largest increase in the American League, 66,993.

TEAMS AHEAD

Other teams on the plus side in home attendance are:Milwaukee Braves, 57,778; Philadelphia Phillies, 57,747; Chicago Cubs, 32,665; Detroit Tigers, 22,277; New York Mets, 18,646; Chicago White Sox, 13,827; San Francisco Giants, 12,397; Baltimore Orioles, 10,254; St. Louis Cardinals 4,835, and Houston Colts, 3,125.

Los Angeles Angels and Minnesota Twins are most responsible for the drop in the AL total. The Angels trail their 1963 figure by 122,764 and the Twins by 73,372. Others behind in attendance are New York Yankees, 50,841; Boston Red Sox, 47,216; Kansas City Athletics, 19,981; Pittsburgh Pirates, 10,674; Washington Senators, 3,326, and Cincinnati Reds, 2,342. The figures include Sunday's games.

The NL aggregate is 2,709,871 compared to 2,436,131 in as many dates last season. The senior loop established an attendance record in 1963 when its gate soared to 11,382,227.

The Yankees head the American League with 218,815 for 15 home dates. However, they trail New York Mets, who have played before 256,849 in 12 appearances in the new Shea Stadium.

Trenton Shuts Out Tweed 3-0

By GARRY ALEXANDER
(Staff Sportswriter)

TWEED — If home grounds is supposed to be an advantage to a ball club, someone should take time to tell Tweed Lombanks this fact of life.

The Lombanks crew absorbed its second home defeat in as many B. and D. Softball League games here last night, a 3-0 whitewashing at the hands of the Trenton Commercial Printers.

Tweed has a single win to-date, that a 1-0 decision in Belleville, but here at home the club has scored only one run, gathered only four hits and committed nine errors. Six of the errors came last night and accounted for the three -run difference.

The loop's two Belleville clubs, Trudeau Motors and Ellis Tandem, clash in tonight's league game, at the CNR Park at 6.45 p.m.

While big Bob Butterfield was blanking Tweed on a pair of singles, both by Terry LeSage, his mates picked up two unearned runs in the second frame and another in the eighth off loser Blaine Healey.

Butterfield struck out 10 in a neat job. He gave up three walks and committed two of the team's bobbles charged against his club in a loosely played but exciting contest.

Healey and third baseman Bill Bowerman each had three singles apiece.

Bowerman started a single to left opening the second and Beaugrand popped a bunt single down the first base line. Sinclair fired the ball into left field trying to cut the lead man off at third, allowing one to score. Gorr picked it up and fired it high and wide of the plate to put Beaugrand on third. He scored as Kennedy grounded out to first.

Lombanks had their chances to score, filling the bases in the first and fifth frames, but could not reach Butterfield when it counted. They left ten on base over all. LeSage was the other threat, getting on twice with errors before singling in the fifth and seventh frames.

Al Beaugrand collected two Trenton singles with the others going to Leon Mowatt, Wayne Kennedy and Leroy Wannamaker.

City Seniors Organize

LARRY SOULE

Stiff nightly workouts every evening this week will have the Belleville Seniors ready for the Eastern Ontario Senior Baseball League opener here next Monday night, according to a club spokesman this morning.

With most of the preparations completed, the team hopes to smooth off the rough edges this week, prior to meeting Oshawa Merchants in an 8.15 tilt at the Fairgrounds here Monday.

Practices are being held each night at 6.15 and there is still room for any good players in the district wishing to battle for a spot.

The club named an executive this morning, consisting chiefly of the same group of men which has handled the Belleville Junior "B" hockey club for the past two years.

Gordie Bell is the club president and Jim "Snipe" Matthews will be approached to serve as vice president. T. "Red" Mavety is the treasurer and Jack Devine is secretary.

Directors named to date are Gerry Joyce, who has donated uniforms for the club, Ken Sodan, Doug. Woodley and Ted Schwab. The team will likely operate under the name of "Belleville Joyce Realty" unless a suitable sponsor is forthcoming shortly.

A team member said that 14 players turned out for last Sunday's practice and "we had by far our best workout of the year."

Court Brailey, catcher-outfielder with last year's Kenmore squad, has voiced intentions of joining the club shortly.

One new pitcher has been working out in the person of Bev. McLean. He is a right-hander working with a bank in the city.

Other player announcements are expected during the week.

Lightfoots Win

Cheesemen Beat 'City'

Black Diamond Cheese surprised City Hotel with a lopsided 14-6 victory while Lightfoot Construction dumped the Ter-Haar Daubers 13-4 in a pair of City Commercial Softball League games last night.

Black Diamond broke a 2-2 tie with six runs in the second inning against City Hotel, using four walks, a double and a big outfield error to do the damage.

Howard pitched the victory, allowing nine hits, striking out three and walking four over the route.

Hawkins started and lost for City in 1 2/3 innings, fanning three and walking three. Feeney finished up, whiffing one and passing two. They gave up 11 hits in all.

Howard aided his own cause for the winners with a home run and a single while Kellar and Cruidsbank each belted a double and single. Clapp contributed two singles, Douglas a double, Kelly and Jones a single each.

Doug Hall slammed a three-run homer and two doubles for Lightfoot Construction, Jackson and Martin also doubled while F. Donovan, Doug Moreau and Smith added singles.

Lightfoots moved away from Ter-Haar by scoring two runs in each of the first three frames, sewing it up with three in the sixth. All the losers' runs came in the final two frames.

Dick Hurst started for Lightfoots, slamming two home runs including one with the bases loaded. Rusty Garvin had a triple and single, Doug Rose a double and single and Don Dolan a double. Singles went to Jack Whiting, Don Smith, Ken Brooks, George Young and Jim Sheridan.

H. Pointer collected a pair of singles for the Daubers while Ron Pointer doubled. Bob Duggan, Moore and D. Lucas added singles, the last two driving in two runs apiece.

George Young started with Bev McLean taking over for the last three innings on the Lightfoot mound. They gave up six hits, fanned nine and walked five.

Ron Pointer went the distance in defeat, tagged for 13 hits while striking out none and walking four.

The Lfsescores:

S. Diamond 262 003 1—14 11 2
City Hotel 200 130 0— 6 9 4

Batteries: Howard and B. Jones; Hawkins, Feeney (2) and Smith, Ialenti (4).

Lightfoots 222 006 1—13 13 2
Ter-Haar 000 002 2— 4 8 4

Batteries: G. Young, B. McLean (5) and J. Sheridan; R. Pointer and Wickett.

Ike Teams With Palmer For Benefit

ARDMORE, Pa. (AP) — One of the best guarded secrets of the post-war years—how good or bad is Ike's alibi?—will be revealed here today for the sake of charity.

Former president Dwight Eisenhower will team with Arnold Palmer in an 18-hole benefit for the Heart Association of southeastern Pennsylvania.

Their opponents in a best-ball match over the Merion Golf Club course will be Jimmy Demaret, dapper, 53-year-old golf pro, and Ray Bolger, the twinkle-toed star of Hollywood and Broadway.

Boating Clinic

By STAN DAVIES

It's hard to believe, but some of the questions I am asked seem to indicate that many people don't know there are laws covering boating.

If someone falls off my boat and drowns, isn't it his own fault?

Answer: It may or may not be. If your boat is unsafe and a person drowns due to your negligence, you might be charged with dangerous operation of a boat. You could also be sued. A passenger on your boat is your responsibility.

I'm told it's the law I have to carry lifejackets. What law?

Answer: The Small Vessel Regulations of the Canada Shipping act requires one lifejacket for each person aboard a pleasure boat.

DO I have to carry a lifesaver for our baby, age 2 months?

Answer: The Regulations don't say anything about the age of a "person" aboard the boat. If your baby's a "person" you'd better have a lifejacket aboard for him, or her... or it.

If my boat is sinking, do I have to stay and be the last to leave?

Answer: No law requires this. It's an old British tradition of the sea. No skipper has to look out for the welfare of his passengers first. Many get off a sinking ship as soon as they can.

My boat is 11 feet long. The rules say I must carry a bailer. Will a tin can do?

Answer: Yes. . .with some limitations. Police will accept a good sized tin can as a bailer if its not squashed. But don't carry a bounce baby food tin and expect to get away with that.

Can I can throw garbage overboard in the lake.

Answer: The lake referred to is Lake Erie, and there is no law against dumping garbage from a boat into Lake Erie. The City of Detroit dumps millions of gallons of sewage garbage into that lake every day. There ought to be a law against it.

If I speed a canoe with my 100 hp. boat and it tips, is this against the law?

Answer: The canoeists, or the police, might charge you with reckless operation of a boat under section 225 of the Criminal Code. Of course they have to prove recklessness. But that doesn't seem too hard to do, does it?

Are there any changes in regulations this year?

Answer: Yes, one. The skin diver's flag shown in diagram, used for the past 10 years to denote that a skin diver or scuba diver is operating in the vicinity, can be used from now on to mark the outlines of a swimming area. Canadian scuba diving clubs are quite irritated over this, because a warning which formerly had a very clear set meaning has now been confused.

Tennis Official Says

Canada Soon Cup Contender

TORONTO (CP) — Elnar Rechnitzer, chairman of the Tennis in Trust-Patrons' Official Association, said in an interview Monday that within five years Canada will rank high among the contenders for the Davis Cup.

The aim of the association, a merger of two groups, is to help promising youngsters improve their play. The merger was a unanimous decision by the directors of both groups.

Rechnitzer said he feels that with a proposed development program the association has in mind, Canada could conceivably win the Davis Cup. The association hopes to raise $30,000 to train young players.

The object of raising the money is to enable young players to get a shot at the tougher U.S. tournament circuit to give would-be Davis Cup players a chance to reach a higher international level.

Rechnitzer said the association doesn't expect to raise the $30,000 this season, but "I think $3,500 will carry us through 1964."

He said players to be sponsored "will have to be dedicated to tennis and not take trips to training school as a chance to spend the money on social activities."

The selected players will be sent to training schools, possibly in California, and will be awarded scholarships to the schools of their choice.

Don Fontana, a former captain of Canada's Davis Cup team, has been named coach of the youngsters.

Clark, Foyt Will Race At Mosport

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Racing Drivers Association announced Monday that 1963 world champion Jimmy Clark of Scotland and United States auto club champion A. J. Foyt of Houston, Tex., have filed entries for the Mosport 200 invitational race June 6.

Clark, No. 1 driver for the Lotus factory team, will drive one of two Ford - powered Lotus 30s in existence. The other will be driven by John Surtees of England, whose entry was announced earlier.

Clark, who has won 11 of 21 world championship events since 1962, Sunday moved into a tie for the 1964 title when he won the Dutch Grand Prix at Zandvoort.

Foyt, a three - time USAC champion and winner of the 1961 Indianapolis 55, will lead the Mecom racing team of Texas' three-car entry. He will drive a 420-horsepower rear-engine Scarab-Chevrolet. Both he and Clark are entered in the Indianapolis 500.

Leafs Nip Bisons 4-3, Wings Lose

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Nine years have gone by since Wally Post hit 40 home runs in a season and the 35-Year-old outfielder wasn't considered good enough to make a major league lineup this season. But Syracuse Chiefs are happy to have him around.

Post demonstrated his ability to zero in on International League pitching Monday night when his sixth-inning homer started the Chiefs on a three-run rally that figured prominently in their 7-5 victory over Rochester Red Wings.

The Chiefs vaulted into second place over Buffalo Bisons, who dropped a 4-3 decision to the league - leading Toronto Maple Leafs and fell all the way to fourth as Jacksonville Suns passed them on the strength of a 3-0 verdict over Richmond Virginians. Columbus Jets downed the tail-end Atlanta Crackers 4-2 to round out the schedule.

Will Seek Junior 'B' Entry

London Vetoes Leaf Control

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Treasure Island Gardens applied Monday to the Ontario Hockey Association for a new junior 'B' entry in London next year.

OHA business manager Bill Hanley said the OHA could not deal with the application until June 15, after it has considered new applications for junior A hockey.

London Nationals applied for an A franchise two months ago. Roy Bonnie, general manager of Treasure Island Properties Limited, said directors of his company refused to allow control of London's hockey team to go to Toronto.

The action apparently nullifies a verbal agreement between Treasure Island and Toronto Maple Leafs over the sale of Treasure Island stock in London Nationals to the National Hockey League team.

A one-year working agreement between Treasure Island and London Nationals elapsed at the end of the hockey season.

"We feel we are entitled to make a change if it is in the best interest of hockey for London," Bonnie said.

He said he was concerned with the calibre of players the Leafs were planning to send into London next season.

COSSA Track Meet

City Schools Highlights

While Oshawa's McLaughlin Collegiate swept to team honors in the annual COSSA Track and Field meet held in Oshawa on Saturday, a number of Belleville school's athletes turned in impressive performances.

In the girls' junior events, L. Neil, of Moira S.S., won triple jump honors (32' 1¾"); A. Thompson, Moira, won the shot put (30' 9½") and L. Dunning, also of Moira, finished second in the same event. L. Fulbert, of Albert College, captured the 100-yards (12-2) in Senior competition while Moira's Dee Doman set a record while winning the shot put (32' 2") and D. Matthews, Moira, also turned in a record effort in the discus (93' 10").

Moira's Johnny Hayman won the 880-yard dash (2:15.1) and the mile run (5:02.4) in junior boys events while C. Gregory, of O.S.D. took shot put honors (46' 6½").

In boys' Intermediate, C. Jourdain, of O.S.D. captured the 880-yard dash (2:07.1).

In boys Senior events, R. Glenn, Moira S.S., and D. Glenn, Moira S.S. finished one-two in the 120-yard hurdles, in that order. (17.2).

Thirty-six schools from the Bay of Quinte, Kawartha and Lake Ontario Districts took part in the track and field meet. The top four teams, with their points, were Oshawa McLaughlin 78, Oshawa O'Neill High School 75, Peterborough Kenner High School 70 and Trenton High School 62.

Belleville Moira Secondary School had won the championship during the previous two years.

Approximately 450 athletes took part, setting a total of 22 records.

The top two finishers in the track events are eligible to compete in the Ontario Federation Secondary Schools Association, All-Ontario track and field meet final being held in Waterloo this Saturday, May 30. Only the winners in field events are eligible, unless second place finishers reach a certain standard set down by the governing body.

AUTO TRACK PLANNED

MONTRAL (CP) — Plans for a sports car racing circuit near the towns of St. Jovite and Mont Tremblant, 80 miles north of Montreal, were announced Monday by officials of the Montreal Motor Racing Club. The track is being built by Le Circuit de Mont Tremblant-St. Jovite, a group of 60 businessmen, and the racing club.

Track Star Life Is Threatened

BARNSLEY (Reuters) — The life of a British woman track star has been threatened if she takes part in the coming Olympic Games in Tokyo, police said Monday.

Police in this English city were investigating the mysterious threat to Dorothy Hyman, 23, one of the fastest woman sprinters in the world.

Miss Hyman is captain of the British women's Olympic team and one of Britain's gold medal hopes.

The threat to her came from an anonymous letter writer. Her widowed mother also received a letter saying another daughter, Susan, 7, may suffer if her sister runs in the Olympics.

Will Play For Larks, Or Quit

MONTREAL (CP) — Willie Lamont, standout halfback with McGill University Redmen for six seasons, plans to quit football if the Eastern Football Conference Hamilton Tiger-Cats don't trade him to Montreal Alouettes.

Lambert, signed last week by Hamilton, graduates in dentistry Friday and plans to practice in suburban Westmount. Dentistry, he said in an interview Monday, comes before football.

Lambert was named player of the year in the Senior intercollegiate league last season and twice was a member of championship teams — including the year when he scored the winning touchdown with 59 seconds remaining in a game.

MARLBOROS HONORED

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Marlboros, 1964 Memorial Cup champions of the top junior hockey team in Canada, were honored at a city council meeting Monday. Six members of the team looked on as Mayor Philip Givens presented gold cuff-links to manager Buck Houle and team captain Grant Moore.

Ann Landers

Ann Sticks to Her Guns Has Authority to Prove It

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Recently you made the statement that two blue-eyed parents could have a brown-eyed child. I believe you are wrong.

To have a brown-eyed child at least one of the parents must be brown-eyed because the gene for the expression of brown eye color is dominant. (Ann Landers note: A gene is one of the elements of the germ plasm which transmits hereditary characteristics.)

ANN LANDERS

If your statement is true, then it should be noted that all the recent books on biology, zoology and genetics dealing with human inheritances are incorrect. I can offer the following references to substantiate my position. (1) Wodsedlek, J. E. General Zoology. Wm. C. Brown Co. (1963); (2) Ville, C. A. Biology, 4th Ed. Saunders, (1962); (3) Marsland, D., Principles of Modern Biology Holt, Rinehart and Winston (1964). What is your authority? — Respectfully — M. J. F., Assistant Prof. of Biology, Quinsigamond Community College, Worcester, Mass.

DEAR M.J.F. — Thank you, Professor, and thanks to the hundreds of other professors and students who wrote to tell me I was wrong. Your comments are appreciated, but I am not wrong.

My principal authority is Dr. Carl Witkop, the distinguished chief of the Human Genetics Branch of the National Institutes of Health in Bethesda, Maryland.

Dr. Witkop says: "In the early days of genetics it was believed that eye color was determined by a single pair of genes. We now know that this is incorrect and that eye color is transmitted by at least three genes. In the vast majority of cases two blue-eyed parents will produce a blue-eyed child, but it is now an established fact that two blue-eyed parents can produce a brown-eyed child."

Dr. Witkop cites as his authorities, Stern, Curt, Principles of Human Genetics, 2nd Edition, W. H. Freeman and Co. (1960). Sorsby, Arnold, Genetics C. V. Morsby Co. (1953).

So, to repeat — if it happens in your family, think nothing of it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I could have kissed you when you said two blue-eyed people could have a brown-eyed baby.

My husband and I are both blue-eyed and we have a brown-eyed girl. For years I have been subjected to snide remarks by his family. It was always said as a half-joke, but I got the point.

When your column came out I went down and bought six extra copies of the newspaper and mailed them to the proper people.

You have no idea what you have done for me. Many thanks. — MRS. XYZ.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Our daughter has been asked to the senior prom. She is all excited because the boy who asked her is very nice.

Last night she told us that she is expected to pay half of the expenses, which will come to about $18. According to her it is customary for the girl's father to hand the fellow the money in an envelope when he comes to get her.

Things have changed since I was in high school but I would have been insulted if a girl's father had handed be an envelope to help pay for a date. May I hear from you? — PUZZLED PAPA.

DEAR PAPA — Granted, proms are horribly expensive these days but Papa should not have to hand the guy an envelope when he comes to take out his daughter. You are absolutely right.

Sport Snapshots

By IAN DONALDSON

SACKVILLE, N.B. (CP)—Gus MacFarlane believes the day is coming when athletic directors will no longer coach varsity teams even in small universities.

MacFarlane, athletic director of Mount Allison University here, recently took a step himself that reflects this trend.

The 42-year-old native of Verdun, Que., now in his seventh year at Mount A., decided to give up coaching the varsity basketball team—the Hawks—which plays in the Maritime Intercollegiate League.

MacFarlane will remain as coach of Mount Allison Mounties, always strong contenders in the Atlantic Football Conference.

Gus, known on the campus as No Fuss because of his calm demeanour on the football field and basketball court as athletic directors will swing more and more toward administrative and intramural duties.

This has already happened at many large universities. Even in smaller colleges, he expects part-time staff or junior athletic personnel will take over coaching the varsity teams in hockey, basketball and football.

CHANCE TO SHINE

MacFarlane says there are two main reasons for the trend —athletic directors are finding more and more of their time is needed for the general athletic program and staff members below the director level should share in "whatever limelight" athletics produce.

"Most people who coach really enjoy it—even those who lose. I regret having to give up basketball, but staff members have to feel wanted and of value, not just to be 'Gus's little boy.' Everyone is finding they are losing staff if you don't give them a chance to play a major role."

Even without basketball, MacFarlane will be in or around the $2,500,000 athletic centre here from early morning until late at night. That's fine with him, he says, and that's the way it has to be "if you're truly running an athletic program."

The organization of intramural sports is a big part of the job. MacFarlane will have six track meets next term, golf tournaments, bonspiels, 12 touch football teams, 12 volleyball teams, 12 basketball and six hockey squads, drawn from a student body of less than 1,500.

But he figures that for the present, at least, it's a good idea that he retain one varsity coaching job. In the eyes of the students generally you have to be "more than a guy behind a desk—you must be part of the university community."

Susskind on the TSO

'Improved -- But Not Quite Within the Major Leagues'

By JEAN SHARP

TORONTO (CP) — It could sound like bragging when a departing symphony conductor says he's leaving a better orchestra than when he arrived.

But when Walter Susskind makes that statement about the Toronto Symphony Orchestra, it comes out as a straightforward expression of fact.

"The improvement was proved partly by our recent success in the United States," says the 50-year-old Czech-born maestro. "The leading U.S. orchestras are of the highest calibre, so the audiences are quite spoiled.

"They knew me, but not the orchestra, and the tenor of the criticism was that it was a very pleasant surprise."

Susskind, who succeeded Sir Ernest MacMillan as conductor in 1955, will leave next April. He will be succeeded by Seiji Ozawa, brilliant 28-year-old Japanese who is currently assistant conductor of the New York Philharmonic.

By Susskind's estimate, Ozawa will be taking over an orchestra that, while improved, is still not quite in the "major leagues."

MORE POOR ONES

"Here it was a matter of building the orchestra up," he says. "This gives you a sense of achievement. But every conductor in the world is yearning for the ideal orchestra where he can just stand there and make music.

"Orchestras of this calibre can be counted on the fingers of one hand: in North America they are, Boston, Philadelphia, New York, Cleveland and Chicago. It is one of the curses of my profession that there are so many more poor orchestras than good ones."

But it's a curse he is trying to help exorcise. He was instrumental in starting a National Youth Orchestra in Canada and it is a Canadian contact he wants to maintain. It pleased him when he learned that its concert master, Otto Armin of Windsor, Ont., and Stratford, Ont., had been hired as violinist by the Cleveland orchestra.

Susskind has had several offers of permanent posts and says he'll probably take on another orchestra a year or two after he leaves Toronto.

"Touring will be my work in the 1965-66 season. That is one of the main reasons I'll be leaving here, to have a chance to fulfil important commitments all over the world. Secondly, problems tend to arise over the years and I feel both the orchestra and I need a change."

BUSY SUMMER

Susskind left Toronto late in April for six months in Europe and the United States, beginning Vegas.

SYMPHONY CONDUCTOR LEAVING — Walter Susskind, 50-year-old Czech-born symphony conductor, will leave the Toronto Symphony Orchestra next April after 10 years. He plans to spend a year or two touring and then perhaps settle down to another permanent post. His successor will be Seiji Ozawa, 28-year-old Japanese. (CP Photo)

Increased Use of Nuclear Power in Canada Predicted

Will Unfurl New Flag Design Soon

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP) — Within a day or two Canada's distinctive maple leaf flag will be unfurled — at least a drawing of it—and Parliament's great suspense play will end.

While there seems little doubt that a majority of MPs would back a new flag if they were asked to vote now, there also are indications on Parliament Hill that some are prepared to dig in for a long, hard fight on the issue.

Some Conservative MPs are saying privately they want to force the government into an election on the issue. But their strategy cannot be worked out until it becomes known how the government proposes to handle the flag legislation.

So far there has been no indication of the method Prime Minister Pearson will use to seek parliamentary approval—it could be by a one-stage resolution, or by the regular process of legislation which would give members five different debating stages.

STILL SECRET

This question, and the actual design of the new flag, still was a cabinet secret Monday after another round of Commons questioning.

It was the third Commons question period since the cabinet decided on a flag design, and again Mr. Pearson hid his hand on what may be revealed Wednesday or Thursday.

Since last Thursday Mr. Pearson has said only that he will will involve the maple leaf. He has refused to say how many maple leaves.

However, the design Mr. Pearson was known to favor consists of three red maple leaves on a white background with a vertical blue bar at each side of the flag. He also said Monday a radio station report that quoted a "high government official" as saying the flag would have one leaf was "purely speculative."

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker wanted to know whether there was any truth to rumors that a referendum might be held on the question "so that Canadian unity will not be bifurcated or even threatened by the strict adherence to what is becoming generally known as the 'Pearson pennant.'"

NO REPLY

The prime minister did not reply.

Later, Mr. Diefenbaker asked: Was the prime minister considering a referendum "rather than endeavoring for at least this parliament down the throats of the Canadian people?"

Again no reply.

But Mr. Pearson did say he had communicated with the Queen, "in an informal way," on at least two occasions to let her know the government's intentions about the flag.

"As a matter of courtesy it was surely desirable to let the queen know in one of the interims of the government were in this matter, and that has been done."

Union Trustees Will Discuss SIU Leadership

OTTAWA (CP) — The future leadership of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada is expected to be discussed at two meetings scheduled this week by the government's marine union trustees.

The three-man board of trustees, controlling five maritime unions, is to meet today with Labor Minister MacEachen in Ottawa.

The trustees will follow up this conference with a Montreal meeting Wednesday in Montreal with Paul Hall, president of the SIU of North America.

Informants indicated the chief topic of the meetings will be the future role of Hall, Executive Vice-President Leonard J. McLaughlin in SIU affairs in Canada.

Under a peace pact with Mr. Hall, the trustees agreed to let Mr. McLaughlin ascend to the presidency filled temporarily by the trustees after they deposed Hal C. Banks as leader.

In return for this promise, Mr. Hall agreed to call off union harassment of Canadian ships in U.S. ports.

Court Orders Schools Open After 5 Years

FARMVILLE, Va. (AP)—Few white and Negro students are expected to share the same classrooms next fall in Prince Edward County despite a U.S. Supreme Court order that public schools be reopened on an integrated basis.

While verbal reaction to Monday's ruling was scant from officials and state politicians were privately expressed that the net result would be a public school system attended almost entirely by Negroes and boycotted by white students who would continue to study at private, segregated schools.

Governor Albertis S. Harrison called the ruling "manifestly a far-reaching decision" in that it marks the first time a court has committed itself to order a legislative body to levy taxes.

This was in reference to wording in the decision that the federal district court is empowered to require the Prince Edward County board of supervisors to levy the necessary taxes to finance a public school system.

HAD REFUSED

It was the refusal of the supervisors in the face of countless orders issued by this court for taxes in 1959—and every year since—that resulted in the Virginia county becoming the only locality in the United States without public schools.

During the last five years the county's approximately 1,250 white children have attended private schools hastily set up in reaction to the court's integration order. Some 1,600 Negro and 900 white children were largely without formal schooling until last September when—at the urging of the late president Kennedy—an experimental one-year educational program known as the Prince Edward Free Schools Foundation was established with private funds.

Bunche Brands Statements As Absurd

HAMILTON (CP) — United Nations Undersecretary Ralph Bunche Monday branded a statement on civil rights by United States Republican presidential hopeful Barry Goldwater as absurd.

Dr. Bunche told more than 2,000 persons at a convocation ceremony at McMaster University that Senator Goldwater told a New York audience May 12: "You can't pass a law that will make me like you or you like me."

Dr. Bunche, a Nobel Peace Prize winner who was attending the convocation to receive an honorary doctor of laws degree said Negroes were fully aware that the civil rights bill currently before congress are not likely to change racial attitudes in individuals.

"What it is asking for, or expecting that.

"But since the Negro struggle for civil rights and dignity conducted largely in the courts, what gets on to the law books can be considered permanent."

Dr. Bunche said advance of civil rights in the U.S. is too slow and agitation would intensify until all formal manifestations of racial discrimination are rooted out.

He also said he understood that Senator Goldwater had called the United Nations "immature.

"I assume the UN is premature when viewed from the 19th century," Dr. Bunche commented.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids and relieve pain. Itching and discomfort in minutes and promote healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

In case after hemorrhoidal case history after soother reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and greatly relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and most important of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

Preparation H actually shrinks hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H. Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Satisfaction guaranteed or your money refunded.

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For May 27

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Strive for understanding . . . includes perception of motives of those in authority. Many changes in offing. Could involve travel for you. Look beyond surface indications.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Financial situation remains in spotlight. But key word is improvement. Almost in an instant powers can appear. Overcome needless suspicion. You are being given a valid chance.

Gemini (May 21 to June 20): Wise concessions got to be mistakes for weakness. New contacts promote greater security. Being "new," you must feel your way. Message very clear before end of day.

Cancer (June 21 to July 22): Be friendly, diplomatic. Obtain valuable hint from today's Gemini message. One who "teaches" has lesson for you. Be ready. Maintain attitude of acceptance.

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 22): Pleasant day because there is friendship, activity and hope. Sense of fitness important. Get proper exercise. Be perceptive, alert. Feeling of well-being especially necessary.

Virgo (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22): Stick to facts. Base decisions on definite knowledge. Long range projects favored. These require patience, confidence. Speak to one who has had experience. Analyze what you hear.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Personal possessions may require added protection. Tendency is to be careless — especially while traveling. Fine for catching up on correspondence. And for putting ideas on paper.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Stay with the tried-and-true. Avoid plan which sees you speculating. Your family's security should be uppermost in your mind. Money items pressure. But improvement is indicated.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Cycle up. But it remains necessary for you to be practical. Guard against reaching too high. Be moderate and you obtain fine results. Otherwise, you invite disappointment.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19): Many depend upon your ability, strength of conviction. Day to handle responsibility. Fine for inspiring fellow workers. And for encouraging loved ones. Cycle rising.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18): Fine chance to prove major point. Don't be held back by one who broods about cost. You can accomplish goal, and you can do it economically. But you must get started.

Pisces (Feb. 19 to Mar. 20): People who oppose you may make sensational claims. Pay them no heed. Proceed in steady, calm fashion. Those in authority will observe. You can win praise, respect.

If today is your birthday . . . you possess an abundance of intellectual curiosity — would make fine teacher, are attracted to medicine and take delight in aiding the underdog.

General Tendencies: Cycle high for Sagittarius, Capricorn, Aquarius. Special word to Gemini: Changes due. Be ready for surprising statements by associates.

'Workers' Security Is Issue Now' Says George Burtt, United Auto Workers Head

By KEN SMITH
Canadian Press Business Editor

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — George Burt, the gentle-looking union leader who eats big meals regardless for breakfast, says he figures he knows the reason for the comparative labor peace that has settled in recent years over this once - troubled auto city.

"Management," he says solemnly, "has seen the light."

With a new and tough series of contract talks due to start this fall, not even Mr. Burt can suppress a straight face after that remark, and he bobbles out a delighted chuckle to prove he doesn't really mean it and is only poking some more fun at the men who sit on the other side of the negotiating table.

Actually, it's no mean feat for him still to be able to find something to laugh about after 25 years as Canadian director of the powerful, one-time trucculent Ameriandustrial United Auto Workers Union.

Under his guidance, the 60,000-man UAW has engaged in some of the mightiest struggles, and some of the toughest opponents, in Canada's labor history.

And he has won.

"The aims of collective bargaining have changed since 1939 when I was first elected director," he says.

SEEK SECURITY NOW

"In those days our essential fight was for union recognition. Well, now we are accepted by both management and society—at least, generally. Workers' security is the issue now."

A smallish man with a quiet, high-pitched voice, Mr. Burt looks at first glance more like a soft - hearted schoolteacher than a skilled and, when necessary, rough-and-tumble union leader.

But watch him when someone opposes something he believes in—his puckish face starts to glow with ruddy indignation and his mouth clamps in a thin line.

He is a man who cut his teeth in the bitter 1937 strike at the General Motors Plant in Oshawa, when the late premier Mitchell Hepburn established police squads to repel the "invading" international union organizers from Detroit.

He has seen police and picket clash and knows what it is to have to meet clandestinely to try to organize workers into a union. He has been abused and reviled by business, politicians and newspapers, but he has never wavered from his basic philosophy—improving the lot of the man who works for hourly wages.

BEARS NO GRUDGE

"I don't mind the things that were said about me—after all, I've said a few nasty things about them in my time too," he says of the old days. "I'd hate to think they bear me any grudge."

An effective and rapid-fire talker, he likes to make his point when addressing an audience by using facts—an opposing negotiator once called him the master of the one-sided fact —but when necessary he can boil his listeners with the stuff that sends people to the ramparts.

In negotiations, he is two men.

One, seen by his union aides, is calm, firm, fair.

The other, the one management has to deal with, is a combination of Attila the Hun and Shylock.

A senior Ford of Canada official, bargaining with him just before the start of a long strike a decade ago, once exploded: "Burt is the most impossible man that ever lived!"

Snapped the union leader when told of this: "That's what I was going to say about him—how Ford is even taking our words away from us."

Completely devoted to his work, he once was reported by his assistants to be home in bed, ill. He was found at the scene of a small strike at nearby Amherstburg, talking to the pickets.

TRAINED AS PLUMBER

George Burt, 60, was born in the Toronto suburb of Mimico. Trained as a plumber and pipefitter, he took a job in Oshawa in 1927 but was laid off a year later.

He went to the General Motors' body-works plant and remained there until 1939 when he moved to Windsor as Canadian director of the UAW.

"Our department was one of the leaders in that 1937 strike," he recalls. "We'd had several shutdowns after the company tried to speed up the work.

"During one of the shutdowns an undergroud group called in a UAW organizer from Detroit. That's when Hepburn started talking about the foreign agitators coming in to stir up trouble.

"The big break in the union-security struggle came in 1945 when a prolonged and bitter strike at Ford was settled on the so-called Rand formula, under which union dues were collected from workers by the company whether the workers belonged to the union or not.

Mr. Burtt may not bear any grudges for the personal abuse heaped on him in past strikes, but it's clear he blames management attitudes for the old troubles.

PRAISES SWEDEN

He uses the recently established Volvo plant at Dartmouth, N.S., as an example.

"It was organized without any difficulty and I'm certain it was because Sweden, where Volvo's parent firm is, has a much more enlightened—attitude toward unions than North America has.

"It would have been much harder to reach agreement if it had been an American company."

As a recognized, and respected, elder of Canadian labor, Mr. Burt doesn't get the abuse he used to two decades ago.

"Put it this way," said one former auto executive, "in a moment of heat during negotiations, we may question his intelligence and his legitimacy, but no one questions his honesty and integrity."

Although Mr. Burt eats, sleeps and breathes the UAW—he is at the head of directors of the international union and has, next to president Walter Reuther, the most years of service on it—he is closely involved in other union work, too.

AIDS WINDSOR GROWTH

He has been a vice-president of the Canadian Labor Congress for years and has been a leading spokesman for Canadian labor in foreign fields.

He also practises what he preaches about unions taking a more active role in community affairs and is a director—along with Chrysler of Canada president Ron Todgham — of the Greater Windsor Foundation, a group established to promote growth in Windsor.

What of the future for trade unionism in Canada?

"I can see nothing but progress," Mr. Burt says. "The industrial nature of the country is being emphasized more and more all the time and as it grows so will trade unions."

Hanging over him, however, like all other union leaders, is the bug-a-boo of automation.

"You'll find that workers in Sweden aren't afraid of automation while Canada's are," he says. "That's because in Sweden there is a confidence between labor, management and government that isn't established yet in Canada.

"One of our problems is that there's been no real research in Canada on the effects of automation. There are few figures and those that are available are without authority.

"Our fear is that the replacement of workers under automation will be gradual, so the public won't get steamed up about it and the government won't move."

Any solution will have to be a joint labor-management-government effort, he feels.

The father of three children and a grandfather five times, Mr. Burt now lives with his wife in an old farmhouse fronting on Lake Erie near Leamington. He drives to and from work each day in his small Oldsmobile.

There are three or four acres of land with the house—"my wife likes flowers"—and Mr. Burt, an inveterate woodworker when he has some spare time, has a workshop in a shed by the garage. He also has two boats and in the summer swims a lot.

The Burts bought the house years ago when it was almost falling down and he spent seven years repairing it before they moved in.

"I did all the work myself—carpentry, plastering and of course the plumbing.

"I guess you could call me Canada's biggest moonlighter."

QUARTER-CENTURY AS UAW CHIEF — George Burt this year completes 25 years as Canadian director of the United Auto Workers. The 60-year-old union leader says the aims of collective bargaining have changed since 1939, with the emphasis now on worker security instead of union recognition. (CP Photo)

How do you shave when the bathroom is occupied?
☐ Go to the gas station on the corner
☐ Build another bathroom
☐ Use the sink in the living room or

☐ Get a cordless Lektronic II and shave wherever you want.

The Lektronic II is self-powered. It works upstairs, downstairs, in any room in the house. Even outdoors.
So forget about sinks, cords and outlets. With the Lektronic II you get a powerful shave anywhere.
Energy cells store up power for plenty of fast, comfortable shaves. To recharge, simply plug in the special cord overnight.
If you forget to recharge, just plug in the cord and shave. No waiting. No half-shaved face.
Like all Remingtons, the Lektronic II has adjustable roller comb for comfort. And a more powerful motor. And surgical steel cutters.
But the big feature is cordless convenience. Great for around the house, up at the cottage, the travelling man.
And it costs a lot less than building another bathroom.

Nehru Dies Today After Stroke

Modern India's Builder Stricken Early This Morn

Home Minister Nanda Named Prime Minister

(CP from Reuters-AP)

NEW DELHI — Jawaharlal Nehru, builder of modern India and its prime minister since independence in 1947, died from a heart attack at his home here today. He was 74.

Shortly after the death of the leader of India's 470,000,000 people, a new acting prime minister was sworn in by President Sarvepalli Radhakrishnan. He is Gulzarilal Nanda, home minister at the time of Nehru's death and most senior government cabinet minister.

The acting premier will hold office until the ruling Congress parliamentary party meets to elect a new leader, who will become prime minister.

NEHRU

Nanda, a man with a reputation of getting things done, was one of the officials that broke the news to Parliament that Nehru was taken ill suddenly.

What Gandhi Dreamed Jawaharal Nehru Built

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—Jawaharlal Nehru, only son of a wealthy family, gave up a life of ease for the hardships of resistance and prison to become the maker of modern India.

Mohandas Gandhi was the spirit behind the mass movement that swept India to independence in 1947 after partitioning of the huge subcontinent.

But it was Nehru, as the first prime minister, who had the difficult task of consolidating independence.

He lived not only to see his ideal become a reality, but also to mount India's destiny after independence.

After the 1947 partition of India Nehru faced the triple task of consolidating the newfound unity inside India, adjusting the delicate relations with neighboring Moslem Pakistan, and building up India's foreign policy.

Millions of refugees were absorbed and resettled and the 370 Indian princely states were peacefully merged.

Abroad he mapped out firmly a middle course of friendly neutrality. Relations with Pakistan remained strained, mainly because of the Kashmir question, but trade and cultural exchanges were established.

Two Women Ready to Give Rare Blood to Assist Baby's Birth

HALF ISLAND COVE, N.S. (CP) — Two women in this eastern Nova Scotia hamlet have volunteered to give their rare blood to assist in the birth of an Oshawa baby.

Mrs. Edward Lumsden and Miss Helen Hendrobee will travel the 200 miles by road to Halifax Saturday to give a bottle of blood each to the Canadian Red Cross.

The baby is due to be delivered by caesarian section in Toronto Monday.

Red Cross officials in Toronto said earlier that the blood type required — a peculiar type of chromosome deletion blood—is available from only about six persons in Canada.

Five persons in the Maritimes —all related—have the blood.

Mrs. Lumsden and Miss Hendrobee are related, but the exact relationship was not immediately known.

The Red Cross in Toronto said earlier the most convenient source for donors of this blood type was in Nova Scotia, but there were some people in the Alberta foothills with the same type.

Three Canadian families — about 80 individuals — have the chromosome deletion type but no more than a half-dozen are potential donors.

The expectant mother if one of three sisters who have the rare blood, but her sisters are unable to donate because they have been sensitized, through previous births, to the Rh. factor. Red cells lack due to the chromosome deletion, the Red Cross said.

The search that led to Mrs. Lumsden and Miss Hendrobee was organized by Dr. Harold Taylor, medical director of the Red Cross Blood Transfusion Service in Halifax.

Dr. Donald Seaman, general practitioner at Guysborough about 12 miles west of here on Chedabucto Bay, found the women and arranged the trip to Halifax. The blood will be flown from Halifax to Toronto.

Sustain Govt. For 10th Time

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP) — With help from two New Democrats and eight Social Credit MPs, the minority Liberal government Tuesday night survived its 10th nonconfidence motion of the 1964 parliamentary session.

The motion, defeated 130 to 112, came as Parliament Hill was united in suspense for today's unveiling of the new maple leaf flag that has dominated discussion in the Commons for the last week.

If the 10 opposition MPs who backed the Liberals had swung their support behind the Conservative non-confidence motion the government would have been toppled.

The Conservative motion, moved Monday by former agriculture minister Alvin Hamilton charged that the government had failed to meet the pressing agriculture problems of Eastern Canada.

The 89 Conservatives present drew voting support from 12 NDP members and 11 of the Creditiste group. There were 120 Liberals in the chamber.

Standings in the 265-seat Commons: Liberals 128, Conservatives 96, NDP 17, Creditistes 13, Social Credit nine, vacant two.

CAN'T SUPPORT IT

H. A. Olson (SC—Medicine Hat) said his party agreed there were pressing agriculture problems in Eastern Canada, but they couldn't vote for the motion for this reason:

"There are problems of unity and other matters before the country at this time—and I am sure that if we were to support this (motion) tonight and thus plunge the country into another election at this stage, the wording of his amendment would be lost in the minds of its supporters before the one-way campaign was two weeks old."

Mr. Hamilton moved the non-confidence motion Monday he charged that the Liberal government was using the flag issue to cover up "a whole series of sins of omission" and that the question of eastern agriculture was one of them.

Agriculture Minister Hays jumped into the debate Tuesday with the suggestion that the government should be commended instead of condemned.

Four pieces of legislation, all designed to help the small farmer, are ready to be dealt with

Canadians Come Under Fire Of Two Factions in Cyprus

NICOSIA (CP) — Canadian United Nations peace-keeping forces came under fire from Cypriot gunmen in three separate incidents Tuesday in the Kyrenia Mountains north of Nicosia but they escaped injury on each of the occasions.

It was one of the most serious incidents so far in the two months since the Canadian troops arrived in the troubled Mediterranean island.

Two of the incidents involved Turkish-Cypriots and the third Greek-Cypriots.

In the first clash, the Canadians were given the rare permission by the UN headquarters here to return the fire and effectively silenced the Turkish positions with two bursts of machine-gun fire. No fire was returned in the other two cases.

The second incident saw Capt. Jean Lajeunesse of Montreal, former tutor to Prince Charles and aide de camp to Governor-General Vanier for two years, and UN broadcaster Antonello Marescalchi, pinned behind a UN civilian vehicle by savage Greek fire.

While the bullets rattled through the car and wrecked it as the men lay behind it, Lajeunesse and Marescalchi recorded a remarkable tape describing the scene.

Lieut. Jacques Grenier of Quebec City drove off and persuaded the Greeks to halt the firing. Greek-Cypriots quickly apologized and a Cypriot government press release blamed the incident on a case of "mistaken identity."

The third incident involved a Canadian jeep which was fired on twice by Turks but it was not hit.

Marescalchi told reporters later: "We were flying UN flags" so the panel identity was clear. The shooting came from a concealed post, from only about 400 yards away.

A UN spoke man said "these are three clear examples when firing was done in spite of unmistakable UN identification."

He added the UN force commander Lt.Gen. Prem Gyani of India sent a firm protest to the Turkish-Cypriot authorities over the first shooting.

The spoke man said Gyani would make representations to the Cypriot government today over the second incident, in which Greek-Cypriots fired 70 rounds at a car carrying UN civilian officers.

Bid to Allow Private Use Of A-Power Vital to Mines

TORONTO (CP) — A mining executive said Tuesday the future of Canadian uranium exports hinges on a proposed bill by the United States Atomic Energy Commission which would permit private ownership of nuclear facilities.

A. E. Lowell, marketing manager for Rio Algom mines, said in an interview that the bill would be discussed in three-day hearings beginning Thursday by a legislative subcommittee of the joint congressional committee on atomic energy.

Commenting following a two-day Canadian Nuclear Association conference, he said the bill would also allow governmental financing of the future and government operated high uranium enrichment facilities. Canada presently has only low enrichment or natural uranium.

Mr. Lowell said Canadian uranium production is dependent on exports and that an increasing number of civilian nuclear reactors throughout the world would demand enriched fuels in future. Canada does not have, nor could it afford to build, an enrichment plant.

Mr. Lowell said the legislation might seriously affect Canadian uranium producers because U.S. uranium mining officials are pressing for restrictions on imports of foreign uranium for enrichment and use in the U.S. They are not objecting to foreign uranium being brought in for enrichment and then being exported in that form.

Earlier during the conference, mineral economist Dr. James White of Denison Mines Limited predicted that before 1970 and perhaps within a year Canadian producers would be offered long-term supply contracts.

He said long-range plans for peace-time nuclear power and talk about uranium reserves have induced the electrical industry to seek guarantees of long-term fuel supplies for specific reactor projects.

He said coal companies in the United States have signed several 30-year contracts to supply coal to power stations and that there is good reason to believe similar contracts will be proposed

Three Red Maple Leaves Joined In Centre Of Field; 'O Canada' For Anthem

Pearson Would Fly Union Jack As Symbol of Commonwealth Tie

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson today proposed a Canadian flag composed of three red maple leaves on a white background with a vertical blue band at each end.

He also proposed that O Canada be the national anthem and that God Save the Queen be recognized as the royal anthem in Canada.

Mr. Pearson put two motions on the House of Commons notice paper.

Both would authorize the government "to take such steps as may be necessary" to establish the flag and the anthems.

The flag resolution also provided "that the royal union flag, generally known as the Union Jack, may continue to be flown as a symbol of Canadian membership in the Commonwealth of nations and of our allegiance to the Crown."

The resolution said that the flag to be established officially as the flag of Canada would embody "the emblem proclaimed by His Majesty King George V on Nov. 21, 1921 — three maple leaves conjoined on one stem — in the colors red and white then designated for Canada, the red leaves occupying a field of white between vertical sections of blue on the edges . . ."

The two resolutions appeared on the notice paper today and will appear on the Commons order paper Thursday. Prime Minister Pearson said Tuesday that debate would start a few days after the resolutions appeared, to give MPs time to consider them.

GET COLORED COPY

Accompanying today's edition of the notice paper MPs received a color reproduction on Foolscap paper — eight by 12 inches—of the proposed Canadian flag.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker got his look at the design from a copy handed him by a reporter. He said he had no immediate comment.

But he carefully scanned the resolutions and, turning the design picture around, said: "It doesn't make much difference either way."

He was expected to make a statement later in the day.

Meanwhile, a number of Conservative MPs re-affirmed their intention to battle the government's flag resolution right into a general election, if possible.

Mr. Pearson's motion ended speculation on the government's choice.

Sources said that having the Queen, in theory, make the change might lend to take the issue out of the political arena. Opposition spokesmen in the Commons have several times referred to "Pearson's pennant," and MPs have left no doubt in private conversation that the flag debate would likely deve op into an emotional political dispute.

Some Conservative backbenchers said Tuesday night a filibuster on the flag issue comes up for debate in a few days, but final strategy would depend on an examination of the resolution.

A majority of Conservatives favor retention of the Red Ensign, although Quebec members of the party support a maple leaf flag.

Most members of other opposition parties are expected to support the government. A few Liberal members have indicated they may abstain from voting.

PROPOSED REPLACE

In preparation for today's announcement, printers worked through the night producing thousands of replicas of the proposed flag.

Mr. Pearson told the Commons Tuesday that new members have had a chance to study the proposed design, the flag debate will be launched "in a matter of days." Mr. Diefenbaker had asked how soon the debate would be launched after "we see this pictorial obsession produced."

By Tuesday it had become obvious that the government was not going to tip its hand on the flag design and the number of questions on the issue faded off sharply.

Louis-Joseph Pigeon (PC — Joliette - PAssomption - Montcalm) wanted to know whether the government would make a "stupid" proposal to have two flags.

"There can be only one national flag," said the prime minister.

Speaker Alan Macnaughton ruled out of order a question by Robert C. Coates (PC—Cumberland) as to whether there would be educational programs carried out in countries where Canadian troops are serving, so they wouldn't be fired on when carrying an outmoded banner.

Mr. Pearson told Leon Balcer (PC—Trois - Rivieres) that the government has not taken a poll on the flag question "nor do I know of any poll taken by any party."

Will Open Consular Offices

WASHINGTON (AP)— President Johnson announced today that historic consular treaty with the Soviet Union and termed the event "a significant step" in building understanding between the American and Soviet peoples.

The treaty, announced simultaneously in Washington and Moscow, will provide for the opening of consular offices in the two countries. It is the first treaty ever negotiated between the United States and the Soviet Union.

Conciliation Board Recommends 19-Cent Boost for Non-Op Unions

OTTAWA (CP)—A four-stage wage increase amounting to 19.1 cents an hour over a two-year contract was proposed today for 40,000 Canadian railway workers.

The wage increase for the non - operating railway workforce was put forward by Mr. Justice Craig Munroe of Vancouver and David Lewis of Toronto in a majority conciliation board report made public today.

Gordon Cooper of Halifax, railway nominee on the federal conciliation board, filed a dissenting report that proposed a four-step wage boost amounting to about 12 cents an hour over the two-year contract.

Cost of the railways of granting the conciliation board recommendation is expected to be $30 million over the two-year life of the contract, which would expire Dec. 31, 1965. This figure includes the cost of extending the increase to other railway workers.

Specific proposals of the majority report, which is not binding on either the railways or the 13 unions representing the "non-op" work force:

—A six-cent hourly boost retroactive to Jan. 1, 1964.

—A further three cents an hour as of July 1, 1964.

—Another two per cent effective Jan. 1, 1965, estimated unofficially as the equivalent of four cents an hour.

—A final three per cent as of July, 1965, estimated to be worth 6.1 cents an hour.

—The majority report also proposed a $10 increase to $50 in the weekly indemnity under the railway welfare plan for the railways, plus a $500 boost to $1,500 in life insurance for each participating employee.

Mr. Cooper backed the recommendations in the majority report on health and welfare benefits, but submitted a counter-proposal for wage increases that called for:

—Three cents an hour retroactive to Jan. 1, 1964.

—Another three cents an hour at July 1, 1964.

—One per cent next Jan. 1.

—A further two per cent as of July 1, 1965.

The wage proposals are understood to work out to about 12 cents an hour at the end of the contract compared with the 19.1 cents an hour recommended in the majority report.

IODE Asks Plebiscite On Flag

By JANET KASK

FREDERICTON (CP)—Scores of letters on the Canadian flag issue were written to Prime Minister Pearson and members of Parliament Tuesday by members of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire at their 66th annual meeting here.

Delegates were urged by President Mrs. D. W. McGibbon of Toronto to write during the noon hour between business sessions, telling of their feelings on the Red Ensign and whether there should be a national plebiscite on the flag.

The action was prompted by a newspaper report in which Mr Pearson was said to have expressed uncertainty about receiving a telegram the order sent him Monday.

The report said Mr. Pearson answered he "wasn't sure" when Opposition Leader Diefenbaker asked him whether he had received the telegram.

The telegram, unanimously backed by some 300 members from across Canada attending the five-day meeting, was sent also to leaders of the opposition parties.

It said the IODE deplores that Canadians are being "deprived of their right to vote on an issue as important as the flag." Del-

Quinte Curling Club Dancers Get Diplomas

The Quinte Curling Squares, a Square Dance Club formed amongst the members of the Quinte Curling Club held their graduation banquet and square dance at the Curling rink this past week. Fifteen couples attired in Mortarboard Caps received diplomas from their caller and square dance instructors Ernie and Lucille Dempster.

Graduation exercises included a delicious "Roast Beef and Yorkshire Pudding" supper followed by the presentation of diplomas to the following members: Mildred and Bob Bastable, Martha and Ross Booth, Madge and Dan Cowley, Dolly and Jack Diamond, Vera and Everett Fairman, Audrey and Ev Gowsell, Ruth and Carm Lowther, Wyn and Fred Maund, Helen and Corky McCorquodale, Jean and Bill Meagher, Ella and Mac Moffatt, Mary and Harold Mott, Joan and Murray Shepherd, Jean and Howard Thomson and Agnes and Jim Walker.

Novelty presentations were also made to Fred Maund, Agnes Walker, Ev Gowsell, Dan Cowley, Mildred Bastable and Helen McCorquodale.

At the conclusion of the graduating class supper the Curling Squares were joined by guests from other local Square Dance Clubs for the square dance which followed. Caller Ernie Dempster put the dancers through their paces with a sprinkling of the old familiar and some of the newest dances. Joined in a novelty number by "Piddlin' Mac Moffatt," the dancers were given the added pleasure of "Live" music. Lucille Dempster called the steps for a lively Cowboy Quadrille a duet as her husband Ernie joined in the closing chorus.

At the conclusion of the evening Ev Gowsell, on behalf of the Curling Squares, presented their caller and Mrs. Ernie and Lucille Dempster with a beautiful steak knife and carving set and a very attractive ash tray in the Curling Rock design. The Curling Squares' members were thanked by Ernie and Lucille Dempster for their thoughtfulness and for their interest and enthusiasm during the past season.

Lunch was served to all the dancers, arranged by Dolly Diamond and assisted by a number of ladies from the Curling Squares after which a announcement regarding the fall resumption of the Curling Squares, on September 20, were made and all members of the Curling Squares are urged to be active in their recruiting of new members for the opening fall classes. Membership is open to all members of the Quinte Curling Club. Interested persons are asked to contact any of the present members for details

Co-ordinator of Program, L. F. Reid, Resigns

Quinte Secondary School Principal Leslie F. Reid has resigned as co-ordinator for the federal-provincial job re-training program which commenced last fall at the Quinte School.

Mr. Reid had acted as co-ordinator for the re-training program in addition to his role as Quinte Secondary School principal but has found he is unable to carry on the dual role.

All but one of the 186 teachers complement required for the September school opening have now been hired by the Quinte Board. At the May Board meeting contracts for eight teachers were confirmed, bringing the total of new and replacement teachers now hired to 64.

A letter from the local high school board to the South Frontenac Board expressing support in the action of the Grenville School in demoing their school principal will be mailed out.

WILL PAY COSTS

The Board agreed to pay tuition costs for two students from this north end of Tyendinaga township to attend classes at Tweed. The two students in question live a considerable distance from their nearest school bus route, which would bring them to Belleville.

The three-month trial period for Hunt Brothers, Peterborough custodial firm, will be extended to September at the request of the firm.

A small committee from the High School Board will meet with a similar committee from the city Public School Board to consider what to do about a graduation ceremony at the east of Quinte Secondary School.

In its present state the driveway is very dusty and either dust-laying surface or paving will be considered.

The Board agreed to the usual arrangements for bus service to high school students attending summer courses at Kingston.

Cost Driver $385 to Back Out of Driveway

Backing a car from a driveway onto a busy street can be a hazardous maneuver. Too, it can sometimes be expensive.

Before 52-year-old Joseph Fraser, Dale, 144 Victoria Avenue, was finished it had cost $385.

That's the damage assessed by police as Mr. Daley's automobile backed out of a Colborne St. driveway, across the road, a lawn flower bed and into the verandah of 218-A Colborne St.

Mr. Daley was uninjured.

26 Petitions For Divorce Are Listed

Once again divorce business is on Ontario Supreme Court sittings in Belleville.

Some 26 petitions for dissolution of marriage are listed on the docket of the court's non-jury sittings which open Monday.

This is more than half of all actions scheduled for hearing by Mr. Justice E. L. Haines at what is expected to be a two-week session.

It is also believed the greatest number of divorce actions listed for a single session of the court in Belleville, although the number of petitions has been steadily growing in recent years.

There are eight traffic accident claims to be heard by the court.

Highway Safety Theme of Talk At Rotary Club

Highway safety was the theme of an address given to the Rotary Club by Murray W. Rowe, of Ottawa, safety promotion officer for the Ontario Department of Transport.

Mr. Rowe, who was introduced by Magistrate T. Y. Wills, spoke to the members the new Accident Claims Fund and stressed that although some motorists may be additional $20 upon application for new licences if they carry no insurance, this does not take the place of automobile insurance, but merely protects the innocent motorist in the event of property damage or loss of life, or personal injury resulting from an automobile accident.

Mr. Rowe said since this act was introduced the number of uninsured motorists has decreased.

The speaker was thanked on behalf of the members by Rotarian P. McGuire.

Guests and visiting Rotarians were introduced by Rotarian Norman Moore.

Also present at the meeting was Miss Connie Stovell, a grade 13 student, who took part in the "Adventure in Citizenship" sponsored by the Ottawa Rotary Club. Miss Stovell revealed her experiences while in Ottawa.

In keeping with highway safety, Police Chief J. B. McLaughlan and Safety Officer Robert Hall were among the head table guests.

Absent from the club for some time due to ill health, Rotarian G. Daugherty returned to the club, on his birthday.

Stolen Car Soon Recovered

A car stolen in Belleville, Monday night was recovered nearly 24 hours later and 120 miles away—in Toronto.

The 1961 automobile, apparently undamaged, was found abandoned by Toronto police yesterday.

Tuesday morning Derek White reported the vehicle stolen from outside his home at 103 Chatham St.

Many Contracts Awarded by H. S. Board

Aluminum awnings costing $1,227 will be installed over a portion of the windows on the south side of Quinte Secondary school, it has been decided by the Quinte District High School Board.

The contract for the awnings has been awarded to Nash Products of Oshawa.

Also at Quinte Secondary a new natural gas service line will be run to the science labs, where it has been decided to use natural gas instead of the propane gas originally installed.

And consideration will also and commercial rooms at artificial lighting in the science be given for replacement of Quinte.

Other contracts awarded by the board at its monthly meeting, included one to Belleville Acme Electric for a continuation of the rewiring program at Belleville Collegiate.

PUT IN FALSE CEILING

The contract awarded also covers plumbing renovations.

Moira Schuster Ltd. received the contract for supplying coal and oil for high school use next season, while Quinn Ltd. received the contract for supply of No. 6 furnace oil.

Arthur A. Sills was awarded the contract for re-roofing at Belleville Collegiate, the contract calling for a built-up bonded type roofing.

Lightfoot Construction was given the contract for grading of the playing field at Moira Secondary School, and up to $350 will be paid by the board for landscaping of the campus at Quinte Secondary, the work to be done by the agricultural class.

Shrine Club Readying for Auction Sale

The Belleville Shrine Club is readying for its giant Auction Sale to be held on the club grounds on Saturday, starting 10.00 a.m.

Bid help from the public is still needed to help line the club's exchequer set aside for the crippled kiddies.

Any article, except clothing, is acceptable and will be called for immediately upon notification.

So look around the house for items you wish to donate for the sale. Phone any of the following members for pick-up service: WO 2-5833, WO 8-5716 or WO 8-7265

Shrine Club Auction Sale replaces the annual funds-raising police-firemen hockey game which was not played last winter.

It is being conducted under the aegis of the Shrine Camel Herders' Unit under Chief Camel Herder Ralph Plumpton. Shriner H. G. Birkenshaw is the chairman.

Assisting are Shriners Tom Lewis, Max Haggerty, Harry McLaren, Max Bush, Jim MacDonald, Harry McConnell and Hugh Sullivan.

Unit Herders are looking for a generous response on the part of the public for the Auction Sale.

Any article or articles you can donate will go to swelling the fund for the less fortunate youngsters.

Look around now — and phone.

Parks Board Wants Fountain Placed in Fraser Park

TRENTON — The Trenton Board of Parks' Management means to stick to its decision to have an ornamental fountain, the board's Centennial project in the centre round flower-bed area at Fraser Park, rather than go along with town council's suggestion that the fountain would look better, and serve more people in the Bayshore Park Extension, south of the Legion Hall.

Board members were generally agreed that more people frequent Fraser Park than the Bayshore Park and that the purpose of the fountain was to be seen from the bridge, the river and areas to the west of the park.

If council feels the Bayshore park is incomplete without a fountain . . . well, let council erect one there.

Fraser Park, too, is equipped by its present water supply, brought from parks' board secretary, Lorne Marion Baker, the meeting. "There is no money Centennial coming along before the post office is levelled."

Plans for the fountain in Fraser Park will be obtained, "right away," said board member Clyde Mason and the first phase of the work got underway.

Following the lengthy discussion about the fountain at last night's meeting Miss Hannah made the enagmatic comment that she "liked her concrete vertical." She was referring, presumably in obvious reference to a rumour circulating that Fraser Park would be "concreted over" to provide parking area by some members of council.

MEMBERS "CAGEY"

Parks' Board members last night were "cagey" about answering a request from council for a statement of their opinion that the gravel pit in Stanley Heights be filled, with garbage, instead of being turned over to the Board as parks' area.)

For the pit would be more "acceptable" to the Board if it were filled . . . but "no comment" was what it's board left with. That's council's problem.

This was a "red hot" issue, decided the Board members, and they didn't intend to incur the wrath of the Stanley Heights residents by going along with council's idea to fill the pit by the sanitary landfill method.

A suggestion from Mr. Mason that rat shooting might become a problem in the area of residential area, if council's plan were implemented, and considering the sanitary landfill method with pinched nostrils, the Board members steered a middle course when it came to the question of making the pit a garbage dump.

Board members too showed a strange reluctance to accept a "hole in the ground," a row of cars, and added a rider to their letter to council that "the Board would assume the area would be filled, before being turned over to the Board."

John Saylor pointed out that no amount of filling the one pit by the town would affect the drainage of the gravel pit on gravel, Stanley Heights will be sitting on the edge of a drainage pit anyhow. It was hoped by the Board members that the town would take steps to acquire the railway pit and fill it also.

FLAGS GO UP

Parks' Board members are also being cagey about the flag issue. Woollen Union Jacks, nylon Red Ensigns and nylon Stars and Stripes have been purchased to fly in Trenton parks. When the government's new design is announced, the board will have to decide where the new flag should be supplied. Meanwhile, the newly-bought flags go up in the parks today.

The Parks' Board members went along with a suggestion from the Memorial Library Board that a narrow sidewalk for children be constructed at the back of the library. This will be paid for either by the town or by the library board.

A suggestion that Grace United Church be allowed to hold a Sunday school picnic in Hanna Park, June 20, also met with approval—but the children will probably have to eat their lunch on the lawn, as most of t he park's picnic tables have been smashed by vandals.

A Boy Scout troop from Philadelphia will be told they are ever so welcome to camp in Hanna Park overnight in July, but will be advised of the location of Presquile Park, as having more facilities.

And the board has issued an appeal to Trenton citizens — in Elmwood Acres and on Flint Ave. and in Stanley Hts., to water small trees recently planted by the parks' garden er.

Present at last night's meeting were: William Ireland, chairman; Cyde Mason, Miss Marion Baker, John Saylor, Norman Armstrong and Donald McPherson.

Golfers Enjoy Tourney at Country Club

TRENTON — On Saturday, 40 Trenton Golf Club members took part in the ball foursome tournament at the club, committee chairman for the day was F. J. Aylsworth.

Low gross went to Clarence Nidgery and Naga Merik with a 85; low net, to Gordon Tripp and Pat O'Neil, with 35; most honest golfers' prize to Karel Vytopil and Dorothy Bearns, with 75.

Prizes were presented by Mr. Tripp and the members enjoyed a buffet lunch in the club after the game.

DRAWINGS SUBMITTED

Architect Peter Lasing has submitted "before and after" drawings to Donald McPherson and Douglas Hyde, on the first step to implement the Norwich Plan on Front Street. One block on the west side of the street, from Simmons' Drug Store to Evans' Red and White Grocery, has been submitted according to the architect's suggestions, and generally improved. Overhanging unsightly signs would be removed.

The merchants on the street are now be asked if they wish to proceed with the plan, on the strength of the drawings.

DRINKING PERMITS

VERWOOD, England (CP)—Arthur Dibben, publican of the Monmouth Ash Hotel here in Dorset, wants the government to issue drinking permits to everyones over 18—the legal age in Britain. "Some girls wear so much lipstick and mascara, it's impossible to tell their real ages."

Church Plans To Appoint New Padre of Pubs

ORILLIA (CP)—A new Padre of the Pubs for Toronto will be appointed Wednesday to replace Arthur Packman who died in Toronto several months ago, it was announced here.

The appointment will be made at the annual meeting of the United Church of Canada's Toronto conference. The unofficial title stemmed from Mr. Packman's rehabilitation work in Toronto taverns and cocktail lounges from 1961 until his death.

Church officials said that Mr. Packman's work had been recognized by the United Church even though he left the church. While he was supported by private donations, his successor will receive a salary from the church and will work in close co-operation with the Alcohol Addiction Foundation in Toronto.

The appointment has been included in the agenda of the five-day conference which has brought about 800 delegates from the Toronto area and as far north as Cochrane and Moosonee.

100 Veterans Will Honor Fallen Comrades

OTTAWA (CP) — More than 100 Canadian veterans of the two world wars will head back to Europe next week for battlefield ceremonies to honor the fallen comrades they left behind in French, Belgian, Dutch and German graves.

Highlight of the tour will be June 6 ceremonies in the Normandy area of France marking the 20th anniversary of the Allied invasion of Europe.

A 40-member party of the Royal Canadian Legion, a group of about 20 Canadian government officials and several other private groups will gather there along with a 50-man contingent from the Canadian Army's NATO brigade.

The Legion tour plans to retrace the battle route of the Canadian Army from Normandy to Holland. A ceremony at the Canadian War Cemetery near Nijmegen, Holland, will be combined with Holland's annual Liberation Day, postponed from May 5 when The Netherlands government learned of the Canadian visit.

Other ceremonial stops will be at the First World War memorials marking Canadian participation in the Battles of Vimy Ridge and Ypres, almost 50 years ago.

Veterans Minister Teillet will head the official Canadian party at each event.

Walking Tour of East Hill

About 15 people took part in Sunday's architectural walking tour of the East Hill. Assembling at the Museum to view old maps of the area first, the group looped along Victoria, up John, along Alexander, down Ann to Queen, down George to Bridge, and ended up on William Street.

The cottage at the south-east corner of John and Victoria does not appear on the 1845 map, but its diagonal paired chimneys and its drip mouldings over the windows suggest an early phase of the Gothic Revival, and it must have been built not long after. The house was evidently split into a two-family house in the 1890's, and the facade ruined in that time with awful window-dows; but it could still be restored to its original attractiveness by an architect with great taste in regard to the neighborhood, for the proportions of the structure as a whole are pleasant.

The school for retarded children is in a building of some dignity, with a fine large brick arch let into the front. A sour note played long and loud in an orchestra would not go unnoticed; but would it be considered worthwhile to restore the fine old Pleasant Road, aptly named, building with the first stands, evidently, on the site of T. W. Keyers' house, said to have been built in 1820, the first brick house in Upper Canada. We have a photograph of Meyers' house past Mumford: a tall two-storey brick house with chimneys in the ends, with the Georgian pattern of the door and fanlight in front, the door being in the centre: this is a style the Loyalists brought from the States. We should like to see proof of the date of this house—the 1818 map gives Meyers a house below, in the middle of Great St. James Street.

This house must have disappeared between 1874 and 1877, and is not pictured in the 1874 bird's - eye view of Belleville, but there is nothing marked on the site on the 1877 map and the 1878 map shows merely an old cellar hole. The 1883 revision shows a new house, presumably the present one. We hear an old story that workmen used bricks from the original house to build the present one.

The tour proceeded down Ann Street. Of particular note is the row of tenements on Ann Street extending south from Bridge. These may date from about 1860. They are subtly designed, with the exception set back for variety, and interesting three-dee detail of brick pilasters and frieze. The trees in front contribute greatly to the effect, cutting and carving patterns. The owner is to be congratulated for fixing these houses up. Much more could be done, of course.

SPEND FORTUNES

Americans in Georgetown and Boston and New York spend fortunes decorating little row houses: colonial style, and frequently have to play down late-Victorian eccentricities to arrive at something as simple and classical as this. Just see recent issues of "The American Home' and other magazines. We do not mean to say that this little row of houses necessarily has every virtue; but builders of the fake-less apartment blocks that are building for an undiscriminating public.

The walkers were hospitably received at the Bay - Riggs house at Queen and George Streets. This is a Tuscan Villa, presumably of about 1860, some what disguised by verandahs, oriel window, and mantlepiece

John St. show Italianate features which might not be recognized except by such a process of reasoning as we have suggested above.

The John Street-Hillcrest area cannot always have been such a mess as it now appears. The site must be one of the finest in the city. Several large houses hint at ambitious owners in the past. Is it the institutions in the neighborhood that cast the The present water tower blight, or is it the water tower? is enough to blight any neighborhood, so out of harmony is its shape with the church spires nearby and with almost anyconceivable style of architecture. In fact, this tower casts a blight over the whole city, for it is one of Belleville's most noticeable features, displacing the few remaining symbols of godliness. Old photographs show that the earliest water-tower was a simple cylinder, a shape once widely used and seldom offensive.

FIRST BRICK HOUSE

The tourists proceeded along Alexander Street, admiring Illacs as much as architecture, and went down to the end of Pleasant Road, aptly named. This last road, the first stands, evidently, on the site of T. W. Meyers' house, said to have been built in 1820, the first brick house in Upper Canada. We have a photograph of Meyers' house past Mumford: a tall two-storey brick house with chimneys in the ends, with the Georgian pattern of the door and fanlight in front, the door being in the centre: this is a style the Loyalists brought from the States. PUT TO VARIOUS USES

The Italianate tower was put to various uses; often it was simply a tower stuck onto the house, and Belleville has had a startling number of them; but it turns up disguised as a square projecting bay in the centre or to one side, and even, we think, as a two-storey bay window. In some cases it keeps its groups of two or three narrow round-headed windows, even if one has to be false. Sometimes the Italianate tower turns into a turret or 'belvedere' on the roof.

Miss Lazier's house on Hillcrest has the Italianate turret, a triple-arched entrance in a square bay, and signs of a large house on two sides.

Open House Will Open City's East End Library

Belleville's new East End branch library will be open for business next Tuesday, June 2nd.

But, Monday, June 1st, will be "open house" for residents who may wish to visit the branch library and look around. The "open house" will be held from 2.30 in the afternoon until 9.30 p.m.

Members of the library board, headed by chairman Lindsay Reid, along with the Library staff will be on hand to greet visitors, but there will be no official opening ceremonies.

Situated at the corner of Victoria Ave., and Farley Ave., the new East End library carries the official name of "Belleville Public Library, East Branch".

STONE CONSTRUCTION

Planned to blend with conventional private residences in the area, the one-storey branch library is of stone construction. It will have approximately 5,000 books (including the children's section) and will have a full time staff of two, plus additional help for evenings and Saturdays.

Library members may use their cards at either the main downtown library or at the branch library, but books will be expected to be returned to the library from which they are borrowed.

Librarian Miss Olive Deisney said that an inter-library system will be available whereby a book not on the shelves at the branch library may be brought from the main library.

Miss Marion Fisher and Mrs. William Lockyer will be in charge at the East Branch library.

Mrs. J. Clarke Celebrates 99th Birthday

Resident at the Hastings County Home for the past 18 years, Mrs. John Clarke, formerly of Stirling, today is celebrating her 99th birthday.

Monday, Mrs. Clarke, better known as Hettie, to her many friends, was the guest of honor at County Home Auxiliary birthday party, at which she cut the traditional birthday cake.

Although blind Mrs. Clarke nevertheless enjoys good health and by radio keeps up with the news of the day.

She keeps busy with quilting and other projects and each year makes Christmas wreaths and crosses which are offered for sale in a downtown store. Her memory is still keen, and she easily recalls events of her early life.

But at 99, Mrs Clarke is still not the oldest County Home resident. Mrs. Jennie Faulkner who last year celebrated her 100th birthday, has that honor. Mrs. Faulkner will be 101 in June.

Lost Plutonium

Lost—2.2 pounds of plutonium 238.

That's the stuff atomic bombs are made of.

Fortunately, there is no danger of this packet of plutonium going boom.

It is, however, lethal—its radioactivity could kill if the plutonium is still all in one piece.

The United States, which owns this million-dollar parcel of potential death, hopes that the plutonium is scattered throughout the higher atmosphere or buried, presumably safely, beneath the waves of the Indian Ocean.

But it cannot be sure. What is more, for anything the Americans did to prevent it, that plutonium could have come down in one chunk, on land, amongst people.

What happened was precisely what we are constantly told is an impossibility—a human error nullified all the careful scientific precautions to prevent a mishap.

The plutonium was used in a "small" atomic battery which was supposed to power a transit navigational satellite, but alott lost month. The satellite failed to go into orbit. In such an eventuality, arrangements had been made to destroy the payload, including the deadly plutonium. Somebody forgot to throw a switch. So the payload came down into the atmosphere off the west coast of Africa. It is believed the payload burned up, in which case the plutonium would be dispersed in minute particles at an altitude of some twenty miles and would probably lose most of its radioactivity before the particles drift down to earth. But nobody is certain that this occurred.

The U.S. atomic department had viewed the scheme with misgivings. But the Atomic Energy Commission won its battle to try the experiment. When it went awry, silence was kept until a newsletter, "The Atomic Forum," put an inquiry before the AEC public information office.

Surely this incident suggests that some international authority ought to have vested in it the right to control space experiments.

The difficulty is, of course, that there is no practical way to provide any such authority with the power to prevent experiments of which it does not approve. But even if this were lacking, establishment of such an international board would be of some value. It would be impossible to keep the world in the dark regarding experiments the safety of which was in doubt—as was the case with this one. It would be obvious what nations were flouting the board's authority and were conducting experiments without regard to the danger to others.

Mohawks Carry Union Jack

How much significance, we wonder, should be attached to the flag carried by the Mohawks in their re-enaction Sunday of their original emigration to the Quinte shores?

The flag, you will have noticed if you scanned Monday's front page of The Ontario Intelligencer carefully, was the Union Jack.

But does this mean that the Mohawks, unlike some other groups which once supported the Union Jack as Canada's flag, have not yet switched their allegiance to the Red Ensign?

Or does it merely indicate a taste for historical accuracy, since the event the Mohawks were commemorating took place over a hundred years before the Red Ensign entered the lists with its official designation as the flag of the Canadian merchant marine?

Some may suggest that the Indians, as the only original Canadians, have a better right than most to have their say about a national flag.

But the Mohawks are amongst the most Anglicized of any of our Indian tribes and their choice would not necessarily be that of their fellow-Indians in other parts of Canada. We suspect that the Red man, like the white, finds himself divided into several camps by the flag issue.

Quality and Quantity Both Wrong

George Phillip, a former valet of Sir Winston Churchill, says his troubles date back from his stay in Churchill's employ.

"There was so much to drink in that house," he told a London court. "It was all too easy to sample it, and once I'd started that I was finished."

Phillip was found lying face downward on a sidewalk, beside him a half-bottle of cheap fine.

Well, Phillip did not learn to drink cheap wine from Winnie—nor, for that matter, to buy half-bottles.

Simple Traffic Solution

New York Times

The Manhattan traffic situation may be nearing a lasting solution. It will go beyond Mr. Barne's latest proposal, which is to make Fifth and Madison one-way and change Broadway into a little bit of both uptown and downtown. No, the solution is the extension of these ideas into something better. More complete. More logical.

Instead of Alternate-Direction Streets, we would have Alternate - Direction Days. For example, on Monday, all traffic would flow downtown. On Tuesday all street traffic would flow uptown. On Wednesday it would flow downtown. On Thursday from west to east. Friday could be left open as a "wild" day on which traffic would flow any way it pleased, and Saturday and Sunday — no-downtown days — traffic would cease completely.

Look at the advantages of this simple plan. Say you live in Riverdale and you want to come into Manhattan on a Monday morning. It is a fine Monday morning, spring is here, the pigeons are cooing, and it feels good to get in the family buggy and drive to work. And you get this, — since it is Monday, driving will be a cinch. Once over the Harlem River, you whiz down the arteries that only last week were clogged with cars. Six lanes moving as one. Merely a nightmare of stop-and-go driving, now flows like penicillin off a mold. Riverside and Columbus, Central Park West, the whole nasty lot, are as open as a Texas plain.

You sing, you nod to your fellow-travellers, you leave it in third all the way. It is believed you can say U.S. i, you're at work. What could be more peaceful or delightful?

Obviously, you are thinking this is fine for Monday, but what about Tuesday? What does our man do on Tuesday when the alarm goes off at 7 A. M. on a lovely spring morning, our hero looks at it, thinks for a minute, remembers Tuesday, turns over and then goes back to sleep. Why? Because Tuesday is an uptown day and there is no legal way to drive from Riverdale to West 44th Street.

Now we come to the cross-town days. These are engineered especially for Manhattan dwellers, that happy breed of cliff-hangers who are never to find a taxi on Friday afternoon at 5, Saturday evening before the theatre or Sunday when it rains. What do they need taxis for, you may ask? To get across town. Since these days are the too smart to own cars, they patronize the rapid transit system, but as any fool can tell you, the rapid transit system almost never goes across town.

On cross-town days, there will be a tidal surge from one side of the island to the other, and things will be picked up and moved that should have been moved years ago. For example, some of the kids that play in the rubble-strewn lots of Hell's Kitchen will find themselves swept over toward Park and Sutton Place. Who knows what effect the sight of the Seagram Building — especially at Christmas time, when those little sprays of diamond lights sparkle on the shrubbery — will have on them? They will discover that Manhattan is more than bowling alleys and chow mein joints.

And now we come to the most therapeutic aspect of the whole plan. This is Friday, or Wild Day. Wild for what it is, — a day when anyone can drive any way he pleases. The town becomes an insane crazy-house, cheap for just twenty-four hours, and presto! — everyone is able to unleash all the pent-up hostility which has been building up all week. Names are called, fights are begun, fenders bent, are dented in a traffic snarl that beats anything since they ran the Ben-Hur chariot race in the M-G-M lot.

Saturday and Sunday, of course, are needed to unsnarl the mess, but nobody minds that, because only tourists drive into the city on those days and who cares about them?

No doubt, as the plan unrolls in all its fearful symmetry, various troublespots will turn up. However, with the usual good humor and courtesy for which New Yorkers are famous, it should not be too difficult to handle them. The others can blow their horns.

Fine Future But for Whom?

Forum, Cape Town

"In the long run, economic considerations out-sway politics. And in this country, you have a fabulous future to look forward to." — Sir Aynsley Bridgland, chairman of a number of British property and trust companies, on his departure from a recent business visit to South Africa.

Perhaps, Sir Aynsley, you may wish to ponder on How Things Are Done. For it is the Afrikan's future, a coloured's future, an Indian's future in this fabled republic?

Perhaps you and your fellow visiting industrialist, Viscount Mackintosh of Halifax, may care to think a T.A.M. on of the "wonderful years we forsee here" as what wonderful years they bring — while a skinful man forsees for himself?

Perhaps from this security that generation of your forebears, some at least of whom liberty to dip a finger valued in investments, have conferred on you, you may find a few minutes to consider the future?

What does it matter that about 40 or 50 years ago when some African miners' heads to be rewarded for their growing skill, white trade unionists struck at a campaign of sabotage, riot and revolution unapproached in our country since?

Why bother that the Nationalist Party of the time joined in a pact with those inciters of violence to pass a law which for all time makes it impossible for an African ever to be to come a skilled miner and to hope to earn more than about one-tenth of the wages of a European miner?

And in the compounds to which they return every night of their lives (and may never leave without a pass) shall they dream about the "wonderful years" spent without their wives and children?

Possibly you are aware, Sir Aynsley, that Afrikans have no enforceable rights of trade unionism. But have you realized that the very latest legislation of the republic makes of the African worker a "labor unit," an industrial serf with rights somewhat less than those of a serf in Britain about the time of King John?

Your investments, Sir Aynsley and fellow - investors, are very welcome. Perhaps they may change the future into a better one for more than your shareholders.

But when you speak of "fabulous future" and "wonderful years", do you not have some responsibility to reality — and the truth?

Waterproof Your Cat

Chicago Tribune

We are indebted to the Corn Industries Research foundation for the intelligence that hydrophobic starch has a peculiar new use as a fur dusting agent for cats. Starch, despite its name, has nothing to do with hydrophobia. It's a derivative of corn starch developed under a unusual water-repellent property. The idea is that felines, which abhor being subjected to rain or washed in a tub of water, should welcome being cleaned with dry hydrophobic starch.

The unusual property of the product has been exploited in magicians, who sprinkle it in a bowl of water, then invite spectators to dip a finger or hand in the bowl. Invariably the dipped member comes out as dry as the desert sand. A practical application for the starch includes its use as a dusting agent for plastics and rubber goods.

No doubt it's a fine product that will find many more uses, but we doubt if a cat cosmetic is one of them. In our judgment, based on casual acquaintance with the haughty creatures, cats are not going to be sold on a product that offers little, if any, improvement on their natural method of cleansing themselves. Cats, if we may be excused for saying so, have already licked the problem.

Many Letters Have Errors

St. Thomas Times-Journal

A recent survey indicates that 5% of all business letters are written to correct errors and omissions in previous correspondence. As serious as this may be, there is at least the consolation that the errors have been caught and corrected.

There is also this: Far too many business letters are cold, impersonal, unfriendly. Nothing is making in anything likely to bring about a warm and friendly relationship between writer and recipient.

Some people have the gift of writing better letters than others. But it would seem that almost any businessman of good will could and would write a sincere, friendly, informative letter than would convey his message clearly and pleasantly.

It's an inexpensive way to win friends and influence people.

The congregation of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church in this city has extended a unanimous call to Rev. W. J. Wilkie, B.A., of Niagara Falls, Ont., to become their minister. He has been minister of the Presbyterian church in Niagara Falls, which is his home town, for five years. He is reported to be one of the most brilliant younger ministers in the Presbyterian Church in Canada. Mr. Wilkie was selected on the first ballot from among nine ministers who have preached to the congregation during the past two months. Prior to going to Niagara Falls, Mr. Wilkie was minister at St. Mary's, Ont.

40 YEARS AGO

May 27th, 1924.

The Bay of Quinte Country Club was thronged all day yesterday with players and the first sweepstake of the year found many there. Contests were keen and good scores were made, with Dr. George Stobie and Mr. Harry Walker tied at the end of the eighteen holes and twice tied on the replay of the ninth hole to decide the winner. Dr. Stobie finally won.

A petition bearing hundreds of signatures has been presented to the city council and the Parks Board, recommending that Coleman Plate be selected as an athletic field and recreation ground instead of a location in West Belleville. However, according to Ald. Harry Greenleaf, the Parks Board has made the first payment on the Ponton property, and has undertaken to pay the balance in instalments. The matter is now in the hands of of the parks commission and the city engineer and a report with regards to the matter will be submitted to the council.

Casey, Gordon and Boyle.

Mr. Gordon C. Caldwell, son of Dr. Joseph Caldwell, dentist of this city, has passed the final examinations with honors at the Chicago Dental College.

Tombstones Once Taxed

Financial Post

Muttering maledictions and terrible imprecations on the heads of all government, most Canadians loathe direct and hateful taxpayers are now dutifully dropping their income tax arrears into the fat Majesty's Canadian Mails.

But those who feel that outright taxation is bad have been torn from their hides might well ponder the relentless legislation of the past few centuries.

Note this list of levies dredged up from the past by the New York Times:

The endless search for government money has been taxed, at one time or another, water for animals, servants' liveries, travellers' belongings, wigs, beards and the movable goods of non-Crusaders.

Feudal Europe was a tax jungle of local levies, tolls, church tithes and royal requisitions.

Early England's tax collection by their search for larger and larger revenues put special taxes on everything from windows to newspapers to tombstones.

Imperial Rome not only put duties on imports and exports but levied taxes on land and income and placed an impost on luxuries, temples and sacred ones.

Once, let it be noted, the taxpayer had a brief, mad moment of relief. In the Greek city state of Lemnos, the taxed rose up and replaced the taxers with a king who promised to reduce levies and dismiss all tax collectors.

But that was 30 centuries ago and as the last day of April races toward us, it is all too clear that the Lagash experiment backfired with a vengeance.

People Suffer From Goiter Trouble

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Do people still have goiters? I never hear about them. However, my doctor says I have one and that he can feel it when I swallow.

I have a nervous condition and am wondering if this could be the cause of it. — Mrs. S. E. B.

Certainly, people still have goiters, although not nearly as often as was the case 30 or 40 years ago, before the effects of iodized salt became apparent.

In those days there were more goiters, and they were caused by lack of iodine in various localities, the Midwest and Great Lakes regions being especially deficient. The thyroid gland, starving for the traces of iodine it needed, would enlarge in Nature's desperate effort to make up for the lack.

Goiters likewise grew to considerable size, and scars were more apparent, too, since people having operations for them.

Iodine, earlier diagnosis and more effective treatment have changed all this, and that's why you don't hear so much about goiters.

Goiter actually means enlargement of the thyroid. There are other causes of it besides lack of iodine, some of them known, some unknown. Poisons, protracted use of certain medicinal drugs, and other less identifiable factors still cause enlargement — or goiter.

Although small goiters may not be easily noticed, they can be felt with the fingers, because the thyroid gland moves when a person swallows. The swelling may also cause pressure which hinds the upper part of the breast bone, and hence not be easily seen.

There are quite a few kinds of goiters. If yours is of the "toxic goiter" type it is "hyperthaimic", it can result in nervousness, rapid heart beat and other symptoms. The kind of treatment, whether by medicine or surgery, depends on such factors as the way the goiter is manifed. If a malignancy is causing the enlargement, as sometimes occurs, surgery is of course required.

Many goiters, however, are successfully treated without surgery.

Dear Dr. Molner: Please give me some information on hemorrhoids. Why do most women have them? — Mrs. C. N. F.

It isn't true that "most women have them" but it is true that this is a frequent trouble in both sexes. So many readers have written with the subject that I have written a booklet on it, going into considerable detail. If after reading the booklet you still have further questions, write again and I'll answer them. But at least get the groundwork done first by reading the booklet. (Send 25 cents in coin and stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Molner, in care of The Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill. for a copy of "The Real Cure for Hemorrhoids.")

Dear Dr. Molner: My son was born with a hydrocele. He is now eight years old. One doctor says don't do anything, another says to operate. I understand that the surgery is involved and it is quite painful. Yes or no? I want to do the best thing for my boy. — Mrs. J. J. C.

Of course you do—and since hydrocele (a sac of fluid in the testis) will not "go away" by itself, the operation is eventually necessary. It can, however, be done at some time convenient for all concerned.

I disagree that such surgery is necessarily considered "major". There will be some tenderness and soreness right afterward, but that applies to a goodly number of operations, and I think you are, for whatever reason, more disturbed about it than the true facts warrant.

Strictly Personal

Individualism Mask for Greed And Privilege

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

I wonder how many of us in America really understand and appreciate the "individualism" we pay such homage to. Too often, it seems to me, the word is used merely as a political incantation, meaning "Let's keep the government from interfering with my right to grab as much as I want to."

But unless "individualism" becomes a much wider and deeper thing than this, it serves only as a mask for greed and privilege. Unless we really respect the value of dissent, the goodness of variety, the importance of the person because of what he wants to be in all aspects of his life, then we are simply flattening and debasing the whole idea.

A few weeks ago, I attended a meeting for five hundred women who are visiting our country on a cultural interchange program. They were women of intelligence and education — a doctor, a teacher, a social worker, and so on. The audience asked them many questions about the Soviet system.

What was so depressing about the program was the utter lack of individuality they manifested. They spoke by committee; their replies were "official" ones; further facts about the program dimmed. If a malignancy is causing the enlargement, as sometimes occurs, surgery is of course required.

Many goiters, however, are successfully treated without surgery.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP)—A wave of speculative trading sent prices higher and the high-speed ticker tape running 10 minutes behind floor transactions on the stock market this morning.

Rowan Consolidated led the surge as it turned over more than 500,000 shares in the first hour of trading, climbed 9¼ cents to 37 cents, and then slipped back to 30 cents with a 2¼ cent gain.

Other Timmins - area stocks which traded actively were Parmaque, Marchant, Belleterre, Genex, Gulf Lead and Bunker Hill. All of the issues were ahead between one and three cents.

Among senior base metals, Hudson Bay dipped 1¼ to 65¾ while Denison gained ½ to 14⅛ and Noranda ¼ to 47. In lower priced issues, Highland - Bell sagged 90 cents to 56 and Leitch 50 cents to 84.50. The two companies have been linked in various rumors, however, a lack of news apparently soured speculators.

Industrials were down fractionally. Algoma Steel dipped 1¼ to 68⅝.

On index, industrials were down .05 to 156.01, base metals .24 65.09 and the Exchange index .03 to 145.81. Golds were up .06 to 136.58 and western oils .20 to 98.37. Volume as at 11 a.m. was 2,684,000 shares compared with 4,436,000 shares at the same time Tuesday.

On Tuesday the volume on the stock market swelled to 6,944,000 shares, the highest since April 29 when 8,167,000 shares crossed the tape.

Tuesday's volume contrasted with the 4,921,000 shares traded Monday.

Chief reason for the increase was a burst of activity in a handful of speculative mining issues.

Rowan Consolidated paced the speculatives as it turned over 1,166,958 shares—most of them in the last two hours of trading —more than doubled in price from 12½ cents to its closing level of 27½. Other active issues which moved higher were PCE Explorations, Bunker Hill, Goldfields Mining, Genex and Belleterre.

Another feature of the market was Highland - Bell which climbed to $7.35 before closing with an 85 cent gain at $6.90. Leitch gained 40 cents to $4.80. The Toronto Stock Exchange executive committee—which is not connected with brokerage firms —has held discussions with L[illegible]rators and is aware of conditions making Leitch move.

BROKERS LEFT OUT

However, the TSE stressed that its board of directors—composed of brokers—does not know what is going on Leitch and therefore has no information which could be used to its advantage.

Meanwhile, industrials took a minor index loss. Price Brothers slipped 1¼ to 43, CPR 1⅛ to 47¼ and Interprovincial Pipe Line $1 to 83½. Smaller losses went to such key issues as Algoma Steel, Dominion Tar and Steel of Canada.

Senior base metals had Denison up ⅛ to 14¼ and Falconbridge ahead ¼ to 72¾. Hudson Bay dipped $1 to 67.

Dome paced a gold uprising with a $1 gain to 39¾. La Luz was ahead 35 cents to $6.70.

On index, industrials dipped .06 to 156.05. Golds were up .42 to 136.48, base metals .03 to 65.33, western oils .13 to 98.17 and the exchange index dipped .06 to 145.84.

Evident City Interested In Attracting New Business Industrial Management Told

Industrial development on the municipal level set the pace for an address given at the final meeting of the year of the Quinte Chapter of the Industrial Management Clubs of Canada, by Ronald W. Nablo, Industrial Commissioner for the city of St. Catharines.

Mr. Nablo said it was evident from what he had seen and been told that Belleville was very interested in attracting new business to its community.

He said in order to do this the city must maintain a close liaison with the government officials.

Mr. Nablo explained how industries were attracted to communities and pointed out that in Ireland, communities give as a gift to attract industry, a building and half of the machinery that is needed to operate the industry. He said industry should be encouraged rather than discouraged as is done in some communities.

Following the speaker's address an open question and answer session was held, of which a number of members took advantage. One question raised was that of a city having a commercial airport.

Mr. Nablo said that although this would be a very good thing to have, most airports were at least an hours drive from the nearest municipality and in general business men travelled conveniently by the commercial airlines, which took them to the larger cities, where the larger industries are located, for instance the city of Toronto.

The speaker was introduced by W. R. Gander and thanked on behalf of the Quinte Chapter by D. Watkins.

His Worship the Mayor, Jack R Ellis, representing the city, was among the head table guests.

Following the speaker's address the president's gavel was turned over to incoming president R. W. Lacy, by outgoing president S. Courtyea.

The following slate of officers was submitted and accepted by the nominating committee: president, R. W. Lacy; immediate past president, Courtyea; 1st vice-president, G. Peavy; 2nd vice-president, D. Watkins; treasurer E. Cauley and publicity chairman, Sherriff L. Neilson.

About 75 members attended the meeting.

Kiwanis Club Tour Ends In Tweed

The Kiwanis Club is leaving town today . . . not for long though.

Actually they are leaving the Kiwanis Centre this afternoon at 3.30 by bus which will take them to the Moira River Conservation Water Shed, and bring them back sometime around 9.00 this evening.

The tour will be conducted by Conservation Officer John King. Following the tour the bus will then take the club to the Tweedsmuir Hotel , where they will hold an inter-club meeting with the Kiwanis Club of Tweed. Members of the newly-formed Quinte Club will also be attending.

The tour was arranged by Kiwanian Bev Quincey and Bob Hendry.

THE ASSOCIATES:

who they are, what they do and how they can help you with a financing plan for every need

THE ASSOCIATES finance commercial ventures and private dreams.

You may never have heard of them, but they've been in business for close to fifty years. You may never have borrowed from them, but it's quite possible that the company you work for has done so at one time or another.

The Associates, with their affiliates, form one of the biggest and most experienced companies in the world of finance. They have assets totalling more than a billion and a half dollars. And they have a network of 600 offices in the United States and Canada.

And yet it isn't surprising that you may never have heard of them.

One good reason why their name is not more familiar is that the Associates are not in the business of persuading people to borrow money. They are in the business of lending to responsible companies and individuals at reasonable rates of interest. And that's a business that can be conducted quite quietly and calmly.

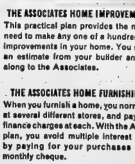
Some Canadian newspapers have had a good deal to say recently about exorbitant rates of interest, hidden charges and the dangerous game of lending money to people who are not qualified to borrow.

The Associates have never conducted business in this way. In many cases, their rates of interest compare very favourably with the rates charged at Canadian banks; there are no hidden charges and no obscure clauses in their contracts; and they never lend money to unqualified people.

IS THERE A DIFFERENCE BETWEEN THE ASSOCIATES AND OTHER FINANCE COMPANIES?

Most other finance companies specialize in certain kinds of loans. In automobile financing, for example, in business loans or in debt consolidation. The Associates, on the other hand, have a financing plan for literally every need. They make it possible for you to go to one company for all your borrowing needs and they simplify the paperwork both for us and for you.

Other finance companies normally limit the amount that can be borrowed. At the Associates, there is no limit. No request is too big; and certainly none is too small. The Associates make multi-million-dollar loans to companies and hundred-dollar loans to individuals. Repayment schedules are just as flexible. There's no rule that says loans must be repayed within a set time. Repayments can almost always be tailored to suit your budget.



YOU BORROW BEFORE YOU BUY AT THE ASSOCIATES

Borrowing ahead of time makes shopping simpler and often means that you can save by taking advantage of a bargain when you see it. The Associates call this "Look-Ahead Borrowing." It makes all kinds of sense.

Something else that makes sense for people who are buying houses is the Home Owner's Loan Plan. It allows you to use the equity you have in your home as collateral for a loan. You borrow over a longer term and at a lower rate of interest than you'd pay for an unsecured loan. And you qualify for the plan whether you've finished paying for your home or not.

A FINANCING PLAN FOR EVERY NEED

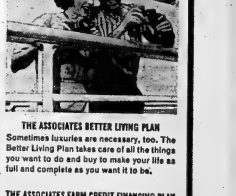
Generally speaking, people have the same needs, desires and ambitions. So 999 out of every 1,000 loans are made for the same comparatively short list of reasons. The Associates have developed a specific plan to fit every one of them. The list that follows is not complete. But it will serve to give you some idea of their scope and variety.

THE ASSOCIATES HOME IMPROVEMENT PLAN

This practical plan provides the money you need to make any one of a hundred different improvements in your home. You simply give an estimate from your builder and bring it along to the Associates.

THE ASSOCIATES HOME FURNISHING PLAN

When you furnish a home, you normally shop at several different stores, and pay separate finance charges at each. With the Associates plan, you avoid multiple interest payments by paying for your purchases with one monthly cheque.



THE ASSOCIATES BUSINESSMAN'S PLAN

Your standard of living is expected to advance along with your career. This plan helps you keep pace. It provides money to move into a new home, to buy a new wardrobe or a second car; money for business expansion, for new equipment or to meet sudden emergencies.

THE ASSOCIATES AUTOMOBILE FINANCING PLAN

You can often make a better deal on a new or used car when you have cash in your pocket. The Associates plan puts it there. You get terms sensibly designed for your budget and a contract that's crystal-clear.

THE ASSOCIATES BETTER LIVING PLAN

Sometimes luxuries are necessary, too. The Better Living Plan takes care of all the things you want to do and buy to make your life as full and complete as you want it to be.

THE ASSOCIATES FARM CREDIT FINANCING PLAN

The costs involved in operating a farm grow every year. The Associates plan makes money available for business and personal expenses at short notice. Repayments are arranged to suit seasonal incomes.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS

BY PATRICIA LEWIS

ETIQUETTE INTERESTS TINY TOTS

Driving in a nursery school car pool is like backing a cab. The passengers think of you as nothing more than an appendage of the steering wheel and feel free to speak their minds without paying you any heed.

I do my stint every Friday morning and have as large five little girls all just-turned-five, plus my three - year - old who comes along for the ride.

Since manners often pop into the children conversations, I find the drive highly educational. Little girls, I've discovered, hate to be interrupted when telling a story, but unlike grown ups they're less restrained about showing it. If someone tries to kill a point in the making, the speaker makes no bones about showing her displeasure.

"Keep quiet when I'm talking" one little one piped up last week. "Don't you know how to show your manners? And, of course, the one who was rudely interrupting was squelched for the time being.

My five-year-old is very particular about saying "please" and "thank-you," and expects her friends to be exactly the same way. If one of them goofs, Margie brings her up with a reminder to "Say your manners," before turning over the doll or piece of colored yarn one of her classmates has asked to see.

FAVORITE TOPICS

They're also great gossips, and one of their favorite topics is how they are treated as guests in other children's homes.

She was amused to me" (mistake in translation, that another child wasn't a very proper hostess and didn't let the visitor play with a toy or have a second cake. For the time being the misguided hostess is on the pool's "off-limits" list and the youngsters chuck mightily over her lack of five-year-old etiquette.

If someone's mother has blown up over some infraction of house rules since the day before, it is duly reported on the way to school. The smitten one can count on lots of sympathy from her cohorts, who join in talking over the ways of some mother and how inconsiderate they can be at times.

But they are very tolerant about anyone who is younger than they. Amy, my three-year-old, is an imp, and likes to take an opposite viewpoint on any issue just to get everyone shouting. But if anyone should get angry enough to haul off and try to sling her, the others step her in time with the reminder that "it's not manners to hit a baby, even if she pinches."

Amy starts nursery school next term, so I'm looking forward to a big improvement in her viewpoint on manners when she joins the council of elders and can take a similar tolerant attitude toward such childish behavior.

OCCUR IN PAIRS

Poles of a magnet occur invariably in pairs. When a magnet is broken in two, new poles appear near the break so that each piece contains one positive and one negative pole.

Maytime Tea Held at Melrose

In the traditional blue and gold colors of the W.I. the Melrose Hall assumed a gala appearance when the Melrose W.I. entertained at a "Maytime Tea" with various other Branches in attendance. Floral garlands draped across the archway and baskets of colorful spring flowers in the windows and on the stage created a delightful setting. The tea-table was appointed with yellow mums and a matching "May-Pole" centrepiece, with yellow and blue candles in silver candelabra and silver tea services, while small tables with white covers centred with miniature "May-poles" on gold doilies, accommodated the visitors.

Presiding at the tea table were Mrs. T. Kelly, district president, Mrs. A. English, Mrs. E. Lazer and Mrs. R. Baldrey.

The guests were graciously received by Mrs. G. Stratton president, and Mrs. G. MacLaren, board director of Trent Valley Area. The musical portion of the program consisted of community singing with Mrs. J. McLaren as song leader and Mrs. C. Bates at the piano; solos by Mrs. J. Lawrason of Chapman's Branch; a popular number by the "Melrose Lady Bugs"; a piano selection by Miss Thompson of Tyendinaga-East; two solos by Mrs. N. Wild of Carrington-Corbyville branch and a song by Miss Lorraine Fargey of Roslin.

GUEST SPEAKER

The guest speaker for the evening was Mrs. James Haggerty of Napanee, president of F.W.I.C. who was introduced by Mrs. McLaren. Mrs. Haggerty gave a most interesting resume of her visit to the Institutes in the North West Territories last year. Among other things she described most vividly the country, the people and their customs, the mode of travelling and the educational facilities. She was particularly impressed by their gracious hospitality and their deep interest in betterment of their vast country. The Institutes play an important part in the social life of the community and have really gone all out for the project "Made in Canada Lovelier". She reported that arrangements have been made for Miss Sennzeiter, president of Delta W.I. at Inuvik to attend the national convention in Nova Scotia next month. She is a mixture of Swedish and Indian descent and will be welcomed by all in attendance.

Mrs. K. McMechan thanked the speaker and Mrs. Stratton presented her with a potted plant after which dainty refreshments were served and a most enjoyable evening ended.

U.C.W. Meeting

SCOTTS U.C.W

6TH SIDNEY — Twelve members of Scott's United Church Women met at the home of Mrs. Carman Frost on Thursday evening with the president, Mrs. Maurice Datoe presiding.

Following the regular opening procedures a discussion took place during which time it was decided to send a donation to Quin-mo-lac camp. One member will be going to the Retreat at Five Oaks for two days next week. Arrangements are being made for the supply sale for overseas and for the home mission work to be packed at the home Mrs. G. Pollard will be the assistant to the secretary for stewardship, recruiting and finance.

Mrs. Morley Sine conducted the Bible study which brought out the fact that God still uses definite detailed orders, if one only listens and obeys. Mrs. Cameron, she reviewed a chapter of "The Word and the Way" which revealed that "Resurrection happens not only at Easter but every day. The early missionaries were martyrs but after Rome fell, they laid the foundation for our Christian heritage". David Livingstone once said, "Win the people and they will teach the others."

A discussion in regards to the study concluded the meeting.

TRAVEL LIGHT

I often receive letters about holiday wardrobe planning. A recent letter was from a woman who was taking a 1000-mile motor trip, calling on friends en route. This sounds great, but she had not seen some of these friends for at least ten years. Therefore, she had to arrive looking fresh and chic. She also had a darker navy costume — a skirt and a long, semi-fitted tunic coat. Her shoes were navy blue with stacked heels and she bought a navy pair of sling-back pumps. She took along one navy blue pillbox hat with a little veil, two navy, red and white colored silk scarves, pearls and one pair of jeweled pin. She bought one silk overblouse in tones of pink and red to wear with her navy outfit.

Her engagements consisted of visits with an old friend who is fashion conscious, a luncheon date with an old beau and another visit with a critical cousin. Then our reader went sightseeing and kept a business appointment. She packed only one suitcase, which was the regulation 20" x 16" x 9". It was easy to carry and contained everything needed.

TRAVELLING COAT

She travelled in the navy coat worn navy side out. On arrival at her destination, she just reversed the coat. By so doing the checks did not get dirty while driving. Under her coat she wore either of the navy outfits. Sometimes, she added the blouse to the tunic suit, other times the neckline was brightened with a scarf or with her pearls and the pin. She drove in the stacked-heel shoes and slipped into the sling-back pumps as she got out of the car.

When first submitting her wardrobe list, it lacked only the blouse, two silk scarves, a hat and the sling-back pumps. She had planned to buy a travel hat and a flower-trimmed straw, wearing one and packing the other. Her final decision was to take only one hat. She wrote to me after her trip to say that she felt much smarter in the pillbox than she would have in either the travel hat or the flower-trimmed creation.

The scarves were used with the basic navy dress as well as with the suit. The blouse made the suit look quite different when she left the top of the jacket unbuttoned to allow the color of the blouse to relieve the navy blue.

If you have a question on fashion just write Pegg Rogers care of this paper.

WEDDINGS

KEENE — EMBURY

Baskets of mixed flowers and potted mums formed a lovely setting in the chapel of Bridge Street United Church, Belleville, when Janice Lovena Embury, daughter of Mrs. Alethea Embury, Shannonville, R.R. 2, was united in marriage recently to Thomas Neil Keene, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Keene, Belleville R.R. 6. The Rev. H. M. Davis, minister of the church, officiated.

The bride, given in marriage by her eldest brother, Ivan Embury, wore a bridal gown of white silk chiffon over satin enhanced with an embroidered bodice. Her two-tier shoulder length veil of net edged with embroidery flowed from a crown of satin, studded with seed pearls. She carried a nosegay of white 'mums and red roses with satin streamers.

She was attended by her sister, Karen Embury, who wore a light blue satin brocade dress with matching blue wedding ring style headdress, white accessories and carried a nosegay of white and red 'mums.

Mr. James Keene of Belleville R.R. 6, attended his brother as groomsman, while Mr. Vincent Turpah of Oshawa was the usher.

A reception for 58 guests was held in the Neighbors' Aid Hall, Belleville R.R. 6, where the bride's table was centred with a three-tier wedding cake topped with miniature bride and bridegroom and flanked with pink and white candles. The bride's mother, dressed in a flowered silk jersey dress with white flowered hat, white accessories and a corsage of yellow roses, received the guests, assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore a light blue and navy with white crepe dress, white flowered hat, white accessories and a corsage of yellow roses.

For the wedding trip to Quebec the bride chose a light knobby wool suit, blue and white flowered hat with veil, white accessories and a corsage of white 'mums and red roses.

Guests were present from Tweed, Harrowsmith, Catarqui, Oshawa, Toronto, Cooper, Shannonville, Foxboro and Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Keene will reside at the home of the bridegroom's parents at Belleville R.R. 6.

The bride was entertained at a miscellaneous shower held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Murray, Prince of Wales Drive, and was also presented with an electric tea kettle, toaster, and linen table cloth from the office staff of International Hardware.

FARR — WHITE

FRANKFORD — The Free Methodist Church was the scene of a double-ring wedding ceremony on Saturday, May 9th, when Joanne Esther White of Oshawa became the bride of Wayne Claude Farr of Oshawa. The bride is the youngest daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Donald White of Frankford and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Farr of Wallingford, Ont. The bride's father officiated at the ceremony before an altar banked with baskets of pink gladioli and white mums.

The organist, Mrs. Eldon Kemp, played traditional wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Miss Myrna Sine.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, William White, wore a carnation white bridal gown of pure silk organza over taffeta. The bodice was formfitting with the square neckline having an inset of Alencon lace beaded with seed pearls and sequins and lily point sleeves. The soft fullness of the bouffant skirt was accentuated with scalloped, lace bordered flounces. Her bouffant veil was caught up with a coronet of crystals and pearls and she carried a cascade bouquet of red roses with two white gardenias and green fern.

The bride's attendants were dressed identically in matching dresses of pink satapeau with lace bodices and short sleeves, with full skirts.

They wore matching headpieces in the Cleopatra style with pearl drops on the forehead and short veils. They carried cascade bouquets of white and pink 'mums.

The bridesmaids were: Mrs. Ronald McDonnell of Perth, sister of the bride; Mrs. Bert Wagar of Napanee, sister of the bride, and Mrs. Guy Coutu, Oshawa. The flower girl, little Miss Rhonda McDonnell, niece of the bride, wore a white organza full skirted dress trimmed with pink and a bandeau of flowers. She carried a basket of pink and white 'mums. The ring-bearer was Master Lance Coutu of Oshawa, who carried the rings on a white satin pillow.

The groomsman was Mr. Guy Coutu of Oshawa. Ushers were Mr. Ronald McDonnell of Perth and Mr. John Figure, of Rochester, N.Y.

The reception was held at the Stockdale United Church, where the bride's mother received wearing a three-piece aqua suit with pink and black accessories and a corsage of pink Sweetheart roses and white gardenias. The bridegroom's mother assisted, wearing a blue silk dress with white accessories and a corsage of pink Sweetheart roses and white gardenias.

For the wedding trip to Niagara Falls, the bride chose a three-piece suit with pink and black accessories and corsage of pink Sweetheart rosebuds.

Out-of-town guests were present from Sharbot Lake, Trenton, Perth, Oshawa, Rochester, New York; St. Catharine, Napanee, Mississippi, Clarendon and Wellandport.

Mr. and Mrs. Fair will reside in Oshawa.

Barbara Jane Dyble, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Dyble of Bellerville, recently graduated from Victoria Hospital, London, Ontario.

Robert Michand Jr., received his B.A. at Queen's University on Saturday, May 23rd. Bob received his education at Quinte Secondary School. He has accepted a position with General Motors, Oshawa, in the Sales Department.

Thomas McMullen, son of Dr. and Mrs. Thomas C. McMullen, Parker Street, graduated from Queen's University on Saturday, May 23rd. He received his Bachelor of Science degree with first class honors, and was awarded the University medal in chemistry, and the Alpha Key of Merit, given by the Canadian section of the Society of Chemical Industry to the student making the highest standing in the final year in the honor course in chemistry.

Tom received his secondary education at Albert College and is returning to Queen's to take post graduate work in chemistry. He has been awarded a $2,000 bursary, plus a $1,000 summer supplement by the National Research Council.

Reginald Adelbert McCurdy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Adelbert McCurdy, Stirling R.R. 2 graduated recently in the architectural course from Ryerson Institute of Technology. Mr. McCurdy received his secondary school education at Stirling High School. He has accepted a position with Watson and Wiegand Architects, Belleville.

An enjoyable function honoring 1964 graduates of Belleville General Hospital was a mother and daughter tea held in Education Hall on Saturday, May 23rd, at which the graduates and their mothers were entertained by the executive of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary. Guests were received by President Mrs. F. Beeby, assisted by Miss Doris Smith and Mrs. M. K. Barrett. During the afternoon silver cuff links engraved with the hospital crest were presented to each girl.

The room was decorated with spring flowers and the table, covered in pink and centred by a shaded pink flower arrangement, was presided over by Mrs. Ben Morley and Mrs. M. F. L. Jones.

New Program Outlined by Superintendent

TORONTO (CP) — A program to rehabilitate emotionally disturbed children through the use of untrained or partially trained "teacher - mom" has been outlined by Dr. George S. Donahue, assistant superintendent of schools at Elmont, N.Y.

Addressing a meeting of the Ontario Association for Emotionally Disturbed Children Monday night, Dr. Donahue said the program involves use of a one-to-one teacher-pupil ratio and costs about $650 a year per child.

He said the cost is only slightly more than the cost in the average elementary school and compares favorably with the annual cost of $3,200 for custodial care in a mental hospital or residential treatment centre.

Dr. Donahue said "teacher-moms" are volunteer mothers who have a record of success in raising their own children and who are devoted to the cause of sticking with "the most unlovable children in the world."

The volunteer mothers are unpaid, he said. "When you start to pay them you start to lose quality. We could never begin to pay them what they are worth."

RETURN TO INDIA

NEW DELHI (AP) — About 7,000 Indian residents in Burma returned to India in the first four months of 1964, the government has announced. It says everything is being done to transport and resettle Indian shopkeepers hit by Burma's nationalization of small business.

Sex Education Needed Says Specialist

CHICAGO (AP)—If U.S. teenagers are sexually promiscuous, their parents are to blame, says Dr. Mary C. Calderone, a New York City specialist in public health.

She told the national convention of the Parents-Teachers Association Tuesday that "we have done a half-baked job" of sex education. She urged a full, factual program extending from first grade through senior high school.

Dr. Calderone said the inference children draw from the books and films to which they have free access is that "while our society whole-heartedly believes in monogamy and sex within marriage, nevertheless sex outside marriage is fun and sophisticated and an 'in' thing."

to uranium producers.

Dr. White predicted a sharp drop in Canadian uranium production in the next decade, but said that by 1970 Canada will have half the world uranium reserves and will play a major role in the development of nuclear power.

The United States, he said, currently the world's largest producer of uranium, will be straining to meet domestic demands at least until 1980. The U.S. could become a major importer of uranium.

He said commitments on other major world reserves and increased world demand for uranium could provide significant export markets for Canadian producers.

George C. Brown, general manager of Canadian Westinghouse Limited, said the value of nuclear fuel requirements in Canada by the mid-1970s should be $16,000,000 annually.

Ian C. MacKay of the Canadian General Electric Company in Peterborough said coal-fired electrical generating stations no longer are the chief competitors of Canadian-designed nuclear power plants.

The big competitor, he said, is the new type of nuclear electric station being developed in the U.S. which uses ordinary water compared with the heavy water used in Canadian reactors.

Mr. MacKay suggested, however, that the "ashes" of the enriched uranium burned in U.S. reactors would still have enough power to be used in Canadian plants.

IODE

egates called for a national plebiscite so "the people of Canada may decide whether the Canadian Red Ensign or a flag of a new design shall be the official flag of Canada."

The IODE, which has some 29,000 members, has backed the Red Ensign for several years and last year conducted an all-out campaign for its adoption as the national flag.

The flag has been the leading issue at a meeting which ends here today.

A recommendation against racial discrimination in Canada's immigration policy was passed Tuesday. It stated that the order favors an immigration policy "that does not discriminate on the grounds of race, national origin or religion." The policy should be "based on the economic needs of the country and its international and humanitarian responsibilities."

A resolution passed provides that the IODE will offer 22 bursaries of $1,600 each and six post - graduate scholarships of $2,000 each in 1964 from a Second World War memorial fund.

The scholarships are awarded to Canadian sons and daughters of veterans disabled in the world wars.

War Memorial Secretary Mrs. R. C. Bennett of Hamilton announced winners of $2,000 scholarships for the 1964-65 school term.

They are Carole Borowski, of Dauphin, Man., Richard Alway of Hamilton, Jennifer Jackson of Schotland and Rosalie Beck of Lunenburg, N.S.

A municipal dinner for the order was held at the University of New Brunswick.

During the dinner Mrs Mc-Gibbon read a telegram from Queen Elizabeth thanking the order for a resolution of loyalty to the royal family, passed Monday.

FIRST SUB SINKING

The first sinking of a warship by a submarine occurred 100 years ago when the Confederate undersea craft H. L. Hunley sank the U.S. ship Housatonic off Charleston, S.C.

A Jolly Junior is an orange skin filled with strawberry ice cream and rakishly capped and studded to give you a smiling boy. An enchanting dessert for children's birthday parties.

Festival Strawberry Ice Cream Desserts

By MARY MOORE

The glamor product of the dairy industry is ice cream and they have reason to be proud, for it is so popular that the consumption of ice cream by Canadians has doubled since 1950.

Redcoers will be interested to know that ¼ cup (¼ of a pint brick) of commercial ice cream contains 176 to 300 calories.

For the benefit of party givers for little people and for big people I am giving you two novel ways of serving strawberry ice cream in intriguing containers.

For children's birthday parties serve

JOLLY JUNIORS (orange shells filled with strawberry ice cream):

Wash large oranges. Cut a slice from the top which should be about 1" at its deepest part. Scoop out orange pulp from both cup and cup with curved knife. (Use pulp for fruit cup for another meal.) Makes a "face" on one side of orange shell. For each eye use four cloves, blossom end out. First, puncture the skin with a skewer so that when you push the clove stems through they do not resist and break. Use 3 whole cloves in a triangle for a nose, and about 12 for a wide smiling mouth. Just before serving time fill orange shells with strawberry ice cream, heaping it up a little. Put on "cap" at an angle. Arrange a border of about 3 whole perfect strawberries around base. Impale one perfect strawberry on a tooth pick and stick it into top of cap like a tassel. Serve one Jolly Junior to each guest at a children's birthday party.

For an adult party make

STRAWBERRY ICE CREAM MERINGUE PIE:

Make Meringue Shell: Five large egg whites, 1½ cups granulated sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon baking powder, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1½ teaspoons lemon juice, 1 tablespoon water. To the sugar add the baking powder and salt and mix them. In a large bowl beat the egg whites until "softly peaked then gradually add sugar mixture while beating, until meringue is very stiff. Fold in the vanilla, lemon juice and water. Butter a deep 10" pie plate generously. Turn meringue into it, and with large spoon draw sides up high and make depression at centre. Bake at 250 deg. Fahr. for 1½ hours. Turn off oven heat and leave meringue in closed oven for another ½ hour. Remove and allow to cool at room temperature.

When meringue is cool and time arrives to serve pie, fill it with strawberry ice cream, mounding it a little at centre. Pipe unsweetened whipped cream or topping around edge. Inside whipped cream border arrange a ring of halved strawberries, point end up. Serve at once, instructing the server to cut pie into pie-shaped pieces.

University Women's Club Elects Officers for Year

An active and successful year was reported at the May meeting of University Women's Club of Belleville and District, held last Thursday evening in Education Hall, Belleville General hospital.

Members approved donations of $50 to the Elizabeth Fry Society; $50 to the Winnifred Cullis Fund; 100 to Miss Ashun, a Ghanian student at Queen's University; and $45 to the nurses' reference library.

Mrs. R. E. Barrett reported that several applications for the four scholarships, which club will award this year, had been received.

Miss J. Tickell spoke briefly about Crosby Hall, the International club house of the British Federation of University Women, which was built in 1470 and has housed several famous people, including Richard III and Sir Thomas More.

EXECUTIVE ELECTED

After the general meeting the annual meeting was held and the following members were elected to serve on the executive for the coming year: Mrs. president, Mrs. J. E. Pugh; president, Mrs. R. E. Successful Living

A Woman's Friendships Important to Well-Being

DEAR DORIS — When a husband does not approve of his wife's friends, should she drop them and have none, in order to keep peace in the family? What if she is uncomfortable or bored in the presence of the people he approves of, is it better to stay at home all the time and try to be content, while silently (if possible) chewing at the bit? Or should she have the stamina to say, "I'm going where ever I want to," and battle it out?

DORIS CLARK

I enjoy myself with people with whom I can feel at ease, have a laugh occasion, silly, and go home with a feeling that all is well. (Until I walk in the door, that is.) The type my husband approves of are more reserved, cooler, no feeling of real friendship. I try to watch every word, and worry afterward about anything I may have said offhand.

I have tried it both ways until I could not stand it any longer, and have practically stopped going out at all. For him this seems to be ideal, but for me, my nerves are getting more on edge, I'm frustrated and miserable. I don't feel up to having a good fight to go out. What happens now?

— I have started going to a doctor with odd things (but real) wrong with me. — MISERY ME.

DEAR MISERY ME — If a man's love for his woman is good enough he helps her with her coat, gives her a parting hug, and says "I want you to enjoy yourself when you go out."

Such a love frees us to our best self-expression. Then the lower gets it all back like a boomerang in the grateful response of the beloved. Your frustrated feelings may well be at the bottom of your aches and pains.

Farfetched? Not a bit of it. Let a friend — your type — or a trained counsellor — be your confidant. And get the stamina, willy nilly, to make a dint in that un-manly iron wall.

DEAR DORIS — After going with my boy friend for a few months, I got pregnant. I love him very much and we were going to get married. Then he read a letter I wrote with a few lies and changed completely, even though I said I was sorry and didn't mail the letter.

He is not going to help me at all with the financial situation. I am afraid I have lost him completely. He tells me that he doesn't know what he wants right now or what his true feelings are. Should I give up? — HEARTBROKEN.

DEAR HEARTBROKEN — The lies you invented must have cast him in a bad light and made him feel you were disloyal. Right now he is mixed up; so are you.

He probably doesn't realize it, but he just can't refuse to help financially. It's his baby too, and there are laws about this. Your child care worker is the one to help you sort things out.

Women's Institutes

CARMEL, W.I.

The May meeting of the Carmel Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Percy Reynolds with a good attendance. President, Mrs. Lucas opened the meeting.

It was decided to have a "penny contest" and also to have Mr. McMurry show slides the last week in October. It was decided to have a short course on creative cookery and to have a short course on food shopping as a second choice.

The June meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Charles Brimmell. The by-laws were added to the hand book. Mrs. Graham, convener for historical research gave an interesting reading on the life of Queen Victoria who came to the throne at the age of 18. She married her cousin Prince Albert. She took her affairs of state faithfully. During her reign many acts were passed also many inventions, including bicycles and motor cars, hospitals became numerous. Her reign was a prosperous one for Britain. The country during that period made great progress towards the comfort and happiness of the people. She died at the age of 81. Her death was mourned by every English speaking citizen

Mrs Duane Martin, convener for education and citizenship gave a reading on a Polish lad who came to Canada at the age of ten and later joined the Hamilton Light Infantry and fought his way across Europe being wounded four times. Last year he discovered that he was not a Canadian citizen and to become one he had papers to fill in and a cost of $11. Canadians feel that he was entitled to a better deal.

Mrs. Harold Elliott and Mrs. Lorne Latchford were in charge of the program. Mrs. Elliott gave a reading on the origin of Mother's Day which was first celebrated in 1908 on this continent and the second Sunday in May has been set aside for Mother's Day.

LIFE OF VICTORIA

Mrs. Percy Reynolds and Mrs. Allison gave interesting readings. Mrs. Elliott gave an account of the life of Queen Victoria stressing her Christian religious life. She always joined with others at worship being strict in observance of the Lord's Day. Wherever she happened to be on Sunday she joined in worship with her ministers, only performing the necessary duties of her state. She was fond of children, she was a great woman at heart and is remembered for her faith and devotion.

Mrs. Lucas thanked Mrs. Elliott and Mrs. Latchford and also Mrs. Percy Reynolds for opening her home for the meeting. A contest was given with Mrs. Seldon Homan being the lucky winner.

GIRL GUIDE and BROWNIE NEWS

FRANKFORD — The 1st. Frankford Brownie Pack and the 1st Frankford Girl Guide entertained their mothers at the Brownies annual fly-up ceremony on Wednesday evening, at Frankford Community Hall.

The Brownies who completed their golden band requirements flew up to Guides where they were accepted by Guide leaders, Mrs. Marg. Standish, Mrs. M. Machala, District Commissioner planned on their "Wings" before going through the arch. Three other girls hopped up to Guides. They hadn't been with the Company long enough to pass the required tests, but were old enough to go up to Guides.

The Guides will receive their proficiency badges at a special ceremony on June 22nd. They are religion and life emblem — Susan Chase and Judy Pitcher; child nurse and dancer, Susan Kelley; cooks, Judy Pitcher; laundress, Susan Chase and Judy Pitcher, minstrel and needle woman — Susan Chase.

Prospective Guide leader, Mrs. Ann Thexsuit was introduced. Brownies who flew up were: Christie Chase, Kathy Moran, Brenda Savage, Maybeth Rowe, Mona Reynolds, Debbie Moran, Carol Schwass, and Margetta Hoar and Brownies who hopped up were: Lois Gofi, Carol Rose, Sharon Post.

A number of 1st, 2nd and 3rd year service stars were presented as well as several proficiency badges.

A silver spoon was presented to Donna Chase (a junior leader) on the event of her leaving the Guide Company to attend University in the fall.

Mrs. J. Schwass presented the spoon to Donna on behalf of the local association; also a flag pole cover was presented to the Guides by Mrs. W. Branch.

Lunch was provided by the local association and served by Guides trying out for their hostess badges. These Guides were Sandra Bayarchuk, Judy Pitcher, Roseanne Richmond and Gloria Patridge.

Church Groups

W.M.S. — L.A.

IVANHOE — The regular monthly meeting of St. Andrew's W.M.S. and Ladies' Aid of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, West Huntingdon was held at the home of Mrs. Harry Thompson on Wednesday evening with 14 in attendance.

Mrs. Lindsay Sills presided and opened the program with a poem. Mrs. Harold Thompson and Mrs. John McIntyre assisted. A reading on "Growing" was read by Mrs. Thomas Dodge; a solo was given by Mrs. Arthur Hassall.

A full report of the W.M.S. anniversary celebration held in Montreal was given by Mrs. L. Sills, Mrs. David Fargey, Mrs. Milton Shaw and Mrs. John Wallace.

An invitation was extended to W.M.S. members to attend a tea and bake sale under the auspices of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Women, to be in June at the manse, Stirling.

Bringing Up Baby

HINTS COLLECTED BY MRS. IRMA GERBER, MOTHER OF 5

When baby is young about the only discipline you can impose is to establish regular sleeping and eating patterns. But when baby reaches the year-old stage you can begin to regulate his behavior to keep him from getting out of hand. But remember to make sure that your tyke is capable of understanding what you want and why you want it. Remember too, that good behavior is best taught by example. A toddler learns faster by imitation than by rules he doesn't understand.

Dinner delights for fussy appetites. Gerber Junior Meat Dinners offer a something extra-special in the way of flavour-appeal. First, they have 3 times as much savory, succulent meat as our regular vegetable meat combinations. Second, selected vegetables and subtle seasoning are deftly added for unusual flavour interest. Good sources of protein and Vitamin-A, these "casserole" dishes provide hearty nourishment in eight wonderful ways.

Table talk. Toddler table manners should not be stressed until your child is reasonably skillful at handling his spoon. It's hard enough to make a spoon behave without the burden of learning manners at the same time.

Hygiene bird. If you make a special point of washing your toddler's hands before every meal, he'll come to accept this routine naturally. A gaily printed towel that he can call his very own adds a measure of pride to the ritual.

Dept. of utter bliss. Gerber Strained and Junior Fruits are an open invitation to smiles and lip-smacking. Easy to understand why, too. Gerber Fruits are famous for colour that literally sing and flavours as close to Mother Nature's sun-kissed best as you can get them. That's because they're flash-cooked in seconds to preserve true colours and flavours. Flash-cooking also helps protect the precious vitamins that contribute so much to baby's well-being. Gerber Baby Foods, Niagara Falls, Canada.

Ann Landers

Hard to Keep 'Em on Farm After They've Seen Paree

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I made a big mistake and now I don't know how to get out of this terrible situation.

I'm a high school junior and I'm not beautiful but I have a nice face and a spectacular figure. Please don't think I am bragging. I've been told this by dozens of people — both boys and girls.

ANN LANDERS

Well, when Tex asked me for a date I was honored. He is about the number one guy in the whole school, handsome and from a rich family. I wanted to make sure he would ask me out a second time, so I let him go further than I should have.

Now all Tex wants to do is to make out. I've suggested that we double date but he always finds excuses and shows up alone. I am ashamed of myself and want him to know I made a mistake on our first date and that I am really not that kind of a girl. How can I do it? — BAD START.

DEAR START — It's awfully hard to keep 'em down on the farm, honey, after they've seen Paree.

You will never persuade a fellow you aren't that kind of a girl when he has learned from experience that you are. My advice is to stop seeing Tex and chalk this mistake up to experience.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — What's with this chain letter stuff? It used to be just a nice little good luck poem from a friend. Then it branched out — and strangers began asking you to make ten copies of some darned fool thing. Now it's "Send a fifth of Scotch — or $5 worth of trading stamps." What's more they make it sound as if you will be plagued with 13 years of bad luck if you don't follow the instructions.

This past week I received a bath towel chain letter, and one requesting that I send $5 to the last name on the list. I didn't follow up with either one and my conscience is bothering me because I broke the chain.

Is this stuff on the level? Does it work? Have you ever heard of anybody who received anything from a chain letter — except a request? Thank you. — IGNORANT.

DEAR IG. — Chain letters are illegal! They are also stupid because they are predicated on the very theory that you can get something for nothing.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — It seems odd to worry about someone you don't even know, but I'm concerned about that teen-age girl who wrote that she is frightened to be in the house alone.

My daughter went through the same thing. She used to worry about someone crawling in through her bedroom window at night. You have no idea how many hours I spent with that girl, trying to make her see that all the windows and screens were tightly closed and that it was impossible for anyone to get into the house.

It took me two years to get to the bottom of it. I still find it hard to believe and torturous to endure, but her step-father wouldn't leave her alone when I was at work.

My daughter is now happily married and has three lovely children. God was with us, Ann. I hope somehow He will be with the girl who wrote. — AUGUSTA, MAINE.

DEAR AUGUSTA — Experts tell us that it is often extremely difficult to ferret out the initial reason for fear.

In your daughter's case there was a direct relationship between her fear and the cause of it. In many instances there is not visible or apparent relationship, which is why professional help can be costly and time consuming — but it is well worth it.

What Power Do Some Men Have Over Women?

A look...a touch...and a word ...are these the keys to the power a man has over a woman? This article in June Reader's Digest suggests that the greatest secret binding a woman to a man lies in some very simple courtesies—which most men blindly overlook and most women secretly long for. The Experts Say
Should Put Report Cards In Proper Perspective

By BRENDA LARGE

OTTAWA (CP) — Report cards and examinations can be damaging to a child's mental health if his parents and teachers fail to put them in the proper perspective, says a former dean of education at the University of Saskatchewan.

Dr. S. R. Laycock, now a special lecturer in education at the University of British Columbia, writes in the April issue of the federal health department publication, Canada's Mental Health:

"There is little in education that can be so damaging to the self-concept and to relationships with pupils as most types of report cards.

"In our society where success in moving up the socio-economic scale is a major criterion of an individual's worth, children who do not receive high marks (on a uniform curriculum for their age group) are apt to receive severe blows to their self-esteem from their middle-class parents."

In an article on Promoting Mental Health in the School, Dr. Laycock says if "pep talks, scoldings, exhortations, pressure, punishments or bribes could solve the problem of low marks, it would have been solved long ago."

A host of factors are involved in school failures, including emotional and character disturbances, personality factors, home conditions, cultural standards and environment situations.

Dr. Laycock believes most types of report cards should be replaced by parent-teacher conferences.

PARENTS WANT THEM

"Since this is now impossible because parents seem wedded to report cards (complete with percentages), the only practical alternative would seem to be to try to reduce the harm done to children's self-concepts and to their relationships with parents and teachers."

This could be done by using "intelligently conducted" parent-teacher conferences to supplement report cards.

"At such conferences teachers and parents could search together as to how they can cooperate to help the child achieve his potentialities and at his own rate of learning."

Dr. Laycock feels examinations in themselves are not a danger to students' mental health.

"It is the undue emphasis placed on competitive examinations by parents and teachers that may cause damage.

"Actually, children continually seek to test themselves in athletics, games, and in many other ways. So far as school work goes there should be more, not fewer, examinations in which pupils test their progress and growth."

But in testing, teachers should move away from too great an emphasis on fact-getting. Rewards ways of testing pupils' ability in fact-using, Dr. Laycock advises.

"Examinations should test the ability to solve problems in new settings to do logical and critical thinking, to ask questions, to foresee consequences, and to produce new ideas."

U.C.W. Meeting

PLAINFIELD U.C.W.

Mrs. Raymond Sullivan and Mrs. Ray Sullivan opened their homes for the May meeting of the U.C.W. There were fifteen members present.

President Mrs. Clarence Hall opened the meeting with Mrs. Harry Harrison at the piano. There was a discussion about sending delegates to a Leaders' School in July. It was decided to make a donation to Quin-Mo-Lac United Church Camp. The annual fall bazaar was discussed.

The devotional was in charge of Mrs. Allan Gibson and Mrs. Grant Kerr.

The Bible study was conducted by Mrs. Harry Harrison. Miss Lola Selby gave a solo.

The program on missions was given by Mrs. Fred Sills. It was a brief study and discussion on the women of India.

Mrs. Harry Harrison closed the meeting with prayer. Refreshments were served by the hostess and her committee and a social half hour was enjoyed.

Speaking Personally

By Gladys Ward

B.C.I. vs. B.H.S.

When I see bus loads of students coming into the city schools from the rural areas it reminds me of two sisters who were my fellow classmates at B.C.I., known at that time as B.H.S.

They used to drive in to Belleville from a farm west of the city, a distance of about five miles, with a horse and buggy. They would take the horse to a stable behind Woolworth's store and tether him there for the day.

Most students from the country boarded in town or came in cars, but these girls were the ones I envied, (Color me green). The idea of hitching up a horse and having a buggy ride every morning and evening appealed to me. At the noon hour they would go downtown and feed and water the horse.

There was no cafeteria at the school and lunches were eaten right at the students' own desks.

Of course in those days our desks were more our own too, because instead of the pupils moving from room to room as they do now, the students stayed in one room and at one desk and the teachers went from room to room.

Another memory I have of that Collegiate is the cloak room as it was called. It was a small room about the size of an average office, and the first to arrive got hooks to hang their coats on. This took care of about the first fifty. The rest had to hang their coats two deep on the hooks, or throw them on the window sills or on the floor. There were no lockers. There was no auditorium either, it was used for classrooms.

We thought the present B.C.I. was a wonder of architectural achievement when it was built, and marvelled at all the modern innovations. But like the horse and buggy my classmates came to school in, B.C.I. now has a slightly plodding and pedestrian look compared with the sleek new lines of the latest models.

STALE VITAMINS

Canadian Consumer magazine which does a fine job of testing and reporting on a great variety of household appliances and things of interest and concern to women say in their latest publication that vitamin preparations stored in medicine cupboards or on store shelves gradually lose their potency. But there is nothing on most labels to tell how long these products retain their full strength.

Consumers' Association of Canada has asked for an expiration date on these labels — the same practice now followed by manufacturers of yeast and camera films, who stamp on their products the date after which they should not be used.

Some manufacturers are already doing this. The Food and Drug Directorate is considering an amendment to its regulations which will require expiration date on all vitamin preparations. This amendment is now being discussed with manufacturers.

Mental Exam Is Ordered For Accused

HULL, Que. (CP)—A mental examination was ordered Tuesday for Yvon Lecourisere, 17, charged with capital murder in the knife slaying of crippled 11-year - old Rejean St. Denis in this Ottawa-area city late last month.

Judge Avila Labelle agreed to defence counsel's request for the examination after 19 witnesses were heard at a preliminary hearing.

Sustain

by Parliament, he said.

Last year various subsidy and price support payments totalled $21,000,000 in Eastern Canada and $10,000,000 in the West.

And to make sure that all 60 members of the Commons agriculture committee would be familiar with problems in all provinces, Mr Hays announced that a plane would be available in August to take the committee on a Canadian tour.

"I want to see the Quebec farm members of Parliament down in the southern parts of Swift Current where they cannot see their hand in front of them for dust. I want to see the Saskatchewan farm member of Parliament stand in Newfoundland where he will be up to his knees in muskeg, and out in B.C. and northern Alberta and Saskatchewan where there are only 90 frost-free days in the year."

While members of Parliament were sincere in their remarks, "many do not know anything about agriculture outside of their own regional areas," Mr. Hays added.

He had found some of their speeches boring.

Modern

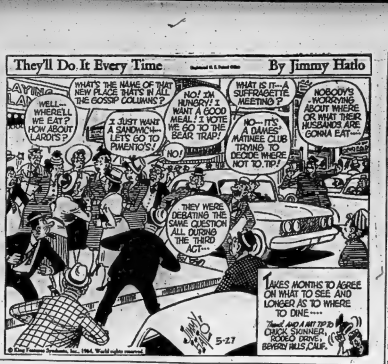
I have grave news to announce to the House and the country," Minister of Steel C. Subramaniam told the lower house of Parliament. "The prime minister is no more. The light is out."

Nehru was stricken at 6:25 a.m., shortly after he got up at his usual hour. He died at 2 p.m., seven hours and 35 minutes later.

Eight doctors, including a brain specialist, tried to save him. The Associated Press quoted a member of his personal secretariat as saying Nehru died of a stroke, his second in the last five months. A reliable report said he had suffered a thrombosis (blood clot).

Home Secretary V. Viswanathan said Nehru's physicians attributed his death to "heart attack and shock."

The official gave this report of Nehru's last hours:



After returning to New Delhi Tuesday night from a three-day holiday in the mountain resort of Dehra Dun, Nehru went to bed at 11 p.m. as usual in his second - floor bedroom. He seemed normal and cheerful.

Upon arising this morning, Nehru acted and apparently felt as usual. But within minutes he was stricken and immediately lapsed into unconsciousness. He never regained consciousness.

Doctors, who had lived in the prime minister's mansion since his first stroke last July 7 left his side partly paralyzed, quickly administered oxygen. Other specialists hurried to the mansion. But at 11:45, word spread through the house that "he is sinking."

At 1:30 p.m. Nehru's condition was termed "desperate and critical," and he died at 2 p.m.

It was announced soon after the death that Nehru's body will be cremated Thursday morning on the banks of the Jamna River, near the spot where revered Indian independence leader, Mohandas Gandhi, was cremated 16 years ago.

The mourning period will last 12 days. Mrs. Indira Gandhi, Nehru's only child, was at his side when he died. Nehru's two sisters, Mrs. Vijayalakshmi Pandit and Mrs. Krishna Hutheesingh, left Bombay by special plane for New Delhi. Mrs. Pandit is governor of Maharashtra state.

A crowd of 50,000 weeping men, women and children assembled outside Nehru's house here within two hours of the announcement of his death. Thousands more streamed out of the streets of New Delhi to join them.

Cabinet ministers, members of Parliament and leading citizens filed mournfully past Nehru's body where it lay on a bed in the east wing of his house.

Nehru's daughter, Mrs. Gandhi clad in the white Hindu robes of mourning, her head covered sat on the floor at the head of the bed.

The mourners filed past the foot of the bed, each bowing his head as he passed.

Nehru's body was later to be placed on a raised platform on the verandah of his home to let his people have a last glimpse of him. The body was to remain on the verandah all night. If the usual custom is followed, Nehru's ashes will be strewn in the nation's holy rivers, probably at Allahabad, his birthplace, at the confluence of the Ganges, the Jumna and the mythological underground Saraswati River.

In London, Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home said he would fly to India this afternoon for the funeral. Buckingham Palace said Queen Elizabeth would be represented by Earl Mountbatten, who was India's last viceroy and first governor-general and a close friend of Nehru's.

Flags flew at half - staff through the city. Government offices closed and were to stay closed Thursday.

"Where will you get the like of him again?" wailed one grief-stricken member of Parliament as he sat on the steps of Nehru's house, beating his breast.

He suffered his first stroke Jan. 7. Despite his slow improvement in recent weeks he had resumed some of his government activities, including appearances in Parliament.

After Nehru's first stroke, he brought 59-year-old Lal Bahadur Shastri back into the government as minister without portfolio and the government's spokesman in Parliament. Shastri then was viewed as deputy prime minister in effect and Nehru's heir apparent.

But after the prime minister's partial recovery and his return to Parliament, Shastri's authority diminished and a leadership vacuum developed. Nehru still was not physically able to carry out his duties fully but was unwilling to delegate authority for major decisions or designate an heir.

Jawaharlal Nehru will go down in history as the maker of modern India.

Man Held 100 Days Deported

BUFFALO (CP) — Eric Claude Hooper, 27, of Buffalo, who spent 100 days in Toronto's Don Jail, arrived here Tuesday by plane after being deported from Canada.

Hooper told a reporter he planned to go to Niagara Falls, N.Y., to visit his grandmother.

Canadian immigration officials Tuesday dropped a charge they had laid 94 days after Hooper was first imprisoned and ordered him deported.

Hooper, who has been deported three times since 1962 when he was convicted on a narcotics charge and sentenced to six months imprisonment, was taken to the plane by RCMP officials but made the rest of the journey unescorted.

A few hours earlier, defence lawyer Allan Mintz had insisted in court that the charge under the Immigration Act of refusing to answer questions be proceeded with so he could win Hooper an acquittal, but Magistrate C. T. Bigelow permitted the charge to be withdrawn.
